Charting Your Life

If you want to find new happiness in life, you must decide what things will bring you that happiness. If you are in doubt of your true goal, you must trust your intuitions. If you cannot find a specific answer, go with your inner longings. Do the work you most desire to do.

Never worry about consequences when you do this. Choose the thing most important to you and seek that first. This is the dynamic rule of successful worry.

But if you have decided to follow it there is still another point to remember. Do not expect to achieve perfect success. There is an average ratio of error in all conduct. Why should you escape it or blame yourself because you sometimes fail? Growth means perpetual unfoldment, a struggle up where we have fallen down.—David Seabury, in Cosmopolitan.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

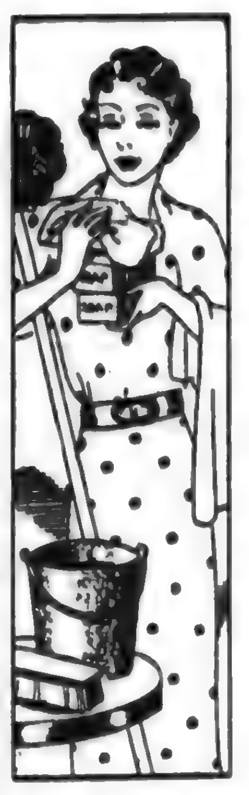
The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THE homemaker who has a woman come in for a day each week to do the things she finds too much for her, either because she is not strong enough to do these things, or because she has not the opportunity, can get more work done by being prepared for the helper than without such preparation. The extra work that is done is not through pressure. It is entirely through preventing waste of time by getting ready before the worker arrives. It is annoying to the helper to be kept waiting for needed things. This is as tiresome as doing the work, provided everything is in readiness.



The laundress who must wait for soap, bluing, starch or any essential, is irritated by being held up by such delays. It annoys her to think that the woman of the house should not have enough respect for her labor to have things ready for her. The homemaker is annoyed with herself for not attending to the matter before, and is exasperated to find the washing delayed. Sometimes she is inclined to think the laundress is dilatory, and might go ahead if she would. However either the homemaker or the laundress feels, good nature is being taxed by the delay.

Cleaning Cloths.

It sometimes happens that the woman to clean, has difficulty in getting sufficient cleaning cloths. The homemaker should see that new soft cloth is provided when the old cloth is gone. There are cleaners who use up cloth as if it were paper to be discarded after use. There are others who wash their cleaning cloths and hang them out to dry and be in readiness for another time. The homemaker can see that the woman does this. It will take a few moments longer, but is worth the time, as it is a measure of preparedness for the next day's work.

Brooms, brushes, mops, pails, clothespins, dusters, household ammonia, washing soda, silver polish, and all the things of whatever sort the special work requires, should be on hand and where the worker can find them without delay. Such attentions to the worker's needs shows an efficiency in the homemaker, that gains respect of the helper, while it makes it possible for the worker to get the most done in the given time.

Help the Hostess.

When you are helping someone do any work, it is necessary to do it as nearly as possible in the way the other person wants it done. It is well to remember this during visits when you desire to be a helpful guest. Every homemaker has her own pet way of doing things, and if you know what it is, it is for you to do it her way unless she expresses no preferences.

There are women who prefer their guests to do, in their own way, whatever little tasks they offer to, possibly because the hostess realizes the guest is expert and efficient, or possibly because she likes to learn new ways. But most homemakers have certain definite methods of work, and plans of accomplishment, and appreciate it when a guest does things the way she, as homemaker, prefers.

To be specific, I know of one homemaker who likes her beds made without turning down the top sheet before putting on the daytime spread. She is apt to tell her friends who visit her and want to help, that this way is what she likes. So whatever the friend prefers, it is for her to make the beds thus.

Preparing Fruit.

Another woman likes peaches cut into slivers. It irritates her to have to cut into medium segments, although she tries not to show it, when a guest follows her own method, inadvertently. This is a hostess who is not very adaptable. However she entertains delightfully, and it is a pleasure to visit her.

When it comes to dish washing, the number of ways to do the work are endless. One woman rinses her dishes under running water from a faucet as a preliminary process. Another scrapes each dish, and makes them all into prim piles before starting to wash them. Another woman washes pots and pans before dishes, another afterwards. If you are a guest and do them with the hostess, be sure to follow her system, although should you do the work by yourself, you could undoubtedly follow your own system, if you so requested.

WE OWE THANKS FOR PURE MILK

Vivid Contrast With U. S. Seen in Tropics.

By EDITH M. BARBER

EARLY each morning we find at our doorstep clean, fresh milk and cream which we are certain is safe to use. Whether we think about this fact or not we are conscious that the nutriments of this liquid food come up to the standard set by city or state.

Perhaps these facts were brought home to me by contrasting the appearance of the cattle in the tropics with those of our own dairy country. Even on the best farms they were scrawny and not to be compared with those which we see in our fertile countryside.

For many years the milk which comes into many cities in this country has been pasteurized. Conditions on dairy farms in many states are under the supervision of the health authorities. We are not confronted with any problem as far as the quality and safety of our daily supply is concerned. This is a matter of moment in most places in the tropics, where most of my American friends rely entirely upon canned or dried milk.

Although it has no bearing on the safety of the milk supply, it is very pleasant to those who like their morning naps to have milk distributed by wagons with pneumatic tires, sometimes drawn by horses whose hoofs are actually muffled. This latter is the custom in Erie, Pa., where I mistook the milk delivery for an early horseback rider!

Cream Soup.

1½ to 2 cups vegetable pulp
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 cups white sauce
Seasoning to taste

Cook the vegetables and onion until they are tender. Rub through a sieve and add the pulp to the white sauce. Add the seasoning. Add more milk if necessary. Spinach, lettuce, onions, corn, peas and other vegetables may be used. The onion may be omitted.

Noodle Ring.

1 package noodles
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups diced meat or vegetable
1½ cups white sauce, well seasoned

Cook noodles in boiling salted water. Drain and dress with melted butter. Press into ring mold (quart size) and set in hot water. Dress left-over meat or vegetables with sauce, seasoned very well. Turn noodle mold onto platter and fill with creamed mixture. Two teaspoons of poppy seeds and one-half cup of chopped almonds may be browned in the butter used to dress the noodles.

Bread Pudding.

2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 quart hot milk
¾ cup sugar
1 cup chopped figs
¼ cup melted butter
3 eggs, beaten
Salt
½ cup chopped nuts

Add bread crumbs to hot milk and set aside to cool, then add all other ingredients and pour into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water in moderate oven and bake for one hour or steam for two hours. Serve with plain or whipped cream or pudding sauce.

Lemon Frosting.

1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons butter
Salt
1 cup confectioner's sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon water
2 cups confectioner's sugar

Cream orange rind and butter and add gradually the salt and one cup of confectioner's sugar which has been sifted. Add lemon juice and water and remaining confectioner's sugar.

Chocolate Frosting.

2 tablespoons butter
2 cups confectioners' sugar, sifted
4 egg yolks
⅛ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 squares chocolate, melted

Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar and a little beaten egg yolk and cream together well. Add rest of egg yolks, milk, vanilla and chocolate. Place bowl in pan of ice water and beat with rotary egg-beater until thick enough to spread.

Cream Puffs.

½ cup butter
1 cup boiling water
1 cup bread flour
4 eggs, unbeaten

Add the butter to the water, heat until the butter melts, add flour all at once and stir vigorously over the heat until a ball forms in the center of the pan. Cool slightly, add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mixture should be very stiff. Shape on buttered cookie sheets by dropping from a spoon. Bake until free from beads of moisture in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.)

"The Man Who-O-O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

KICKING TEDDY UP-HILL

IT IS certain that Theodore Roosevelt would never have become President in the manner he did if it hadn't been for Sen. Thomas Platt, then the political boss of New York state. In order to insure the presence of a Republican at Albany, but with inner misgivings which were soon to be realized, he prevailed on the popular Rough Rider to become the gubernatorial candidate, shortly after the Spanish war.

Roosevelt was elected and showed immediately that he could not be controlled by Platt or any boss. Platt's embarrassment was only that of a politician. But the discomfort of his friends, thoroughly disturbed by Teddy's big stick gestures, became a problem.

The solution, finally arrived at by a devious route, appeared before the primaries of 1900. The Republican party in New York was to name a candidate for governor—perhaps Roosevelt again—in September. But the Republican party in the United States had to name a running mate for President McKinley, and the latter convention would be held in June!

Platt decided that Teddy would be the vice-presidential candidate. He would kick Roosevelt up-hill, and out of New York state.

Roosevelt himself realized the move had been launched to shelve him, for so he regarded the vice-presidency. Moreover, neither Mark Hanna of Ohio, a president-maker in a big way in those days, nor McKinley wanted Roosevelt on the national ticket.

But Platt persisted. He was aided by Roosevelt's growing popularity, particularly in the West.

These Westerners carried their Roosevelt enthusiasm to the convention with them. The boom reached proportions that Hanna could not ignore and in a conference with Platt the night before the nominations the president-maker capitulated.

Hanna issued a statement advocating Roosevelt for the vice-presidency and told the newspapermen: "Boys, you can't stop it any more than you could stop Niagara."

Soon to become President at the unfortunate death of McKinley, Roosevelt won the election. And when the gleeful Senator Platt was asked if he would attend the inauguration he replied: "Yes, I am going down to see Theodore Roosevelt take the veil."

NOTICE TO A NOMINEE

A LOT of folks today believe that when political parties are convening, the favored candidates, wherever they may be, have one ear to a keyhole, a wetted finger uplifted to test direction of the political winds, and have set their radio dials the proper wave length to listen in on convention hall. Maybe they're right.

But it wasn't always like that. We had ten Presidents before the man who was destined to become the eleventh, James K. Polk of Tennessee, was informed of his candidacy by telegraph.

The dots and dashes that spelled out Polk's surprising overthrow of Martin Van Buren in the Democratic convention of 1844 were impulses over a newly-built line of telegraph between Baltimore, scene of the convention, and Washington. Polk, who was waiting in Washington, was the first man who received the news in what is today a commonplace fashion.

Van Buren, seeking to succeed himself, was easily the favorite. But he had steadily lost ground at the Baltimore meeting after being placed "on the spot" by the question of the annexation of Texas. Southern delegates began to forsake his candidacy in large numbers. His managers attempted to change the party's new two-thirds rule to a majority ukase, but were unsuccessful.

A steady drift to Polk began on the ninth ballot of the convention. Strangely enough, a letter from Jackson, Van Buren's mentor, which pleaded for harmony, helped complete the rout in Polk's favor.

The telegraph wire served for one more purpose on this momentous occasion. Sen. Silas Wright was in Washington and had been tendered second place on the ticket with Polk. He was angry over the shelving of Van Buren, so the dots and dashes which came back over the wire carried his indignant refusal of this chance to become the vice-president of the United States.

Gray Uniforms

Research among the archives of Fort Monroe, Va., reveals that the high-powered rifle was responsible for the change in color of uniforms of the United States Army from blue to olive drab. Blue, it was discovered, is visible at a longer distance than any other color, and makes an easy target for sharpshooters. Until after the Spanish-American war there were no guns accurate or high-powered enough to make any difference.

It Doesn't Pay—

Doing Favors for Others With Thought of Return Disappoints

"THE older I grow the more I am appalled by the ingratitude, the complete lack of a sense of obligation on the part of our fellow human beings.

"With me the people who come first are always those to whom I have any obligation whatsoever. Anything that is done for me is constantly on my mind and I am on the lookout to repay. But look about you and you will observe the most inconceivable indifference on the part of most otherwise decent people to what they owe to others. Indeed the code seems to be to cultivate those from whom some advantage may be forthcoming and neglect those to whom we are indebted. The answer to it all is to put yourself out for nobody; it doesn't pay."

The above lament was received by an international writer of note, who answers as follows:

It must have been an unusually unfortunate chain of experiences that gave this woman such an unhappy slant on human nature. But certain it is that favors done with thought of return are bound to bring disappointment. In this busy, hectic world, people are likely to be rather casual about give and take. Tthat does not necessarily mean that they are unappreciative. They are just not punctilious. Frequently a kindness makes its mark but time passes before occasion presents itself to show appreciation, or to reciprocate. After all, if we think enough of people to put ourselves out for them, as our reader says, there must be a certain amount of faith.

If we do things for others only because we want to do them and find a certain satisfaction in it, we have nothing to lose. But the expected reward is something like the watched pot—very disappointing. In fact, it doesn't pay.

Golden Anniversary

According to an insurance company, the chances of celebrating a golden anniversary depend entirely upon one's age and that of the consort at the time of the marriage. Taking an average case in which the bride is twenty-two years of age and the bridegroom twenty-five years of age, the chances that they will both survive and celebrate their golden anniversary is 168 out of every 1,080, or about one in six.

"I wouldn't like her," Deborah said positively, and put her chin up.

Simon raised himself on his arms and called down to them through the twilight. "Hi," he said, "what about the other mail?"

"There's more. Tubby's got it," Madeline explained. "In his pocket. He's coming across the bridge now. I can hear his delicate footsteps."

Tubby came around the end of the house. His face was very red. He was not smiling. He was almost frowning. Madeline glanced significantly at Sally, who compressed her lips and stared at her brother. Tubby stopped beside the steps, only a few feet in front of Deborah, so that as he took the letters from his inner coat pocket she could easily see them. Idly, as he called out a name, she glanced at each envelope. . . .

"Simon," he announced. "Nothing for you, Bryn. Sally, two for you. Nothing at all for you, Deborah, and Madeline had hers in town. Another for you, Simon. And here," he said gallantly, "is a letter for you, Mrs. Larned. It looks very interesting. Written in a bold, dashing, masculine hand, with a very thick enclosure, it carries with it a hint of mystery."

He had been holding out Simon's last letter, waiting for him to take it, as he spoke; so that Deborah had had a moment to take in the meaning of the handwriting on Grandmother's envelope. It was familiar . . . it was dreadfully familiar. A cold icy hand clutched at her heart, and she felt herself turning faint again, as she had on that dreadful afternoon on the wharf . . . she put out her hand involuntarily for the letter and made a queer little strangled sound. Grandmother was smiling at Tubby's nonsense, waiting for her letter. She did not notice Deborah's face. But Bryn did. He stood up sharply. He saw Deborah's whiteness. He put out his hand and took the letter from Tubby's. He glanced at it. He looked over at Grandmother.

"He could be arrested for this," he told Grandmother grimly. "Interfering with government mails. Bribery and corruption. The crooked game of politics."

Tubby stared at him, his mouth open.

"Shut up," Bryn told him, although he had not spoken. "Not a word out of you, you iniquitous scoundrel. Trying to defraud me of my rightful property, indeed. This is my letter. I've been looking for it for weeks, longing for it, not being able to sleep nights. It's a detailed and careful account of the construction of the arch of the bridge over the . . . over the Volga river in Russia. New departure in engineering. I'm sure Grandmother would enjoy reading it, wouldn't she? I suppose this is your idea of a joke. Grandmother, I apologize. I apologize for having such a stupid and crass insect for a friend."

"I was . . . I was just kidding him, Grandmother," Tubby muttered. "It isn't your letter after all. It's his."

"Oh, dear," Grandmother murmured, laughing. "You two keep me in a perfect state of bewilderment. I don't suppose I shall ever be able to tell whether you are talking sense or nonsense."

"Tubby's fault," Bryn answered, thrusting the letter into his pocket. "Tubby's an awful ass, Grandmother. You have no idea."

"He's all right," Simon explained. "He smells the dinner. We're going to have duck and watercress."

* * * * * * *

Deborah stood tensely before the window, hands locked together, waiting for Bryn to come downstairs after taking Grandmother up to bed. Tonight of all nights, Grandmother had stayed up half an hour later, and all the time Stuart Graham's letter, filled with all sorts of unimaginable possibilities, lay unopened in Bryn's pocket.

Bryn came in quickly and shut the door behind him. Deborah broke away from Madeline's arm. She took a step toward him. She put her hand out mutely.

His eyes were upon her face. He compressed his lips. His hand went to an inner pocket, and then he said, quietly, "Just a minute, Deborah. Are you perfectly sure that you're not mistaken?"

"Oh, yes, yes!" she cried, and the air in the room was suddenly electric, as if someone had turned a switch.

Bryn drew the letter out. He looked at it. "I don't like opening other people's letters," he said slowly. "It might be only an extraordinary resemblance, Deborah. You've had it on your mind, you know."

She took it from his hand and looked at it. The very touch of the envelope made her shiver. "I'm sure," she said.

Bryn ripped the end off the envelope, and drew out the folded pages. He glanced at Deborah's face. "Shall I read it, Deborah?"

She nodded mutely. Bryn straightened the pages and began.

My Dear Mrs. Larned:

Naturally I cannot imagine just what Deborah has told you regarding the failure of our plans in San Francisco, but I am afraid she may not have shown me in a kindly light. For the past month I have been most anxious to write and explain the situation to you but circumstances beyond my control have made it impossible for me to do so.

I suppose it is useless for me to expect that after hearing Deborah's story, whatever it was, and after this long silence on my part, you can have any sympathy for me and the position in which I now find myself. But I must ask you to accept the explanation which I have made in regard to my silence in view of the fact that I am an enlisted man in the navy, completely under the arbitrary control of any whim of my superior officers and subject to the restrictions of anyone on board a ship out of touch with land and such conveniences as mails.

And now for Deborah's story. What she has told you, I do not know, as I mentioned before, but looking at the matter from her point of view, and trying to be just and generous, I am forced to the conclusion that whatever she told you must have been both exaggerated and biased. I was very much disturbed over the whole business, and spent all my shore leave when in San Francisco trying to find her and explain, but of course it was an impossibility to do so.

I don't know whether it has occurred to you, Mrs. Larned, to think how completely ignorant of the world and its ways Deborah is. I was prepared, of course, for a certain amount of unsophistication, knowing to some extent how she had been brought up, but I did not realize that any girl could possibly, in this day and age, have remained so entirely unaware of all trends of modern times. I have, of course, every respect for the manners and customs of the time of my parents and grandparents, as I am sure you will know, but having lived a normal life, I have naturally progressed with others of my generation to an acceptance of the manners and customs of the present day. Deborah has not. This was obvious to me on our first meeting, from her appearance and from her absolute inability to meet an ordinary situation with calmness. I grant you that it must have been difficult for her to come down alone to meet me, and perhaps if I had known just how difficult, if I had realized Deborah's state of mind and lack of understanding of modern life as it is lived, I should have been able to overcome her objections and explain away her difficulties. As it was, I could do nothing. Deborah was in a state of frantic terror before I had a chance to see her at all, and by the time I reached her, she was beyond ordinary reasoning. I am bitterly sorry for it all, and reproach myself that I didn't guess what to expect, and so prepare the situation accordingly. It seems to me that I might have been warned, Mrs. Larned, of what I should have been expected to encounter.

Even as it was, I might have been able to overcome Deborah's childish terrors had it not been for the absolutely unwarranted interference of some unknown person in the lawyer's office. Deborah will probably have mentioned him to you, and made some satisfactory explanation as to her conduct. I was certainly pained and astonished to discover that she had so little good taste as to be willing to take up at once with a stranger. The fact of Mr. Holworthy's presence was all that reconciled me to leaving her, angry as I was. I may add that the time will come when I will make it my business to discover this stranger's identity and settle with him for the insult he offered me.

However, this is all beside the point. The really serious question between us is that of your husband's will and Deborah's estate. With my copy of the will I have consulted a lawyer, and it is his opinion that under certain circumstances we might make a fight for the estate that would ultimately prove successful. The circumstances are, of course, a marriage between Deborah and myself which would take place with your approval. This, unless there are aspects of the case with which I am not familiar, seems to me to be, from your point of view, an absolute necessity. I have examined the list of securities named in the will as the source of your present income, and, as you doubtless know only too well, most of them are completely worthless. How you have managed for the past few years is a mystery, and may possibly explain Deborah's appearance and obvious lack of advantages. In any case, no mitigation of your circumstances may arrive except through me, and although I was deeply hurt . . . ["I think I broke his jaw," Bryn said happily] . . . deeply hurt and mortified, not to mention my disappointment and the general disruption of my plans, I am willing, for the sake of the friendship which has existed between our families for so long, I am willing to do what I can to make things easier for you.

I have obtained from my commander an extended leave of absence, and I am leaving San Diego tomorrow morning to drive up the coast to your home. You may expect me at the latest by Wednesday noon, unless I meet with unexpected difficulties along the road.

Yours sincerely,
STUART OGDEN GRAHAM.

Bryn folded the letter. Tubby thrust his hands into his pockets and began to saunter up and down the room, whistling beneath his breath. Simon put his hands behind his head and stared at the ceiling. Sally was trembling with excitement and clutching Simon's knee, and Madeline walked slowly across and dropped down beside Deborah.

"Well," Tubby said, buttoning his coat and squaring his shoulders, "if he's got to be kept away, he's got to be kept away, and that's all there is to it. After all, there are four men of us here, and Burch. Five against one. That ought to be easy."

"You talk as if we were going to fight about it," Sally said tearfully. "With guns. It isn't half as blundering or easy as that."

"Not half," Madeline echoed. "This is going to be strategy. And strategy, Tubby, never was your strong point, if you will remember." She smiled up at him, a warm tender smile that made him blink and look as if he saw her for the first time. "But you're a darling, Tubby, and you're loyal and strong, and worth a lot more than one of those slippery strategists."

"Well, gee," Tubby said, bewildered, and sat down.

"We might bar the road," Tubby said hopefully. "Put a gate across it, you know."

"Somebody would have to guard it, of course," Bryn said thoughtfully. "And he'd want to know why he couldn't pass. If I stayed there myself and had a talk with him, explaining the situation, it might help; but I wouldn't trust him not to pretend to go away and then to sneak back when we weren't watching just to see what harm he could do."

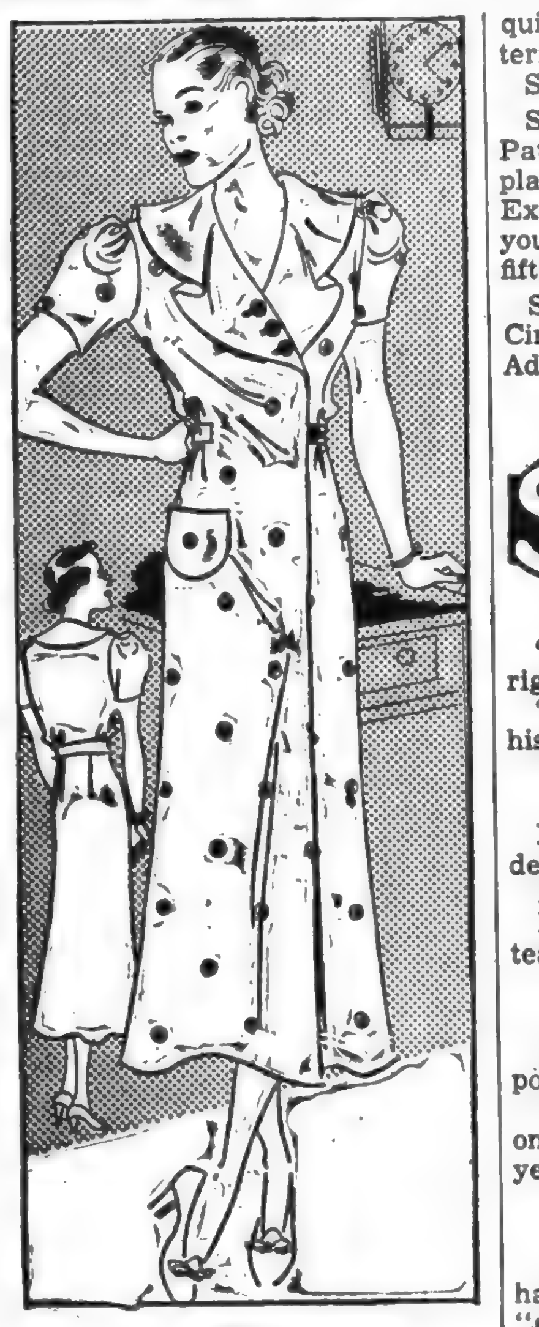
Tripod Table in Roman Times

In Roman times the favorite form of table was tripod.

Wrap-Around Apron Frock



1961-B.

Here's the style of apron-frock you've been wanting, a wrap-around that affords unhampered freedom of movement whether you're scrubbing the floor, or hanging drapes.

The wide contrasting ruff collar is feminine and trim while three bright buttons do their share for the bodice closing. Short puff sleeves are cleverly styled, simple, and comfortable and there's a conveniently large pocket to hold what nots. A narrow adjustable belt supplies that refinement known as "center poise" and helps "coverall." Truly it fits like the proverbial glove.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1961-B is available for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material plus ⅞ yard of contrast.

Send 15 cents for the pattern.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents for your copy.

"My Daddy's so tall he can see right over the garden fence."

"So can mine — when he's got his hat on."

Caesar's Ghost?

Lollie — I thought Caesar was dead.

Audrey—He is, isn't he?

Lollie—No, Mrs. Butler said she teaches him!

Collecting 'Em

Henry—I've a good mind to propose to you.

Mabel—Oh, please do. I need one more proposal to beat my last year's record.

Crying Need

Mary Jane—All my mistresses have admitted that I'm full of "go," madam.

Employer — That's very nice, but what I want is a girl with some staying power.

Her One Thought

He—When are you thinking of getting married?

She—Constantly.

Fulfilled

Bill — Have you ever realized any of your childhood hopes?

Pete—Yes; when mother used to comb my hair I often wished I didn't have any.

Too Well

Stranger — Is Shortleigh well known around here?

Native—I'll say he is. He is so well known that he has to go out of town to borrow a quarter.

F. B. Leighty and wife spent from Friday until Monday morning in the W. B. Cox home at Rising Sun, Indiana.

Gerald Brown and wife, of Ft. Wayne, son of the late Rev. J. A. Brown, were guests in the W. L. Hamilton home Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Foltz, of Los Angeles, Calif., with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foltz, of near Miller City, were Tuesday dinner guests in the J P. Buckingham home.

The box social sponsored by the Young Democrats Club of DeKalb county at the Spencerville town hall Thursday evening was a big success. About two hundred and fifty were present.

Vernie Monroe was appointed in the DeKalb circuit court Friday as administrator of the estate of his mother, the late Maude Cochran, of St. Joe, who died Aug. 25, leaving $300 in real estate. The heirs besides the widower are three children, Stanley Monroe, of West Unity, O., Vernie R. Monroe, of St. Joe, and Violet Copp, of New Haven. The notice appears in this paper.

Scrap iron is selling at $18.50 per ton, the best price realized since 1929. A Stradivarius violin has just changed hands for a consideration of $27,500. Those who incline to figures are left to calculate the ton quotation on the famous fiddles. There is plenty of good wood about, and tools are to be had easily. All that stands in the way of riches is a lack of knowledge that the old master craftsman possessed. No one need be discouraged however. If he cannot make his mark as a violin manufacturer, he can at least pick up scrap iron.

DON'T blame your butcher because Beef is Sky High . . . Conserve Meat with an ELECTRIC RANGE

THROUGH no fault of the farmer, the packer or the butcher, living costs for the past two years have been soaring. Because of an artificial man-made scarcity of livestock and destruction of food for cattle, living costs have increased 24% above 1933 prices.

Meat cooked electrically is more economical than that prepared by any of the old fashioned methods of cooking. You make an initial saving in that the cheaper cuts cook with tender juiciness and a second saving in the small amount of shrinkage.

The Electric Range of today has speed, cleanliness and certainty of results. Don't wait any longer. See the new models today.

ST. JOE MAN VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Chas. A. Cochran, local school bus driver, died in the Dr. J. A. Sanders hospital at Auburn, Monday evening, resulting from injuries received Friday night, when the automobile he was riding in left the road at the R. W. Murray corner, east of Auburn on State Road 8, striking a tree after the car had nearly squared itself. The tree was pushed over considerable and the bark peeled up into the limbs, indicating that the car might have been thrown over the tree.

Charley suffered a head concussion, fractured right leg and nose.

Clayton Keler, who was driving with Cochran was able to leave the hospital Saturday morning after first aid treatment, being returned to St. Joe in the Kinsey ambulance. The car was a complete wreck, being damaged beyond repair, and was owned by Mr. Keeler.

The funeral will be held from the Kinsey Funeral Home, Thursday afternoon.

Only recently, Mr. Cochran was called home from Union City, Ind., by the sudden death of his wife, Maude Cochran.

Charles had taken rooms in the tenant home of Mrs. Cora Price, which was very neatly arranged, where he expected to remain and carry on with his bus driving for the school term.

Charley was a prominent figure about St. Joe and was always ready to assist in whatever was undertaken. He served as town marshal for some years.

Champion Milkmaids

Violet Freeburn, of St. Joe, was the champion milkmaid of the fall fair in a contest Friday afternoon. She milked 4.7 pounds net in one minute. Second place went to Vera Mae Thomas, also of St. Joe, Her milking weighed 4.4 pounds net.

CLEMENCY DENIED

Leniency was denied Monday by the state clemency commission to John Lester Belton, who was sentenced to prison by Judge Endicott seven years ago for his part in the armed robbery of the Farmers & Merchants Bank at Spencerville. Belton is serving a term of twelve years.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO C. C. ANDREWS

Collin C. Andrews, aged 64, died suddenly at 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning on the Andrews farm a mile south and east of Newville. He had been in his usual health having attended the County Fair at Auburn on Thursday.

Mr. Andrews, a bachelor, lived alone on the farm with the exception of a young man named Albert Winter, about 20, whom the deceased had brought from Detroit, Mrs. Andrews' former home.

Mr. Andrews had been in the habit of sleeping in his car parked near his chicken coop as a protection against chicken thieves. He had a gun in the car.

About 4 o'clock Mr. Andrews called young Winter. The latter went to the car and found Mr. Andrews very sick. He tried to help him to the house, but Andrews being heavy, the young man laid him in the yard and went to the house of a neighbor, Terry Traxler, for assistance. When they returned Mr. Andrews was dead.

Coroner B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, was summoned and held an inquest, finding that Mr. Andrews died as the result of a mitral heart lesion.

Collin Campbell Andrews, only son of Jerry and Mary Andrews was born June 19, 1872 and passed from this human experience October 3, 1936, aged 64 years, 3 months and 14 days.

One sister, Maud Catherine Mahoney, of Ft.Wayne, Ind., a nephew, Paul W. Seiler, Detroit, Mich., and a neice, Mrs. Herbert Honey, Hartford City, Ind., are the only remaining members of the immediate Andrews family.

At the age of 26, Collin went to Alaska where he did a pioneer's work in the opening of a new country, surveying and prospecting for nine years. Following this experience, for a period of about twenty-five years he was engaged in the business of hydraulic and mining engineering on the West coast and in Panama, occupying positions of trust and responsibility.

He saw 11 years of service with the General Motors Corp., of Detroit, Mich., and the past year has been spent remodeling his boyhood home.

This active, varied and interesting life ended without the fullfilment of a normal, natural desire to become a part of the community in his later years where his father and mother established their home, and church affiliations.

Collin was steady and steadfast to a purpose, faithful to all trusts. He believed in God and his infinite mercy and we read in 1st John, 3rd chapter and 3rd verse, "And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Funeral services were conducted from the home on Monday afternoon, J. N. Scholes officiating. Burial in Evergreen cemetery.

Out-of-town people who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waldo Seiler, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Honey of Hartford City, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Leighty, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Langley, Auburn; Wm. Platter, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Blair, Dr. and Mrs. Clayton Hathaway, Butler; Ben Edgerton, Hicksville; Maud Catherine Mahoney, from Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway of Kendallville; Mr. and Mrs. Hovarter from Ashley, and Rev. J. N. Scholes, of St. Joe.

COUNTY FAIR ATTRACTS HUGE CROWDS

In most respects, the DeKalb County Fair surpassed all other years. Starting on Tuesday night with a good fellowship parade and continuing until Saturday night. Wednesday, rain occupied the 24 hours, but the balance of the week became typical fair weather. The attendance throughout was large, and on Saturday an estimate of 25,000 was made of the crowd.

Exhibits were made from this section of the county in practically every department, and they carried away their share of the premiums.

The parade on Saturday morning was in excess of any previous year, taking 45 minutes to pass a given point. The St. Joe Valley division, which has been so outstanding in previous years, was good, but we failed in having as many entrats as before.

VAN FLEIT

Mrs. Mary Josephine Van Fleit, wife of D. B. Van Fleit and a prominent resident o f Garrett, passed away at her home, 505 So. Cowen St., Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at the Garrett Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The pastor, the Rev. B. H. Franklin, officiated and interment was made in the mausoleum in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Van Fleit, who was 73 years of age, was in ill health a long time. Eighteen years ago she was a patient in the sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich, for three months. Three years ago she was severely shocked by a fall down the cellar steps of her home. In the summer of 1935 she fell while at the Van Fleit farm south of Garrett and last December she fell from the porch of her home. Last June 5 she went to the Battle Creek sanitarium again, remaining a month. Three weeks ago she became bedfast at her home and failed steadily. The immediate cause of death was liver trouble.

Mrs. Van Fleit's maiden name was Smith and she was born near Mansfield, O., Feb. 24, 1863. Her father was a Union soldier and he was killed in the Civil War. Her mother brought her three children to DeKalb county soon after the war, locating on a farm near St. Joe. Later the family moved into the town of St. Joe. Mrs. Van Fleit taught school for several years in Garrett and at the North Keyser school.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Van Fleit took place at St. Joe on Christmas Day, 1887. In 1888 they moved to Garrett. Mr. Van Fleit has been engaged in the telephone business many years and he is the general manager of the Garrett Telephone Co. Of three children, two survive. They are Don E. Van Fleeit, of Garrett, and Mrs. C. Philip Fox, of Washington, Ind. Another daughter, Mrs. S. O. Redman, of Garrett, died last Jan. 13. Also surviving are one brother, Frank A. Smith, a retired Baltimore & Ohio conductor living on South Randolph St., Garrett, and seven grandchildren.

Mrs. Van Fleit was a member of the Methodist Church and was active in various church organizations.

ELECtricity in your barnyard makes short days longer

ELECtricity not only eliminates hazardous darkness around both farmhouse and farmyard, it also lengthens the farm day's productive period. Chores that were done with faltering slowness by lantern light are easily and quickly done by brilliant electric illumination. There is little fear of prowlers when an instant touch of the switch will outline home and barnyard with ELECtricity's searching light coming from several sources.

The extra production of eggs when henhouses are well lighted is no small source of increased revenue for the poultry farmer. Fire hazards are avoided.

All in all, ELECtricity has done its share to make the modern farm what it is—especially in lengthening the day.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THOSE who are making a collection of old glassware that has designs of deep cutting or pressing, realize that the pieces are really beautiful only when they are bright and shining. This is true of modern glass also, of course, but the antique pieces more frequently have deeply imprinted patterns than does modern glass, and this makes them harder to wash and dry.

The first thing of importance is to have a good solution to wash the glass in, and of the proper temperature. A teaspoonful of washing soda and two or three teaspoonfuls of powdered soap to four quarts of hot water is recommended. After the soda and soap have dissolved, let the water be very warm but not scalding hot, and then put in the glassware.

At first do not immerse glass completely. If there is hollow ware such as tumblers, goblets, pitchers, etc., put the pieces in on their sides with water to half fill them. This allows the glass to expand, as it does under heat, and do this slowly. Allow the heat gradually to penetrate the glass. Otherwise the heat may be too sharp and sudden and breakage occur.

Cloth and Brush.

A brush is a great aid in cleaning glass with deep cutting or impressions. The bristles will get into crevices a dishcloth cannot, especially if the brush rotates as is the case with the kind used for washing bottles. Such a brush is good for cleaning the inside of vases, as well as outside crevices.

Drying cut glass has always offered problems. Jewelers overcome the difficulties by burying the pieces in jewelers' sawdust until the moisture is entirely absorbed, and then polishing the pieces with a cloth and brush. The homemaker will scarcely have a sufficiently large quantity of this sawdust, nor wish to give the time to drying by this slow process. The next best thing is to have plenty of towels, keeping a dry one always for final polishing, after using a first one for drying the glass. When polishing the pieces, omit no crevices. A brush for polishing is a good idea.

Keeping in Touch.

There are times with everyone when it is necessary to keep in contact with others, and again there are times when it is necessary to protect oneself against intrusions on time or on strength. It is possible to aid in furthering both objects as the necessity arises. Of the two things, it is easier to get in touch with others by means of phones and telegrams, notes and letters, than it is to shield ourselves from the company of others or from contacting them by telephone. This latter instrument is a blessing at most times, but at others it becomes a bother.

When we want immediate contacting of others, the phone and the telegraph are the best means. The former is quicker, but no more sure. We may decide to go to the theater, but are not sure if seats are available. A few moments at the phone and we contact the box office, and know.

We may be out and wish to contact home, and the phone puts us in touch with the family. If we are out, and wish to be in call of the family or of our business, we can leave word where we can be reached. More sure still is it to leave the telephone number so that no one has to be bothered to hunt it up. A doctor, out on a round of visits, generally keeps in touch with his office enough to know whether very sick persons need him before he would otherwise get to them.

Securing Privacy.

When privacy is wanted, and freedom from bothering calls such as from cleaners, agents, etc., the phone need not be listed. This is frequently done. The telephone company will not give such numbers out. It remains for the person having the phone to give the number to those he or she wishes to receive telephone calls from.

When a person must get some work by a specified time, and cannot be interrupted, it is well to have some place in the house where neither doorbell nor phone can be heard. In case of illness in a home and phone calls would be disturbing some member of the family can ask friends not to phone the house.

Hibiscus Has Many Names

Hibiscus is known under an assortment of names, such as Rose of Sharon, Rose of China or Glorified Mallows. While hybridists strive for new and improved varieties, the plants themselves have been grown horticulturally for several hundred years. It is the magnificent hibiscus which contributes to the far-flung charm of the Hawaiian landscape.

CHOCOLATE NOT JUST A FLAVOR

March of Progress Has Found New Uses for It.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE word chocolate means to most of us first of all a flavor, perhaps our favorite, which is used in cake, in candy, in ice cream and other desserts and sometimes in a beverage. Cocoa, however, symbolizes first of all a hot drink. A concoction of ground cocoa beans was the national beverage of the western tropics for an unknown number of years before the discovery of America. So important did its introduction into Europe seem to the botanists of the day that they gave the cacao tree the name of "theobroma" which means "food of the Gods."

Perhaps because we use chocolate so much as a combined food and flavor, we use it less as a beverage. Hot beverages are, in general, used for their stimulating quality rather than for their food value. Cocoa, however, which is merely chocolate from which some of the natural cocoa butter has been extracted, ranks next to tea and coffee in its use as a hot beverage. When it is made with milk it is more than ever, of course, a food drink. Before the American Revolution the first chocolate and cocoa factory was established in Massachusetts, and the national taste for chocolate had begun to be established. Today, cocoa beans come from the West Indies, South America and even from Africa, to supply us with the hundreds of million pounds which we consume each year.

Cocoa beans grow in large egg-shaped pods which are dried and then cut open so that the beans may be removed. They are then cured by fermentation, washed and dried before they are shipped to the factories. There they are cleaned and roasted, just to the proper point to produce the best flavor. The beans are then cracked and broken, the shells removed, leaving the pieces of kernel which are known as cocoa nibs. Often several kinds of cocoa nibs, coming from different countries, are blended before they are ground with heated machines by which a thick liquid is produced. This is the chocolate which is known as plain or bitter and which hardens as it runs into molds. This is the type of chocolate which we use most of all in cooking. For dipping chocolate and sweet chocolate sugar and sometimes more cocoa butter are added. For milk chocolate condensed or powdered milk is added.

In the manufacture of cocoa some of the oil is removed and the remaining substance is ground and sifted to a very fine powder. Good cocoa has a reddish shade. The most satisfactory way to make it into a beverage is to add a small amount of cold water and to stir this over a low fire until the mixture is smooth and thick. Then cold milk may be added and heated until the mixture is foamy. It should then be beaten with an egg beater to prevent the formation of scum.

When chocolate is used as a flavor for desserts and cakes it is usually melted. This should be done over hot water so that the delicious flavor will not be destroyed by high temperature.

Chocolate Squares

1-3 cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1 square chocolate
1 egg
1 cup cake flour
Salt.
¼ teaspoon soda
3 tablespoons milk

Cream butter and sugar, add chocolate, melted, and beaten egg. Sift flour, salt and soda and add, alternately, with the milk and mix well. Brush baking sheets or outside bottoms of cake pans with melted butter and spread on thinnest layer possible of the chocolate mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) seven minutes. Just as soon as baked, cut each layer into squares.

Chocolate Sauce.

2 squares chocolate or
⅓ cup cocoa
1 cup water
2 cups sugar
Pinch of salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 tablespoons butter

Cut chocolate in small pieces or use cocoa and stir over direct heat with the water until thick and smooth. Add sugar and salt and stir until dissolved. Boil three minutes, add flavoring and butter and serve hot. Store in air-tight container and reheat when wanted to serve again.

Chocolate Delicacy.

1-3 cup butter
¾ cup powdered sugar
2 eggs
2 squares chocolate, melted
¼ cup dry sifted bread crumbs

Cream the butter with the sugar, add the egg yolks, slightly beaten; the melted chocolate and bread crumbs. Beat the egg whites and fold into the mixture. Grease two shallow cake pans and put one-third of the batter into each, reserving the rest for the filling. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) twenty minutes. Remove the pans and put together with the reserved filling. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

"The Man Who-O-O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THAT TWO-THIRDS RULE

IN 1832 a Democratic President decided to have his party's convention (the first it had ever held) renominate him and along with that decision he directed that the nomination of his running mate should be made by vote of two-thirds of the convention delegates.

One hundred and four years later a Democratic President decided to have his party's convention renominate him and along with that action he brought about the abolition of the century-old "two-thirds rule."

The man who originated that distinctively Democratic institution was Andrew Jackson. The man who ended its existence was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Jackson had selected his secretary of state, Martin Van Buren, for the position of vice-president. The senate had only recently rejected Van Buren's appointment as minister to Great Britain and "Old Hickory" thought it would square accounts with that body to have the "Red Fox" preside over it. Also vice-presidents in those days usually succeeded to the Presidency through regular election and Jackson wanted Van Buren to be his successor.

So when his party prepared to hold its first convention in Baltimore in 1832, Jackson wrote out this resolution which he gave to one of his lieutenants to present to the delegates:

"Resolved, That each State shall be entitled, in the nomination of a candidate for the Vice-Presidency, to a number of votes equal to the number to which they will be entitled in the Electoral College under the new apportionment in voting for President and Vice-President; and that two-thirds of the whole number of the votes in the convention shall be necessary to constitute a choice."

The Baltimore convention was as completely dominated by Jackson as the recent Philadelphia meeting was controlled by Roosevelt so the delegates obediently adopted the resolution. During Jackson's lifetime several efforts were made to abolish the rule but all of them failed. After his death it became all but sacred and for the next hundred years the shadow of Andrew Jackson, in the form of this rule, hung over every Democratic convention.

GASTRONOMICAL

ONE of the best ways to win a Presidential campaign is to get a good slogan and din it in the voters' ears. A good slogan appeals to the instincts or to the emotions rather than to the intellect. Combine that fact with the old saying about "the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach" and it's easy to understand certain incidents in political history.

Back in 1840 when the Whigs were trying to elect Gen. William Henry Harrison over Martin Van Buren, the Democratic candidate, they raised the cry of "Van's Policy, Fifty Cents a Day and French Soup; Our Policy, Two Dollars a Day and Roast Beef." Would a hungry voter hesitate long between the two? Of course not!

But there was another gastronomical angle to this campaign. The "singing Whigs" set to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne" such words as these:

> Should good old cider be despised
> And ne'er regarded more?
> Should plain log cabins be despised
> Our fathers built of yore?
> For the true old style, my boys!
> For the true old style,
> Let's take a mug of cider now
> For the true old style.

So the thirsty voters who wanted "good old cider" joined with the hungry voters who wanted "roast beef" and together they elected Harrison.

Although the Whigs' slogan in 1840 was the ancestor of the "Full Dinner Pail" of a later era, that expression didn't actually come into use until 1896. In that year the opponents were Democratic Bryan and Republican McKinley. The tariff was the principal issue and the Republicans had various prosperity slogans. But wise old Mark Hanna boiled them all down into the vote-getting slogan of the "Full Dinner Pail" and the American laborer who wanted one voted for McKinley and elected him.

Thirty-two years later the Republicans used a variation on the prosperity theme and their promise to the voters of "A car in every garage and a chicken in every pot" helped Herbert Hoover defeat Al Smith in the election of 1928.

Wood Carving in Black Forest

For hundreds of years the Black Forest people of Germany have carried on their wood carving and homecrafts. They make cuckoo clocks, some entirely of wood, furniture, music boxes and toys. In former days many gems were cut there, and the region was famed for its glass. After the discovery of America, this last industry experienced a great boom, for traders needed great quantities of beads to trade with the Indians.

Sophistication Is Going Out—

Youth Doffing the Soiled Mantle of Those Embittered by Disappointment

A COLLEGE DEAN said recently that being sophisticated is going out of fashion.

Can it be true that the craze for sophistication—to appear blase, to seem worldly wise, to know it all, to be hard-boiled and contemptuous of the simple things—can it be true that modern youth is through with it?

And why? Is the advent of old fashioned hats and ruffles so influencing our point of view that modern youth now wants to throw sophistication into the discard?

I think I know the reason, says a woman writer of international reputation. Modern Youth must have found out the real meaning of the word. Poring over their dictionaries they must have accidentally bumped into the derivation of "sophisticated."

For "sophisticated" means adulterated. Look it up and see if it doesn't!

And come to think of it, it couldn't have a better name. If the wisest of us had tried to put a fitting label on that loss of youth's natural and beautiful freshness — if a genius had tried to express that warping of standards, that tainting of taste, that souring of outlook, that premature aging of all the sensibilities he could have manufactured no better word than "sophisticated."

For sophistication is an adulteration of viewpoint, of judgment, of taste by the taint of frustration, the bitterness of disillusionment, the poison of disappointment, the dregs of the cup of poor experience. True, life is not all beauty or joy or perfection. Neither is it all bitter or sour or wrong.

One of the most powerful weapons in the hands of youth is its freshness, its faith to write on its own slate only beauty and perfection. And when youth prematurely don the soiled and shabby mantle of those who have known disappointment and failure, it does right to call this by the name 'sophistication" — a synonym of adulteration.

Filet crochet in a fresh, new design, is an easy way to bring new life and loveliness to the "forgotten" chair. Scarf ends can also be made this easy way. Use string. Pattern 1224 contains directions and charts for making the set shown; illustrations of stitches; materials needed.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to The Sewing Circle Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Hooked Fish

Fish do not seem to suffer much when they are hooked. About the jaw there are few nerves which could cause the sensation of pain, Some trout have been known to be hooked two or three times in the same day, the fisherman using the same type of bait.

Fish, no doubt, have a sensation of discomfort, but not as great as that of the higher animals. In general, a fish must feel some pain on some parts of the body, but has few nerves around the mouth, where it is apt to be hooked.

Gas, Gas All the Time, Can't Eat or Sleep

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never felt better." —Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and constipation. Leading Druggists.

"What you're hinting at," Tubby said boldly, "is that we've got to capture him, then, and dispose of him finally, once and for all. Murder, I suppose. Of course, it doesn't matter. Any of use would gladly oblige, but it would be nice to know your plans first. We might draw lots to see who would stab him. That's the fairest way, really."

"What we've got to do," Bryn said, disregarding Tubby, "is to let him come here, all unsuspecting; but we've got to know ahead of time. We've got to let him come here to make sure of getting our hands on him. Inside our own gates we can be sure of being undisturbed."

"I know," Deborah said suddenly. "Joe."

"Joe?"

She turned to Bryn. "Yes. Joe is our nearest neighbor's boy. Before you came," she explained, "when Joe's father brought us any mail from town, or anything we didn't expect, he used to sound a call on a horn he has there. A kind of hunting bugle he made himself out of a deer-horn. He's terribly proud of it, and he loves to do it. He's taught Joe, too, and you can hear it for miles. Why not . . . why not have Joe watch the road? Nothing could get past him, especially if you told him enough to make him see how serious it was. And the minute he sees the car he can sound the horn, and we'll have almost fifteen minutes to prepare."

"Well, there you are," Bryn said, smiling down at Deborah. "We're all right, aren't we?"

"We're . . . all right," Deborah said, and her lashes dropped to her cheek at the look in his eyes.

Bryn, very boldly, had proposed a starlit walk to Deborah, and to his surprise she had made no excuse. She had been pale and weary after the excitement of the letter, and now that some solution had been reached, she put it behind her with relief. She walked along beside him in silence, holding to her face, from time to time, the sheaf of clove-pinks he had gathered for her beside the walk. Their perfume, heady and sweet, drifted up to him.

"It's a beautiful night," he said steadily.

"Yes."

"What's it like up here in the winter time, Deborah?"

"Oh," she replied, "it's beautiful. I love it. We get ever so much snow, just here in the valley, but it doesn't last long. When it comes, it makes me think of Lorna Doone. Do you remember? When the snow was so heavy and thick, and they were all winter-bound?"

"What do you do with yourself when you are snow-bound?"

"There was always plenty to do. Mending, you know, and sewing, and keeping the house in order."

"But in the evenings?"

She glanced up at him. "Sometimes it is a little dull," she said. "But Joe's father brought us a load of logs each fall, and we would put one on the fire, Gary and I, and sit beside it reading. Or playing chess."

"It sound's very pleasant," Bryn said. "We'll get a radio this winter, shall we? And how about a kitten or two? A hearth isn't really complete without a kitten."

She murmured something under her breath. Bryn bent toward her. "I beg your pardon?"

"I said," she replied, lifting her voice, "I said, you would probably be bored. The road will be impassable as soon as the rains set in. You will find it very dull, shut away from the world for so long."

"No," he said. "I'd be looking at you."

She caught her breath. "You'd . . . you'd get tired of that."

"I'd never get tired of looking at you. Don't you know how beautiful you are, Deborah? You're the prettiest thing in the world."

"Oh, no. No, I'm not."

She bent her head and lifted the pinks to her lips. She held them there, silent.

"Deborah."

"Yes?"

"Do you . . . like me at all?"

She did not answer. Bryn could hear his own heart pounding. He waited.

She stirred. "You have been more than kind to me," she said, "and to Grandmother, too. I am very grateful." She put her hands beside her on the wall and jumped lightly down. "I think we ought to go in," she said quickly.

She did not speak on the way back to the house, except to murmur "Thank you" as he held the door. Once inside she went directly up the stairs, quickly, as if she wanted to get away from him.

For a long time Bryn stood at the foot of the stairs, thinking, wondering, remembering. Then, slowly, he went on up, and down to Tubby's room.

Bryn shut the door behind him and sat down uninvited. He looked at Tubby. "You do a lot of thinking these days," he said commiseratingly. "Must be hard on you."

"Huh," Tubby retorted, meeting his gaze, "you don't look any too peaceful yourself. And yet, here am I, doing at least half your thinking for you, and d——n' near all the worrying. Lord, you're slow, Bryn. I never saw anything like it. I suppose you haven't told her yet how you feel about her, have you? Using the correct technique?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, one of the first rules is for a gentleman to confess his tender passion first. I suppose you had sense enough to do that?"

Bryn drew a deep breath. "I don't know. I can't remember. I don't think so. What I wanted was to find out how she felt. I know how I feel."

"There you go, old dunderhead. She doesn't know how you feel, does she? That is, you couldn't expect her to be any more sensible than you, under the circumstances, and you're as blind as an owl. So you just asked the girl where she stood and omitted to mention your own state of affections first? Bright boy. Women love that kind of thing. It gives them so much ground to stand on."

Bryn gazed at him dazedly. Tubby groaned. He reached over to the table beside him and lifted Pilar's letter, open, its words leaping out from the page. "Read that," he commanded. "If anything can sober you up, this will."

"I don't want to read it. It hasn't anything to do with me."

"That's just what you'd like to think. Let me tell you, my son, it's got everything to do with you. It may be addressed to me, but if I hadn't been here with you, I'd never have seen it. She knows darn well I'll pass the word on to you."

"What word?"

"Take it. Read it."

Bryn took it, and sighed, but settled down to it.

> My Dear Tubby:
>
> I do hope you are having a pleasant visit away up there in the mountains. I must say I was completely taken by surprise to hear that you had gone, and without telling anyone your address! But Bryn naturally would not care to have the world know the location of his idyllic retreat. Isn't it romantic? I think it is too thrilling, and together with every one else, I can scarcely wait to meet his bride. I hear she is very beautiful and completely charming, and I am so glad for Bryn. Do give him my kindest regards, and give Deborah my love.
>
> Affectionately,
> PILAR.

Bryn looked up. "How does she know Deborah's name? How does she know you're here with us?"

"I'll bet a nickel she searched the records of the license bureau for the answer to your first question. And for the other, Sally and Simon left a forwarding address. Pilar would get what she wanted or die in the attempt."

"Well, why shouldn't she?" Bryn demanded. "She should have been told, as far as that goes. I thought you would tell her something to satisfy her. She's one of the gang isn't she, and, after all, we did go around together pretty steadily, Tubby. If she's upset, I don't blame her much. It would have been only common courtesy on my part to write and tell her the whole story, but it was too damned awkward. I tried."

"And the reason it was awkward," Tubby said evenly, "was because she wasn't just one of the gang, and you knew perfectly well that she expected to marry you in the end. Didn't you?"

"I didn't ask her to."

"Don't quibble."

"I never told her I was in love with her. I wasn't in love with her. I've never kissed Pilar in my life." He looked down at the note. "It's a very kind note, under the circumstances," he said. "She might perfectly well have written it to me. I don't see why she didn't."

"That note," Tubby said deliberately, "is about as innocent and kind as a stick of dynamite with a fuse burning."

"Oh, don't be a fool, Tubby. What's got into you, anyway? You used to like her. You said she was a good sport, and a lot of other things. You and she were great pals."

"Mhm," Tubby agreed. "So we were. So we were. But why? That's what I found out when you pulled your little stunt. She didn't care two pins about me. The only reason she ever spread herself about me was because she thought it might make it easier for her to get you. See? And that night when I went to tell her that you were married, I caught her off her guard. Never again. I wouldn't go near her with a suit of boilerplate on."

Bryn folded the note and put it back on the table.

"And now," Tubby said, watching him, "she knows where you are."

"And what of it?"

"Nothing. Nothing at all. Go on mooning, old hophead."

Bryn took out his case and lit a cigarette.

"Say, Bryn," Tubby said at last, "did you hear what Madeline said to me tonight?"

"What did she say?"

"Well, nothing much," Tubby answered, embarrassed. "It was the way she said it. You know, Madeline's a darn nice girl. I never really thought much about it before, sort of took her for granted, you know. But she's a peach."

Bryn got up leisurely and went to the door. He opened it. Bryn moved across the hall and tapped at Madeline's door. Tubby sat up, stiff with horror.

"Madeline," Bryn called through the keyhole.

"Mhm?"

"Madeline, Tubby says he likes you."

"Oh," Madeline said, and obviously sat up in bed. "How much?" she inquired after a moment.

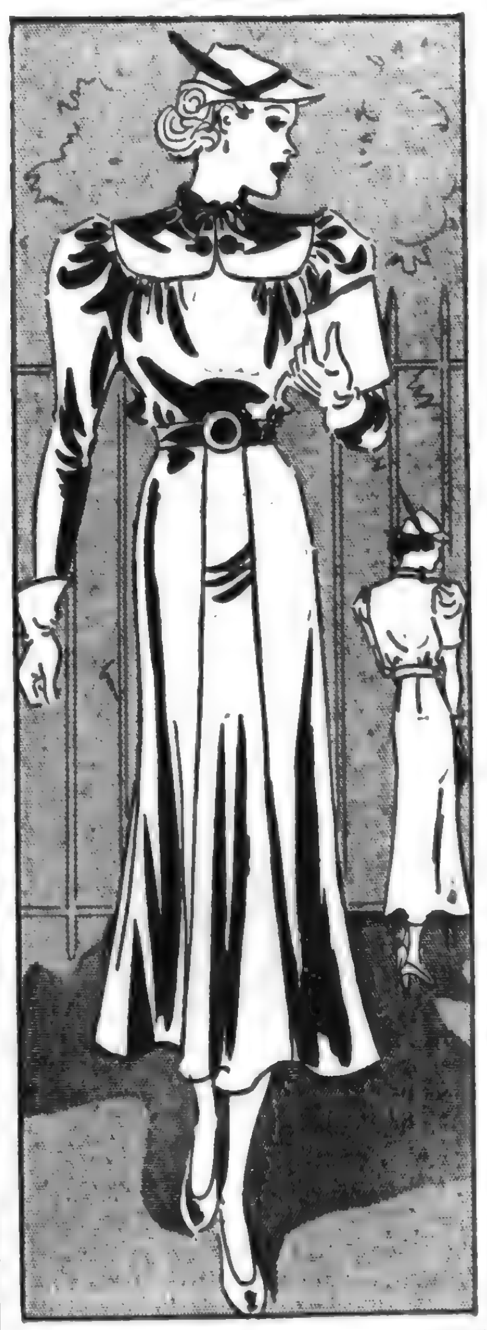
Black Satin Frock for Autumn Wear



Introducing Autumn's smartest frock. Snug at the waistline and flared below, a youthful interpretation with snap and dash.

The blouse has a clever feminine touch in its soft gathers that peep cunningly from beneath the yoke, which is topped by a narrow standing collar that ties in a dainty knot. To please your whim, omit the necktie and substitute a neckerchief, or ascot tie; then again forget about the buttons, open the yoke, press down the sides forming a V and turn it with a bright bouttonaire. You may have your way about the sleeves, too, for the pattern offers both, long and short. A graduated gore reduces the sweep at the hipline and gives the much desired flare to the hem.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1949-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires four and three-eighths yards of 39-inch material, four and one-fourth yards with short sleeves. Price of Pattern, 15 cents.

GEORGE HART AWARDED $500 IN SUIT

It is expected that Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, will take an appeal to the higher courts from the verdict of a jury in Allen superior court at Fort Wayne, which awarded $500 damages against him in favor of Geo. B. Hart Monday night.

It is the contention of Dr. Shook that Mr. Hart did not follow his instructions in the care of his left forearm after it was broken in two places in an accident. The bones did not set properly and Mr. Hart now wears steel plates on his arm. He alleged that Dr. Shook was negligent and demanded $15,000 damages.

The complaint was originally filed in the DeKalb circuit court and was taken to Fort Wayne on a change of venue. A motion by the defense that the case be taken from the jury on the ground that the plaintiff's evidence was insufficent was overruled by Judge Chas. J. Ryan.

Tne jury began its deliberations Monday afternoon.

CULTURE CLUB

Fifteen members of the Culture Club and one guest were entertained at tne home of the president, Mrs. Fred Hart, on Oct. 7th with which the organization began its activities for the season. The president gave a very inspiring salutatory which will long be remembered by the Club. After a short business session the social hour was turned over to the executive committee.

An old fashioned sing was led by Mrs. Carleton Shull. Mrs. DuWayne Kinsey conducted a spelling contest. Several impersonations of different characters were given by Mrs. Cecil Wisler. Two very unusual contests were conducted by Mrs. Roy Reidenbach and Mrs. Carleton Shull.

Luncheon was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Elwood Hart. The club then adjourned to meet in one week with Mrs. Bert Sible.

COCHRAN

Charles A. Cochran son of Robert and Mary Cochran, was born October 9, 1877 at Dundee, Illinois, and passed away October 5, 1936 at the age of 58 years, 11 months and 26 days.

He was united in marriage to Pearl Mason on April 18, 1897 and to this union was born one daughter, Arietta Helen Cochran.

In later years he was united in marriage to Maud Monroe who preceded him in death Aug. 25, 1936. He is survived by a daughter, Arietta and one granddaughter, Karma Jean.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon from the Kinsey Funeral Home, Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein, of the M. P. Church, officiating. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery.

LINDLEY

Nina May Lindley was born in Amherst, Ohio, May 29 1867, and departed this life October 8, 1936.

On June 28, 1885 she was married to Wm. E. Lindley. To this union were born three children, two of whom preceded her in death. One daughter, Mrs. Harley Phillips, also the husband survive her.

Mrs. Lindley moved to Indiana about twelve yeare ago, residing with her husband on a farm two miles east of St. Joe. She became an invalid about one and one-half years ago having been injured in a fall. At the time of her death she was being cared for by kind and loving hands in the home of Mrs. Edna Jenkins.

She confessed her faith in Christ and was baptized by her pastor, J. N. Scholes during the summer of 1932.

Funeral was held from the Kinsey Funeral Home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by J. N. Scholes, with burial at Waterville, Ohio.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends who assisted in our bereavement for their many kindnesses.

The Lindley Family.

Jane Bishop, of Jackson township had the misfortune Saturday, to fall over a wire in the grass, and broke her left arm just above tne wrist. She walked to the Houk farm a half-mile south, and was taken to the doctor.

EVERETT SANDERS TO SPEAK AT REPUBLICAN RALLY

Republican County Headquarters announced today that the closing Republican meeting of the campaign will be held at Auburn on Friday evening, Oct. 30 and will cosist of a county wide rally and parade.

The principal speaker at this meeting will be Everett Sanders of Washington, D. C. Mr. Sanders was a member of congress for years from the old Fifth Congressional District and was Secretary of President Calvin Coolidge during his term as President. Mr. Sanders later became Chairman of the Republican National Committee and is now practicing law in Washington. He is one of the best known men in American life and is a capable speaker. He will speak in behalf of the election of Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate or President and discuss the national issues of the campaign.

Former Judge Noel Neal of Noblesville will also speak at the meeting on behalf of the candidacy of Raymond S. Springer, Republican candidate for Governor of Indiana and will discuss the issues of the state campaign. A woman speaker will also be present from national headquarters and speak at this meeting.

Republican County Headquarters also announce the following other meetings to be held in DeKalb County during the last weeks of the campaign:

On October 17th at 8 P. M. David Hogg, Republican Candidate for Congress and Judge C. W. Wills, former judge of the Howard Circuit Court, will speak at the City Hall in Butler and music will be furnished by the Butler High School Band under the direction of Mrs. Lida Stage.

On October 20th at 8 P. M. David Hogg and Guy Cantwell, former Chairman of the Indiana State Board of Agriculture will speak in the High School Auditorium at St. Joe and music will be furnished by the Higs School Band, under the direction of C. A. Woodcox.

On October 24th at 8 P. M. Senator William Jenner of Paoli and David Hogg, will speak at the City Hall at Garrett in a meeting sponsored by the Young Republican Clubs of DeKalb County. Senator Jenner is an excellent speaker, was the key note speaker at the Indiana Republican State Convention and will discuss state issues and speak in behalf of Raymond S. Springer. This meeting will be followed by a dance sponsored by the Young Republican Clubs to which the public is invited.

On Monday evening, Oct. 26th at 8 P. M. David Hogg and Judge Travis B. Williams of Evansville, Republican Candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court of Indiana, will speak at the Community Hall at Ashley and music will be furnished by the American Legion Band and Drum Corps of Waterloo.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 28 at 8 P. M. Judge Clyde C. Carlin of Angola and Mr. Joe Hart, of Hicksville, Ohio, will speak at the City Hall at Waterloo. Mr. Hart is a 16 year old orator who has won fame in Ohio as a campaign speaker in behalf of the candidacy of Governor Alf M. Landon, for President.

The Safety Man

You have often heard the expression that "weather conditions are bad for driving." I maintain that any weather is dangerous for many dnivers. The very fact that it is a nice, clear, bright, sunshiny day, the roads are dry, and conditions are excellent for driving does not mean that some speed maniac should tear up and down our highways and endanger the lives of a lot of law abiding citizens.

No set of drivers or individual driver has any right on our highways if he endangers the lives of pedestrians or other drivers. Ideal weather conditions should be wished for by all, but not as a means to increase our speed to uncontrollable limits. Some men can control their cars perfectly at 60 miles an hour, and others cannot control an automobile at 35 miles an hour. Physical conditions of human beings might be all out of line, even though the weather is beautiful.

Again the combination of common sense and courtesy will make it safe for all concerned on our highways.

Dale, the 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, of northwest of Cedarville, died Tuesday morning at 2.30, caused by scarlet fever and diphtheria. He had been sick since Wednesday, coming home from school he felt bad and the little fellow soon became serious. The burial took place Tuesday afternoon at St. Joe. The family has the sympathy of their many friends about Concord and Rehoboth.

Motorists traveling the state highways through central and southern Indiana are discovering scores of "color tours" that will grow more attractive as frosts complete the transformation of the foliage. The autumn show is expected to reach its peak within the next two weeks, depending upon weather conditions. While Brown County is the best known among fall motorists, it is only one of the areas where panoramic views of forested hills and valleys can be enjoyed from the state highways. The Jackson and Floyd County knobs are ideal vantage points for the motorist, while the limestone area in Monroe, Lawrence and Owen counties has many scenic points. Both the southeastern and western parts of the state have a rolling landscape that takes on an added beauty in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Flynn and Jud Davis, of Chicago, spent the week-end in the Hattie Widney-Stone home.

Three veteran republican editors of Indiana were buried this week, namely: Andrew H. Beardsley, Tuesday, Elkhart Truth; Raymond H. Sellers, Wednesday, Franklin Star, and Oscar Foellingeer, Thursday, Fort Wayne, News-Sentinel.

ADVANCE SALE OF HUNTING LICENSES MAY BREAK RECORD

With the opening of the pheasant, quail and rabbit hunting seasons more than a month away, there is every indication that sales of hunting licenses will set a new record this year.

During the past two weeks requests for additional license blanks have been received from many of the county clerks and agents along with reports that the demand for licenses this year was greater than at any similar period in the past. Approximately one of every ten persons in Indiana hunts, fishes or traps, using the combination license covering the three activities.

A part of the additional demand for licenses at this time is said to be based on the greater interest in hunting ducks and other migratory waterfowl, the season for which begins Monday, Nov. 2. The announcement of a three-day open season on cock pheasants–Nov. 10, 11 and 12—has also increased interest in hunting. The open season on cock pheasants will be the first to be held in the state.

Uncle Phil Says:

And Get Nowhere

Life is an uphill road unless you stand still or sit down.

We don't ask for people to think seriously all the time; but we want them to be able to if necessary.

It requires some art to deliver a compliment and not do it awkwardly.

We hate to have people do things for us "because it is their duty to."

Makes or Breaks

Disappointment is discipline to a strong man, annihilation to a weak one.

In this land of free speech, one is at liberty to criticize everything but children, mothers and dogs.

Many tricks as well as crimes have been perpetuated in the name of freedom in all ages.

If one has a dominating personality, one ought to find it out early in life.

They Insist

There are men you first meet with indifference who know you are going to like them before they get through with you; and remarkably they win.

Is an open mind merely the losing of one's valuable convictions?

Genius is often painful to the possessor of it and all those close to him.

Young people think love is the most important. After awhile they find that success in life is equally so.

If You're Told to "Alkalize"

Try This Remarkable "Phillips" Way Thousands are Adopting

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach. And thus ease symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upsets.

To gain quick alkalization, just do this: Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR — take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, which have the same antacid effect.

Relief comes almost at once — usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas" — fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person.

Try this way. You'll be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Delightful to take and easy to carry with you. Only 25¢ a box at all drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Bryn turned. "How much, Tubby?"

"Bryn, if you aren't the damnedest fool!"

"How much?" Bryn said inexorably.

Tubby's dimple wavered in and out wildly. "I said I thought she was a darn nice girl," he muttered. "You crazy idiot."

"Madeline, he says he thinks you are a darn nice girl."

"Well," Madeline said with a bounce of the springs, "that isn't anything to get up and get dressed over. G'night."

Feeling better, Bryn pulled Tubby's door shut with a last pleasant smile, and sauntered down the hall.

"Deborah," he said softly, without knocking.

She was awake. Her voice came, low and clear, on the instant. "Yes? Has anything . . . happened?"

"Nothing. I just wanted to say . . . pleasant dreams . . . and good-night."

For an instant she did not answer. Then, "Good-night, Bryn."

"Good-night, darling," he replied, and went quickly across the room to his own door.

CHAPTER IX

The breakfast table was spread on the small terrace at the side of the house, where Bryn and Deborah had eaten their first breakfast together. There were six places laid, but Sally was still upstairs, sleeping, as Simon explained, like a dormouse; and Bryn had not yet returned from his early errand to the farm down the road. Deborah, in freshly starched blue gingham, sat erect on her chair behind the silver coffee pot, and poured out a third cup for Tubby. Beside her, Madeline sat quiet, gazing dreamily out through the trunks of the tall pines, and tossing, from time to time, small crumbs of toast to a greedy chipmunk who sat up and begged for them with bright expectant eyes.

"Well," Simon sighed, "I wonder if today will be the big day."

"Oh, probably not," Tubby said comfortably. "I give him until about Thursday noon."

"It doesn't make any difference when he comes, does it?" Madeline inquired. "The sooner he comes, the sooner it will be settled. I wish he'd come now and get it over with."

As she spoke, Bryn pushed open the dining room door and came out to the terrace. He put a hand on Simon's shoulder, tweaked Tubby's hair, let his eyes rest on Deborah's lowered eyelashes, and spoke to Madeline. "Who, me?"

"No, Graham."

"He'll come," Bryn said cheerfully, and pulled up his chair. "And there's one sure thing, he won't get past Joe. I left Joe on a box high up on the seat of a wagon box, where he can see the road coming up the mountain for about two miles. He's got the wagon pulled under a shady tree, and he's got an old pair of spy-glasses, and the horn. When I left I heard him making arrangements with his mother to bring out his meals. I'd like to see as much as a caterpillar get past him. And, I've locked the gates, so we're all set."

Deborah handed him his cup, and as she did so, she lifted her eyes and met his upon her. She felt herself flushing, and the cup trembled in her hand so that some of the coffee spilled over. But Bryn did not seem to mind. He took it and put it down, and his eye were still upon hers. Deborah turned resolutely away.

Bryn finished his breakfast, and he and Tubby and Simon left the table. They were going, Tubby informed the two girls, to inspect the dungeons and see that the chains were in good order.

When they were gone, Madeline put out her hand and patted Deborah's lightly. "Deborah," she said after a moment, "would you do something for me?"

"Of course."

"It's about Tubby. I don't know what to think." She looked up. "With any other man in the world, I'd just exercise my feminine charm and . . . wait. But that isn't safe with Tubby. Tubby isn't exactly shy, but he doesn't have any idea that he's so attractive that anybody might want to marry him. It's one thing I like about him, his absolute lack of conceit."

Deborah considered. "Tubby wouldn't marry just anybody," she said comfortingly.

"I don't mean just anybody. But I can think of half a dozen girls in our own crowd who could make quite a dent in him, Deborah, if they set about doing it. And, of course, there's one in particular."

"Pilar?"

"Pilar."

"What's she like?" Deborah asked curiously. "I never knew any girls but you and Sally, and I understand you two pretty well. Isn't she like us, this Pilar?"

"Not in a hundred years, innocence. Not in a thousand years. She's one of these hot-headed stamping beauties, if you know what I mean. Pilar isn't much more Spanish than I am, although she has a Spanish name and a Spanish look, which she takes very good care to intensify. Pilar has huge flashing black eyes, and smooth black hair . . . she slicks it back and pins a red rose in it, you know . . . and she makes her mouth very red and doesn't use rouge on her cheeks. And she's tall and graceful and buys wonderful clothes, the kind other people can't get by with."

"Is she very beautiful, Madeline?"

"Very. Almost as beautiful as you, honey, only quite, quite different."

"Have she and Tubby known each other long?"

"Years and years."

"Then . . . surely you needn't worry, Madeline. He would have married her long ago if he'd been going to, wouldn't he?"

Madeline hesitated. "No," she said finally. "Something new has just occurred in Pilar's life. She wouldn't have married him until now."

A cold finger touched Deborah's heart; but the touch was so light that it was gone in an instant, and she had forgotten it.

"What can I do, Madeline?"

Madeline brought her gaze back from the distant eastern horizon. "Tubby likes me," she said. "I know he likes me. We get along beautifully together. If I were sure he didn't love Pilar I'd just simply set about making him love me."

"But could I find out about Pilar? Is that what you want me to do?"

"I thought you might ask Bryn. Bryn knows. Bryn knows everything about Tubby, just as Tubby knows everything about Bryn. And then you could tell me."

Deborah was silent, her eyes on the cloth. Madeline was supposing that she and Bryn had long hours together, long hours alone, as Simon and Sally did, hours when nobody else heard what they said to each other. . . .

She looked up. "Do you really love him, Madeline?" she asked softly.

Madeline smiled, a slow smile. Her eyes were tender. "Yes, honey. Really."

"Well, then," Deborah said with a sigh, "I'll see what I can do, Madeline."

It was only an hour or two later when she saw her chance. Tubby was sitting alone on a stump down by the brook, whittling industriously at a willow stick, trying to make himself a whistle. Deborah went down the path and perched herself on a mossy log in front of him.

"Do you like it up here, Tubby?"

"I think it's great. I'm crazy about it."

"Don't you miss all the excitement in the city, and all the rest of your friends?"

"Not a twinge of missing do I get."

"All the things you do sound very exciting. I mean, all of you, of course. Madeline and Sally have been telling me a little, about places, and people. Yesterday they told me about Pilar. I think she sounds fascinating."

Tubby looked up. "Pilar?" he said incredulously.

"She sounds marvelous. So tall and beautiful. Even her name is lovely, isn't it? Pilar."

"Do you mean to say those women told you about Pilar?"

"Yes. Why not? I was awfully interested."

"Well," he said with a heavy sigh, "women are the funniest things in captivity. I should think that would have been the last name they would have mentioned. And, if somehow you had heard about Pilar, I should've thought she'd be the last person you'd be happy about. I never would have dared open my mouth about her, but then, who am I? Just a mere man."

"I don't see why you feel that way," Deborah said, but her smile began now to feel a little stiff and queer. "There isn't any reason why I shouldn't want to hear about Pilar, is there, or wouldn't like her?"

Tubby was silent for a moment. Then, "I suppose not," he said slowly. "Not under the circumstances. After all, everything went spang right by the board for you, didn't it?" And you know it. So why should you worry about Pilar or anybody else?"

Deborah tore a little piece of green velvet moss off the log, and spread it on the back of her hand. So Tubby didn't know, either. Tubby thought that Bryn had fallen in love with her in Mr. Holworthy's office. Tubby didn't know everything about Bryn, after all. Suddenly Deborah thought she understood why Bryn had told all these people the same story, the story about falling in love with her. It was to save his own self-respect. He didn't want any of them to know that he had just found a new and interesting way to earn money. Oh, that wasn't fair. That wasn't like Bryn. And, last night . . .

"From the sound of Pilar," she said at last, "I couldn't blame anybody for thinking she was wonderful."

"I suppose she does sound all right," Tubby said dubiously. "But she's no good, Deborah. I'm warning you, in case she ever comes near you. But what's been handed to her is hard to take, and it isn't agreeing with her very well."

"Did you hear somebody calling?" Deborah said suddenly. "It sounded like Grandmother. Excuse me, Tubby," and she got up and ran swiftly up the path to the house. Grandmother was not calling. But Deborah knew she couldn't bear to stay with Tubby another second. Her heart felt as if it was breaking. She went up the stairs to her own room, and shut the door behind her.

The girl he loved . . . she would be Pilar. Beautiful Pilar, with her black eyes and her black hair and her red mouth. They all thought Bryn had given her up, forgotten her, for Deborah. That was what they had to think. They couldn't possibly understand, when they didn't know the truth; when they didn't know why Bryn had married.

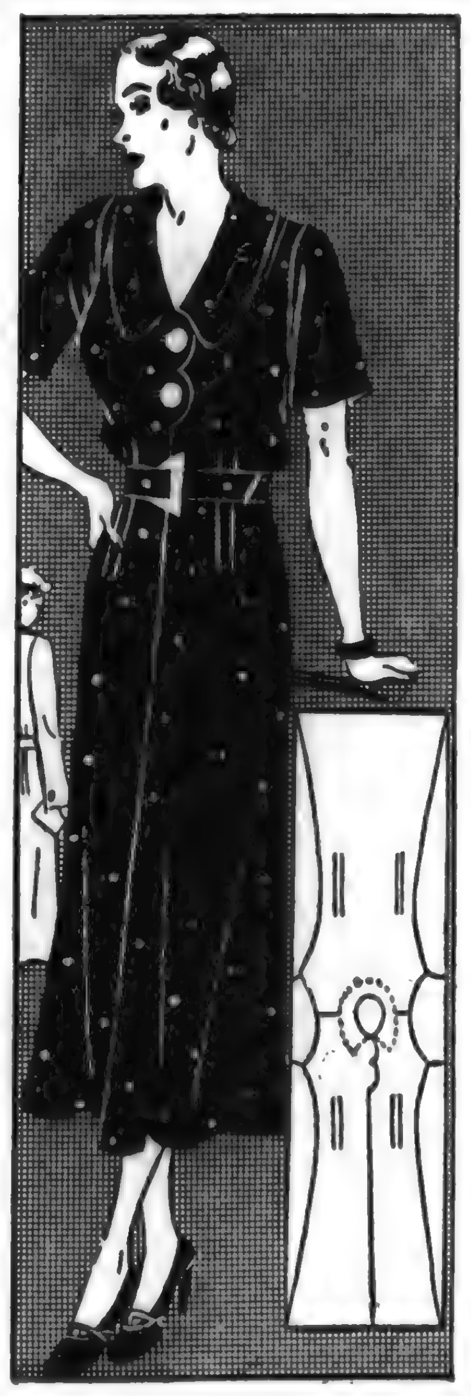
Flattering Matron Frock



1841-B

This frock is the eighth wonder of the world. Just imagine only four major pieces to cut and sew and you've completed a frock that renders a becoming, chic, and flattering appearance to a size 34 or 46.

It has clever short sleeves, that can be supplanted by long ones, scalloped blouse opening and the kind of collar that echoes the admiring "ahs" of your neighbors. The dress is dart fitted at the waist and shoulders for ease and a slimming effect, while a self-fabric belt adds its contribution too. You want to own this thoroughly young style and attractive model that's as easy to make as to look at, don't you? Here's your opportunity, order this debonair model today. It's irresistible indeed.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1841-B is available for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires four and one-eighth yards with long sleeves; and three and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Patterns 15 cents each.

Into the Stratosphere

Captain Stevens, who made the record flight of 72,395 feet into the stratosphere in the balloon Explorer II last year, believes with slight changes in apparatus carried and using hydrogen as a lifting gas the same balloon and gondola could ascend to 78,000 feet. He also believes that 95,000 feet could be reached with a larger balloon with the envelope made of rubberized silk instead of rubberized cotton.

Household Questions

Sandpapering baby's shoes before they are worn prevents slipping and saves many a fall.

• • •

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

• • •

If cream or custard sauce curdles put the vessel in which it is cooking in a pan of hot water and heat well. It will soon become smooth again.

• • •

Use two spoons for turning a roast. A fork pierces the surface and allows the juice to escape.

• • •

When opening a new pattern write the number of the pattern on each piece. No matter how scattered the pieces may get, you will know to which pattern they belong.

• • •

One-fourth cup of bread crumbs and two tablespoons of water added to each pound of meat when preparing hamburg steak makes a much lighter mixture. For seasoning use 1 teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and one-half teaspoon of onion juice to each pound of meat.

Bayer Tablets Dissolve Almost Instantly

In 2 seconds by stop watch, a genuine BAYER Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass . . . happens in your stomach.

For Amazingly Quick Relief Get Genuine Bayer Aspirin

If you suffer from pains of neuritis what you want is quick relief.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets give quick relief, for one reason, because they dissolve or disintegrate almost instantly they touch moisture. (Note illustration above.)

Hence — when you take a real Bayer Aspirin tablet it starts to dissolve almost as quickly as you swallow it. And thus is ready to start working almost instantly . . . headaches, neuralgia and neuritis pains start easing almost at once.

That's why millions never ask for aspirin by the name aspirin alone when they buy, but always say "BAYER ASPIRIN" and see that they get it.

Try it. You'll say it's marvelous.

"The Man Who-o-o"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

by FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE REPUBLICAN ELEPHANT

WHY is it that the Republican party, which has dominated the American government for 60 out of the 80 years it has been in existence, should be symbolized by a beast from the African jungles instead of some typical American animal? The answer is that a cartoonist once used a jungle scene to depict a political crisis and the figure of an elephant was so appropriate for what it was supposed to represent that its symbolism persisted long after the crisis itself had passed. The cartoonist was Thomas Nast of Harper's Weekly and the crisis was this:

In 1874 it seemed certain that President Grant was determined to run again in 1876. The principal opponent to the third term idea was James Gordon Bennett's Democratic newspaper, the New York Herald, which shrieked "Caesarism!" incessantly. Taking his tip how "An ass, having put on a lion's skin, roamed about the forest and amused himself by frightening all the foolish animals he met with in his wanderings," Nast drew a cartoon which he labelled "The Third Term Panic."

It showed the Herald as a donkey in a lion's skin, labelled "Caesarism," braying loudly and all the animals fleeing in alarm. The New York Tribune was represented as a giraffe, the World as an owl dropping an arithmetic book, the Times as a unicorn with a monocle. Near-by was a half-concealed fox labelled "Democratic party" but with features suggesting those of Samuel J. Tilden.

In the foreground was an elephant, labelled "The Republican Vote" on the verge of an abyss of "Chaos" barely hidden by broken planks marked "Inflation," "Repudiation," "Reform (Tammany)" and "Reconstruction." This cartoon was not only a thrust at the Herald but also a half-affectionate jab at Nast's own "huge but timorous" party, the Republicans.

Two weeks later Nast drew another cartoon showing an elephant tumbling down into the pit with the rotten planks and the rejoicing animals following it. This was called "Caught in a Trap—the Result of the Third Term Hoax." From that time on the elephant was the symbol of the Republican party.

THEY SING THE OLD SONGS

TO THE tune of "O, Susanna!" written by Stephen Foster many years ago, supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas sang him into the Republican nomination at Cleveland and this banjo-tinkling tune, which cheered westward-bound emigrants in the golden "Days of '49," is being used to cheer eastward - bound (to the White House, they believe) Republican voters in the campaign "Days of '36." Will it drown out the cheerful strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again"? November 3 will answer that!

Not the least of the interest in the renewed singing of "O, Susanna!" is the few instances in which an old familiar song is revived for campaign purposes. Setting "campaign verses" to a familiar tune and using it for political purposes has always been a common practice. As far back as 1840 the Whigs sang a song in praise of Harrison to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne." In 1848, when the Free Soil party nominated Martin Van Buren, new words were written and sung to the tune of "Old Dan Tucker." The old familiar "Yankee Doodle," "Auld Lang Syne," "The Frog He Would a-Wooing Go" and "The Camptown Races" were employed as the musical setting for songs in praise of Fremont in 1856.

Considering the fact that a Spanish-American War hero was a vice presidential candidate in 1900 it was only natural that "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" should become a Republican campaign song. But it wasn't until 1920 that an old song was revived and sung in its original form in support of a presidential candidate. In that year "The Sidewalks of New York," written in 1894 by Charles B. Lawlor and James W. Blake, was played by a band at the San Francisco Democratic convention when Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was introduced and given a great ovation. It was his "musical trademark" when he became Candidate Smith in 1924 and Nominee Smith in 1928. Will the revival of "O, Susanna!" bring better luck to Gov. Al. Landon than the revival of "Sidewalks of New York" did to Gov. Al. Smith? Again—"read the papers on November 4."

Course of Lightning

The main flash of lightning does not travel from a cloud to the earth, but in the opposite direction. The main flash is always preceded by a "leader", which acts as a sort of pathfinder or trail blazer. The "pathfinder" travels from the cloud to the earth, while the main flash starts upward from the earth at the point struck by the "leader". It follows exactly the same path back to the cloud. The length of the lightning bolt has been found to vary from 1.5 to 4.7 miles.

Value of Accuracy

I do not know that there is anything, except it be humility, which is so valuable as an incident of education as accuracy. And accuracy can be taught. Direct lies told to the world are as dust in the balance when weighed against the falsehoods of inaccuracy. These are the fatal things, and they are all-pervading. I scarcely care what is taught to the young if it will but implant in them the habit of accuracy.—Arthur Helps.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adlerika. Adlerika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adlerika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adlerika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adlerika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. Leading Druggists.

Some of the trees in the orchard (only 3 remaining) are 93 years old and still bearing fruit. She presented W. L. Hollabaugh, 94, apples from a 93 year old tree. Among those presented the editor were Pewake, Talpehockn, and Strawberry, besides a Dutcness pear. We say, thank you.

Arrangements are practically completed for the field trials for rabbit dogs to be held next Sunday at the Krider farm two miles north and one mile east of Garrett under the sponsorship of the DeKalb County Pointer - Setter club of Garrett. Drawing for places will be held on the grounds at 8 A. M. and the meet will begin at 9 o'clock. The trial will be open to members of the club, and confined to DeKalb county.

The first anniversary of Joe R. Goldsmith and family as citizens of St. Joe, and as a local merchant was celebrated by a two day sale ending Saturday night. Hundreds of people were here to participate in the savings offered the public. The crowd was evidence of the success of the sale. The Goldsmiths are pleased with their business during the past year. They have been consistent advertisers since their coming to St. Joe and people have learned to look for the Home Store ad, and thus profit by the many money saving items offered weekly.

1/5 OF ALL COAL BURNED IN A FURNACE WITH HOT WATER COILS GOES TO HEAT THE COILS.
"FREE" HOT WATER COSTS THE AVERAGE FAMILY $24 A YEAR ACCORDING TO PURDUE UNIV. TESTS.
THERE ARE 27 NEEDS FOR HOT WATER EVERY DAY IN THE AVERAGE HOME.

PROMINENT universities have proved that about 20% of your fuel during the heating season goes for hot water when you use a furnace coil (evidence on request). Heat is necessary to raise the temperature of water and heat takes fuel.

The furnace coil was considered a satisfactory method of heating water when no better way was known. But today you can have a modern, automatic Electric Water Heater which gives you an abundant supply of hot water day and night. And at present low electric rates you will find it cheaper than less convenient and more hazardous methods. See the beautiful new Electric Water Heaters now on display.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LI. (51 Years.) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1936 NUMBER 48

REPUBLICAN RALLY HELD AT ST. JOE

A large and enthusiastic crowd was present at a Republican Rally in the Community Gym, Tuesday evening. The meeting was opened by a short concert on the street by the school band under the direction of C. A. Woodcox and the meeting was presided over by H. C. Springer, Republican county chairman, who introduced to the audience the county candidates on the Republican ticket.

The closing campaign schedule includes Saturday at Garrett, Monday at Ashley, Wednesday at Waterloo and Friday at Auburn Court House featuring torch light parade followed by mass meeting addressed by Everett Sanders of Washington and Judge Noel McNeil, of Noblesville.

Guy Cantwell, member of State Board of Agriculture, made a very fine talk explaining the farm plank of the Republican platform.

Regarding the gross income tax he had the following to say: "The Democratic crowd is now saying that the Republican party will replace the gross income tax with a sales tax or a tax that will be placed on real estate. They know this is not true but are attempting to confuse the voters The Republican platform declares for the repeal of the gross income tax and provides that it shall not be replaced and any tax that shall be a burden or a levy on real estate.

"Raymond S. Springer on many occasions has said that the gross income tax can be repealed and that no other tax will be required for the reason that a termination of the extravagances of the McNutt administration and the abolition of its rackets will save money to absorb the shrink in revenue, but, that if additional revenue should be required that it will be raised by the enactment of a net income tax."

Mrs. Dickey, of Ft. Wayne, spoke for 15 minutes followed by David Hogg, candidate for Congress. He said the G. O. P. is making a drive against radicalism and the tendency toward communism. He exploded the school book graft in Indiana, and also said he was in favor of an old age pension, without being compelled to sign a pauper's oath.

CHICKEN SUPPER

At the Coletown school house sponsored by the Newville Twp. Home Bureau, Tuesday eve, Oct. 27. From 6 to 7. Chicken, hot biscuits, 10c. Pie, 5c. Coffee, 5c. Also sandwiches, (Hot dogs and Hamburgs,) 5c each. Funds will send Project Leaders to Purdue. Your patronage will be appreciated. 43t1p.

CULTURE CLUB

The second meeting of the Culture Club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Bert Sible on Oct. 14. Sixteen members responded to roll call.

The meeting was opened with Mrs. Carleton Shull singing "Sleepy Hollow Tune." The subject for the evening, "Travelogues" was given by Mrs. William Hamilton and her assistants. Mrs. Hamilton described her trip West, Mrs. Fred Hart took the ladies fishing in Lake Superior. We visited Mrs. Ralph Sechler's home town of Greenfield and also the home of Indiana's beloved poet, James Whitcomb Riley. We then went to New York, Washington and Mt. Vernon with Mrs. Claude Laub. After traveling East, West, North, and South, it seems no matter where we go there will be plenty for us to see.

The Club Constitution was read by the secretary and after a short business session, luncheon was served by the hostess. The Club tnen adjourned to meet next week with Mrs. George Hart.

HONEST REPRESENTATION

FORMER TRUSTEES ENTERTAINED SUNDAY

The annnal reunion of the township trustees of DeKalb County, serving from 1918-23, was held Oct. 18 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abel. A bounteous basket dinner was enjoyed by all.

The great surprise of the day was that Mrs. Ellsworth Eakright whose husband, (now deceased,) was the former trustee of Wilmington township and Mr. Clarence Green, Ex. Co. Supt., announced their marriage which had taken place at 8:30 P. M., Oct. 17. They treated the crowd to cigars and candy.

Thoes present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jennings and Miss Jennings, Trop Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Potter, Franklin Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Camp, Smithfield Twp., Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Foote, Richland, Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Orin Goodrich, Grant Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shull, Union Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Green, Wilmington Twp., Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman, Concord, Twp., Mr. and Mrs. Scudder Shutt, daughter and grandson, Keyser Twp., and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abel.

The 1937 meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scudder Shutt of Keyser township.

DEKALB FARMER FIRST TO ENTER STOCK SHOW

First entry from Indiana for the contests of the 1936 International Live Stock Exposition were made by a DeKalb county stockman, Carl D. Carpenter, of Butler.

He has sent word to the management of the show, which will be held in Chicago in its 37th anniversary November 28 to December 5, that he will exhibit Spotted China swine.

Manager B. H. Heide predicts that the 1936 International Live Stock Exposition will exceed all past years in the number of animals to be shown. He expects a total entry of approximately 13,000 head in the live stock contests which will include beef cattle, draft and light horses, sheep and swine. Entries close on November 1st.

The 18th International Grain and Hay Show, largest competitive farm crops show in the world, will be held in connection with the live stock exposition. Entries for this event, in which over 1,000 cash prizes will be awarded, may be made until November 20, it is announced.

MRS. MARGARET McNAMARA DIES FROM HEMORRHAGE

The death of Mrs. Margaret McNamara, 71, occurred Thursday afternoon at her home in Spencerville, following a cerebral hemorrhage a week ago. Mrs. McNamara was the widow of the late Thomas G. McNamara, who died in October, 1930, a well-known carpenter contractor, specializing in the building of barns.

Mrs. McNamara was born in Jackson township and has always lived in DeKalb county. Her maiden name was Margaret L. Metcalf and she was the last member of a family of nine. Mr. and Mrs. McNamara lived in Jackson Twp. just east of Hopewell Church until 1923 when they moved to Spencerville.

Three sons survive, Engle, of Kendallville, Artie, of Jackson towship and Clay McNamara, of Ft. Wayne. There is also one daughter, Mrs. Mary Braeuer, of near Fort Wayne, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the M. E. Church in Spencerville Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. Homer Studebaker officiating. Burial was made in White City cemetery.

HARVEY PHELPS SEEKS COUNTY OFFICE

Nowadays people are giving more thought to the candidate they choose for public office and we feel sure that in the selection of a candidate for Treasurer, that the public has found a man who will not only care for the duties pertaining to this official office but will always be on the job. He has 15 years experience in banking and clerical work, rendering him a most valuable candidate for the office of County Treasurer.

The people of DeKalb county are indeed fortunate to have such a progressive man as Harvey Phelps to seek the office. Mr. Phelps is a candidate for Treasurer at the November election on the Republican ticket and is making his campaign on his past record. He is an active young man and has always practiced the higher ideal of living. He is frugal and efficient in his own affairs and possesses traits which qualify him for the position of Treasurer of DeKalb County.

Mr. Phelps brings a character beyond reproach, personality that is most pleasing and ability that is equalled to serve honorably and conscientiously as he has done in the past in his everyday life.

Mr. Phelps is a World War veteran, member of 40-8, and served as Adjutant the past year of Butler Post No. 202.

Your support will be appreciated.

RIBBING THE MOVIES

"Boy Meets Girl" the latest laugh hit in the theatre, due at the Shrine Auditorium, Fort Wayne, Oct. 24, for matinee and night, offers some argument for the theory that the most hilarious ribbings of Hollywood are only stark realism, and that life in the dizzy film capital can be as steadily entertaining as the play reports it to be.

The two chief characters and virtually all the minor ones are drawn from life. Despite polite denials from the authors, the public continues to identify the mad and merry scenarists, round whom the plot revolves, as Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, famous playboys of Chicago and Hollywood. Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer and a well-known star of the "westerns" are said to be recognizable.

Upon the antics of the two scenarists, the authors, Bella and Samuel Spewack, have built one of the loudest and funniest farces that has seen the light in a long time. Judging from the text of "Boy Meets Girl" and from the reactions of New York critics, the play hasn't a dull moment from beginning to end. The audience is literally assaulted by a barrage of wisecracks and reduced to weakness by a steady stream of irresistably absurd situations.

All is quite believable in view of the fact that "Boy Meets Girl" is staged and produced by George Abbott, co-author and director of "Three Men on a Horse," in which he gave the world two years of laughs.

The cast includes Clinton Sundberg, Donald MacDonald, Betty Field, Frank Fenton, Larry Fletcher, Juan Varro, Nigel Blake, Sydney Andrews, Stanley Gorham, Horace Cooper, Virginia Wallace, Queeno Bilotti, Charles Wagenheim, John Koch, Edison Rice, Rhea Cook, Patricia Palmer and Craig Adams.

Frank M. Brandon is home from Chillicothe, O., and is making his home with his brother, William Brandon, north of St. Joe.

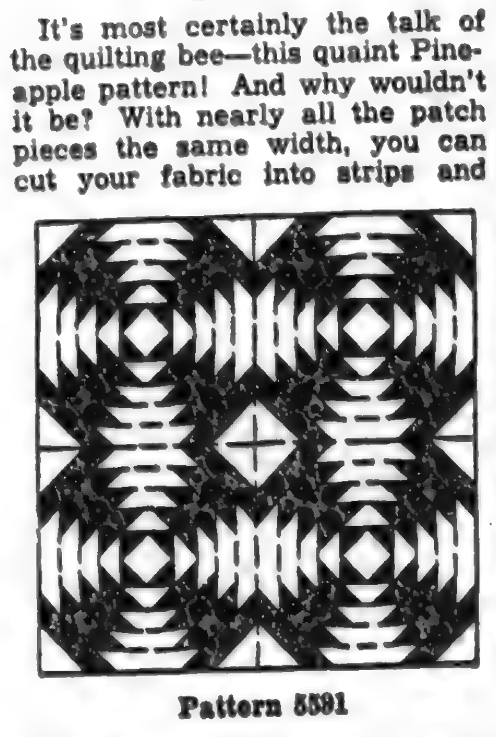
It's the Talk of the Quilting Bee

It's most certainly the talk of the quilting bee—this quaint Pineapple pattern! And why wouldn't it be? With nearly all the patch pieces the same width, you can cut your fabric into strips and snip off pieces as needed. Easily made, you start from the center and sew round and round till the block is done.



Pattern 5591

In pattern 5591 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggest. contrasting materials.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

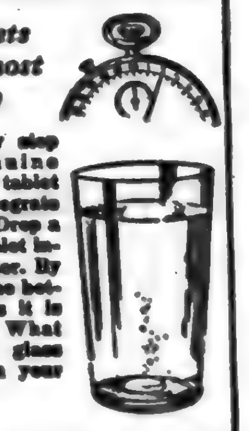
Bayer Tablets Dissolve Almost Instantly

In 2 seconds by stop watch, a genuine BAYER Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass . . . happens in your stomach.



When you wake up with a headache, do this: Take two quick-acting, quick-dissolving BAYER ASPIRIN tablets with a little water.

By the time you've finished dressing, nine chances in ten, you'll feel relief coming.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin provides this quick relief because it is rated among the quickest methods for relief science has yet discovered.

Try it this way. But ask for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN; not by the name "aspirin" alone.

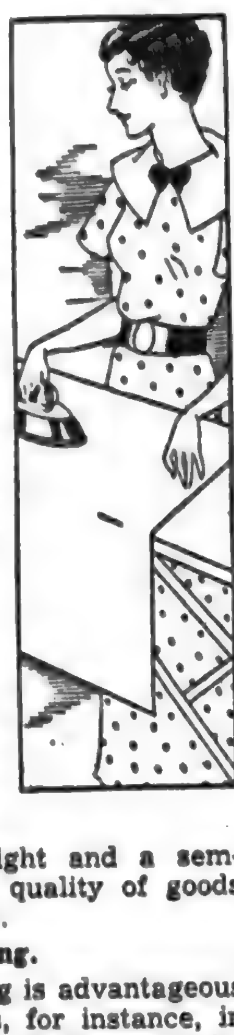
THERE are two ways to give a gloss to table linen. One is to have the pieces evenly damp, and iron them until they are actually dry. The other is to put a very little starch in the slightly blued rinsing water when the linen is washed.



To get the best results in the former method, the linen must be quite damp. When ironed dry the material will have that excellence of quality that it had when new. If the textile is not dampened well, it does not have a good "body," whereas when it is, the linen seems almost as if it were starched. One great advantage of this method is that the linen does not muss and crease as it does when starched.

The reason why table linen is starched is that the starch acts as a sizing, which we know is given new material in order to add weight and a semblance of a finer quality of goods than it actually is.

Sizing.

Sometimes sizing is advantageous in new textiles as, for instance, in mosquito netting, stiffening for interlinings, veils, and numerous other things. In table linens it is undesirable. When buying these linens, be careful not to get those sized, as this filling will wash out, and leave the material without the "body" that good napery should have.

When laundering table linen that is old and thin, it can be somewhat restored to its former weight by lightly starching it. Good new linens require no such treatment. Starched material must be carefully handled as it will crease badly and muss easily.

A finish suggesting that of double damask can be imparted to less excellent table linens by ironing it on the wrong as well as the right side. The linen can be reversed when the right side gets soiled, and it will still look well unless spotted if it has been ironed on the wrong side. Use quite a hot flat iron and press with some weight. Iron slowly. Starched material scorches more readily than unstarched, so a hotter iron can be used on unstarched laundry. Table damask should always have a good gloss both for a fine finish and because the pattern shows to advantage when it has.

A Word About Cambric.

The word cambric is known to every woman, but the meaning of the word is not so familiar. To one person it signifies an ordinary cotton cloth, fine or coarse. To another it means the finest grade of linen, and between these two understandings of the word, there are various interpretations. Cambric may be the choicest of handkerchief linen, or a glazed cotton cloth used for linings. It may be figured, striped, corded or twilled, and in many colors besides white. The word, originally of high significance has been changed in textile terminology, and in the comprehension of it, until it has lost its prestige.

Cambric, in its original and proper meaning, is the highest grade of best quality linen, fine, closely woven, and almost as soft and beautiful as silk. Its name comes from the place in France, Cambria in the department du Nord, where its manufacture is reputed to have been originated by Batista. Another name for this material is Batiste. This name may have a double origin since the soft fine linen was used to wipe the heads of infants after baptism. In early days cambric was used for handkerchiefs and neckerchiefs sometimes called cambric or cambricks.

Original Uses.

One of the original uses of cambric was to make the ruffs so popular in the days of Queen Elizabeth. It was also used for cravats in early days, and continued to be worn before collars, as we know them today, came into use. For the cravat the material was cut on the bias, in a long strip, and four times the width worn. It was a work of art to fold these cravats, wind them about the neck and tie the bow in the back. The appearance was similar to a priest's collar.

Imitations of genuine cambric were put out under the names of Scotch cambric, cotton cambric, and cambric muslin, all of cotton. It is the latter sort cambric muslin that was woven striped, corded, etc., and in colors. From this frocks were made. Fine cotton sheeting is termed cambric sheeting, but linen cambric would be too lightweight, for sheets being more akin to handkerchief linen. Cambric lining is a common sort of cotton cambric. The use of the word seems to be waning. The genuine material continues, but under various names.

BARING SECRETS OF APPLE PIE

Famous Expert Wants Hers With Double Crusts.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"BLESS my soul! No apple pie?" exclaimed the Earl of Dudley, according to legend, whenever dinner was served without his favorite dessert.

From my own experience with Englishmen I feel sure that he probably demanded an apple tart rather than pie, which may be called purely American. We demand our pies with double crust. We use plain pastry, while the English prefer crust of the puff-paste type. Both are good desserts, when well made. Be sure that your apples are tart and that you use plenty of sugar. I like to mix a little flour with the same amount of sugar to sprinkle over my bottom crust before I put in alternate layers of apples and sugar. Then I add a good-sized piece of butter before I put on my top crust.

What, no cinnamon or nutmeg? I do not go so far as did Irvin Cobb when I asked him his stand on the much discussed question of which belongs with apple pie. "Neither," he pronounced, "it is a sin against a great fruit." If I use either, I prefer cinnamon, but I usually reserve it for brown betty with which I think it does belong. I keep nutmeg for other important uses.

Apple Pie.

5 or 6 apples
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter

Pare, core and slice apples. Mix sugar, salt and spice. Line a pan with pastry, sprinkle with flour mixed with a tablespoon of sugar. Add the apples and sugar in alternate layers. Dot with butter and cover with upper crust of pastry. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for ten minutes, then lower temperature to 350 degrees Fahrenheit and bake until the apples are soft, 40 to 45 minutes.

Pastry.

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup fat
Cold water

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in the fat with pastry blender or two case knives. When fine add at one side of the bowl one tablespoon of cold water and stir in as much of the flour and fat as the water will take up. Continue this until you have four or five balls of dough and some dry flour left in the bowl. Press together with fingers. If all the dry flour is not taken up, add a little more water. Chill and roll.

Doughnuts.

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
2 eggs
1 cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
Flour (3½ to 4 cups)

Cream the shortening with the sugar and add the beaten egg. Add two cups flour mixed and sifted with baking powder, salt and spices, alternately with the milk; then add more flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll to one-fourth inch thickness. Shape with a doughnut cutter, fry in deep fat, 375 degrees F., and drain on brown paper.

Banbury Tarts.

1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
2 cups raisins
½ cup candied orange peel
Pastry

Mix the sugar and flour and add the eggs beaten slightly. Cut the raisins and orange peel into pieces and add to the first mixture. Roll pastry an eighth of an inch thick and cut into rounds three or four inches in diameter. Spread one-half on each round with the mixture, moisten, fold and press the edges together. Bake about fifteen minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving. Instead of the candied orange peel the grated rind of one orange may be used.

Try New Arrangements

The next time you find your living room furniture disarranged by family or guests, leave it as it is while you stop to consider whether after all that grouping may not be more interesting as well as more convenient for conversation than your usual one.

If it proves quite impossible from the standpoint of balance—a fundamental principle in room arrangement—try to work out a third way of placing the chairs which will be just as satisfactory for conversation and for an artistic effect.

Finishing Metal Furniture

Metal furniture to be used in the house may be finished with enamel or lacquer. If the metal surface has already been enameled and is smooth after sandpapering, it needs no further preparation before refinishing. Brass beds that are to be painted should be cleaned first with benzine.

Spatter for Floors

Old-fashioned wide board floors, lately returned to favor, are particularly adapted to the painted spatter finish.

"The Man Who-O-O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

by FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FARMERS' CHAMPION

OF ALL the leaders of third party movements, probably no one has caused the two major parties more concern than did Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa. For he was the nominee of two new parties which, at two different periods in our history, capitalized on the unrest of the farm vote and in one case he definitely contributed to the overthrow of the party in power.

Weaver was first the standard-bearer for the Greenbackers, a party which came into existence in 1868 because of the dissatisfaction of the farmers with the financial policies of Grant's administration. They were inflationists who demanded that a large amount of paper money be issued without regard to specie payment. They received their name from the fact that legal-tender notes were printed in green and called greenbacks. In the campaign of 1876 they nominated Peter Cooper, the New York philanthropist, but he polled only 80,000 popular votes and did not receive a single electoral vote.

In the congressional elections of 1878 the Greenbackers cast a million votes and the Republicans in power looked apprehensively to the presidential campaign of 1880, especially when the Greenbackers nominated a man from the agricultural West. But their fears were groundless, for the Greenbackers could muster only a little more than 300,000 votes and, although Garfield won over Hancock by less than 10,000 popular votes, he got 214 electoral votes to his opponent's 155.

Twelve years later the Republicans had much more to worry over when Weaver bobbed up again, this time as the nominee of the Populist or People's party which declared for free silver, public ownership of monopolies, postal savings banks and an income tax. In the state and congressional elections of 1890 they carried the legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska, elected nine members of congress and forced 34 others, Democrats and Republicans, to pledge themselves to carry out Populist ideas. In the presidential campaign of 1892 Weaver polled more than 1,000,000 votes in the West and South and corralled 22 electoral votes. The Populists also carried several state legislatures and sent five senators to Washington.

"SMITH FOR PRESIDENT"

SINCE the United States has more people bearing the name of Smith than any other family name, it is only natural perhaps that there should have been more presidential candidates by that name than any other.

The first was Joseph E. Smith, founder of the Church of Latter Day Saints and prophet of the Mormon religion, who in 1844 condemned the policies of both the Whig and the Democratic parties and announced his candidacy for the presidency. However, his martyrdom at the hands of an Illinois mob in June of that year cut short his political career.

Four years later another Smith was in the field as a candidate—Gerrit Smith, the New York philanthropist, who was one of the founders of the Liberty party in 1840 and its candidate for President in 1848. In that year he was also indorsed for the presidency by the Industrial Congress at its convention in Philadelphia. Again in 1852 Smith was the candidate of the Liberty party and again he was indorsed by another group, this time by the Land Reformers. In neither case did Smith or his party figure very prominently in the election.

In 1876 there was another one of the name in the presidential race. He was Green Clay Smith, a native of Kentucky, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, rising to the rank of brigadier-general in the Union army before resigning to take his seat in congress to which he had been elected while in the field. Re-elected to congress, he resigned to become the second territorial governor of Montana. After three years of service in the West he resigned to enter the ministry of the Baptist church in Washington. Soon afterwards he was chosen as the first presidential nominee of the modern Prohibition party.

Just as this "dry" Smith failed to win in 1876, so did a "wet" Smith fail to win half a century later. For Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate in 1928, suffered the fate of all his predecessors—defeat.

Famous Belgian Cathedral

Malines has much to interest visitors but the Cathedral of St. Rombold is the outstanding attraction of the city. It was commenced in the early Twelfth century and took 300 years to complete, and is one of the finest Gothics in Belgium. It has a solitary western tower, 324 feet in height and out of proportion with the rest of the building. Its clock face is enormous—more than forty feet across and nearly twice as large as Big Ben on the houses of parliament in London.

Puttering Around the House—

◆

Time-Wasting Work of Putting Away Things Others Have Used

WHEN a family is orderly, no one has to do much puttering about. When the members are not particular where they put their things, it becomes the undesirable duty of some person to spend much time in just this very thing, puttering. Hours are wasted daily in such trivialities as gathering up newspapers spread about, picking up and putting away gloves, hats, scissors, thimbles, pencils, etc. Whatever it may be that has been in use, and not put away by the user, or has been put in the wrong place, must be placed where it belongs or the house would reflect poor housekeeping.

Nondescript Tasks.

The time given to these nondescript jobs should be given by those who leave the work to others. Putting things away is part of the job connected with using the things, just as much as getting the things out, is part of it. The work is regular and legitimate and only becomes an annoyance when left for the wrong person to do.

Left-Over Jobs.

No person wants her time frittered away doing the left-over jobs of others. Nobody enjoys having a person puttering around, either. It is distracting to attention, and disturbing to the nerves. From both the angle of the person who putters about and those who have to endure the annoyance of such activity, there should be some remedy found.

Remedies Suggested.

Mothers can teach their children to put their playthings away when through with them. This is the first step to take. Then she can instruct the little folk to put their outside things away when they come in from outdoors. Children can get into the habit of orderliness by being made to realize that what they don't do, has to be done by mother who is very busy and often too tired to do the extra tasks. Affection will gain the day.

Breaking the Habit.

Adults should consider how to break themselves of the reprehensible habit of leaving work they should do, to be completed by others. If they really determine to stop this bothersome fault, they will decrease the necessity of puttering about by the person who heartily dislikes the work, but who, for the sake of order prefers to do it rather than have disorder around.

And his tenderness toward her? His hand over hers, sitting there in the twilight? What was that, then?

Deborah got up and went into her bedroom. She stood before her mirror, and lifted her eyes to the girl in the glass. The faded gingham dress, the braided hair . . . she looked like some forlorn little orphan youngster who needed someone to love her. Bryn was kind. He was sorry for her. The feeling he had for her was . . . pity.

She pressed her lips together firmly to stop their trembling. She went into her bathroom and bathed her eyes in cold water.

And, just at that moment, she heard the sound of Joe's horn, far down the mountain. Three long blasts and two short ones . . . a pause . . . three long notes and two short ones. Deborah's heart sprang up into her throat. She tore open her door and raced down the stairs to Grandmother and Madeline, out on the veranda. At the foot of the stairs she caught the sound of Madeline's voice, going steadily on with "Shadows on the Rock." Deborah stopped at the sound of that calm voice, and steadied herself. Then, chin up, she walked out serenely and smiled at Grandmother. She dropped down on the step, and sat there, waiting.

A low humming sound made itself felt on the air. It rose to a whine . . . the shining top of a motor car appeared sliding along outside the wall. It slowed abruptly, and swung in toward the gates. Gary started down the drive.

"It looks as if we had guests," Grandmother said, interrupting Madeline. "I wonder who it can be?"

"It's probably another plumber," Madeline said languidly.

Gary had reached the gates. He opened them, and passed through. But then, after a moment's colloquy with the driver of the car, whom Deborah could not see, he came back to the gates again, and swung them wide; and the long blue car jolted a little and came on through. Deborah put a slow hand to her throat.

But it was not Stuart Graham driving; it was a woman . . . a girl . . . in a bright red silk beret, and a red jacket. Gary plodded along behind the car, after he had shut the gates and locked them. The car came slowly up the drive, and stopped opposite the end of the veranda. The girl got out, and Deborah knew her. She was tall and very slim, with a long oval face and a very red mouth. Her eyes were black, and sleepy, like a cat's, with slow black lashes drooping over them. Deborah rose, and found Madeline at her side. They went down the steps.

"It's Pilar," Madeline said under her breath, and Deborah nodded.

"Ah, Madeline!" Pilar said, in a voice that made a tune. She moved forward, and let her hand rest lightly on Madeline's elbow, holding her, as she looked down at Deborah. "And this," she went on caressingly, "this will be little Deborah. My child, you are adorable."

"Thank you," Deborah said sweetly, and put out her hand in welcome. "I am so glad you have come. I am sure you must be Pilar. I have heard so much about you."

Pilar looked a little startled, but she lost not a whit of her poise. She looked at Madeline. "And aren't you glad to see me, too, Madeline?"

"Oh, rather," Madeline said coolly, and turned back toward the veranda.

"We must take you to Grandmother," Deborah explained, as Pilar's eyes lifted to the delicate old face turned toward her.

"Lovely," Pilar said, in an audible whisper. "Oh, lovely."

"Grandmother," Deborah murmured, "this is Miss D'Avillo. She is another friend of Sally's and Madeline's."

"I'm so happy to welcome you, my dear," Grandmother said warmly. "We are having such a pleasant time and I am very glad you have come to join us."

"Oh, thank you," Pilar murmured, and held Grandmother's hand quite unnecessarily long. She straightened.

Simon and Tubby and Bryn, all silent, came around the end of the veranda. Bryn's face, as he glanced at Deborah, was very queer and stiff; Tubby was white. Simon looked detached, as usual, but his eyes went at once to Pilar. And she stood there, for a moment, beside Grandmother, beside Deborah. She put her hand lightly on Deborah's shoulder, before she moved, and Bryn looked at them together, so, Pilar beautiful and sophisticated and perfect down to the last gleaming finger-nail shining in the sun. Deborah small and insignificant in her faded gingham.

Pilar smiled. She went forward and held out both hands. "My dear Bryn," she said affectionately. "But how well you look, and how happy! Allow me to congratulate you; I think she is the loveliest thing I have ever seen."

Grandmother looked up swiftly at Deborah; and Deborah, calm now, with something cold and frozen where her heart had begun some short time ago to ache, smiled gently and contentedly back.

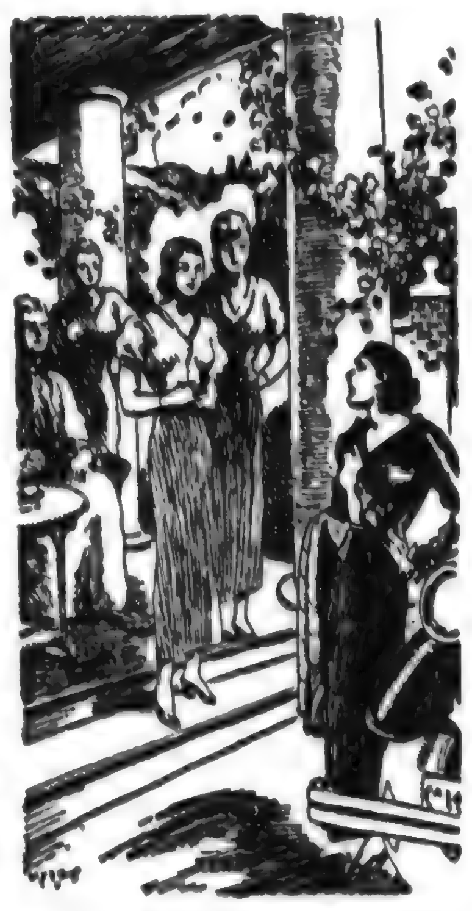
• • • • • • •

The rain, which had threatened for twenty-four hours, came at last on Tuesday night. Deborah lay awake and listened to the soft steady fall on the balcony floor outside her bedroom window. She found herself wishing ardently that it might rain hard and long, so that the road might be impassable to Stuart Graham, so that nothing further should break in upon the peace and loveliness of the summer days. But that was a useless wish, she knew. The peace and loveliness were already gone.

Pilar was very beautiful, but the most troubling thing about her was the so obvious fact that she belonged to Bryn's world, his real world, that she was part of his own life and always had been, and not just a chance passer-by whose path had happened to meet his and for a time followed along close beside it. Madeline and Sally and Simon and Tubby were out of Bryn's life, too, but somehow before Pilar came, Deborah hadn't realized what a different life it was from her own, how far away and impossible. Pilar was very kind, and she did her best to draw Deborah into the conversations, and always stopped carefully to explain anything that she thought would be unfamiliar or strange to Deborah, in a way that Sally and Madeline never had thought of doing. But Pilar's very kindness and thoughtfulness seemed to emphasize Deborah's unfamiliarity with the world, Bryn's world, and its customs.

All the time she had felt lost and forlorn and alone, because this was Bryn's world and Bryn's life, a modern sophisticated pageant in which she had no part; and because it made her see how drab and dull and uninteresting her own life of cucumber frames and brook trout and made-over clothes must be to him.

And all his talk about knitting, and winter evenings by the hearth, and the kittens he would get for her . . . all his interest in that simple sort of thing was pretended for her sake. Bryn was a gentleman, and he lived up to his bargains to the last pencil stroke. Not by word or suggestion would he let her discover how bored and dull he was going to find the rest of his year here on the mountain, nor with what difficulty he was going to earn the money she would pay him.



Her Eyes Were Black and Sleepy, Like a Cat's.

Deborah slept very little that night. Life, that only yesterday had seemed so beautiful and serene, was becoming complicated and unhappy. There didn't seem to be anything ahead but more difficulties and a lonely unhappy time. Because Bryn would go back to Pilar when the year was up, and when he did, there wouldn't be anybody at all. Nobody could ever be like Bryn, even if he were only pretending. But there would have to be a way to make him stop pretending, Deborah knew, because if he went on like this, even though the look in his eyes was only the tenderness one feels for a child, or a lost puppy, she wasn't going to be able to bear it when at the end of the year he drove out of the big gates to leave her forever.

The morning was cold and grey, although the rain had stopped at dawn. Deborah had them lay a fire in the small sitting room downstairs, so that Grandmother might not feel a chill. There, when breakfast was over, Pilar and Madeline and Sally and Grandmother and herself were sitting. The three men were outside.

Pilar, in a beautiful dress of some very fine woollen material in a dark crimson color, sat beside the doorway with her feet out on a low stool and a long cigarette holder between her fingers. She could see up into the orchard, too, and Deborah noticed that her eyes went to Bryn frequently, although she gave no sign. Grandmother was in a low chair beside the fire, listening to Pilar with the same fascinated interest she had shown last night, watching her, taking in every perfect detail of her grooming.

"I hope you don't mind my coming here uninvited like this, Mrs. Larned," she was saying in her low voice. "I found myself completely deserted and lonely and I couldn't stand it any longer."

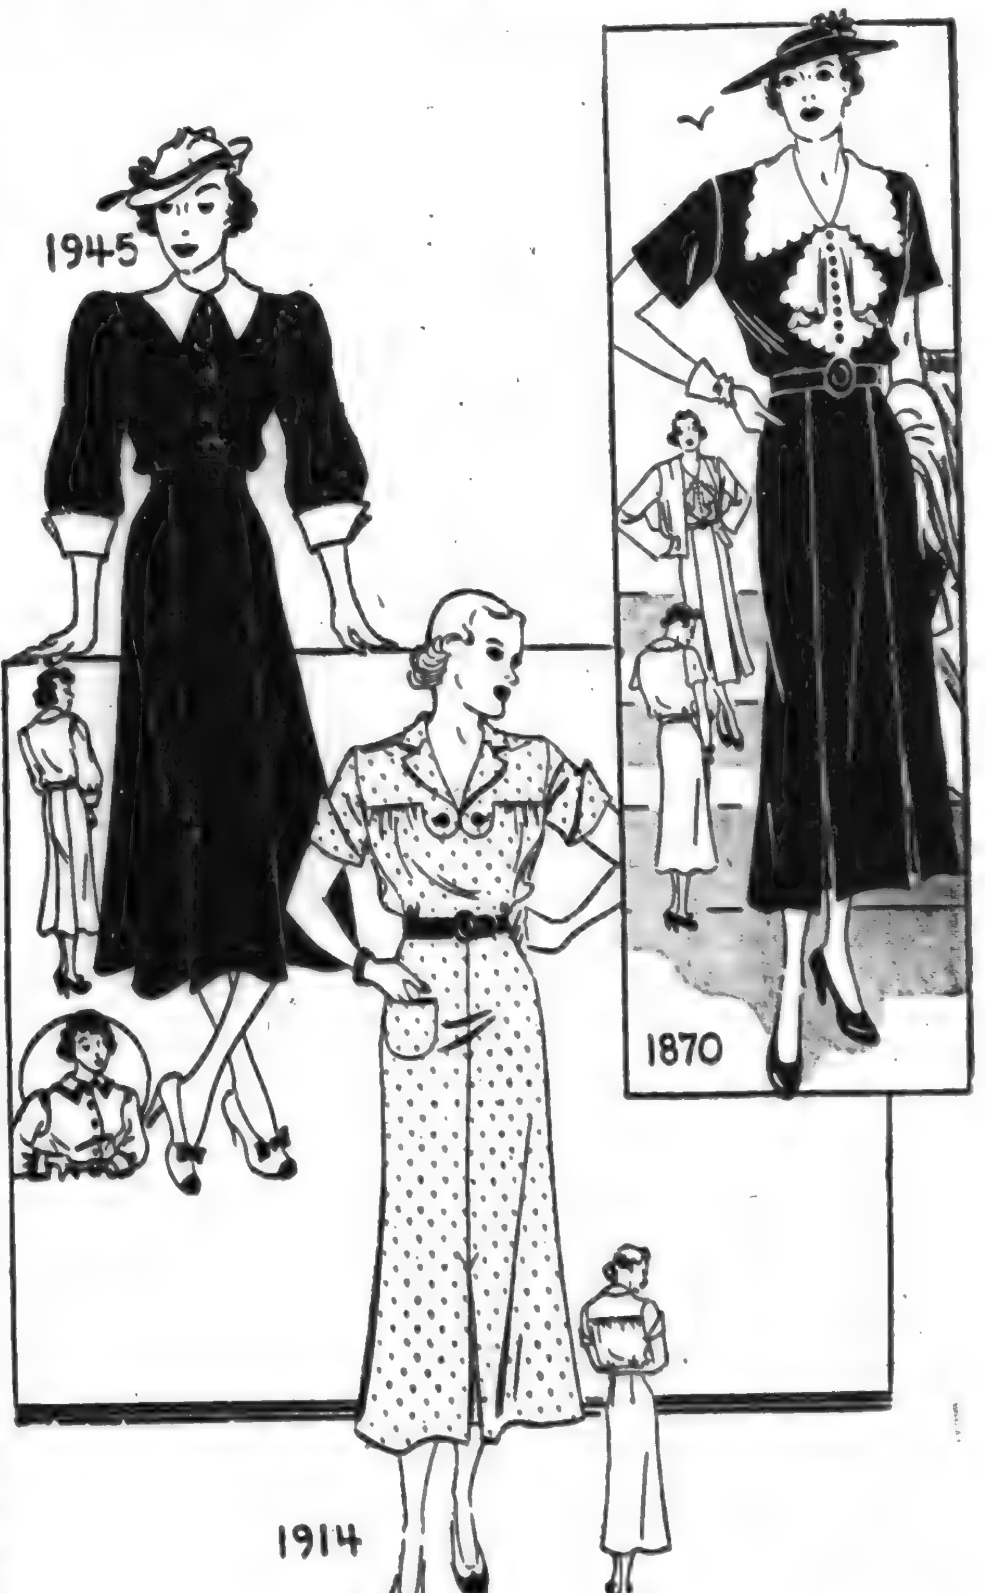
A Boost for Home Sewing!



HERE are three Sewing Circle specialties that are as easy to make as humming a tune. If you've never made a stitch before, here's your golden opportunity, for step-by-step sewing instructions are included with every pattern to direct you all the way until you've completed a frock that'll win a round of applause in any circle and flattering compliments on your slim figure and chic appearance. For an inexpensive, but extensive wardrobe just glance at this charming array of exquisite frocks.

Pattern No. 1945-B is a smashing hit in any office or social gathering and versatility personified. You can wear it as shown on the large figure with contrasting collar and cuffs and a self-fabric belt or make it with a twin collar and cuff, introducing another harmonizing color. It's outstanding because of its neat and trim appearance and because it makes up nicely in almost any choice bit of material. Cotton, shantung, silk, broadcloth, crepe or satin are a few exciting fabric mediums that create excellent effects. It is available for sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measures: 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 requires four yards of 39-inch material plus two-thirds yard contrast.

Pattern No. 1914-B is an alluring double duty frock; simple, inexpensive and the proud possessor of a sleek silhouette. It's a marvel for getting around the kitchen in a jiffy and just the thing for visiting, shopping or business. Depending of course on the material you select. For housewear, try a gingham, percale or cotton with a bit of color to pep you up, and for a more dressier effect choose striped shirting, broadcloth, lightweight wool or crepe. It is available for sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires three and three-fourths yards of 39-inch material.

Pattern No. 1870-B. Those of you whose figures run to width will join your slimmer sisters in choosing this gay slenderizing ensemble, with a contrasting scalloped collar and jabot, so flattering to the face. The effect is exquisite in satin, crepe, broadcloth or silk, the result wholly and completely satisfying. With or without the jacket the frock is the ultimate in utility and style. It is available for sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires six and one-fourth yards of 39-inch material plus seven-eighths yard contrast.

MORE MONEY FOR AGED PENSIONERS

The county welfare board, meeting in Auburn Wednesday night, granted twelve new applications for old age assistance, ranging from $8 to $18 a month. These beneficiaries include a husband and wife and their combined pension will be $25 a month.

The board granted increases to twenty-one pensioners who were already on the rolls, the investigations of whose cases had just been completed. These people have been getting from $8 to $12 a month and they were raised from $10 to $18 a month.

The board considered a total of thirty-six reports of investigations. Two cases were continued at $10 a month and one decision was withheld. Three deaths have taken place among pensioners since the September meeting.

Two claims for burial of old age pensioners were allowed for $75 each.

Assistance for twenty mothers was tentatively approved, these being the first reports acted upon of assistance for children. Forty-four children are involved. There are still forty-one applications of this kind to investigate.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

There was a noticable falling off of receipts in the sheep department this week, however other kinds of livestock was plentiful. A double deck of feeder pigs from Northern Iowa ran the total receipts above the capacity of the yards and temporary pens had to be made. There is an unsupplied demand for good breeding ewes and guaranteed dairy cows the last few weeks. Receipts in each department and prices follow:

Hogs 387 head: 175 to 275, $9.70. Roughs $8.50 to $9.00. Boars $5.50. Sows with pigs at heel, selling by the head $40.00 to $43.50. Feeder pigs selling by the head slightly above last week.

Sheep 94 head: Top lambs $8.65, seconds $7.00. Aged bucks $1.50 cwt. When sold by the head for breeding purposes up to $16.50. Breeding ewes by the head $4.50 to $6.10.

Veals 32 head: No really top calves on the market this week. The top of the sale was $10.50 with the bulk at $9.00 to $10.25.

Cattle 56 head: Milk cows $35 to $53.50 per head. Heifers and steers off pasture, showing quite a little flesh and breeding $4.80 to $6.15. High cutter and cutter cows $3.65 to $5.15. Canner cows $1.90 to $3.25. Bulls weighing 900 and higher $480 to $5.40.

Mrs. Vera Heighn Sewell, of Pittsburgh, Pa., visited in the home of Harry and Leon Kees on Monday.

SPENCERVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

Seven weeks of school have rolled along in short order. School has been moving along so smoothly this year that one would hardly believe there had been a long 4 month's vacation. We hope this high interest will continue to prevail all winter.

There are few changes in so far as the policy of the school is concerned, and the usual routine of a year ago will be followed. Likewise, there are few changes in the personell of the teachers. Miss Pflaumer replaces Mrs. Lantz who has retired because of her health, and Miss Brunnenmiller replaces tne former music and art teacher, Mrs. Ruder, who lives in Converse, Ind., at this time.

Rev. Clayton of the local Methodist Church and Rev. Ferster of the local Lutheran Church have agreed to help us with our activity programs. Each appears before the assembly once a month, telling us about Biblical literature. This helps satisfy a need that has been felt for some time.

The Auburn Fall Fair is over, and we feel proud to have rated first prize on our high school booth. This was not prepared as an outstanding piece of showmanship, but was prepared in the usual class room procedure, representing all departments of the academic school. Pupils and teachers deserve credit for the fine cooperation shown in preparing and posting this material.

The grades showed attractive posters at the fair, and the 5th-6th grade room rated a third place ribbon in a spirited field of competition. Individual ribbons were awarded to Bill Erick, Alice Hart, and Betty Worman, who placed first, second, and third in the order named in Bookkeeping. Luella Romine placed second in a contest in poetry. Richard Kelley won first place in 4-H pig club as well as Sweepstakes in the field. In addition to cash prizes, he also wins a trip to the Purdue Roundup. George Hart won third in boy's calf club.

The first P. T. A. meeting was held Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The Harmony Band from the Primary room made its first appearance, and was well received. Mr. Clyde Hart, the retiring president, and Mr. Kenton McCrory the incoming president, made short talks. Miss Brunnenmiller and some boys of the school supplied musical numbers. Mrs. Thad Smith was elected sect.-treas. of the organization.

The attendance for the school the first month was very good, averaging in the neighborhood of 90%. The primary room had a perfect attendance the entire month—not a pupil was absent or tardy. If any one beats that, there is something wrong with the figures. Some of the boys have been helping with corn cutting and shredding this month, which will cut our attendance considerably. It must not be forgotten that our township gets some pay from the State based not on enrollment, but on attendance. Thelma Bishop has been ill for two weeks, but from all reports, is improving satisfactorily.

We had our first basketball practice Monday night with a good turnout. Due to losing ten men by graduation, the material is young and small, but snow a lot of interest and determination. This season opens Nov. 6th.

Clothes Are High

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN © The Safety Man

It's amusing to ride with some people and hear the present-day automobilist criticize the construction of highways.

He wants highway engineers not only to build roads straight and wide, but mark them so that all problems confronting him in driving will be called to his attention. Then he proceeds to violate all the laws of decency and safety, and pays absolutely no attention to tne markings on the highway.

If we want wide roads, sloping ditches, wide shoulders, and all the other safety measures on our highways, we ought to be sporting enough to use them correctly.

You and I can help by setting the right example.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Al Martin was home from Chicago over Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Ruth Davis, of Lagrange, Ill., is in St. Joe for a short visit.

Roy Maxwell began teaching science in the local school this week.

Mrs. Priscilla Sinanton is preparing to move into the Chas. Collins home.

Miss Virginia Ginther, of Knightstown, Ind., was home over the week-end.

The first sleet appeared last Saturday afternoon and lasted for only a few seconds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Koch and children, of Fort Wayne, called at the Roy Koch home Monday evening.

Miss Lucille Curie has been spending the past week in and around Hicksville a guest of her sisters.

The M. P. Ladies Aid meets today, (Thursday) all day meeting, with pot luck dinner, at the home of Mrs. Zay Sailer.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance Woodcox, of Detroit, Mich., report the arrival of a new baby boy at their home. Born Saturday, Oct. 17, 1936 at Harper Hospital.

Leon Kees attended the Last Man's Club of the "Rainbow" 42nd Division, at Ft. Wayne, Saturday evening.

O. E. Ginther and wife were Sunday dinner guests in the home of D. L. Allison and wife, of near Monroeville.

Mrs. Daisy Woodcox, who is at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. J. Kennedy, at Garrett, was reported better Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf Wolfe, of Garrett, and Belle Howe, of Auburn, were guests Thursday evening in the Harry Kees home.

Order your winter's supply of reading material at News office. We will not confiscate your money paid for the magazines.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland returned Monday from a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Merle Phelps and family at Kansas City.

Mr. John Smith was called to Pleasant Lake Thursday, due to the illness of his sister, Mary Freeman. She is 84 years of age.

Mrs. Lillie Shull began working in the Philip Chaney home near Spencerville, on Tuesday. She stored her goods with her son, Wellington.

Lilac blossoms are reported at the Wm. Strouse and J. C. Hull homes. This ideal weather is causing a number of unseasonable things.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole, Mrs. Nettie Baker and Merritt Sechler spent Sunday and Monday at Cleveland, O., with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop.

Stanley Koch is home from Chicago where he spent last week at the hospital for examination and observation, and was advised to have eight of his teeth extracted.

Checks totaling 90%, are being made out by Paul Heichelbech, representative of the Department of Financial Institutions, to the depositors in Farmers State Bank at Hudson. The checks total $26,240.38 and will be paid Saturday.

A sample of the sweet potatoes raised at Case-Acres farm, was presented The News last week, and we are still using off of this potato. It weighed 3 pounds. Bert Jackson also donated us a bag of those famous Spanish sweet onios. We appreciate these and say thank you.

Master Jimmie Crowell is quite sick with pneumonia. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Crowell, of Dayton were called Saturday and within 2½ hours they were at his bedside. Cliff returned Monday while Hilda remained until the little fellow has passed the danger point.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sims and daughter, Mary, of Union City, Ind., spent from Friday until Sunday with Frank Curie and family. Mr. Sims was a former principal of the schools of this place and has been Vocational instructor at Union City since leaving here eight years ago.

The exchange of properties in Spencer township is evidenced by the following transfers: Alonzo J. Allen to Lee Wilmot, 61 acres sec. 28, $1; Marches-Nowels Lumber Co. to Stanley Hallabaugh, 120 acres sec. 21, $4,800; Chas. W. Watson to Wm. E. and Martha Foltz, lots 30, 31, O. P., $1,050.

Donald Kisey was operated on last week for appendicitis at the St. Joseph Hospital. Today he is suffering with pneumonia. Donald worked at the Magnovox plant and last week was promoted to manager of his department. He was found in the plant, bending over a machine very ill, and was rushed to the hospital. Sunday he was still quite ill, so much so that no one was allowed to see him. Today he is reported much better.

Notice, Voters of DeKalb County, don't fail to vote for Brecbill for County Commissinoer, who works for the interest of the Taxpayer. 44t1.

A neighborhood husking bee was held Wednesday of this week for John Ulm, who is in the hospital. This is a kindly deed and will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Jennie Sechler, son, Merritt, Jack Sechler and Lucille Curie were dinner guests of Mrs. Wm. Randall, Tueday. Orval Foust, of Hamilton, was an afternoon caller.

Olen Dermott and wife spent from Thursday until Sunday in the home of John Murphy and wife north of Kalamazoo, Mich. He reports less than half a crop of apples in that territory.

It's not going to be so cold this winter. The corn husk prophets have come in with their prognostications. Corn husks are loose on the ear, this year where they were wrapped in tight embrace last fall.

The last Free Clinic of the year will be held in the office rooms at the Auburn City Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 10-12 noon, and 1-4 in the afternoon, under the direction of the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenberry, of north of St. Joe, Sunday afternoon a baby girl, who passed away only a few hours later. The infant was buried Monday afternoon in Riverside cemetery, Rev. P. A. Hubbartt officiating at the funeral service held from the Kinsey funeral home.

Twenty mothers of 24 children were granted assistance by the DeKalb County Welfare Board last week. Various amounts were given due to the conditions found, $60 was the highest, to a mother of seven children and the lowest was $10 to a mother with one child. Some of the mothers have small incomes. Two new old age pensions were granted.

Scores of Hoosier sportsmen will celebrate the opening of the duck season in Indiana next Monday morning, November 2 at 7 o'clock, according to reports received by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation. The season will continue until sunset on Monday, Nov. 30. Remember a federal "Duck Stamp" must be on your person besides a state license.

Vote for Brecbill without fail, for re-election. 44t1.

Make it your business to read the classified ad column each week.

Sylvester Bowers, who has been working for Merwood Rhodes the past year, is unable to work and is staying with his sister, Mrs. Della Andrews at Huntertown.

Hollis Dilley and wife are spending this week in Iowa guests of relatives. They were accompanied by Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. Effie Smith and Mrs. Ella Horn.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith and son, William, and Miss Rosella Mendelsohn, attended a birthday party in honor of Mrs. Irvin Bratton, at Montpelier, O., Thursday.

Rev. Catron, of Macon, Mo., has been secured to preach at St. Joe and Newville Christian Churches, after his trial sermon last Sunday. He will move his family to Angola, where he will attend college part time.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Kutzner, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Feller, Mrs. Mary Sebert, of Auburn, and H. G. Hursh and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Glen Wineland and wife. Afternoon callers were Herman Bowman, wife and children, of Auburn.

J. P. Buckingham and wife attended the M. E. Home-coming at Huntertown, Sunday. After an absence of 33 years, only a few of their old friends remain. They have resided in St. Joe 28 years coming here from Leo, where they lived 5 years.

Senator Arthur Vadenberg's address which featured phonographic reproduction of parts from President Roosevelt's speeches will be presented over radio station WOWO at Fort Wayne between 10:15 and 10:45 o'clock, Friday night.

John Ulm is recovering from a third operation at the Lutheran Hospital in Ft. Wayne, and he feels that in a couple of weeks he will be able to return home. John Doll, who had also been at the hospital for weeks, was dismissed and is at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Josephine Clark, where he can make daily trips to the clinic for treatment.

The election results will be carried in The News next week and possibly will be late in arrival. The entire county will be given.

The first instance in which the DeKalb County Board of Public Welfare has taken action to obtain reimbursement from a client who died leaving property has appeared in the DeKalb circuit court. Mrs. Naomi Croninger, of Butler, who has been an old age pensioner, died Sept. 19. She had received $208 from the county, having been on the pension rolls since July 1, 1934, at the rate of $8 a month. She owned real estate valued at $440.

The late Margaret McNamara, by her will admitted to probate in the DeKalb circuit court, devised her property, consisting of $1,600 in personal and $1,200 in real estate, to her children, Inglebert of Kendallville, Artie, south of Auburn, and Mrs. Mary Braeuer and Clay McNamara of Ft. Wayne. The will was signed March 14, 1931, with Mary Viola Stapleton and Freida Volkert as witnesses. Mrs. McNamara died at Spencerville October 15, 1936. Artie McNamara, nominated in the will for executor, qualified by filing $3,000 bond, with Blanche McNamara and Chas. Davis as sureties.

Mr. Voter!

1 Do you realize that the McNutt-McHale-Townsend crowd has doubled the number of state employes in Indiana in the past three years?

2 Do you realize that the McNutt administration is collecting and spending, from property taxes and special taxes, more than $12,000,000.00 more per year in Indiana than any previous state administration?

3 Do you realize that the McNutt-Townsend controlled State Board of Education changed all of the school text books this year and that you paid the bill when your children started to school this fall?

4 Do you realize that the McNutt-McHale-Townsend group of politicians are collecting over $2,000,000.00 per year through the importers and distributors set up for the sale of beer and liquor in Indiana, and that the consumer pays this bill? Do you realize that their racket nets nearly as much to these individual politicians as the state of Indiana receives in excise and liquor taxes?

5 Do you realize that the McNutt-McHale-Townsend crowd has wrecked the efficiency of our state institutions in order to build their political machine?

6 Do you realize that under our Constitution, Governor McNutt cannot succeed himself as Goveror, and that he has personally selected M. Clifford Townsend, "McNutt's man Friday," as his candidate for Governor and that the McNutt-McHale-Townsend crowd will rule the state in case of Mr. Townsend's election?

The Potomac River is quiet and within its banks, but there's a flood in the National Capital just the same. It's mail—protests and questions that threaten to swamp one of the new Federal agencies. It seems that after five months, many of the nation's 26,000,000 employes who will be affected have begun to find out what the new Social Security Act's taxes will do to their pay envelopes.

The Social Security Board already faced a tremendous task in finger-printing or assigning numbers to the 26,000,000 employes by January 1. Now it is up to its neck in mail—questions and protests about the new taxes.

The taxes start, for instance, at 1 per cent and gradually increase. Thus an employe making only $20 a week will, beginning January 1, have 20 cents deducted from his pay each week, for his employer is forced to collect the tax for the government. Eventually, that deduction from the $20 employe's pay will reach 60 cents.

Simultaneously, each employer will be paying an equivalent amount. This tax on the employer will be reflected in an increased cost of living, for the employed has no choice but to include in his sales price the taxes he pays.

It sounds bad enough to say simply that the government eventually will collect $1,20 each week for each $20 salary, especially since nobody has any promise of a pension under it before 1942. It is worse when it is considered that pensions will range from $15 to a maximum of $85 a month, and that man will have to earn not less than $200 a month for forty years in order to collect the maximum amount. In addition, statisticians add another 60 cents which the employer will have to pay every week on the same $20 salary for unemployment insurance. And the benefits under the unemployment insurance system are decidedly more indefinite.

It is startling, too, when statisticians get around to figuring what the taxes mean in actual dollars and cents to be spent in each community. It is elementary economics that every dollar taken out of the community in the form of taxes reduces the total volume of that community's business.

For instance, one New England industrial town of about 50,000 population will lose $4,637 a week in direct deductions from employes' salaries next year. By the time the law gets into full operation, that town will be pouring a total of $2,179,000 a year into the Federal coffers.

And one New England state will lose approximately $68,286,000 a year.

There is no iron-clad promise, either, that after these taxes are paid anybody will get pensions or unemployment insurance. In the first place, the Constitution forbids the collection of such taxes for specific purposes. The money must just be paid into the Treasury's general fund, and can be used for any purpose.

But on top of that, in passing the law, Congress inserted this sentence: "The right to alter, amend, or repeal any provision of this act is hereby reserved to the Congress."

Congress has been known to change its mind. If it repealed the act, nobody could expect it to assume the Herculean task of refunding the taxes to those who had paid them.

WINTER SEASON PLANS FOR CONSERVATION CLUB

It is getting to the time of year that our Conservation Club should liven up and get prepared for the winter activities.

If we want to have our annual pest hunt and fox drive we must be getting ready.

So we wish that all members and others that are interested would meet on the regular meeting night, Thursday, November 5, 1936, at the Town Hall.

We will have some lunch, and try to start things off with a bang.

Let's Go.

CORN HUSKING CONTEST NEXT SATURDAY

A field has been selected on the farm of Harold Wise, located 2 miles west and one-half mile north of Auburn, to hold the county corn husking contest on Saturday, October 31, starting at 10:30 A. M. Several entries are already in and anyone wishing to participate should contact T. E. Myers, County Agent, at once.

A group of farmers met Wednesday morning at Mr. Wise's farm to husk the alleyways preparatory to getting the field ready for the contest. They will enjoy a pot luck dinner at noon with a weiner roast. Anyone interested is invited to come and help.

LEGION DISCUSS PLANS FOR YEAR

At the meeting of Post 283 American Legion Tuesday evening plans were discussed for the Post's program for the coming year. Several committees were appointed to supervise a number of activities which make up the work of the Legion.

Twelve members were present including Past Adjutant Ginther of the Legion Post at Hicksville.

The Legion and Auxiliary will hold a joint meeting on Tuesday, November 10th at which time the Auxiliary drill team of Churubusco will hold initiation services and install the officers of the Auxiliary unit of this Post, after which a pot luck supper will be served by the ladies of the Auxiliary followed by entertainment by the Post.

REPUBLICAN PARADE AND RALLY AT AUBURN

The closing meeting the Republican Campaign in DeKalb County will be held at Auburn at 8 P. M. on Friday, October 30th in the Assembly Room of the Court House.

The principal speakers at this meeting will be Everett Sanders, of Washington and Terre Haute, former Congressman from the 5th Indiana District, former secretary to President Calvin Coolidge and former Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and who will speak in behalf of the election of Governor Alf M. Landon for President. In addition Judge Noel Neal, of Noblesville, former Judge of the Appellate Court of Indiana will speak on behalf of the election of Raymond S. Springer, Republican Candidate for Governor of Indiana. All of the county candidates will be present at this meeting and will be introduced.

The speaking will be preceded by a large torchlight parade, consisting of automobiles, floats and musical organizations to be sponsored and produced by the Young Republicans Club of DeKalb County. The parade will be headed by the Waterloo American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps and by the Butler High School Band. The parade will form on First, Second, Third and Fourth Streets facing North Main Street and will move south on Main Street to the Court House square. Delegations and floats for the parade will be furnished from all parts of the county and an overflow crowd is expected.

Do YOU want another hectic four years like the last four?

Do YOU want another four years of "cockeyed," contridictory policies, "planned" boondoggling; lustful spending of other people's money by starry-eyed brainstormers working at cross-purposes.

Do YOU want to be mollycoddled, from the cradle to the grave by Washington—a "kept" subject, instead of a free citizen.

Do YOU want to be fooled with glib promises, charming smiles, flip quips, fireside chats, adroit manuverings, "fast footwork," again and again—AND AGAIN?

Do YOU want the National Debt, already staggering, upped another TWELVE BILLION DOLLARS.

Do YOU want to pay, in taxes, the interest and principal on such tremendous debts, or would YOU rather have the money to spend for other things?

Do YOU think YOU can spend yourself into myriads of direct and hidden taxes, mostly on the necessities of life, reaching peak burden at the time THEY are trying to get started in life, in marriage, in jobs, professions, business.

Do YOU think YOU can spend yourself into prosperity? Or that a nation can?

If YOU don't, then say so at the BALLOT BOX NOVEMBER 3.

The Safety Man

The human element in driving is the problem on our highways today. Construction of highways is constantly being improved, especially along safety lines.

The human element must be educated. The driver of a car must realize his responsibility. Schools, clubs, safety organizations, societies, and many other groups of people are trying desperately to instill into the mind of every automobile driver that proper training in the handling of an automobile is necessary. It is easy to train the higher types of apes, dogs, cats, and even lower animals to operate a car in a circus ring to the satisfaction of an audience, but it is sometimes humanly impossible to instill into the minds of some drivers the absolute necessity for safe driving.

When the day comes that automobile drivers realize their responsibility, we will have a reduction of accidents on our highways.

GIRL SCOUTS ENJOY WEINER ROAST

Fifteen girls of Girl Scout troop No. 1, of St. Joe, enjoyed a weiner roast in the woods Monday eve. The group left the home of Mrs. Goldsmith, Captain, and by signs were led to the place arranged by Scouts, Ruth and Myra Kessler and Marcia Wade. Of course, the cemetery was visited where they were met by two ghosts, who accompanied the girls with ghostly growls and remarks and later furnished the ghostly stories. After the fire died down the troop returned to the Goldsmith home where games and pranks appropriate for the Hallowe'en season were played.

Guests of the troop were Misses Lucille Curie and Norma Rickerd.

American Way Best

"We have found by experience that American institutions serve our purpose better than those of any other country. We not only want to safeguard our freedom, but we also want security and abundance of the good things of life. We are told, however, by defeatists that we cannot have both. We must, they say, choose between freedom and security. They insist we must give up one in order to gain the other. Let us not surrender to any such counsel oi despair."—Gov. Alf Landon at West Middlesex, Pa., August 22, 1936.

ELECTION GOES TO DEMOCRATS IN COUNTY

Herbert N. Grimm, Re-elected Sheriff, Led Tickett with Majority of 2.494—Harry M. Shull Only Republican to Win

With the exception of one office, that of state representative, the democrats won every contest in Tuesday's election in DeKalb county.

The democratic national, state and congressional tickets all carried the county, as well as nine county candidates.

The lone republican who survived the landslide was Harry M. Shull, who was re-elected state representative over Stanley O. Devitt by a majority of 79. This was the closest vote of all. The largest majority was won by Herbert N. Grimm, who was re-elected sheriff by 2,494 votes over Fred E. Hart.

President Roosevelt won the county by 1,122 votes, his total being 6,970 to 5,848 for Alfred M. Landon.

M. Clifford Townsend had a margin of 443 votes over Raymond S. Springer in the race for governor, the totals being 6,687 and 6,244. All the other democratic state candidates carried the county by similar votes.

Jas. I. Farley of Auburn, carried his home county in his contest with David Hogg for re-election to congress, his majority being 360. The total votes were 6,630 and 6,270.

The minor parties were given slight attention in this county, the Union party polling 182 votes, the socialists 25 and the communists 2.

Vote for County Offices

The county candidates and the majorities of the victors follow:

For prosecuting attorney, Wm. H. Husselman, 6,494, Geo. E. Mountz, 6,181; majority, 313.

For joint senator, Larry Brandon, 7,391, Edward A. Wolfe, 5,252; majority, 2,139.

For state representative, Harry M. Shull, 6,373, Stanley O. Devitt, 6,294; majority, 79.

For county clerk, Carl Walter, 7,422, Russell C. Fretz, 5,265; majority, 2,157.

For county treasurer, Claude P. Fitch, 6,990, Harvey Phelps, 5,674; majority, 1,316.

For sheriff, Herbert N. Grimm, 7,633, Fred E. Hart, 5,139; majority, 2,494.

For coroner, Dr. B. O. Shook, 6,630, John R. Clark, 5,941; majority, 689.

For surveyor, Calvin C. Kain, 6,970, Wayne Van Auken, 5,737; majority, 1,233.

For commissioner north, Wm. H. Brecbill, 6,666, Frank W. McCullough, 5,917; majority, 749.

For commissioner southwest, Arthur Grube, 6,630, Ira W. Grogg, 5,979; majority, 651.

ROOSEVELT VICTORY BECOMES LANDSLIDE

New York, Nov. 4. — President Roosevelt, holding a 3 to 2 lead over Gov. Alf M. Landon, appeared today to be marching toward a possible presidential plurality of 10,000,000 votes.

He has been returned to the White House by a landslide, according to United Press election figures for approximately two-thirds of the nation's 121,637 voting precincts. Late this afternoon the popular vote showed:

Roosevelt—21,129,361.
Landon—13,109,812.

The size and scope of the Roosevelt sweep was shown by the fact that the president led in states that have 523 of the nation's 531 electoral votes. Only two states—Maine and Vermont—seemed safe for Gov. Landon and their electoral votes totalled eight.

A total vote of between 43,000,000 and 44,000,000 was indicated—a record. The 1932 vote was approximately 38,000,000.

Provided the present ratio of votes is maintained—and it was fairly constant throughout the day—the final tabulation should be approximately Roosevelt, 27,000,000; Landon, 17,000,000.

No other candidate for president ever polled such a large vote as is indicated for Mr. Roosevelt. In 1932, he defeated Herbert Hoover, 22,000,000 to 15,000,000.

All these estimates are subject to final returns still to be tabulated. Many missing precincts are in the far west where Mr. Roosevelt showed strength in ballots already counted.

Although Gov. Landon seemed on the way to polling approximately 2,000,000 more votes than Mr. Hoover received in 1932, he remained one of the worst-beaten presidential candidates in history. Not since William Howard Taft ran against Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 has a candidate accumulated such a scanty electoral vote. In 1912 Taft got eight votes—the same number indicated for Gov. Landon.

Join in Endorsing New Deal

Town and country apparently joined in endorsing the Roosevelt new deal and its most debated and disputed policies—the spending of vast sums, the encouragement of labor to fight for organization and collective bargaining, reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations, emergency invansion of powers hitherto reserved to the states, and a program assailed from coast to coast in this campaign on the general charge that it was destructive of constitutional government.

But the losers were good losers today and the winners, so far as the new deal mind has been expressed in the moment of victory, joined in proposing an era of political good feeling after bitter campaign months.

Chairman James A. Farley of the democratic national committee spoke quickly into the whirlwind of democratic votes to reassure business—possibly affrighted by Mr. Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden promise of last Saturday night—that in his second term organized money would find its master in the White House.

"No American need have any fear of the future," said Farley in a broadcast which anticipated by some hours the acknowledgment of republican leaders that the election fight had been lost.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt's mission is to see that all of us have a square deal. No individual and no corporation that is on the level with the people has any cause to dread Mr. Roosevelt's second term."

The president received election returns at Hyde Park over United Press wires and retired without public comment on the indications of a remarkable personal triumph. But Gov. Landon, in his telegram to Hyde Park, rubbed out the line of partisanship which has cleft the American public in this campaign.

"The nation has spoken," he said. "Every American will accept the verdict and work for the common cause of the good of our country."

Red-haired John D. M. Hamilton chairman of the republican national committee spoke in a similar vein, chin jutting and still full of fight in Chicago G. O. P. headquarters, although no one to deny he has been licked if the decision goes against him. But Hamilton did not surrender.

"Under our form of government," he said, "a militant and a vigorous minority has a vital service to render to the nation.

"The republican party with the cooperation of those democrats and independents who find common cause with us will not fail in that obligation."

Wilfred J. Funk, editor of the Literary Digest, conceded that there had been a fault in the method of his magazine's poll, which erroneously forecast a Landon landslide. Alfred E. Smith, the man in the brown derby, just went to bed.

Extravagance was Issue

Republicans strove to pitch the campaign on the issue of extravagance, maintenance of the constitution and the supreme court and a denial that the new deal was a square deal for labor. The G. O. P. swept the great industrial states of the mid-Atlantic and Great Lakes areas with a last-minute and impressive campaign against the Roosevelt social security program, warning laboring men and women that they were assured under it only of a life-time one per cent tax against their weekly wage rather than the security of a pension in their old age.

Against these and all republican arguments, the democrats posed prosperity—prosperity now as compared to that March day in 1933 when Mr. Roosevelt took over. It was necessary to listen to both sides, more and more bitterly partisan as the campaign progressed, to realize that while better times undoubtedly are here, there remain unemployed by private pay rolls some 11,000,000 (M) Americans and that they and their dependents are sheltered and fed today by federal bounty.

President Roosevelt will find that problem of the jobless and what to do about them is on top of the pile today or tomorrow when he finishes reading the congratulatory telegrams and turns to accumulated federal business.

TOWNSEND PENSION CANDIDATES LOSE

New York, Nov. 4.—Election returns today showed that comparatively few outright congressional exponents of the $200-a-month Townsend pension program gained seats.

The Townsend bloc, which at times numbered as high as 60 members last session, apparently will contain only about half that number this year, it was indicated on the basis of incomplete returns.

Of 65 candidates who endorsed the Townsend plan in a United Press pre-election questionnaire, only 23 were known to have been elected. Others either were defeated or were engaged in contests so close that only final complete returns will indicate their fate.

More than 240 candidates announced themselves as definitely opposed to the Townsend plan, and at least 85 of them were known to be elected. Others were leading in their districts, and indications were that there will be a sizeable bloc of house members with the avowed purpose of preventing the Townsend plan, or any variation of it, from coming up on the house floor for a vote.

More than 500 of the 823 candidates for the house declined to discuss their stand toward the pension plan in pre-election questionnaires. It was believed that by far the majority of these oppose the plan, as Townsend candidates for the most part made no secret of their support of the plan and sought votes on the strength of their stand.

The advance predictions of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, elderly leader of the movement, that his adherents would annex at least 150 house seats appeared to have failed of fulfillment by more than four-fifths. Indications were that no more than 30 or 35 Townsendites were elected.

Setback in California

San Francisco, Nov. 4. — The Townsend forces suffered heavy setbacks under a democratic landslide, in the state the old age pension plan originated and was believed strongest returns indicated today.

The wave of votes bowled over republicans and Townsendites alike.

In two outstanding tests on the Townsend issue the OARP candidates apparently were defeated.

These were in district 1, where Rep. Clarence F. Lea, D., was leading Nelson B. Van Matre, R., and district 20, where Ed V. Izac, D., appeared assured of victory over Ed Sample, R. Van Matre and Sample were supported strongly by Townsend adherents.

Townsendites claimed a victory in the case of Harry R. Sheppard, D., because they had endorsed him in his apparently successful fight with Rep. Sam L. Collins, R. Political observers believed the heavy democratic registration, rather than the Townsend movement, was largely responsible.

FARLEY TO RESUME ACTIVE DUTY AS POSTMASTER GENERAL

New York, Nov. 4. — Democratic National Committee Chairman James A. Farley said today that he will resume active duty as postmaster general on Friday and will attend the Friday cabinet meeting at the White House in that capacity.

Fort Wayne, Nov. 4—Congressman James I. Farley of Auburn, was assured a third term in the U. S. house of representatives, as a representative from the fourth congressional district, today when, with all but two precincts in the entire district reported, he was leading his republican opponent, David Hogg of Fort Wayne, by 13,244 votes.

The two unreported precincts were in Allen county, the other seven counties in the district, Adams, DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben, Wells and Whitley, reporting complete unofficial returns.

350 ABSENT VOTERS' BALLOTS DISTRIBUTED

The distribution of 350 absentee voters' ballots was made Tuesday by County Clerk Carl Walter, Dr. E. O. Hall and W. W. Ketcham, election commissioners, and aides. Of 45 precincts in the county, 41 received ballots. Keyser No. 5 received the highest number, 52, and the number ranged down to a single one in Troy township.

CULTURE CLUB

On Wednesday afternoon the ladies of the Culture Club motored to the Palace Theatre in Fort Wayne to see the College Musical Comedy "Pigskin Parade" and the 5 act Vaudeville which was at the Cleveland Exhibition with seats selling at $2.50 per person.

After the show the ladies were taken to the Walgreen tea room for a light luncheon. The afternoon was surely enjoyed by all the ladies as it gave them one meeting of complete relaxation and laughter. The committee in charge was Mrs. Carleton Shull, Mrs. Paul Carpenter, Mrs. Clark Scholes and Mrs. Harry Hursh.

REPORT OF COUNTY RED CROSS NURSE

During the months of September and October the following activities were carried on. A Free Fall Fair Health Contest and a Nursery were conducted. One hundred sixty-five infants and small children were examined by nine county physicians. Sixty-five prizes were awarded by the Nurse on the Grand Stand, Court House lawn. Presents were given by the merchants of our towns and cities. The nursery cared for babies up to a year old. Five hundred pieces of literature were distributed to mothers. Twenty publicity ads were sent to editors and 25 letters and 30 postcards were written to create an interest in the Health Contest.

Two layettes were given and 9 maternity supply articles were bought by the Red Cross for a maternity case.

To inspect for skin infection the Nurse covered as many schools as possible by giving a partial instead of complete inspection for defects. Many calls came from the teachers to inspect for skin infection and Pediculosis. One mother reported to the teacher that her school had many pupils with Pediculosis, on inspection not one head was found unclean. Eight hundred twenty-one partial annual inspection for defects were made by the Nurse in the schools, 9833 rapid classroom inspections for skin infections. Two cases of Pediculosis and 30 cases of skin dieases were found. Thirty-two schools were visited for the first time and 15 schools re-visited. Sanitary inspection of toilets was made at each school. Defects found were: 228 dental, 60 vision, 21 hearing, 48 throat and 15 glandular.

A few isolated cases of Scarlet Fever have developed during the two months. A visit, made by request of a teacher, to a mother who had kept her child out of school one week with a sore throat secured the information that the child had a rash a few days before, but as the child was not very ill she was intending to send her to school the following week. The Nurse told her it was necessary to call a physician when a rash was discovered. On arrival, the physician pronounced it Scarlet Fever and said that a younger child was coming down with it also.

Red Cross "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" Institute and District Red Coss Roll Call meeting, held in Ft. Wayne and a DeKalb County Red Cross Executive meeting were attended by the Nurse. Miss Scott, Field Representative for Indiana Division of Public Health, spent a day in the office and Mr. Brown, Indiana Red Cross Field Representative attended our Red Cross Executive meeting.

Interviews and visits were as follows: 8 maternity calls, 2 infants, 5 tuberculosis, 13 calls for communicable diseases, 10 visits to school children and 1 investigation.

Total time distribution was as follows: field visits and interviews 70 hours, special projects (nursery and Child Health Contest) 68 hours, administration and office 115 hours, travel 65 hours, meetings 12 hours, schools 67 hours, other activities 5 hours and the total number of hours were 399, the number of days on duty 47.

As the time of the Nurse was occupied during the summer months visiting the homes of preschool children entering school this fall and the month of September for infants and preschool children, the following months of this year will be devoted to the care of the school children of our county.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT HOUK HOME

A Hallowe'en party was held at the Houk home in Jackson township, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 28th for the Loyal Women's Class of the Lutheran Church at Spencerville, and a few invited guests. They were to come dressed as school children with dinner pails, books and slates. The motto was: "Backward, turn backward, O time, in your flight, Make me a child again tonight."

They were greeted at the door by Miss Eliza Shaffer, of Hurshtown, Allen Co., the school teacher, and given a chilly hand shake as it was a rather cold wave at that particular time.

On entering the home, they found themselves in an old-time meeting house and school room combined. Sammie High, Lizzie Means, Jimmie Bishop, Janie High, Libbie Hursh and Jimmie Hursh came early to get the best seat as their was only one seat with a back. In a dark corner Caesar's ghost greeted the guests also as they arrived. A large 10 foot stick was placed above the blackboard and in another corner was a stool with a large dunce cap on it. Their lunches consisted of biscuits, buckwheat cakes and pumpkin butter. Little Jimmie Hursh had to have his face washed in ice water before school began.

They played "Needle's Eye," "Molly Brooks has gone to War" and "They Kept the Pig in the Parlor." The scholars were the Means, Wyatts, Hendersons, Highs, Hurshs, Howeys, Sponhowers, Watsons, Boots, Houks and Bishops.

A lone Indian was seen standing near a consecrated spot, he had come back just 30 years after the death of Soonseetah and he was noticed for the last time.

Frances Houk led the singing of "Amazing Grace," and "Alas, and did My Saviour Bleed." Mary Jane Wyatt told the story of Ruth and her mother-in-law, Naomi, and little Johnnie Henderson told a good story of a stranger passing their home. They sung the 5's in multiplication tables. In Geography they sung Hudson Bay, Baffin Bay and Bay of Bengal, also the capitals, Indiana, Indianapolis on the White River, etc. Mary Jane Wyatt spelled in-com-pre-hen-si-bil-i-ty by syllables and was the best speller.

Lunch was served. An angel food cake was baked by Janie High, which was very nicely made for such a young girl. The other children brought chicken, pop corn, biscuits and many good things. Miss Eliza Shaffer furnished apple butter and cider.

A Guest.

Mrs. W. P. Donahue is on the sick list.

J. R. Shilling is reported as being improved today, being confined to his bed with a near attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Lela Northrup, of Ft. Wayne, is here helping take care of her father.

In many states special committees have been appointed by the govenors to study the traffic conditions.

This is commendable.

Out of these studies and deliberations will come recommendations that will apply to each and every community in the states involved. There should be more of the studies made. Many conditions on our highways today are serious causes of accidents and, unless careful studies are made, will never come to light.

It is recommended that every community receiving these reports help the committee as much as possible in bringing to the front serious conditions in that community. There is not a community anywhere that does not have a traffic problem. These problems should be discussed freely and recommendations made to the committee so that action can be taken by the main committee.

Get behind this movement, and support it.

A "nest egg" that will produce results...

ELECTRICITY on poultry farms is the best kind of a "nest egg." Electric lights at night to lengthen the working day in henhouses assure more winter eggs . . . just in the season when increased egg production is most desirable because of higher market prices.

Outstanding hatcheries have chosen electric brooders to start prize winning chickens. The efficient brooding method. It saves work, worry, and actually aids in the development of stronger, hardier chicks.

Warm drinking water is vitally important in bitter winter weather if your hens are to maintain normal production. Electric heating of poultry drinking water is now the accepted and simple method.

The excessive rains of Sunday, Monday and Monday night have flooded every low spot in the country and streams are swollen beyond their banks. Potato fields have been submerged and it is a question whether the crop will be ruined.

John Ulm was returned home from the Lutheran hospital Tuesday, much improved. He was very anxious to get home possibly to supervise his farm work. Last week the neighborhood gathered and husked his corn and dug the most of his potatoes. Mr. and Mrs. Ulm feel very grateful for this neighborly act and wish to express their thanks publicly. Also Mr. Ulm has been showered with cards and flowers since his illness, all of which makes him feel that this is the best place after all, to live.

TOWNSEND HOLDS LEAD IN INDIANA

Democrat Maintains 4 to 3 Advantage for Governor — Springer Polled Larger Vote than Landon

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Lieut. Gov. M. Clifford Townsend set the pace for state candidates in the democratic victory in Indiana today by maintaining his 4 to 3 advantage over Raymond S. Springer, republican, in the gubernatorial race.

Returns from 3,212 of the state's 3,840 precincts gave:

Townsend 748,190.

Springer 579,007.

Returns from 3,225 of the state's 3,840 precincts gave:

Roosevelt 780,066.

Landon 571,396.

The heavy plurality for Townsend was taken as an endorsement of the policies of Gov. Paul V. McNutt, whose program the governor-elect is pledged to continue with only slight modifications.

There was some scratching noted in the record ballotting, with Springer leading Gov. Alf M. Landon, G. O. P. presidential candidate, by several thousand.

Such activity was not unexpected, however, since state republican leaders directed their pre-election attack against the McNutt regime.

To Retain McNutt Policies

The governor-elect is pledged to retain the policies of McNutt. He defended vigorously the state reorganization act centering control with the governor; the state gross income tax law, chief fiscal issue of the campaign; and social security legislation—all enacted by the state legislature during McNutt's tenue.

The republican state platform pledged repeal of the gross income tax; Springer denounced "McNutt bossism" created under the reorganization act and a last-minute G. O. P. drive attacked the social security measures.

After expressing delight over state and national ticket victories in Indiana, Townsend said:

"The present administration, both national and state, have had so many emergency obligations to meet that much new legislation was necessary. My hope for the next four years is that new legislation will be at a minimum in Indiana.

"At present, I am extremely interested in two things—some necessary revisions in the gross income tax law and adequate safety legislation.

"I want to be a good governor and carry on a conservative and quiet administration. It's time the government relaxed."

Townsend, 52, will be elevated to the state's highest office Jan. 11, after serving four years as lieutenant governor under the present administration.

The voters of DeKalb county declared at Tuesday's election in favor of negroes being admitted to membership in the state militia.

On the ballot for an amendment to the state constitution to bring this about, 6,403 voted favorably and 4,325 against. The majority voting yes is therefore 2,078.

However, 2,493 voters failed to express an opinion, not marking their ballots either way.

PINOCHLE CLUB

AUXILIARY UNIT OF WALTER WHITEHURST POST 283 HOLD INITIATION AND INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

At a joint meeting of the Post and Auxiliary twenty-two ladies of the Auxiliary were initiated in an impressive ceremony conducted by the Auxiliary Drill Team of the unit of Post 157 of Churubusco.

After the initiation, the newly elected officers were installed under the direction of the District President, Mrs. Kate Zinn, of Churubusco.

The officers installed were: President, Mrs. Kathleen Scholes; 1st vice president, Mrs. Alice Reidenbach; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Stella Maxwell; secretary, Mrs. Josephine Kees; treasurer, Mrs. Ann Sechler; Chaplain, Mrs. Elanore Crothers; Historian, Mrs. Aullene Chorpenning; sergeant at arms, Mrs. Agnes Monroe.

Very interesting talks were given by Col. Moudy, the District Commander of Waterloo, Auxiliary President, Mrs. Parrish of the Churubusco Unit, and Mrs. Kate Zinn, the District President of the Auxiliary, and Clark Scholes, Post Commander St. Joe Legion.

After the business session the meeting was placed in charge of the entertainment committee of Post 283 which consisted of War Songs, H. J. Hull leader, reminiscences of Armistice Day 1918 by Leon Kees, song by Billie Monroe, an article "Thoughts of Armistice" by Madam Ernestine Shumann-Heink, was read by Josephine Kees. After the entertainment a pot luck supper was served to nearly an hundred members and guests. Coffee was furnished through the courtesy of Goldsmith's Store.

There will be a District Auxiliary meeting at the Legion Home of DeKalb Post 98 in Auburn, on Thursday, Nov. 19. All Auxiliary officers are asked to attend if possible.

District meeting of the Legion will be held at Post 82 in Fort Wayne on Friday, Nov. 20. The afternoon meeting for Legionaires only. Dinner at the Catholic Community Center at 6 P. M. Evening session at Post Home of Post 82. Legionaries and Auxiliaries are invited to attend.

HOW TO COOK a Turkey

GIVE your family and guests roast turkey as it should be by roasting it in the moist even heat of an Electric Oven.

See how easy it is: Prepare turkey with salt and butter, place in shallow oblong pan (not a covered roaster—moist, even electric heat does away with the need for clumsy utensils). Place roast in oven, turn switch to "Bake"; set temperature to 275°-325°; Time 25-30 minutes per pound. And believe it or not, that's all there is to it—no basting, no turning, no watching. The turkey will have a crackly, glistening brown skin and the meat will have a luscious juiciness that only electric roasting can give.

See the wonderful new Electric ranges on display. Get the facts about the economy of electric cookery.

RED CROSS DRIVE STARTED YESTERDAY

Nov. 11, the drive for Red Cross membership started in DeKalb County, with Walter D. Stump as general chairman. The quota is 900 members.

Workers selected in this part of the County are as follows:

St. Joe—J. B. Munn.

Concord—Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick.

Spencerville—Mrs. Hazel Steward.

Spencer—Mrs. Zona Abel.

Newville—Mrs. Mark Murphy.

HART GIVEN TIME OUT TO HARVEST CROP

Ray Hart, of Newville township, changed his plea of not guilty to a charge of grand larceny to one of petit larceny in the DeKalb circuit court Saturday.

The defendant was paroled to his attorney, W. W. Sharpless, until Dec. 14, when sentence will be passed. Hart was given this time in order that he may take care of his potatoes and other crops.

Hart was arrested two months ago on a charge of stealing fencing from the Howard Shilling farm 2 miles south of Concord. Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm reported that he found the stolen fence on the farm where Hart lives. Hart also was suspected of other farm thefts. He has been in jail ever since his arrest, unable to give bond.

A month after he was placed in jail Hart's housekeeper, Mrs. Cora McCullough, deserted the farm house after selling $150 worth of grain and hogs that Hart owned. She drove away in a truck that he owned also, but the vehicle was later found abandoned in Fort Wayne. Hart threatened to prosecute Mrs. McCullough, but so far has filed no affidavit.

TO SPONSOR A SPELLING MATCH

Starting December 5, the Goldsmith Store will inaugurate a spelling match reaching into each of the four townships surrounding Concord. The schools in the districts will choose two representatives from the Fifth Grade for the first Match on Dec. 5th. On the 12th, Grade Six representatives wil compete, on the 19th, Grade Seven representatives will compete and on the 26th, the Eighth Grade representatives will compete. On January 2nd the winners of the four previous matches will compete for the championship prize of $7.50 and $2.50 will be awarded the second best.

This is an educational feature, and all the schools are asked to make entries in the four classes.

When the grade match has been completed an adult tourney will be announced, and the winners will compete for a reward.

The matches will be held in the Leighty store room and the public will be invited.

FAREWELL PARTY

About ten years ago, the ladies in the Cheesetown neighborhood formed a quilting group and quilted many quilts that winter and had a very enjoyable winter.

As Mrs. Cora Maxwell is leaving our neighborhood, we all met again last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. N. Scholes to give Mrs. Maxwell a farewell party. A nice pot luck dinner was served at noon and the rest of the time was spent in visiting. Those present besides the hostess were Mrs. Wilmot, Mary Donley, Mrs. Pluma Hamilton, Mrs. Leona Mason, Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. Marie Trostel, Mrs. Nellie Perry. Mrs. Wade, of Michigan, and Mr. Scholes were guests.

We all wish Mrs. Maxwell good health and happiness, as she leaves soon to spend some time in Auburn and Toledo. Mrs. Ines Hadsell was absent on account of sickness.

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Heart

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adlerika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adlerika rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika. Get rid of GAS. Adlerika does not gripe — is not habit forming. Leading Druggists.

CRANBERRIES IN GENERAL FAVOR

As Jelly or Sauce They Are Always Welcomed.

By EDITH M. BARBER

CRANBERRIES lend a gay note to the markets at this time of year. I can never resist them and as they have now begun to take their place with the other fruits for general use in cooking, we do not have to consider whether we really need them for jelly or for sauce to serve with meat.

They will always hold first place for this purpose. They are a great comfort to the cook because she seldom has to worry about cranberries jellying. Unless they are over-ripe, they are certain to mold. The recipe for either sauce or jelly is a very easy one to carry in your mind—just one-fourth as much water as berries and half as much sugar.

Pick over and wash one quart of cranberries. Cover with one cup of water and cook in a covered kettle ten minutes. Add two cups of sugar and cook three minutes. Skim and serve very cold. This sauce will keep indefinitely if kept cold and covered.

For cranberry jelly cook the berries in the same way until very tender. Press through a strainer, add the sugar and stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved. Pour at once into a mold or jelly glasses and cool. This recipe will be more than enough for one meal, but it is time saving to make at least this amount as the jelly will keep.

Many recipes advise boiling the pulp and sugar together for a few minutes until you get the usual jelly test, two drops hanging side by side from the spoon when dipped into and then held above the saucepan, but I do not find it necessary to do this. Cranberry tapioca is one of my favorite desserts.

Cranberry Tapioca.

¾ cup granulated tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
3½ cups boiling water
1 pint cranberries
½ cup water
½ cup sugar

Cook tapioca, salt and boiling water together until clear. Cook cranberries and water until soft and add to the tapioca with the sugar. Cook five minutes, pour into a wet mold, chill and serve with whipped cream.

Cranberry Juice Cocktail.

4 cups cranberries
4 cups water
2-3 cup granulated sugar

Cook cranberries and water until all the skins pop open (about five minutes). Strain through cheese cloth. Bring the juice to boiling point, add sugar and boil two minutes. Serve cold. This may be corked and sealed for future use.

Gold Cake.

2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon lemon extract

Sift flour with baking powder. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks beaten until very thick; then flour, alternately with milk. Add flavoring. Beat well. Bake in two eight-inch or nine-inch layer pans in moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, 25 to 30 minutes. Spread lemon filling between layers. Sift powdered sugar over top of cake.

Ginger Ale Salad.

2 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup water
1 cup boiling water
1½ cups ginger ale
½ cup sugar
Juice of 1 lemon
2 cups fruit, cut fine
½ cup nuts, chopped

Soften gelatin in cold water five minutes, dissolve in boiling water. Add ginger ale, lemon juice and sugar. Set aside to cool. When beginning to thicken add fruit and turn into fancy molds. Serve on lettuce and garnish with dressing.

Cinnamon Biscuits.

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk or water

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Rub shortening into the flour mixture. Add liquid. Roll into one-half inch sheets. Sprinkle top with mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Roll up and cut into slices one-half inch thick. Bake in a greased pan in a 400-degree oven about fifteen minutes.

Ice Cream Meringue.

12 small meringues
Chocolate sauce
1 pint vanilla ice cream

On each serving plate put a ball of ice cream and press a meringue on each side. Pass chocolate sauce.

Fall Painting

A coat of paint applied this fall to porch and cellar steps will do much to insure them against the onslaughts of winter. At the time these are painted, it is well to give the wooden or metal floor supports in the cellar a coat of paint and also the inside woodwork of slanting cellar doors.

Pilot Light Saves Cash

A switch at the head of your basement stairs with a tell-tale pilot light attached will remind you if you've forgotten to turn off the cellar lights. It deprives the most careless members of the family of their last excuse for not turning off the lights.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THE name American patchwork was given by the English to a certain type of piece patchwork evidently originated on this continent. It is a name unfamiliar to most Americans, although credit for the beautiful work is given to the women in the United States and Canada. American patchwork found its way from this continent to England in the latter quarter of the last century, somewhere about 1875 or 1880. In Great Britain it was attributed equally to the United States and Canada, both countries being in America, and there being an uncertainty about just which section was responsible for the distinctive patchwork.

The name of loghouse quilting was given the design abroad. It has an odd sound to us for log homes are termed log cabins in America. Here the pattern has been known through the century as the log cabin pattern, but the name loghouse quilting has a fascinating ring to it. The patchwork was, and is, one of the handsomest types of all. Its special feature was its use of ribbons for patches and also silk and satin (and sometimes velvet) cut into strips of ribbon widths.

How To Make Squares.

The strips are positioned in ever-widening rows about a small square of one of the materials. In each row strips overlap one another. Ends are straight, that is they are not dovetailed or mitered. The ribbon-like strips can be sewed to a foundation square or be seamed together. In the old work the ribbons were sewed to a foundation, with a square of silk sewed on the exact center of the foundation square. After this the rows were set in order about it. Edges slightly overlapped so no lining was visible.

The method of arrangement of colors is definite. One diagonal half of a square is of dark colored pieces, the other of light ones. When squares are sewed together dark comes against dark and light against light, producing a fascinating sequence of ever widening squares of light and dark. When colors are artistically combined, the quilt with its rich materials is superb. We can well be proud of the quilts which bear the name of American loghouse quilting.

"The Man Who-O-O"
Tales and Traditions from American Political History
BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AN EARLY "BLACK LEGION"

ON TREES were posted mysterious squares of paper, black, or white or red, summoning men to midnight meetings. At these meetings there were oaths and grips and pass-words.

That was more than three-quarters of a century ago, but members of the "Black Legion," who created such a furore early in 1936, would have felt pretty much at home in those meetings back in the forties and fifties. There they would have fraternized with members of "The Supreme Order of the Star-Spangled Banner," a secret society which grew into a political party, the Native Americans, with a platform of opposition to foreigners, the papacy, infidelity and socialism.

Later they became known as the Know Nothings because, when a member was questioned about the order, he invariably answered "I don't know." In New York and Pennsylvania they elected several men to congress and in 1847 they held a national convention at Philadelphia. There they nominated Gen. Henry Dearborn for vice-president and recommended, but did not formally nominate, Gen. Zachary Taylor, the Whig candidate for President.

In 1854-55 the Know Nothings carried Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Kentucky and California and looked forward to the election of 1856 with high hopes. Soon the party threw off its secret character and it became apparent that they were mostly Whigs. In February they held another convention in Philadelphia at which they formally renamed their party the American party. They nominated for President Millard Fillmore, the Whig vice-president who had served all but one month of the term to which Zachary Taylor had been elected, and gave him for a running mate Andrew Donelson of Tennessee, the ward of "Old Hickory" Jackson. Fillmore carried only one state in the election which sent James Buchanan, the Democratic candidate, to the White House and the Know Nothings passed out of the political picture soon afterwards.

"TO THE VICTORS——"

"TO THE victors belong the spoils!"

Although Andrew Jackson was the first exponent of that political creed, he was not the first man to express it in so many words. The man who did was William L. Marcy of New York, leader of one of the factions in the Democratic party when Polk was President.

The division in the Democratic ranks was over the distribution of federal patronage and it centered, as it has so often since, in New York state. The faction, led by Marcy, was called the "Hunkers" who were supported by Tammany and who were given that name because they were always inclined to hunger, or "hunker," for office.

The other faction, led by Silas Wright, was composed of disappointed Van Burenites — disappointed because Van Buren, whom Jackson had made his successor, had been refused a second term by the party which took Polk, a "dark horse," instead. This faction was called the "Barnburners," because, like the Dutch farmer in New York state who burned his barn to get rid of the rats in it, they declared they were ready to "burn their barns to get rid of the rats," the upstart "Hunkers."

As a matter of fact they did just that in the campaign of 1848. Opposed to slavery, they joined forces with the Liberty party, took the name of the Free Soil party and nominated Martin Van Buren and Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts. This split in the Democratic party resulted in a victory for Gen. Zachary Taylor, the Whig candidate, over Van Buren and over Lewis Cass, the regular Democratic nominee.

Along with "Hunker" and "Barnburner" is another interesting name once applied to the Democrats, growing out of the rivalry of these two factions. In the campaign of 1840 the Whigs called their opponents the "Locofocos" because at a meeting of the New York Democrats the two factions were trying to get control of the meeting. One gang turned off the gas lights and in the darkness, the other gang, which had come prepared for just such a stunt, took from their pockets the new friction matches, called "locofocos," struck them and by thus lighting the room were able to continue the session and dominate it.

New York City Milestones.

The first New York City milestones were erected in 1769, starting from the second City Hall at Wall and Nassau Streets and running along the Bowery Road to Kingsbridge. In 1801 a second series was set from the second City Hall to Middle Road. The third series was erected in 1822 from the present City Hall along the Bowery and Third Avenue. All the stones were of uniform size, being sixty-six inches high, four inches wide and six inches thick.

The Bored Are Boring—

People of Outstanding Personality Are Interested, and Never Blase

"YOUNG people of today," a mother writes, "seem to regard it as a sign of immaturity or weakness to be thrilled with anything. Their idea of sophistication is to appear bored with everything, the having-done-all-seen-all attitude that finds it very difficult to be impressed with anything. It is most annoying to find that anything you can offer them for a good time seems to be inadequate, that the thrills of your own youth cannot be repeated for them. It seems to me they miss a great deal."

I would point out to this mother, says a woman writer of international note, that naturally we cannot expect that the thrills of our youth will equally impress the young people of this day. So much that came to us gradually as colorful experiences are a part of their daily background. But there is something definitely true in what she says of a pose, of a deliberate care never to seem impressed, of a pretense at being bored.

It may interest such young people to know that that super-sophisticate, G. K. Chesterton, said "there are no bores, only people who are bored." In other words there can be nothing interesting about a person who is bored!

That takes us right down to a bedrock fact that can be observed if we will note people of outstanding personality, people whom everybody finds interesting. Without exception they will be people who are vitally interested. They are never bored, never blase. They are able to give out what interests others, because through their interest in things and people about them they are constantly taking in. Their main charm is a certain aliveness, a vitality which has absolutely no relationship with being bored.

Uncle Phil Says:

A Man in Trouble

No matter how uncouth a man may be, if his character is firm and he faces trouble like a man, your heart warms to him.

Give a newly met man a chance to show his good qualities before rejecting him as a friend.

Solitude is not to be considered solely from a selfish standpoint. Society may profit much through the frequent individual adoption of it.

Our Failing

Crime goes unpunished because backbone coupled with indignation is not a frequent combination.

In youth, credulity is enormous, and skepticism is enormous; there is no middleground; and both are amusing.

Country people are surprised when a city man complains of crowds. They enjoy them.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. CHAPTER IX—Continued

—20—

"My dear, you are more than welcome," Grandmother said warmly. "Any friends of Bryn's are our friends, too, and our home is always open to them. And I am delighted to hear you discussing details of modern society. I am sure your talk will be a liberal education for Deborah, and help her to establish herself more easily when she goes out into Bryn's world with him."

Pilar's black eyes rested momentarily on Deborah. They were quite expressionless. "There will be no difficulties for Deborah," she said tenderly. "She is so adorable that she won't need to make the slightest effort. Every one will fall in love with her at first sight."

"Just as Bryn did," Sally added, and looked fleetingly at Pilar.

"Just as Bryn did," Pilar repeated, but her mouth tightened a little, Deborah saw, at the corners.

"How long are you planning to stay, Pilar?" Madeline said evenly. "Are you going home for the yacht races?"

"I really hadn't considered it. I wasn't sure I'd be invited to stay, you see."

Grandmother gave a little sigh. "I am so thankful that when Deborah does emerge into society she will have dear Bryn to take care of her. He understands so well what her life has been, and he is so thoughtful and loving. It takes a great load off my mind to have him so."

"Bryn has always been a dear," Pilar agreed at once. "I don't know what I should ever have done without Bryn," she went on. "For years, now, he has been my staunchest comrade. No matter in what difficulty I found myself, there was always Bryn, and he brought me all his troubles and joys as well. It delights my heart to know that he is happy."

Deborah did not move. Grandmother lifted her eyes and looked at Pilar frankly. "You modern girls are so honest and open," she said. "In my day a girl would never have dared to make such a statement about a man. She would have been afraid of being misunderstood."

"Misunderstood?" Pilar murmured, flicking open the lighter.

"In my day," Grandmother explained, "there were few young men such as our dear Bryn, so handsome, so eligible in every way, so fine. If a girl had been his friend always, as you have been, my child, then she would have been expected to marry him, and, indeed, she would herself have expected to marry him. I do not quite understand the new camaraderie which allows of such close friendships without any thought of marriage or romantic love. In my day, so queerly uncontrolled was human nature then, the sort of friendship you mention would have been potentially dangerous if either the girl or the man—particularly the man—married elsewhere."

Pilar's eyes narrowed the faintest trifle against the light as she looked at Grandmother. Grandmother was sitting up a little straighter than Deborah had seen her sit for some time, and there was a little pink in her cheeks. But her eyes as they met Pilar's were calm and kind, and Deborah pushed away the thought that Grandmother suspected something and was taking her own way to combat the hint of danger.

Pilar rose and stood for a moment, tall and lissome and full of grace, beside the door. She was smiling. "Customs are very different now," she murmured, and begged to be excused, and went out through the door.

There was a little silence when Pilar was gone. Deborah looked up from the puppy to find Grandmother stitching away placidly again, her eyes on her material, and Sally and Madeline looking at each other with steady meaning. Sally and Madeline didn't understand. They didn't know what it must have been like for Pilar to love Bryn, to have loved him for years, and then to have him suddenly marry another girl. They didn't know what it meant to love Bryn. Simon and Tubby were all right, of course, and perfect darlings, but they weren't Bryn. Deborah's eyes burned, and the bad lump came back in her throat.

There was a knock at the door. It was one of the maids, wanting Deborah. The cook would like her orders, the maid said respectfully. Deborah went out and shut the door behind her.

Deborah stumbled down the hall toward the kitchen. In her mind's eye she could see herself sitting on the wall the other night, with Bryn leaning close beside her. She remembered what she had wanted to do. Bryn's face was so close, and he was such a dear; she had wanted to take his face between her own two palms and bend down and put her cheek against his forehead. She had almost done it when he said . . . "Deborah, do you like me . . . at all?" But now she was glad she hadn't done it, because he wouldn't have wanted her to. It was Pilar he loved. He had said so. He had told her how dearly he loved this other girl . . . and if she hadn't been so blind she would have seen instantly that his telling her of the other girl was sure proof that he didn't love her, Deborah.

And if he did love Pilar so dearly, then Pilar was a very lovely person. Madeline and Sally didn't like her, but they didn't understand. And Bryn's heart must ache, now, to think that he was shut away from Pilar for so long; and Pilar must be suffering dreadfully.

When she was finished in the kitchen, Deborah went up the back stairs swiftly and along the hall to her room. Someone came lightly along the hall, and she caught her breath lest it should be Bryn. But it was, instead, Pilar; and she was in search of Deborah, for her own room was down in the other wing with Grandmother's. She glanced in through the open door.

"Ah, there you are, sweetie," she said. "I wondered if you'd run away. Where've you been?"

"I was down in the kitchen," Deborah explained, praying that her voice sounded as usual. "Then I came up to get some embroidery. I find myself with no work at all to do these days."

Pilar was watching her. "You are refreshing," she sighed. "But really, Deborah, you must begin to make some changes in your life, or you will be completely bewildered by Bryn's gay world. Bryn travels pretty fast, dear."

Deborah sat down slowly, with the Italian embroidery in her hand. She fingered it absently. "Hasn't Bryn explained it all to you, Pilar?" she asked at last, lifting her dark eyes.

"Explained what?" Pilar asked, after a moment.

"I know he . . . hasn't told the others. Sally, or Madeline. I don't think even Tubby knows. I'm not quite sure why he hasn't. For a while I thought it was on his own account, but now I think he has been doing it for me, so that I wouldn't feel so queer and left out."

"I don't know what you mean."

Deborah looked at her.

"You know that Bryn couldn't be in love with me," she said.

Pilar did not move. Not by a flicker did her expression change. Her eyes were black and fathomless.

"Not in love with you?" she repeated.

"Surely you knew, Pilar?"

"Even if I did," Pilar said softly, "you wouldn't expect me to . . . mention it, Deborah?"

"No," Deborah said after a moment. At Pilar's words her heart had fallen like lead. So Pilar did know. Bryn had told her.

"Bryn, of course, is a gentleman," Pilar said. "He does not tell any more than is necessary."

"No," Deborah said again. "But I can tell you, Pilar. I can explain to you."

"I was . . . hoping you would."

"I don't want to go into detail," Deborah said. "I think I can tell you in just a few words. It was like this. I had to be married by my twenty-first birthday or lose my grandfather's estate. I went down to San Francisco to meet the man I was to marry. He was . . . I couldn't possibly marry him. And Bryn came along by accident, and saw that I was frightened, and I told him about it, and he offered to marry me instead. That's all."

Pilar straightened. "I see," she said, and then, "The day I came, Tubby dragged me away and threatened me with murder if I called Bryn by anything but Graham. The man you were to marry is named Graham?"

"Yes."

"Your grandmother thinks Bryn is the man?"

"Yes."

"And what happens next?"

There was a queer note in her voice, and Deborah looked up quickly. But Pilar's face had not changed, and Deborah's eyes fell again. "Nothing," she said. "We have to go on until the end of the year, or I do not get the money. The marriage must last for a year. And it must go on for Grandmother's sake, anyway, for that long. After that . . . I don't know what we shall do to explain to Grandmother, but there will be something. Bryn will be free, then, of course."

"You cannot get the money within a year?"

"If the marriage is not successful to that extent," Deborah explained carefully, "I do not get it at all."

"Your grandmother seems very fond of Bryn."

"She loves him," Deborah said, with a little catch in her breath. "He is wonderful to her. Even if the estate were not so tied, I don't see how we could be . . . divorced . . . before that time without breaking Grandmother's heart."

Pilar turned the ivory holder between her long browned fingers. "It seems rather a long time out of Bryn's life," she said. "A year."

"I know."

"I should think there might have been somebody else, Deborah. Somebody you might have paid for his name and his lost year."

Deborah looked up again, but did not speak. Pilar was watching her. After a moment she said, "Of course, it's all very romantic, and you are really quite pretty. Any man would like to be the prince who awakens the sleeping beauty."

Deborah's eyes flew to the long oval of Pilar's face. Her own cheeks crimsoned furiously, and her eyes flashed.

Evil Eye

The objection which a high caste Brahman of India has to being seen eating by a low caste man is based on a belief allied to that of the evil eye.

POULTRY

POULTRY FARMERS NEED WORK PLANS

Yearly Schedule Assures Pleasure, Profit.

By J. C. Taylor, Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture. WNU Service.

Don't wait until the peak of the egg production season to prepare egg cases or delay cleaning and repairing brooder equipment until a few weeks before chicks are hatched. Include these regular tasks of poultry keeping in a yearly schedule of work and obtain more profit and pleasure from poultry farming. Too many poultrymen are apt to fail to organize their farms properly.

A poultryman who spends seven and a half hours a year caring for one chicken can only manage a flock of 450 birds, while the poultryman who spends but one and a half hours per bird each year can take care of a flock of 2,000.

A schedule of work will go a long way in increasing labor efficiency. In laying out such a program, plan it on a daily basis first and include all the chores that must be done every day of the year, such as feeding the birds and preparing the eggs for market, and allow a certain amount of time for each task. Poultrymen who have never followed a regular routine will be surprised to find that these farm chores can be done in considerably less time.

Then plan the schedule on a monthly or yearly basis to fit the daily routine and to distribute seasonal work more evenly during the year. Arrange to do such work as cleaning, repairing and ordering new parts for the brooder and preparing egg cases so that routine work will not have to be neglected nor extra labor hired during the rush seasons.

Fowl Paralysis Often the Cause of Lameness

Lameness of pullets is sometimes caused by worm infestations, by digestive disorders or poisoning or by certain nerve troubles, but the commonest cause is range or fowl paralysis, states a writer in the Montreal Herald.

The symptoms of this desease may appear suddenly or may develop rather slowly. At first, a wing may droop slightly, or there may be a slight lameness marked by a rather jerky gait; then the use of the affected leg may be lost altogether. Both legs may then be affected and sometimes both wings, and finally the bird goes down completely. The eyes are frequently affected, as well; the iris becomes a grayish white or slate color and blindness usually follows this change. The bird may appear healthy in other respects and may have a good appetite; however, with the loss of sight, the bird is unable to see to eat, and emaciation is apt to be the result, followed by death. The disease usually runs a course of 2 or 3 weeks after the symptoms are first noticed, although occasional deaths occur suddenly due to heart failure. In some cases, blindness and the change in color of the iris appear before the paralysis. Diarrhea sometimes develops in the final stages.

Ventilating Poultry House

The nests in poultry houses should be well ventilated, even if they have to be moved out from the walls temporarily. Let the air circulate freely through the nests, for they are close and stuffy at best in hot weather. Use a small amount of clean, dry litter in nests, such as coarse wood shavings. Plan at least one nest for each five layers during the hot weather. Hens which have been through the better part of a whole year of egg yield or those older hens which are now in their second or third or more year of production should be producing a maximum percentage of first-grade, large eggs during this summer-fall period, and therefore the added advantage of keeping them in full laying condition.—Rural New-Yorker.

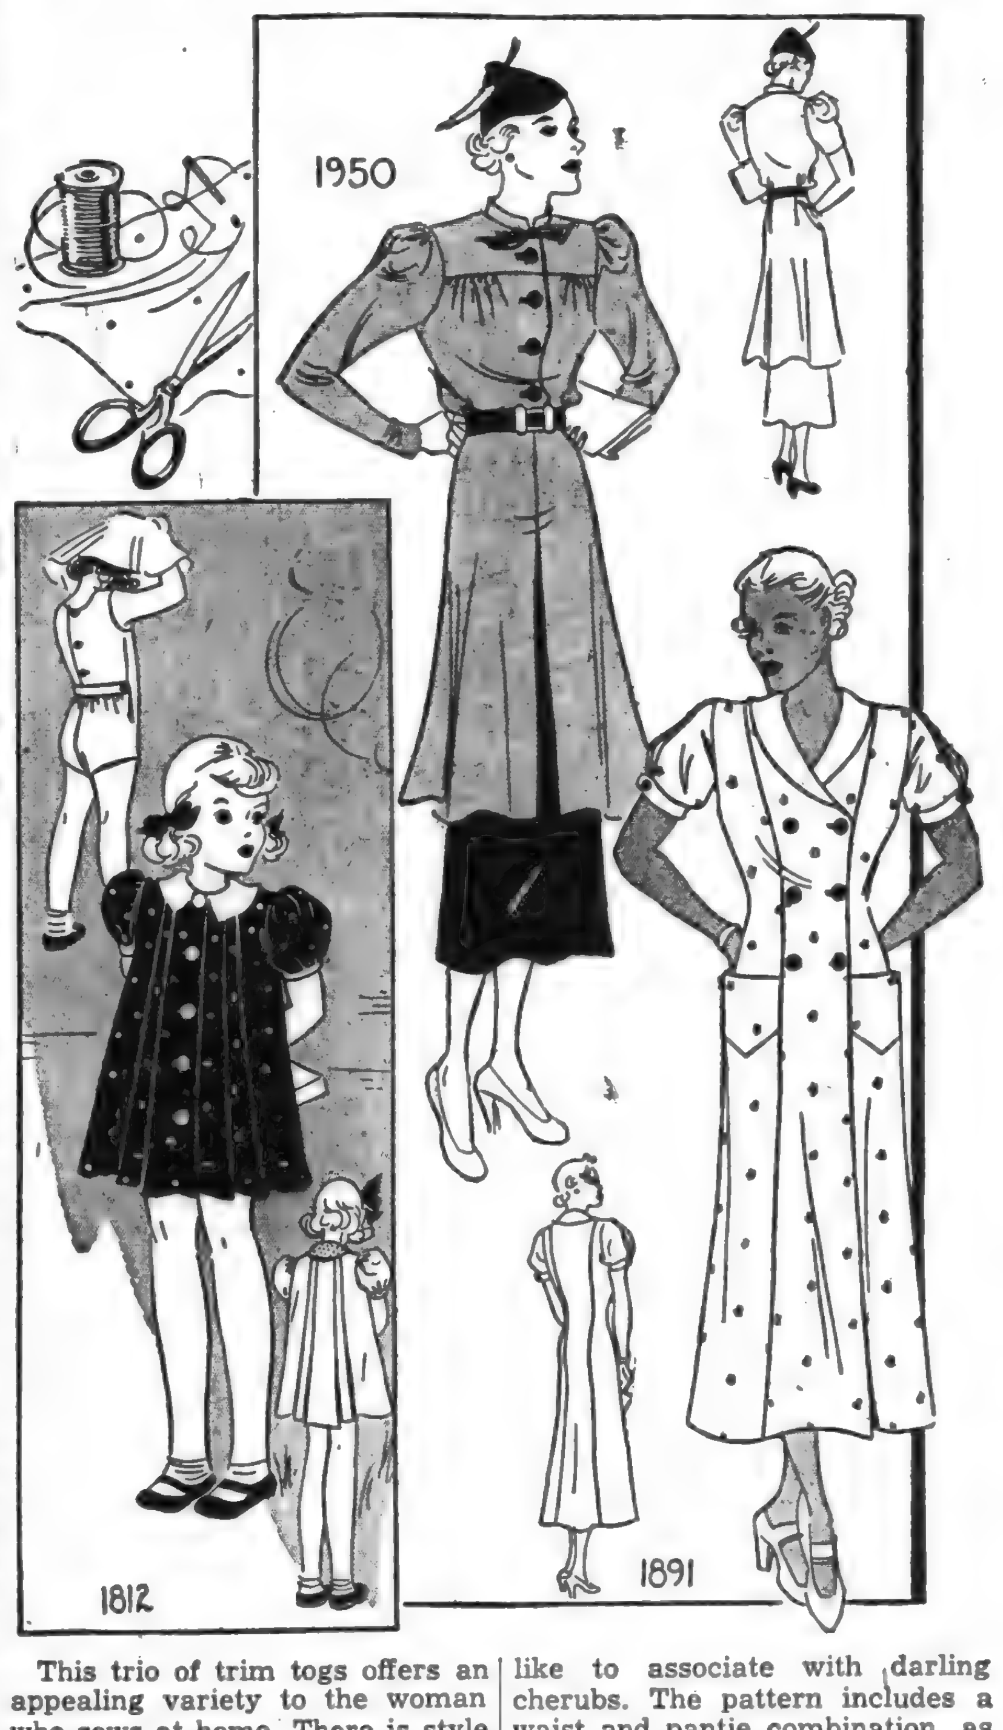
Vitamin A Shortage

Unthriftiness in the poultry flock may be due to lack of green feed, a consequence of the dry weather. The specific deficiency is vitamin A, usually obtained from grasses, legumes, some vegetables and yellow corn. A lack of green feed may be remedied by seeding grains for fall range and by feeding leaves of alfalfa or other well cured legumes. Milk, cod liver oil, carrots and cabbage also will supply vitamin A.—Wallaces' Farmer.

Water Is Important

In the proper care of poultry drinking water is very important. Too often this item is neglected. There are apt to be insufficient water fountains for all the birds or the water is stale. Sometimes the birds roost on the drinking fountains and foul them very badly. The birds can not develop their best any more than we can do our best work when we are thirsty, asserts a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide.

A Trio of Trim Togs



This trio of trim togs offers an appealing variety to the woman who sews at home. There is style and economy in every design.

Pattern No. 1950, the tunic, is one of the season's smartest, featuring a modish stand-up collar and just the right amount of flare or "swing." A grand ensemble for any youthful figure. Simply and inexpensively made, this clever pattern is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 requires three and one-eighth yards for the tunic in 39 inch material and two yards for the skirt. Five-eighths yard ribbon required for the bow.

Pattern No. 1891 is a perfect fitting princess wrap around or a coat frock with a reversible closing. It has everything demanded of a morning or utility frock—style, slimming lines, slashed set-in sleeves, one or two patch pockets, simplicity of design, and a double breasted closing which is smart and compelling. Available in a wide range of sizes, 14 to 20; and from 32 to 48, this versatile frock will win a favorite spot in your clothes closet in short order. Size 16 requires four and three-eighths yards of 35 inch material.

For tiny tots, pattern No. 1812 has all the adorable qualities you like to associate with darling cherubs. The pattern includes a waist and pantie combination, as well as the frock and will serve for party or playtime wear with equal facility. Utterly simple in design and construction, it will slide through your machine in a brief hour or two and be a source of never ending delight to your style conscious daughter. Available in sizes: 2, 3, 4, and 5 years and suitable for a wide selection of fabrics. Size 3 requires just two and five-eighths yards of 35 or 39 inch material, plus three-eighths yard contrast for the collar and sleeve band.

My Favorite Recipe

By Claudette Colbert

Boeuf Bourgignon

Half dozen slices of bacon are diced and fried in butter and to this is added a dozen little onions. When they are browned, there is added to them about two pounds of beef that has been cut in cubes.

The whole is seasoned and when the meat is brown, two tablespoonfuls of flour are shaken over the pan and mixed in with the rest. After this is cooked for a minute a small bottle of red wine is added a cup of bouillon. A bouquet garni is thrown in and the pan is well covered and allowed to cook slowly by the side of the fire for three hours.

Total receipts of 514 head of livestock at the yards for this week's sale as compared to 610 last week and 326 a year ago. Heavy rains brot more than the usual amount of spectators and threatened cold weather heavy receipts of stock.

Sheep: 154 head. Lambs from 75 to 90, $8.00 to $8.50, over 90 pounds, 90c to $1.00 less than top price. Good quality thin lambs, $7.00 to $7.75. Buck lambs, $100 off. Breeding ewes, $3.00 to $6.50 per head. Bucks $1.50 per cwt; $3.00 to $12.00 per head. Buyers do not want lambs weighing over 90 lbs, and buy them much lower than same quality lambs of lighter weight.

Hogs: 160 head. Hogs found a ready market and snappy bidding today in spite of weak quotations at terimnal markets. 200 to 250 were taken at $9.40. Roughs at $7 to $8. Boars $5.25. About 100 head of feeding shoats sold about fifty cents per head higher than last week.

Calves: Hardly enough calves on sale today to test the market, 17 head in all besides 15 "day old" calves. There were no top calves in the offering but the top sale was for $10.00 with the thin rough and hand fed calves from $8.00 to $8.60.

Cattle: 65 head. In spite of the usual pre-winter movement of cattle to market sales were made quickly at prices well above last week for anything showing flesh enough to tempt butchers. Heifers $4.00 to $5.85, steers of fair quality $5.00 to $6.75. Top cows $5.35, cutters mostly $3.00, canners, 80c to $2.80. Bulls $4.30 to $5.75.

OUR POLITICAL FEELING

It is difficult to refer to the election without a slight feeling of exultation if one happens to be a Democrat, or of gloom if one happens to be a Republican. Human nature is built that way, and the time will never come when victors and vanquished alike can give the outcome of a presidential election consideration that is purely objective. No one, however, can claim that the real issue was concealed, or that the vote was so close that there is doubt as to what a manifest majority of the people really wanted. Those are plain facts, and must be admitted by all.

In some countries, the announcement of the results of an election is followed by riots started by those who are displeased, or by plans for revenge in the minds of those who resent the efforts of a defeated minority. In the United States Republicans and Democrats alike simply turned off the radio at midnight and sought sleep to strengthen them for the next day's work.

Possibly presidential elections do not amount to as much as we have been led to suppose. Stripped of political prejudices, few really believe on the one hand that by the events of November third the country was given a paid up insurance policy against mistakes in government, or on the other hand that those same events point infallibly to ruin and disaster. Civilization has moved steadily onward and upward thru the years, and political changes have amounted merely to a shift of wind that blew the leaves now this way and again in a counter direction across the path of that march.

Passing from the serious business of moralizing to matters of a lighter vein. Mr. Rooevelt will be the first President to assume office under the constitutional amendment that causes the term of the Chief Executive to begin on the 20th of January. Those who plan an inauguration visit to Washington at least may be assured that it will be well to keep on their red flannels. The fourth of March is a notably fickle season in the capital, so far as weather is concerned. The day before the inauguration of President Taft, Washingtonians were packing their overcoats away in moth balls. When the sun rose over the city on the important date, it shone upon a blanket of snow a foot deep. The path of the procession was cleared in time but the grandstands were filled with shivering crowds who divided their thoughts between the prospects of pneumonia and the show which they had come to see.

Speaking of inauguration, Presidents have been known to hold up the ceremonies for three quarters of an hour while they ate their lunch, the parade standing still and the spectators wondering why it did not move. Considering that hundreds of thousands were made uncomfortable by the wait, it would have been good manners for the President to have kept his place in the reviewing stand and had recourse to the popular hot dog sandwich. No one would have thought such an act below presidential dignity. Old time inaugurations did not always give rise to the problems of the stomach. Andrew Jackson mounted his horse, rode from the White House to the Capitol, was sworn into office, and that was that. If Mr. Jackson happened to be hungry, it was his own fault.

A presidential election is a matter of considerable importance to a candidate nowadays, since "Winner take all" is the rule. In Washington's time, even to be nominated meant a great deal, because the losing candidate became Vice President. This yoking together of two men of different political faiths may be the reason why custom to this day makes the Vice President a small potato.

MORTUARY

DONAHUE

Mrs. W. P. Donahue, who has been ill for the past week, passed away at her home Tuesday, near noon, from angina pectoris. Mrs. Donahue had been in poor health for a number of years, but had been able to work about the home and occasionally go out for short walks, until last week, when she became bedfast and the two daughters from Detroit were sent for. Monday a brother, Mr. W. H. McCord, and wife, of Valparaiso arrived. Funeral will be held Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock from the Walter funeral home, Spencerville. Interment will be made in Riverside cemetery, St. Joe.

When you drive your car out of your garage are you sure that it is in A-1 shape?

"Four wheels and no brakes" applies to many individual vehicles. Brakes should be adjusted periodically. Your lighting apparatus should meet these requirements: good headlight lamps, properly adjusted so as to give the greatest convenience in driving, and a well charged battery that will make these lights function as they should. Rear view mirrors are a necessity and should be properly directed. The steering gear should operate easily. Keep it adjusted so that your car responds as you want it to.

In general, be ever on the alert for minor evidences of faulty equipment, and when discovered have it adjusted promptly.

"Now I Lay Me—"

This child was hurt when a tornado struck Tupelo, Mississippi, necessitating medical and nursing care for hundreds—care which in many cases could not have been given without Red Cross assistance. It is a fine tribute to the organization that the young beneficiaries of its health and relief services invariably place themselves in the hands of the Red Cross with a completely confident, "Now I lay me—."

RED CROSS HIGHWAY POSTS AID INJURED

1,000 Function At Key Points To Give Emergency Care To Traffic Hurt

Highway first aid stations, set up by the Red Cross to give emergency care to victims of traffic accidents, are saving lives, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

"More than 1,000 of our emergency posts are already operating in 47 states and thousands of others will soon be established at key points along America's highways," Mr. Fieser stated.

The Red Cross highway posts are concentrated at danger spots in rural areas where medical aid is not readily available. The importance of this coverage of the open road, the Red Cross holds, is given sharper emphasis by the fact that there has been a 150 per cent increase in rural traffic fatalities during the past twelve years.

The project was initiated last year on a national scale as a practical approach to the highway accident problem. The Red Cross felt that it could best apply its strength by succoring those who continue to be injured pending a reduction in the highway accident rate through legislation and safety education.

"Our program brings first aid skill to the scene of accident in an effort to reduce the number of persons killed and maimed in automobile mishaps," Mr. Fieser said. "Our highway first aiders are not medical men in any sense, but it is their job to turn the injured over to the medical profession in the best shape possible."

The Red Cross highway posts are established at gasoline service stations, tourist homes, rural police and fire departments. The personnel of the posts are trained by the Red Cross in first aid, standard first aid equipment is installed at each station, and identifying signs for the benefit of motorists are erected beside the highway at both approaches to the station.

The attendants of these roadside units who qualify as first aiders volunteer their services through the Red Cross and may under no circumstances accept pay for caring for the injured.

To complement the highway first aid stations, the Red Cross has announced formation of mobile units. Several thousand trucks which regularly ply the highway in the course of routine work will be equipped with first aid kits. Drivers and crews will take courses in both standard and advanced first aid, and each truck will be identified as a Red Cross mobile unit. More than a hundred trucks are already operating.

"The highway police of eight states who have finished first aid training will join this army mobilized to cut accident fatalities and prevent complication of minor injuries through mishandling at the scene of accident," Mr. Fieser said.

"We receive reports from our first aid stations daily, telling of essential care given to traffic casualties on the spot and of lives actually saved."

This and many other Red Cross programs of equal value are supported by the people of America during the annual Roll Call for members. This year the Roll Call will be held from November 11 to 26.

Red Cross volunteers, framework of the organization, last year gave a total of 1,707,220 hours of service, producing 685,074 garments, 4,355,719 surgical dressings, 16,773 Christmas bags for soldiers, sailors and marines serving overseas. Perhaps the most important undertaking of these generous contributors to the public welfare is the making of braille books for the blind, with 242,000 pages printed during the past twelve months.

Of the 16,500,000 school children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross societies of 52 nations, more than half are members of the American Junior Red Cross representing 34,382 schools in this country.

RED CROSS AID TO MORE THAN 500,000 DISASTER VICTIMS

Large Urban Areas Devastated As Elements Hit 20 States East of Mississippi

"The number of disaster victims assisted by the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, was more than four times the number aided in the previous twelve month period," Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, said in commenting on highlights of the annual report just issued. "Over 131,000 families were given food, clothing, shelter and medical care, and thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired by the Red Cross to enable them to carry on."

Pointing to the many-sided problems created by the wide variety of types of disasters which occurred during the year, Admiral Grayson said, "The Red Cross sent hundreds of trained workers into 39 states to meet the many exigencies of catastrophes which included earthquake, epidemic, explosion, fire, hurricane, ice lock, landslide, refugee relief, shipwreck, tornado and typhoon. The Red Cross took charge at the scenes of 105 domestic disasters of major severity."

The report emphasized the marked value of Government-Red Cross cooperation when disaster strikes, giving as example the flight of Army bombing planes which dropped Red Cross food to marooned refugees at Renovo, Pennsylvania, during the Spring floods. More than 10,000 persons were rescued from the second floors of homes in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston through Coast Guard-Red Cross cooperation at the height of these same floods.

"Government agencies and relief groups were of invaluable assistance to Red Cross relief forces at all times," Admiral Grayson stated.

The complete resources of Red Cross leadership, training and disaster experience were brought into play by the Spring floods and tornadoes which took so heavy a toll of life and property in eastern and southern states this year, the annual report reveals. The Red Cross aided 77,000 families in 14 flooded states east of the Mississippi and 6,000 families in 6 tornado hit states south of the Mason-Dixon line in this one operation.

"Never before have as many metropolitan centers borne the brunt of attack by wind and water within a single year, challenging Red Cross preparedness and efficiency by so wide a variety of pressing human problems," Chairman Grayson said.

In its work of relief to disaster sufferers the Red Cross expended in excess of $5,200,000 for the year. The report points out that this figure does not include assistance given in 27 lesser disasters with a total of 2,000 persons aided, and adds that additional millions will be used to "clean up" Spring floods and tornadoes.

"Numerous local disaster situations occurring during the year were met by Red Cross chapter funds and manpower," Admiral Grayson said. "In each major relief operation undertaken the great army of Red Cross volunteers aided trained workers with the task of rehabilitating those without resources who had suffered losses.

"The Red Cross disaster relief service is one of many Red Cross activities supported by the American people through membership at the time of Roll Call, held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving."

Red Cross Nurses Combat Disease on Wide Front

At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, there were 673 Red Cross nurses bettering health conditions and caring for the sick in 604 communities. These Red Cross public health nurses cared for a total of 233,616 persons during the year and made more than a million visits on their behalf.

The annual report of the American Red Cross states further that these nurses cooperated with doctors in examining 671,057 school and pre-school children, with 342,861 physical defects found and curative treatment arranged in 209,080 cases.

In 979 Red Cross chapters 1,733 graduate nurses taught Red Cross home hygiene and care of the sick, issuing certificates to 53,126 persons completing the courses. In addition, 1,777 Red Cross reserve nurses were called upon during the year for disaster and epidemic control work.

Red Cross Potential Life Savers Number Nearly 2,000,000

First aid and life saving certificates issued by the American Red Cross since the start of the service 26 years ago now number 1,888,702. During the past year the Red Cross qualified 222,693 persons in first aid and taught water safety and rescue methods to 80,961.

This army of First Aiders and Life Savers is one of the great safety factors in the nation. They are trained to give immediate first aid at the scene of accident, thus saving many lives and preventing permanent injury. Red Cross training includes skill in treating for shock, splinting fractures, checking arterial bleeding, applying artificial respiration, towing drowning persons to safety, and in the safe handling of boat and canoe.

SCHOOL PUT ON A FINE DEMONSTRATION

A demonstration celebrating Armistice Day, was featured Wednesday morning by the Concord Twp. High School. A parade headed by three color bearers, followed by the school band, pupils of the grades, junior high and lastly the senior high, with their teachers, marched down to the center of town, where they formed on the church lawn and rendered a short program, which consisted of music by the band, girls trio, reading, group singing led by Prof. Harshman, and salute to the flag.

A number of citizens witnessed this fine demonstration.

DUCK STAMPS NEEDED BEFORE HUNTING

Hunters of waterfowl in Indiana were warned today by Clarence Manion, State Director of the National Emergency Council, that a validated migratory-bird hunting stamp must be obtained before they shoot.

These stamps, which cost one dollar, can be obtained at any postoffice. The stamps now on sale are not valid after next June 30.

Manion said that proceeds from the sale of the stamps are used by the Bureau of Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to further its program of waterfowl restoration. The stamp does not exempt hunters rom complying with State and Federal regulations.

Failure to have the stamp subjects the hunter to a fine of $500 or six months imprisonment or both.

MORTUARY

KNISLEY

Miss Grace Knisley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Knisley, passed away at the home of her mother, November 7, 1936. Being born in St. Joe, Indiana, August 4, 1888, and living to be 48 years, 3 months and 13 days old. Joseph, her father, a sister, Viola, and two brothers, Frank and Marion, preceded her in death.

Grace being an invalid, was therefore compelled to remain at home all her life, never having the privileges of many. We are sure her presence will be missed very much by her aged mother and loved ones. As to her faith when but a young girl she gave her heart to God and held to her confession.

She leaves to mourn her departure an aged mother, two sisters and a brother.

The funeral will be held from the Kinsey funeral home, Friday afternoon at 2:30, conducted by Ralph Knisley, of Auburn.

FIREMEN'S FAIR NETS NEAT AMOUNT

The Fair put on last Friday night by the St. Joe Fire Department, was patronized by a large crowd, and when the treasurer, Willard Hurni, had made his final check-up, $180 net was available for purchase of equipment.

The boys made solicitation for anything that might be sold. They had flour, potatoes, corn, wheat, poultry, squash, pumpkins, and many articles used on the bingo stand. Pop corn, lunch and a number of try-your-luck stands were arranged around the room.

The high school band furnished music early in the evening.

The response showed that the community appreciates the efforts of the firemen to hold our fire losses to a minimum, and that they always make a ready response when calls for help are made.

LOCAL OPTION FIGHT TO BE MADE IN INDIANA

The fight for re-establishment of local option on a county-wide basis will make little headway in the 1937 session of the General Assembly.

Prohibition forces, headed by the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, have been making a sustained campaign since repeal of the eighteenth amendment for an amendment of the Indiana liquor law making it possible for the voters of a county to outlaw the sale of any kind of alcoholic beverage.

The Roosevelt landslide swept aside whatever gains they may have made as every one of the liberal cities elected democratic representatives, who are, almost to a man, opposed to any advance of prohibition. Of course the dry forces will seek to have the Assembly consider a local option amendment.

Strategy of the drys will be to make a fight for local prohibition in an attempt to ward off further liberalization of the state liquor control act. It is certain that representatives and senators from some of the larger cities, particularly those close to state lines, will go to Indianapolis in January determined to open up the law to permit the sale of alcoholic drinks on Sunday, something that was not permitted in saloon days of former years.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION REPARES FOR WINTER

Purchase of 194 snow plows and 61 graders by the State Highway Commission to supplement present equipment used in the removal of snow and ice from the traveling surfaces of Indiana's nine-thousand-mile state highway system, was anounced today by James D. Adams, chairman of the commission.

With the delivery of the new plows and graders, the maintenance division of the Highway Commission will have approximately 520 snow plows and 366 graders available to keep the state highway system open for traffic during the winter months. The new equipment is being distributed among the thirty-six highway sub-dstricts, the major part being placed in the northern half of the state where snow and ice is more general.

In addition to the purchase of the snow plows and graders, the Highway Commission is taking bids for the furnishing of 40,000 feet of snow fence which will be used along state highways in the LaPorte and Crawfordsville districts to keep the highways free from snow drifts. Snow fence has been used effectively over a period of years in this and other states.

Approximately a hundred thousand tons of sand and cinders, five hundred tons of calcium chloride and three hundred tons of salt is being stocked by the state highway maintenance forces for winter use. Sand and cinders, mixed with calcium or salt, are spread on the traveling surface of snow and ice coated highways, particularly on hills and curves. The chemicals are used to melt the ice, permitting its removal.

With the added equipment at its disposal, the maintenance division is planning a more effective service in keeping the state highways open to traffic this winter. Using light plows and graders which operate at higher speeds than heavy equipment, the maintenance forces will go into action as soon as snow begins to fall or ice to form instead of waiting until the highways have been covered or blocked.

Last year snow and ice removal from the state highway system cost approximately a third of a million dollars and during the sub-zero weather was accomplished at the additional cost of considerable suffering among maintenance workers who frequently were on the job from twenty-four to thirty-six hours.

Social Hour 9:30

The Legionnaires of the District are urged to attend all of the sessions and get the most good from the District meeting. The program is planned to bring out more fully the American Legion program. It is believed that if Veterens become more acquainted with the program of the Legion that their enthusiasm would be greatly increased.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Ladies Auyiliary, Walter Whitehurst Post 283, on Tuesday evening, the 24th, at K. of P. Hall, at 7:30. All members are urged to be present as we wish to make decision on meeting place and time, also make plans for winter program.

Mrs. I. B. Freeburn, of Woodburn, is here the guest of her son, Glen Freeburn and family.

CARD OF THANKS

We fully appreciate the kindness and sympathy of our neighbors and friends during the recent illness and death of our wife and mother, and also feel very grateful for the beautiful floral tributes.

Now that election is over, what next? Generally stated, it is not too easy to say much before Congress convenes. Election bets are being paid off, even the fantastic ones in which losers are taking winners rides in wheelbarrows, which reminds one that the customs of the horse and buggy days continue, and are likely to continue, as to details, for some time to come.

Both parties spent more money than they expected. The Democratic bill is about three million dollars. As to the Republican account, it is enough to sav that the party treasury is approximately a million dollars short. It takes a good deal of money to persuade the voters what they should or should not do.

Both parties promise a program which has in view the protection and promotion of human rights, whatever that may mean. In any event, the phrase has a good sound. At least, we have the assurance of some thing to which we may look forward, even though we do not yet know what it is, as to fine points. It is promised that there will be no unusual taxes, which helps some. Usual taxes are bad enough. Money spent for a new car seems well expended. The auto stands in the garage, where we can look at it, and it represents a tangible and visible return for our cash; but who really feels the joy of doing in paying for such a nebulous thing as a good government, local, state or national. Until human nature changes, paying taxes will be regarded as an evil, unavoidable perhaps, but an evil nevertheless.

Relief probably will be cut down, but operations already under way will be continued through the winter. The President has given no thot to the serious business of amending the Constitution, perhaps because, as a non-governmental authority states, neither Congress nor the Supreme Court will stand in the way. Speaking of the Supreme Court, Justice Brandeis has just turned 80. Three hundred years ago, a man was considered old at 40. We are better housed, more intelligently feed, more sensibly clothed, better doctored, and keep our bodies cleaner now than then, and the human machine does not wear out so quickly as it used to.

Once more, Armistice Day has slipped away into history. Eighteen years have passed since Marshal Foch wrote the memorable message which read: "Hostilities will cease along the entire front at 11:00 A. M. on November 11. The allied forces will not advance beyond the line that they have reached on that date and hour." There have been plenty of hostilities in the interval that has elapsed since Marshal Foch penned his note, the most active of which have been the Ethiopian and Spanish Civil Wars. The African combat has dwindled to a point where killing 34 Ethiopians to preserve the peace calls for a column-inch on the fourth page of the paper. The Spanish are more active but have reached what the papers chose to call the beginning of the end. International doves carrying olive branches still are likely to get a charge of bird shot, but civilization has not ceased to hope for the time to which Tennyson looked forward, when "the war drums beat no longer and the battle flags are furled in the parliament of men, the federation of the word." Armistice Day is a recurring memorial to peace and not to war.

Chick Sale is dead and buried. Although his squeaking fife amused us in the movies, his chief claim to fame rests in The Specialist, a literary production dealing with a subject that ordinarily does not enter into polite coversation. In the respect he was no more flagrant than Mr. Shakespeare or others who might be mentioned. He left us with a grin on our faces, and many a life has been dedicated to a more useless purpose than making people laugh.

PARTY IS NOT THROUGH

"The twaddle that the Republican party is through is reminiscent of the foolish talk in 1928 that the Democratic party had breathed its last. Landon received more votes in defeat than did Coolidge in victory, and both he and Springer received more votes in defeat than have any candidates of either party for those offices before received in defeat. Impressive as seems Roosevelt's popular vote. he received a smaller percentage of the total vote cast than the percentage received by Harding of the total vote cast in 1920. Again, in Indiana Roosevelt's majority this year is only 234,253 as against Hoover's of 285,599 in 1928. The Republican party has met successive defeats before and later came back stronger than before. Republicans are made of stern stuff. More than 16,000,000 voted the Republican ticket this year. If we keep chins up, and if the rank and file of our party take and maintain an active interest in building the party organization well and in keeping our party on its true course, we will win sooner than we now may think."—Arthur L. Gilliom, of Indianapolis, in address Monday night before the Irvington Club.

RED CROSS HIGHWAY POSTS AID INJURED

1,000 Function At Key Points To Give Emergency Care To Traffic Hurt

Highway first aid stations, set up by the Red Cross to give emergency care to victims of traffic accidents, are saving lives, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

"More than 1,000 of our emergency posts are already operating in 47 states and thousands of others will soon be established at key points along America's highways," Mr. Fieser stated.

The Red Cross highway posts are concentrated at danger spots in rural areas where medical aid is not readily available. The importance of this coverage of the open road, the Red Cross holds, is given sharper emphasis by the fact that there has been a 150 per cent increase in rural traffic fatalities during the past twelve years.

The project was initiated last year on a national scale as a practical approach to the highway accident problem. The Red Cross felt that it could best apply its strength by succoring those who continue to be injured pending a reduction in the highway accident rate through legislation and safety education.

"Our program brings first aid skill to the scene of accident in an effort to reduce the number of persons killed and maimed in automobile mishaps," Mr. Fieser said. "Our highway first aiders are not medical men in any sense, but it is their job to turn the injured over to the medical profession in the best shape possible."

The Red Cross highway posts are established at gasoline service stations, tourist homes, rural police and fire departments. The personnel of the posts are trained by the Red Cross in first aid, standard first aid equipment is installed at each station, and identifying signs for the benefit of motorists are erected beside the highway at both approaches to the station.

The attendants of these roadside units who qualify as first aiders volunteer their services through the Red Cross and may under no circumstances accept pay for caring for the injured.

To complement the highway first aid stations, the Red Cross has announced formation of mobile units. Several thousand trucks which regularly ply the highway in the course of routine work will be equipped with first aid kits. Drivers and crews will take courses in both standard and advanced first aid, and each truck will be identified as a Red Cross mobile unit. More than a hundred trucks are already operating.

"The highway police of eight states who have finished first aid training will join this army mobilized to cut accident fatalities and prevent complication of minor injuries through mishandling at the scene of accident," Mr. Fieser said.

"We receive reports from our first aid stations daily, telling of essential care given to traffic casualties on the spot and of lives actually saved."

This and many other Red Cross programs of equal value are supported by the people of America during the annual Roll Call for members. This year the Roll Call will be held from November 11 to 26.

RED CROSS AID TO MORE THAN 500,000 DISASTER VICTIMS

Large Urban Areas Devastated As Elements Hit 20 States East of Mississippi

"The number of disaster victims assisted by the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, was more than four times the number aided in the previous twelve month period," Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, said in commenting on highlights of the annual report just issued. "Over 131,000 families were given food, clothing, shelter and medical care, and thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired by the Red Cross to enable them to carry on."

Pointing to the many-sided problems created by the wide variety of types of disasters which occurred during the year, Admiral Grayson said, "The Red Cross sent hundreds of trained workers into 39 states to meet the many exigencies of catastrophes which included earthquake, epidemic, explosion, fire, hurricane, ice lock, landslide, refugee relief, shipwreck, tornado and typhoon. The Red Cross took charge at the scenes of 105 domestic disasters of major severity."

The report emphasized the marked value of Government-Red Cross cooperation when disaster strikes, giving as example the flight of Army bombing planes which dropped Red Cross food to marooned refugees at Renovo, Pennsylvania, during the Spring floods. More than 10,000 persons were rescued from the second floors of homes in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston through Coast Guard-Red Cross cooperation at the height of these same floods.

"Government agencies and relief groups were of invaluable assistance to Red Cross relief forces at all times," Admiral Grayson stated.

PLAN WINTER FEEDING ON EXTENSIVE SCALE

Plans for the winter feeding of wildlife during the coming months are being developed on a more extensive scale than ever before, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, reported today.

Already conservation clubs throughout the state have collected tons of mill screenings and their members are engaged in the establishment of feeding stations and erection of shelters in areas where quail, pheasants and other birds will seek refuge during the winter. Many inquiries have been received from farmers and others interested in the protection of wildlife from starvation and exposure during the cold months, indicating a more general interest in this phase of the conservation program.

Last winter hundreds of conservationists braved sub-zero temperatures to carry grain and other food to fields and thickets where birds and other wildlife congregated; rural mail carriers, state and county highway workers carried screenings and grain on their routes, and thousands of individuals maintained feeding stations for birds. The extent of this program was largely responsible for the comparatively light loss of game and song birds during the winter.

It is advisable, Mr. Simmons asserted, for feeding stations to be established before snows cover the ground and force the birds to seek new food sources. By beginning the feeding early the birds will be accustomed to the feeding place and seek cover in that vicinity. Suggestions on the operation of feeding stations may be obtained from any game warden or the local Department of Conservation.

THE MAN WITHOUT SHOES

The man with worn shoes envied the man wearing new shoes until he passed the man with no shoes at all.

And the barefooted man envied the man with old shoes until he passed the man without feet.

And the man without feet was happy because he knew a man who was blind, and the man that was blind was happy to be alive.

And so it is that good fortune and misfortune are onl" so by comparison.

And so it is that men who are happy learn the meaning of philosophy and live it.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Slightly lighter receints in all departments and noticably lower prices in the cattle section were the outstanding features of this week's sale.

Hogs: 200 to 250 lbs, $9.25. Feeder pigs came near making the nine cent mark again and sows with pigs at heel brought from $25.00 to $37.00 per head. Boars $5.00 to $5.25.

Sheep: Breeding ewes as well as all grades of lambs reflected the terminal market drop of the last few days and sold about 25 cents lower than last week. Good lambs $7.60 to $7.80. Breeding ewes up to $5.50 per head.

Veals: Top $9.50, light, thin calves down to $4.00.

Cattle: Heifers and steers off pasture $5.75 down. Cutters and slightly better butcher cows $3.30 to $4.80. Canners $2.75 to $3.25. Bulls $4.35 to $5.80.

Safetygrams
BY
FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

About 23 out of every 100 persons killed by automobiles in the United States are children under the age of 15 years. Accidents kill more children in this age group than diseases. Think of it!

Parents and teachers should warn the youngsters of the things listed below so that they will remember them and be guided by them.

1. Never cross a street without looking in both directions to see if any care are coming.
2. Always cross the streets with the lights.
3. Never cross a street diagonally or in the middle of the block.
4. Never step into the street from behind a parked car or moving vehicle.
5. Never play in the streets.
6. Never "hook" rides on trucks or wagons.

Red Cross Nurses Combat Disease on Wide Front

At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, there were 673 Red Cross nurses bettering health conditions and caring for the sick in 604 communities. These Red Cross public health nurses cared for a total of 233,616 persons during the year and made more than a million visits on their behalf.

The annual report of the American Red Cross states further that these nurses cooperated with doctors in examining 671,057 school and pre-school children, with 342,861 physical defects found and curative treatment arranged in 209,080 cases.

In 979 Red Cross chapters 1,733 graduate nurses taught Red Cross home hygiene and care of the sick, issuing certificates to 53,126 persons completing the courses. In addition, 1,777 Red Cross reserve nurses were called upon during the year for disaster and epidemic control work.

Red Cross Potential Life Savers Number Nearly 2,000,000

First aid and life saving certificates issued by the American Red Cross since the start of the service 26 years ago now number 1,888,702. During the past year the Red Cross qualified 222,693 persons in first aid and taught water safety and rescue methods to 80,961.

This army of First Aiders and Life Savers is one of the great safety factors in the nation. They are trained to give immediate first aid at the scene of accident, thus saving many lives and preventing permanent injury. Red Cross training includes skill in treating for shock, splinting fractures, checking arterial bleeding, applying artificial respiration, towing drowning persons to safety, and in the safe handling of boat and canoe.

Nations Prosper As They Are Free

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"Countries are well cultivated, not as they are fertile, but as they are free."

That axiom, pronounced many years ago, remains true today. Now, as then, it applies not only to the soil, but to every form of productive activity — whether at the farm, the factory, the store, the office or the laboratory.

It was through the freedom of her workers — not political liberty alone, but the freedom of unfettered energy — that America became great.

It was largely because of this freedom that the standard of living for all Americans became the highest in history, while the workers of Europe — hampered by government edicts and restrictions — lagged far behind.

It was this freedom of enterprise that converted our central plains into earth's greatest granary, that released our hidden mineral wealth for world-wide utility; that transformed the experiments of the scientific laboratory into the realities of every-day life and use.

It was this freedom that gave the American workers more and better farms, more and better homes, more and better food, more automobiles, more telephones, more radios, more comforts of all kinds, than any people on earth.

Let's remember these things through the months immediately ahead. Let's remind those in whose hands we have placed the reins of government that it was freedom of opportunity and of labor that made America what it is.

Let's ask them — with our help — to sweep away all the barriers that block the road to recovery, and to let the American people press forward as they did during the period of their greatest development, free from the handicap of bureaucratic edicts, whether past or present or future.

Let's impress on them anew that countries are well cultivated, not as they are fertile, but as they are free.

And that means freedom of our intelligence, our energies, and our spirit, as well as of our persons.

Mrs. Clark, of Hamilton, Ind., who was housekeeper for Mrs. Wilson, and has been ill for some time, was taken Monday to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Whitby.

A birthday dinner in honor of Kenneth Gaff, was served Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jennings, to the following guests, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Traxler, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Washler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gaff and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Myers and Reign Schondelmayer.

POTATO GROWERS
ATTENTION

Bring your potatoes to our Auburn Storage and obtain the highest prices for them daily. We also buy your culls and seconds. We have a modern brusher and grader which does all the work, without any cost to you.

We are also selling certified seed from Maine, both Cobblers and Katahdins, each bag bearing a tag with the certification on it. Now is the time to buy your seed, as we do look for prices to go higher. Should you want to buy your seed now and not take delivery until later, we will hold them for you without any extra charge.

Most of you have seen our potatoes in LaOtto this year, grown from Maine certified seed, and averaging 400 bushels to the acre. These were exceptionally fine quality and we get a premium for them on the market.

We also have home grown Katahdin Seed Potatoes, grown from certified seed from Maine two years ago. This is a good yielder and extra fine quality. We invite you to come to the Auburn storage to see our outfit.

CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE TO START FRIDAY

Tuberculosis Associations throughout the United States and many foreign countries have been working preparatory to sending millions of Christmas Seals and Health Bonds to the millions of persons who have become educated to look for and use the little stickers on every piece of mail they send out throughout tht holiday season.

There are still many people who do not know what the seal stands for many call them Red Cross Seals, and while they do have a red cross it is different than the emblem of the American Red Cross. It is a double barred cross and the money obtained from the sale of these seals is used to fight tuberculosis.

The day is past when one must die if he becomes afflicted with tuberculosis-today it is curable-clinics are held in a county where the seals are sold, and an early diagnosis is usually a guarantee of an early recovery.

DeKalb County held such a clinic every other month which is free to the public, tuberculin tests and X-Rays are provided when necessary.

It is very necessary this work continue and seals and bonds must be sold to make it possible. There is a worker in each township, the office of the association is in the City Hall, Auburn.

Chairmen and Township workers are as follows:

Auburn, Miss Aileen Willennar, Mrs. Gene Browand, Mrs. Daisie Fulkerson, Mrs. Otto Hipskind.

Garrett, Mrs. Frank Hyde.

Waterloo, Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Gwendevere Gilbert, Chairman.

Concord, Mrs. Fred Leighty.

Smithfield, Mrs. Vern Sparks.

Wilmington, Mrs. Fanny Boger.

Fairfield, Mrs. Spencer Ringler.

CHICAGO STOCK SHOW BEGINS NOVEMBER 28

Prize herds and flocks from the four corners of the continent will be arriving throughout the coming week for the competitions of the 1936 International Live Stock Exposition, to be held in the International Amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock Yards November 28 to December 5.

The best purebred farm animals from the far west will compete with those from the eastern states; and Texas herds will be matched in competition with Canadian entries. Officials of the show announce that their prediction that the total number of animals would exceed 13,000 head has been realized.

Farm-Made Friendship

Henry Hicks was almost nine,
And I was half past eight—
Had a double seat at school,
And traded hooks and bait.
Used to say, when we grew up
We'd never marry wives—
Buy a farm and live alone,
Together all our lives.

Human plans are fickle things
When taken at their best;
Hickses sold their farm one day
To move away out west.
Spent our last day on the creek
And at the pasture gate—
WELL—
'Good-bye''s hard for grownup folks—
—But worse for nine and eight.

Life has brought me many friends,
The wise, the short, the tall;
Still abides a friendly face
More precious than them all—
Just a freckled, friendly face
That seems to smile and say:
'Farm-made friendship is the best
And never fades away.'

THE OLD FARM SERIES

RECEIVING REPORTS ON PHEASANT SEASON

Hundreds of reports from Hoosier sportsmen who bagged cock pheasants during the recent three-day open season are being received by the Department of Conservation. The reports indicate that the hunters enjoyed their first pheasant season and that many of them took one or more birds.

The first three hundred and sixty reports received from scattered sections of the state, showed that 383 cock birds were taken by hunters and that approximately two thousand pheasants, both cocks and hens, were seen. Hundreds of reports received during the past few days have not been tabulated and a final estimate on the number of birds taken and the number seen will not be available for another week.

SHORTEN FOX SEASON IN ELEVEN COUNTIES

Shortening the open season on red and grey fox in eleven counties by ending the season on January 15 instead of Feb. 10, was announced today by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation. Counties affected by the order include: Greene, Martin, Knox, Sullivan, Daviess, Pike, Floyd, Spencer, Perry, Crawford, and Harrison.

The action followed an investigation of conditions in the eleven counties during which the volume of hunting and trapping and seasonal conditions affecting fox were considered. By limiting the open season on grey and red fox in the eleven-county area, it is hoped to prevent the extermination of this fur-bearing animal.

A similar shortening of the open season on fox in the eleven counties was in effect a year ago. These counties are a part of the southern zone, established in an act passed by the General Assembly in 1935, designating Nov. 10 to Feb. 10 as the open season on fox in counties composing the northern zone.

Under terms of the order, fox may not be taken in the eleven counties after January 15 but may be taken in other counties of the southern zone up to and including Feb. 10.

LOCAL MAN CHOSEN TO HEAD BROTHERHOOD

D. B. Ridgway, was elected president of the Ft. Wayne District Brotherhood of the United Lutheran Church in America, succeeding Albert L. Frederick, of Ft. Wayne, during a meeting of the district Brotherhood Sunday at Columbia City.

C. H. Romeiser, of Auburn, was elected vice president, and W. J. Evans, of Albion, was named secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn. The attendance was not as large as heretofore but the speakers, including Rev. R. H. Benting and Mr. Fetta, of Indianapolis, were exceptionally interesting.

NEWS PATRONS ASKED TO RESPOND

During the past few days, we have been busy making and sending out statements to those indebted to The News for any purpose, and we hope that all receiving them will respond promptly.

We have endeavored to accomodate our growing list of patrons when needed, and not until now, have we really asked for any settlements. Many have graciously responded to our appeal through our columns, and we surely appreciate it.

We don't want any one to become offended at our request, but we do ask that it be respected, and that a ready reply be forthcoming.

Mrs. Parlia Hull and son, Calvin are home for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Wm. Henderson from Ashley joined his wife here Saturday evening at the Glen Cole home. They returned home Sunday evening.

Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Goodwin announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Carol Jean, to Mr. Herbert Earle Steele, of Washington, D. C. The wedding will take place at 12 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day at Luther Place Memorial Church in the city of Washington.

DON'T OVEREAT ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Some of the physicians are saying today that "Thanksgiving stuffing is dangerous to health."

Praise for abundant and sufficient food formed the background for the first Thanksgiving Day celebrated by Pilgrim Fathers. But the modern Thanksgiving prayer should be "give us strength to resist the temptation to eat too much."

An eminent physician who believed the citizens of this country were eating too much said: "The American calendar is divided into 365 stuffing days with Thanksgiving and Christmas leading the list."

It is possible for a person to have a thoroughly enjoyable feast day on Thanksgiving without spoiling it by overeating, providing they will endeavo to curb the idea that it is necessary to sample every thing that is set upon the table. This takes real determination of course, and but few have that complete control of themselves.

SPENCERVILLE BOY STILL UNABLE TO WALK

Robert Shockley, of Spencerville, is 5 years old now. He's bright-eyed and cheerful and he's the center of his mother's universe. But he is still unable to walk, can talk only a few words and those with the greatest difficulty. And only with great mental labor does he recognize his neighbors when they call or bring him a present.

Robert was struck by an auto in front of his home at Spencerville Aug. 11, 1935, and was taken to a Fort Wayne hospital in a coma.

No one, except his mother, expected him to live. For 67 long days he remained in that coma, and beside him, until her own health was threatened, remained his mother. "He will live," she said, and he did.

Sixty-seven days after the accident, which occurred when he was running across a street to greet his father, Robert opened his eyes.

But doctors said he never would walk again and never would talk. Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Shockley took him back home. Their faith, they declared, in his eventual recovery was undaunted. The other children in the family brought him their playthings when his little body was taken out of the plaster cast.

Robert did his part to justify his mother's almost religious faith in his recovery. When neighbors would call he would first smile at them, then begin an almost visible mental struggle to recall and speak their names. In 12 months, he has been only partially successful. Spencerville's heart was touched, and Robert was showered with gifts. Every one in the community, almost, shared the optimism of his family.

But as the long, hot summer wore on, he made no strides in his recovery; the dostors still insisted he never would walk, except, perhaps, on crutches, and never would speak or act as quickly as that day in August, 1935, when he shouted "Hello" and darted into the auto's path.

Mrs. Shockley has not given up hope. She wants to take the boy to the Riley hospital in Indianapolis for examination and treatment.

"Surely," she said today, "with all the knowledge they have of medicine and surgery, they can make my boy walk and talk again."

That's the story to date of just one of Indiana's 1935 auto accidents.

A French writer on world affairs, whose words carry weight to a company of readers so widely distributed that they may be called international without exaggeration, looks for a European war within a year. Now that the battle smoke of election has cleared somewhat, it is safe to refer to the President, regardless of whether or not we voted for him, and it may therefore be observed that Mr. Roosevelt is headed for South America in the interest of a peace on the American continent which will be an example to the rest of the world. Europe seems to have chips on its many shoulders and probably nothing can be done about avoiding conflict there. Setting a good example on this side the Atlantic is enough, considered as an achievement. There is small excuse for attempting to act as peacemaker in a territory where war is condemned in words and justified by acts as an outdoor sport; and still less excuse for actually getting into the game.

Speaking of letting Europe fight her own battles, a Representative in Congress has not forgotten those unpaid bills of almost twenty years ago. It is his view that this country should pay no attention to, or spend money in connection with, the marriage or coronation of King Edward of England. That may be going to extremes, but it does seem as tho the people over there who got our money, at least could have devilered a load of hay or something like that on account, during the time that has passed since Europe was holding out the hat and handing out so much reassuring talk.

Perhaps it is thought that we do not know how to use money when we have it. There may be something in that, if the figures of J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are correct. He says that crime costs fifteen billion dollars a year. On the other hand, the Christmas Savings checks about to be distributed indicate that many must have had Scotch ancestors, immediate or remote, which is by no means a bad thing. Three hundred and fifty million dollars were tucked away into the Savings Clubs during the past twelve months.

Having traversed the span of three quarters of a century, Mme. Schumann-Heink has fulfilled the words of Longfellow and "moved a little nearer to the master of all music, to the master of all singing." Genius is supposed to be erratic, unreasonable and testy, yet the papers reflect correctly the view of the public when, almost without exception, they refer to her as "beloved." In the face of such a tribute, details relating to the operatic triumphs of the days of her prime become merely the dry facts of stage history. She did not consider her talents too great to be dedicated to what Walt Mason called "the simple lays that soothe the soul." This year and for many years to come, those who keep Chistmas will miss the round, deep voice that spread afar and delivered to millions of listening ears, the message of "Holy Night."

The oddities in the week's news include the case of a man in Hungary who was compelled by custom to send out challenges for about fifty duels, all to be fought within two days. A few weeks ago, a person who talked Democratic in this country was likely to have a half-hunded duels on his hands. Likewise, anyone who talked Republican stood a chance of being called out as many times upon the field of honor. Tempers have cooled considerably. As to the challenges mailed by the Hungarian, very likely he hopes that the addresses have the bad luck of a Washington woman who just receivtd a letter written twenty years ago by a friend in the same town, asking for a date.

Turkeys are being bred down to a size and form in which they can be put more easily into small modern ovens. Substituting the man with a swelled head for the turkey, and a hat for the oven, there is presented a problem that might well be passed along to the turkey breeders for solution.

RED CROSS HIGHWAY POSTS AID INJURED

1,000 Function At Key Points To Give Emergency Care To Traffic Hurt

Highway first aid stations, set up by the Red Cross to give emergency care to victims of traffic accidents, are saving lives, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

"More than 1,000 of our emergency posts are already operating in 47 states and thousands of others will soon be established at key points along America's highways," Mr. Fieser stated.

The Red Cross highway posts are concentrated at danger spots in rural areas where medical aid is not readily available. The importance of this coverage of the open road, the Red Cross holds, is given sharper emphasis by the fact that there has been a 150 per cent increase in rural traffic fatalities during the past twelve years.

The project was initiated last year on a national scale as a practical approach to the highway accident problem. The Red Cross felt that it could best apply its strength by succoring those who continue to be injured pending a reduction in the highway accident rate through legislation and safety education.

"Our program brings first aid skill to the scene of accident in an effort to reduce the number of persons killed and maimed in automobile mishaps," Mr. Fieser said. "Our highway first aiders are not medical men in any sense, but it is their job to turn the injured over to the medical profession in the best shape possible."

The Red Cross highway posts are established at gasoline service stations, tourist homes, rural police and fire departments. The personnel of the posts are trained by the Red Cross in first aid, standard first aid equipment is installed at each station, and identifying signs for the benefit of motorists are erected beside the highway at both approaches to the station.

The attendants of these roadside units who qualify as first aiders volunteer their services through the Red Cross and may under no circumstances accept pay for caring for the injured.

To complement the highway first aid stations, the Red Cross has announced formation of mobile units. Several thousand trucks which regularly ply the highway in the course of routine work will be equipped with first aid kits. Drivers and crews will take courses in both standard and advanced first aid, and each truck will be identified as a Red Cross mobile unit. More than a hundred trucks are already operating.

"The highway police of eight states who have finished first aid training will join this army mobilized to cut accident fatalities and prevent complication of minor injuries through mishandling at the scene of accident," Mr. Fieser said.

"We receive reports from our first aid stations daily, telling of essential care given to traffic casualties on the spot and of lives actually saved."

This and many other Red Cross programs of equal value are supported by the people of America during the annual Roll Call for members. This year the Roll Call will be held from November 11 to 26.

RED CROSS AID TO MORE THAN 500,000 DISASTER VICTIMS

Large Urban Areas Devastated As Elements Hit 20 States East of Mississippi

"The number of disaster victims assisted by the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, was more than four times the number aided in the previous twelve month period," Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, said in commenting on highlights of the annual report just issued. "Over 131,000 families were given food, clothing, shelter and medical care, and thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired by the Red Cross to enable them to carry on."

Pointing to the many-sided problems created by the wide variety of types of disasters which occurred during the year, Admiral Grayson said, "The Red Cross sent hundreds of trained workers into 39 states to meet the many exigencies of catastrophes which included earthquake, epidemic, explosion, fire, hurricane, ice lock, landslide, refugee relief, shipwreck, tornado and typhoon. The Red Cross took charge at the scenes of 105 domestic disasters of major severity."

The report emphasized the marked value of Government-Red Cross cooperation when disaster strikes, giving as example the flight of Army bombing planes which dropped Red Cross food to marooned refugees at Renovo, Pennsylvania, during the Spring floods. More than 10,000 persons were rescued from the second floors of homes in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston through Coast Guard-Red Cross cooperation at the height of these same floods.

"Government agencies and relief groups were of invaluable assistance to Red Cross relief forces at all times," Admiral Grayson stated.

COW PUMPS OWN WATER WHEN THIRSTY

Motorists driving along U. S. highway 52 between Rushville and New Salem fear that they are having hallucinations when they see a cow pumping water in a field—but such is not the case.

Toots, a six-year-old Jersey owned by Paul Wesling of Rushville, has been pumping her own drinking water for more than three years although she has come into the public eye only recently.

The cow's pasture is a ten acre field in which there is an ordinary iron pump with a standard handle. When she gets thirsty she elevates the handle with her nose and then pulls it down with a horn which curves in a manner that permits an almost perfect grip

Occasionally Toots will drink as the water streams out from the pump mouth and at other times she waits until the bucket beneath the pump is filled.

First reports of the phenomenon were hailed here with skepticism but many persons, including newspaper men, have visited the pasture and been convinced.

Wesling says that only rarely does he ever pump water for Toots, generally leaving her to accommodate herself when she gets thirsty.

More farmers ought to train their stock to wait on themselves. There is a bare possibility that "Toots" will figure out some means of milking herself and Mr. Wesling will need only to care for the milk night and morning.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Every day the papers write of hunting accidents. "Hunters accidentally shot." "Rifle or shot gun explodes when hunter drops gun." And so on.

A loaded gun should not be taken into a house, hunting shack, or car. Many times some other person tries out the "sight," pulls the trigger, and a fatality is the result. Pulling a loaded gun thru a fence by taking hold of the barrel is a dangerous stunt.

Do not clean a gun until you have made a positive inspection of chamber and barrel. Never point a gun at anybody. It's a foolish and senseless action.

The supposedly unloaded gun is the gun that has killed many people. If you cannot handle a gun, stay away from it.

TRUE AND ODD ETIQUETTE

Books of etiquette appeared as early as the 17th century, and served as guides to those of finer tastes while at the table.

Among other things one was advised to go to the table with clean hands. He was told to wear his hat, and to leave one corner of the towel which was used in common, dry, so the next person might use it.

Men were counselled not to scratch themselves at table. They were advised not to blow in the soup, not to snuff the candle with their fingers, nor to pocket the fruit at dessert.

But napkins were provided and their purpose was to act as containers for food to be carried away from the table by guests at conclusion of the meal, a failure to do so being accepted as an insult to the host.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Anna Koch was home the first of the week.

There will be no Thanksgiving services in the St. Joe churches.

Gerald Gee is working on the Ben Edgerton farm, taking his brother's place.

Adrian Welch is in the St. Joseph hospital where he underwent a hurnea operation on Tuesday of last week. He is improving nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Scholes left Wednesday for Colfax, Ind., to spend Thanksgiving vacation with the latter's parents, G. B. Lanum and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carper were Thursday evening guests of Foster Gee and family. Mrs. Walter Cook and little son, Dale, were Saturday guests of her parents.

Thus far this season of basket ball, the local high school team has won 3 out of four. Hamilton being the last game played here Saturday night, with a score of 18 to 43 resulting.

A complaint for a divorce was filed in the DeKalb circuit court Saturday by Clara M. Brandon, of Auburn, against Frank M. Bandon of near St. Joe. They were married Nov. 5, 1907 and separated a year ago.

138 one-room school houses closed during 1936, and it would seem by this that the once familiar "little red school house" is on its way out in Indiana. 1,363 remain at the present time. In 1915 there were 6,000 such schools in Indiana.

Mrs. Arietta Miller is here from Edgerton, Ohio, visiting her mother.

Charles Thayer, of Hicksville, called on St. Joe relatives Tuesday evening.

Slim LaRue is now living in the home of his brother and sister, south of Pierceton.

Loyal Bolinger served the family Thanksgiving dinner at his home at Pioneer, Ohio. Carl Carpenter and family attended.

Clark Scholes and wife and Leon Kees and wife attended the 4th district American Legion meeting at Fort Wayne, Friday night.

Mrs. Hazel Baltz was taken Saturday morning to the Souder's hospital in Auburn for observation and treatment. Mrs. Baltz has not been very well for some time.

The first snow of the season arrived Monday night and as we go to press snow flurries continue, getting ready for Thanksgiving hunting.

Carl Carpenter will leave Friday for Chicago, taking 6 head of spotted Polands for display at the International Live Stock Show. Good luck, Carl.

Thanksgiving Day guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Chorpenning are Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hirschbiell and daughter, Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Sines and son, Edward, of Garrett, and Mr. Merle Morrison, of Fort Wayne.

Seven members of the local Legion Auxiliary, namely, Mesdames Lehr Wilder, Roy Maxwell, Ralph Sechler, Alvy Perry, Roy Reidenbach, Frank Bachtel and C. F. Scholes, attended the fourth district auxiliary meeting held last Thursday at Auburn.

Walter Whitehurst Post 283 American Legion Auxiliary held their regular meeting at the hall on Tuesday evening. It was decided to hold a Market and Rummage Sale on Saturday, Dec. 12. Mrs. Hight and Mrs. Crouch, of Unit 82 Ft. Wayne were present.

Hudson Scott has accepted a position with the Electro-Motive Corp., at Lagrange, Ill., a subsidiary of General Motors. At this plant they manufacture Diesel engines used in railroad transportation. He began work Monday of last week. His family will remain here for the winter at least.

There were 23 deaths in DeKalb county during the month of September, the monthly bulletin of the Indiana Division of Public Health, published at Indianapolis, reports. Of this number ten were of the age of 65 or over. One was of the age classification of 1 to 5. One was due to an accident, one was caused by cancer and one by syphilis. There were 31 births during the month.

Post 283 the American Legion met Tuesday evening with a good percentage of members present. The adjutant reports thirty members at the present time which is 20% over the quota for this Post. Visiting Legionnaires were Adjutant Crouch and Comrade Hight from Post 82 of Fort Wayne. A special meeting of the executive committee is slated for next Tuesday, Dec. 1st at the hall.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley were Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Heltzel, of Springfield, Ohio, Rev. C. J. Ferster, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn, Mrs Jennie Sechler, Merritt Sechler and Mary Sechler. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bowen, of Ft. Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Presuhn and son, Joe, and Mrs. Irelan and son, Jerry, from Harlan. Rev. Heltzel was a former pastor of the Lutheran Charge and left here in 1915. He is now retired.

Mrs. C. M. Dressel, of Holgate, O., was a guest in the Max Dressel home from Friday until Sunday.

Volney Fowler and family, of Detroit, are here guests of Mrs. Hudson Scott for over Thanksgiving.

George Berry, of Richmond, Ind., is home this week, the guest of his mother, Mrs. Ada Berry, and other releatives.

All slot machines, pin-ball machines, punch boards and like gambling devices will be barred at Butler after Jan. 1. Marshal William Hathaway of that town, has announced. The officer has been ordered to make arrests if the order is not observed.

Mrs. Sadie Bruce, of Auburn, spent Saturday night and Sunday a guest in the Mary Betz home. Ralph Bruce and wife, of Garrett, came Sunday evening to return his mother to her Auburn home. Mrs. Hazel Steward and Jeanne Hatch were also evening callers.

The probability of a three-lane highway the entire distance between Ft. Wayne and Bluffton was seen Monday in the announcement of a list of road projects at Indianapolis by James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway commission. This will be on Road 1.

CCC enrollment is now being taken and will continue until January 1st. Those eligible do not necessarily have to be from a relief family but in need of relief. The age limit is from 18 to 27. Enrollment will be taken every Monday at the office in the court house in Auburn.

Mrs. Jane Randall entertained the following guests over Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall, of Chicago, Mrs. John L. Beard of Waterloo. Callers were Donald Kinsey of Ft. Wayne, Herbert Curie and family and Miss Lillie Ernest of Garrett, Mrs. Buckingham, Lester Coburn and George Tustison of St. Joe.

Within a short time after they were married his wife showed that she was dissatisfied with their home and told him she didn't care for him and was sorry she had married him. Marion B. Webb of Newville township, told Judge Endicott Saturday in getting a divorce from Susie Webb. The couple wed on Oct. 5, 1935 and separated April 2. Both had been married before. The court restored the defendant's former name, Susie Connelly.

1937 automobile plates will soon be available, as soon as you receive your blanks from the state department, and then you will have until December 31 to procure them. The Governor urges automobile owners to obtain new licenses as soon as posible after the sale is opened Dec. 10. The 1937 plates will carry out colors of Purdue University—gold and black, while the 1938 plates will be cream and crimson, representing Indiana University colors.

Mrs. Minnie Kagey, of 905 So. Jackson St., Auburn, was pleasantly surprised on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when nephews and nieces arrived at her home to remind her of her birthday. At noon a pot luck dinner was served and the day was spent in visiting. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hathaway of near Kendallville, Dr. Clayton Hathaway, wife and sons, Billy and Bishop, of Butler, Mrs. G. A. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bishop and daughter, Shirley and E. M. Bishop, all of Auburn. William Olds of Hicksville, Ohio, called during the afternoon to pay his respects to Mrs. Kagey.—Star.

SAVE FOOD with an ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

LIVING costs are soaring. Food prices are going up to winter levels and the savings you can make with an Electric Refrigerator will be bigger this winter. Don't wait until spring and lose the savings you would make between now and then.

No kitchen can be efficiently and thriftily managed without a dependable, economical refrigerator. In winter as all the year round you can buy in larger quantities at the lowest prices and avoid the costly waste of food spoilage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McNabb, of Dearborn, Mich., visited relatives here over the week end.

Attendance at the Methodist Sunday School for last Sunday was 51, collection, $2.50; Lutheran 70.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harter and family and Mrs. Ella Harter visited in the Roy Chaney and Philip Chaney homes on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reed and daughter, Adair, and Mrs. Ethel Bowser visited Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Whitacre and family at Highland, Ind., Sunday, Mrs. Bowser remaining for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baker, Ernest Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McNabb reminded Roy Chaney Saturday evening of his birthday. Oyster supper was served.

An all day meeting of the Ladies Aid and Cheerful Workers Class of the M. E. Sunday School and church was held on Thursday at the parsonage. Twenty ladies and several children were present and quilted and sewed carpet rags.

Mrs. Emila Gloyd and grandson, Richard Osborne and Rev. and Mrs. Clayton were called to Hamilton on Friday by the death of the former's great niece, Miss Ardys Lautzenhiser. Rev. Clayton officiated at the funeral on Sunday afternoon.

On Friday, Nov. 20th, fourteen neighbors and friends had a husking bee for John Doll, who has been very unfortunate this fall, having been in the hospital and is now suffering from a broken leg. They husked his entire crop Friday. Those who showed they were good friends indeed were: John Goldsmith, Earl Franks, Curt Watt, Mr. Ordway, Sam Wasson, Mr. Bondell, M. H. Howey, Harold Dunn, John Sibert, Frank Pervine, L. L. Howey, Ross Bishop, John Cook and Charles Timmerman. The Doll family are appreciative of this kind and neighborly deed and wish to publicly express their thanks to all who assisted in the work.

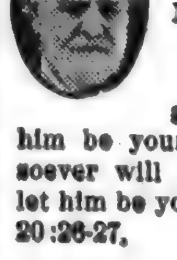
Favorite Bible Passages of Edwin Markham

Poet.



Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant.—Matthew 20:26-27.

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God.—Matthew 19:24.

If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give it to the poor.—Matthew 19:21.

Comment: When Jesus says poor at this point, I think that Jesus means the members of his Holy Brotherhood of the Kingdom. I am chiefly interested in the social passion that pervades the Gospel as a sacred fire. This aspect of the great Message has never been emphasized sufficiently.

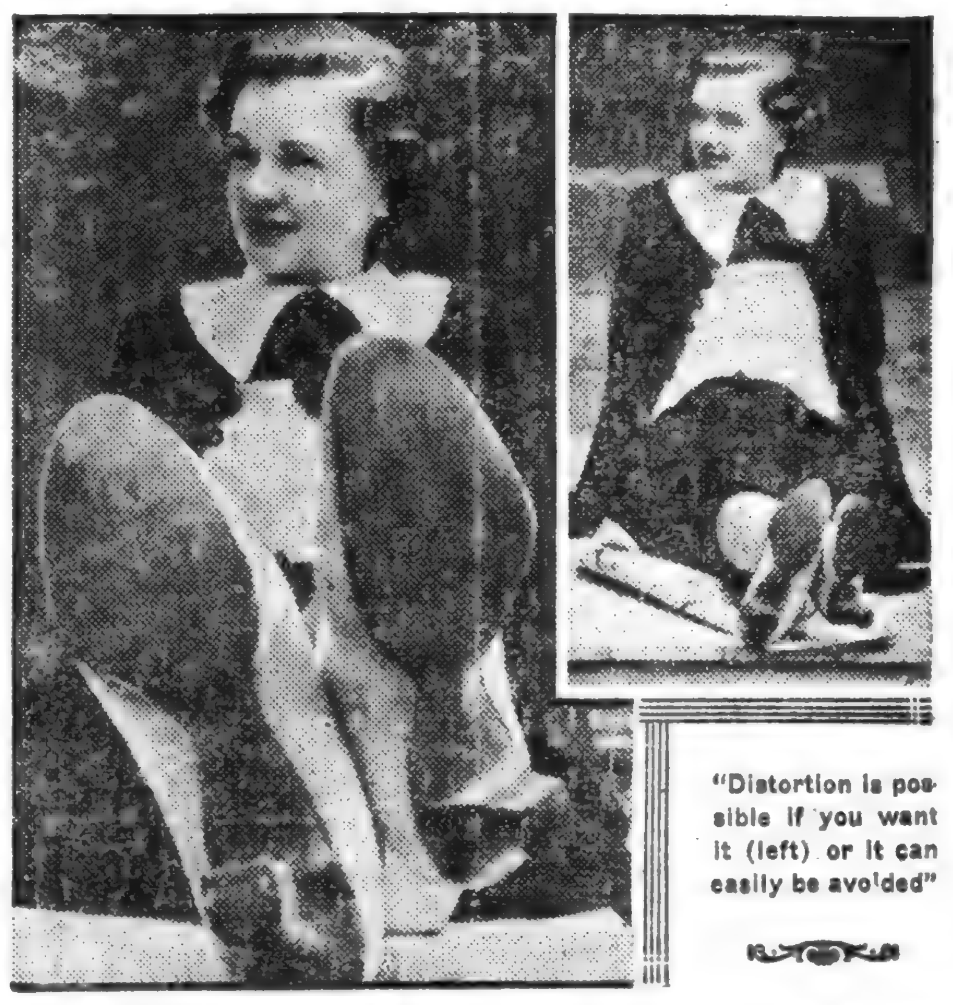
The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Watch Your Perspective



"Distortion is possible if you want it (left) or it can easily be avoided"

WHAT would your girl friend or wife say if you made your appearance with her picture after the Sunday outing, showing her with enormous feet such as those in the picture to the left?

War would probably be declared when you made the familiar statement, "Well, dear, the camera never lies." But the truth is that the camera didn't lie for it caught just what the lens saw.

Evidently the amateur who took this picture held the camera quite low, and probably less than three feet from the two feet of the attractive young lady. Her head and shoulders were at the right distance from the camera to give good perspective but her feet were perhaps thirty-six inches nearer the lens.

Perspective in a picture is determined by the point of view from which the lens makes the picture, so after all the camera did not tell a little white lie, but portrayed exactly what it saw and just about what the eye would see if one looked at the subject from the same point of view.

True, this is a much exaggerated example of bad perspective, but in making portraits, or indeed, "close-ups" of any object, we should be careful to see that no part of the subject is very much nearer the camera than the rest.

In making portraits we are sometimes likely to permit our subject to place a hand well forward on the arm of the chair. If working within three or four feet from your subject the hand will appear abnormally large. Better have the hands in the lap in a natural position and close to the body, with most of the fingers folded under.

Now you should know how and how not to get distortion in your portraits so let your conscience be your guide

H. S. BAND AT NEXT FARM BUREAU MEETING

A feature of the next Farm Bureau meeting, which will be Tuesday evening, Dec. 8th will be music by the High School Band, directed by C. A. Woodcox. The band will play several opening numbers. Mrs. Grace Dilley will have charge of the devotional which will be in keeping with the Christmas season. At the last district meeting Sen. Larry Brandon was elected president, he is expected to bring a message and outline his aims for the coming year. Reports from the delegates who attended the Farm Bureau Conference at Indianapolis last week will be given.

Also a talk by Co. Agent Myers. Master Jimmy Kees will sing two solos, and a playlet entitled "Doctor, Come Quick," will be given by a group from Newville township, under direction of Mrs. Sadie Washler.

These meetings are open to the public. Children are requested to sit with their parents.

COUNTY HOME BUREAU TO GIVE MAJOR BOWES PROGRAM

The Township Home Bureau Clubs of the county will terminate their year's work by giving a Major Bowes program in the assembly room of the Court House Friday evening, Dec. 4th a 7:30 P. M.

The program is being kept somewhat under cover in order to keep the public in suspense, but a few things have leaked out and it is a fact that there will be singing, accordions, musical saws, guitars, tumbling, a real Major Bowes and a real Graham NacNamee.

This proggram promises to be good—there are 800 women enrolled in the county and each individual township is performing separately. They have selected "the cream in the coffee" from their own particular club to do their performance. It has been breezed around that several townships thought the cream sweeter on the outside so they reached across the fence and nabbed the talent for one night and probably forever.

Due to the number of women enrolled in the Home Bureau Clubs and due to the limited seating capacity it is necessary to give notice that this program is not opened to the public. Each Home Bureau member may invite a family of guests if she wishes.

Come early! Seats while they last! Plenty of standing room!

The assembly room wil be fixed to make hearing possible.

Tom—Has your wife done all her Christmas shopping yet?

Dick—Oh, yes, last month. Now she's started to buy a few things.

No violinist of our time has equalled Fritz Kreisler in his hold upon the public. Season after season, whatever the place or the occasion, his audiences have filled hall or theatre to the door. These eager and returning listeners have included connoisseurs of the violin and of violinists; musicians in general quick to recognize a master in their art; the public of experience, intelligence and taste in concerts; the public that knows when it is pleased and time and again takes its pleasure; the curious about an illustrious figure in the chronicles and the conversation of the hour; and, finally, those with or without an ear for music, who feel in Mr. Kreisler the sway of potent personality.

This Concert is open to the public and is not connected with any Season Tickets or Course.

HIGHWAY COMSISSION PLANS SAFETY TESTS ON FOUR-LANE ROAD

Installation of four types of centerline markers on the four-lane section of U. S. 31, extending from South Bend to the Indiana-Michigan state line, is an experiment on the part of the State Highway Commission with the hope that it will reduce accidents, James D. Adams, chairman, reported today. Each type of marker will be used on one mile of the four-mile section of highway, permitting comparison in effective separation of traffic.

The four types of markers to be used will include: installation of "cat-eye" reflectors down the center of the forty-foot pavement in the same manner as these reflectors are used on curves; installation of short tranverse corrugated metal strips which will give a bumping sensation as a vehicle passes over them; installation of a low, halfmoon shaped strip of corrugated metal, which will also give a bumping sensation; and, installation of a low-rouded concrete curb. The "cat-eye" reflectors are to be used on both the concrete and corrugated metal installations.

In the selection of these four types of centerline markers or traffic separators, the Highway Commission sought a means of definitely separating the lanes of traffic moving in opposite directions without creating a hazard for motorists who pulled over too far into the center of the pavement. The types to be used will warn the motorist that he is out of his proper lane without causing him to lose control of his car.

There are approximately one hundred miles of four-lane pavement on the state highway system at the present time.

BASKET BALL

On Tuesday evening the St. Joe Valley Pickles went to Hoagland to play what they thought would be a practice game and were defeated in an over-time game by the score of 30 to 33.

On Saturday night they played the Wabash Macks, of Wabash, Ind., supposed to be the best team in that section and had no trouble in defeating them by the score of 57 to 22. While the game was dull as to contest, yet the Pickles showed their speed in floor work and excellent ball passing ability.

In the first game of the evening the Merchants were defeatd by the Westminster A. C'S in a hard fought game.

PRETTY HOLIDAY WEDDING SOLEMNIZED

A very pretty holiday wedding was solemnized at high noon on Thanksgiving Day in the Luther Place Church on 14th St., N. W., at Thomas Circle, in Washington, D. C., when Miss Carol Jean Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Goodwin, of this place, became the bride of Mr. Herbert Earle Steele, of Washington. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen performed the ceremony, and the altar was banked with white chrysanthemums. The church organist played a musicale during the arrival of the guests.

The bride was lovely in Star Dust blue velvet, with hat to match, and carried a sheaf bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Geraldine Thornton, her only attendant was dressed in a shade of gold in a material to match the bride's, her hat was in black and she carried a lovely bouquet of yellow mums. The groom's brother attended him as best man.

The groom's parents held a reception and sumptuous turkey dinner at their home to about fifty of the relatives and close friends and at 4:30 the bride and groom left on a ten day wedding trip to Florida.

Mrs. Mabelle Thornton and son, Charles, "Bob" Storer, Mrs. Stanley Hallabaugh and Miss Geraldine Thornton were the St. Joe friends attending the wedding.

The bride graduated from the St. Joe High School in 1934 and the following summer went to Washington where she had been working.

The News and many friends in St. Joe extend congratulations.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

Probably no organization in this country, possibly in the world, has so broad and extensive a program as the American Legion. It truthfully may be said to cover the entire field of public service, from care of our battle-scarred veterans to financial relief for underprivileged childhood.

If the average reader has an idea that the primary interests of The American Legion are concerned with bonuses and pensions, that is not the fault of the Legion. Regardless of who is to blame for such a misapprehension, however, it is a mistake which should be corrected without delay.

It is unreasonable to expect that every person in the country will agree with every thing The American Legion attempts to accomplish. The Legion itself does not expect 100% approval for all of its acts; its leaders have said as much, many times. It is both unintelligent and unreasonable, however, to condemn everything the Legion does because you, or you, or you, do not, perchance, like one or two things.

There were marked differences of opinion over paying the so-called bonus. Many newspapers condemned early payment, some were opposed to paying the bonus at all, and many others agreed with the American Legion that it was a debt past due and should be paid. Each class, in its own sphere, under our form of government, had a perfect right to its opinion. Who was right or wrong is of no moment now. A vast majority of the peoples representatives in Congress agreed with the Legion—and under our form of government the majority prevails.

Since the passage of the bonus law we have heard much talk about impending general pensions for World War veterans. The singular thing about such talk is that none of it originates with the veterans themselves; it all seems to come from those who opposed the bonus most vigorously. The Legion leaders have been most emphatic in declaring that there was no organized movement within their organizations, the largest of all veterans associations, for general pensions. Let us have done with such worries until there is something to worry about. We have enough wrinkles in our brow already.

The point of all of this, however, is that we might well do some budget balancing and see where the weight of favor lies—with or against The American Legion. Let us agree, just for the sake of argument, that we opposed the bonus and that we oppose general pensions.

Neither of these objections can possibly argue that the Legion is wrong in demanding adequate government protection for the battle-scarred veterans, in spending more than a million dollars a year from its own funds to relieve suffering children, in working for greater government protection for underprivileged children, in spreading the gospel of Americanism, in promoting law and order, in fighting to preserve peace for America and save our children from the horrors of war, in broadening community service efforts, in campaigning for highway safety, in forming community disaster relief corps, and all of those many other things it does—everyone of them far above the stigma of selfishness.

Weighed in the balance, the scales definitely are on the side of the Legion, even if we concede that every one was against the bonus—which they most emphatically were not, else our Congress would not have passed the law. So we come back to the original argument, with the decision.

It is unintelligent to denounce everything because of one or two things. There is no doubt that some World War veterans themselves disagree with possibly one, or two, of the Legion's objectives. All the more reason that such veterans should join the organization. The Legion is imbued with the same democratic ideals as our government—the majority rules.

Mr. World War Veteran, if you don't like what the Legion is doing, get in there and change things. Don't stay out and content yourself with throwing mud. If the majority is with you, you will win; if you are a minority, you will and should lose.

That is the American way of getting somewhere.

SPEED LIMIT SIGNS

Signs calling the attention of motorists on state highway routes through cities and towns to maximum speeds permitted in residential and business districts are being erected by the maintenance division of the State Highway Commission, James D. Adams, chairman, said today.

The signs warn the motorist that his maximum speed in residential districts should not exceed 30 miles per hour while the maximum speed in business districts is limited to 20 miles per hour. The signs are placed at points visible to the motorist as he enters a limited speed zone.

It is the opinion of The News editor that these signs better not be posted unless an attempt be made to prosecute those who really endanger lives by such excessive speeds in said zones. Local authorities posted 30 mile sign posts in the incorporation and you could not see any respect paid to the warning in the least. There possibly were a few talked to the Marshal, but really nothing ever done, and it would have been much better to never have put up the signs, because the state laws take care of this matter.

EARNED "SOCIAL SECURITY"

It would seem that "social security" is destined to be a political issue for a long time to come. Within the parties there is considerable internal dissension as to what is the proper program to pursue.

In the meantime, millions of American citizens are quietly and affectively achieving social security for themselves without benefit of government.

Thy are setting up trust funds and savings accounts. They are buying life insurance in unprecedented amounts—and more and more of the insurance sold is of the annuity type which provides old-age income as well as protection for dependents.

This is not an argument against government social security, which is believed to be a compelling need of the time. It is, however, a tribute to that old type of American independence which guards against the future through individual thrift, foresight and good hard work.

WHAT THEY DO

Each year from Thanksgiving to Christmas, Americans from Maine to Hawaii and from Alaska to Florida unite with the people of 4 other countries in one of the powerful mass movements against a common foe that the world has ever known—TUBERCULOSIS.

Voluntarily they participate in the annual sale of Christmas Seals, those gay holiday stickers on which appears that international symbol of health and hope—the bouble-barred cross. This year the United States Seals also bear the picture of jovial good health personified, Santa Claus.

Christmas Seals, since 1907 when the first one was sold in Wilmington, Delaware, have raised funds—penny by penny and dollar by dollar—that have helped to build a line of defense that protects all of us.

That the defenses are effective is shown clearly by the fact that the tuberculosis death rate has been forced down from 179 deaths per 100,000 population in 1907 to 54 in 1935.

Against the unnecessary toll taken by this communicable, preventable and curable disease, the comparatively small sums of money raised in local communities by voluntary groups have been used in those communities with a definite plan, under the guidance of the National Tuberculosis Association.

These funds have promoted the establishment of agencies of various kinds that have in turn been chiefly instrumental in gradually bringing tuberculosis under control. These lines of defense may be catalogued briefly thus:

1. 1,200 institutions,—sanatoria for tuberculosis and hospitals having tuberculosis departments,—providing 95,000 beds for the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis, chiefly for adults.
2. 10,000 public health nurses engaged in tuberculosis work.
3. 1,000 clinics for diagnosing and finding tuberculosis.
4. More than 1,200 preventoria, summer camps, open-air schools and similar institutions for the care and treatment of children with various forms of tuberculosis or for those who have been in contact with tuberculosis, or who are subnormal physically.
5. 1,987 tuberculosis associations including a state-wide organization in every state and local agencies in all of the larger population centers.

But the building of our national defense against tuberculosis is not completed. The disease still takes the lives of about 70,000 persons annually in the United States. Tuberculosis, although ranking seventh as a cause of death when all ages are considered, is the leading killer of people between 15 and 45. It remains the breaker of homes, the maker of orphans and a constant threat to the life and happiness of everyone.

Safetygrams

The skidding season is here, so watch your step. When driving an automobile on slippery roads, no matter how good your brakes are, don't depend on them entirely. You should have your car under control at all times and adjust your driving to the prevailing conditions. Careful drivers seldom skid.

As a pedestrian, don't depend too much on the ability of the driver to stop or slow down, especially at arterials and regulated intersections. Many a pedestrian has been seriously injured because he placed too much confidence in the ability of a driver to stop his car on a slippery road.

Play safe and you will be safe.

The Curve Passer is an optimist—albeit a very foolish one. He believes that traffic is always traveling in his direction and, so believing, he blithely takes chances by going around other cars on "blind" curves.

Good drivers never pass other cars on the road unless they are sure that it can be done safely.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

A light run of stock on account of Thanksgiving week brot very satisfactory prices in our auction held on Friday instead of Thursday.

Hogs: Feeder pigs sold slightly higher than last week. One lot of butcher hogs weighing 145 lbs brought $9.15; with heavier hogs from 210 to 250 up to $9.45. Roughs $8.50. Boars $5.45.

Lambs: Top lambs $8.40; feeder grades $7.00 to $7.50. Ewes $1.50 to $3.25 per cwt. Aged bucks $4 to $5.50 per head.

Veals: Top $10.20, lights, bucket fed and culls $8.00 down.

Cattle: Milk cows were scarce and in good demand, there were not enough offerings of really good milk cows to establish a price but the common kinds sold as well as much better grades a few weeks ago. Young heifers and steers off grass and grain and also feeder cattle were fully seventy-five cents higher than a week ago. Slaughter cows ran in price from $3.35 to $3.75. All indications point to heavy receipts of cattle next week with prices firm on all meat animals.

PROTECT YOUR CHILD'S EYES with a "BETTER SIGHT" LAMP

MOST parents unknowingly make the mistake of assuming that their children's eyes are perfect at birth and will remain so for years. Scientists tell us that by school age, approximately one child in every five has something wrong with his eyes. One thing important to watch is lighting.

With one of the new Illuminating Engineering Society approved Better-Sight lamps such as the models we now have on special sale, you may be assured that your child has proper lighting for easy reading or studying without eyestrain. We ordered thousands of the models illustrated so that we might offer them to you at a considerably lower price than ordinerily possible.

LEGION ACTIVITIES—PLAN COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS

A very interesting meeting was held by Walter Whitehurst Post 283 American Legion, Tuesday evening. Visiting Legionnaires were Comrades Kraemelmeyer and Hirsch of Post 97 at Auburn and Comrades Crothers and Lawhead of Post 178 at Garrett. Comrade Crothers, who is County Membership Chairman, complimented the local Post on its excellent standing in the membership drive. Post 283 having a membership at present of 30, which is 20% over its quota.

He also extended, in behalf of Post 178, an invitation to the members of this Post to attend a meeting of Post 178 and enjoy a "Feed" of army slum at the Presbyterian Church in Garrett which was held last night, (Dec. 9th.)

The Legion and Auxiliary are planning on sponsoring a Community Christmas Tree and Program for St. Joe, the details of which will be given later.

The program for the Fourth District meeting of the American Legion to be held at Auburn on Saturday evening, Dec. 19 has been announced by District Commader Col. A. L. Moudy. The meeting will be held in the Legion home of Post No. 97, with the Auburn Post as hosts.

The business session for Legionnaires only will start at 4 P. M. and continue until 6 o'clock. Important reports and resolutions held from the previous meeting will be taken up. Post commanders, adjutants and delegates, together with the Legionnaires are urgd to be present and take part in the discussions, which, because of the nature of the business, will be for Legionnaires only.

For the banquet and the entire evening program, all Auxiliary members, mothers, wives and lady friends of Legionnaires have a cordial ivitation to attend. The banquet will be served by the Auxiliary, Unit No. 97. The banquet will cost only fifty cents which will cover the entire evening program including the social hour and dance in the Legion home, following the banquet program. Tickets can be secured in the afternoon and at the banquet hall in the evening. The program will be as follows:

Afternoon

HOME BUREAU CHRISTMAS PARTY

Friday, Dec. 11th the Concord Twp. Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. Nevada Wyatt. This will be an all day meeting with pot luck dinner at the noon hour. A Christmas exchange will be a feature of the afternoon's program, with a ten cent limit on the cost of the gifts.

Several members have expressed themselves as being desirous of taking up knitting as a project for next year. Mrs. Violet Young, who is in charge of Schaab's yarn and knitting department, has been interviewed by the Twp. president, Mrs. Borthwick, and arrangements have been made for Mrs. Young to attend this meeting. Mrs. Young will bring samples of yarns to choose from, and garments and a knitting manual from which styles may be chosen. Those who are interested in this project are urgd to be present, so it may be determined as to the number who will want to take up the work. Those who have knitting needles and yarn on which they could practice are asked to bring them. It is hoped that Mrs. Young may be able to start the class at the January meeting.

The Safety Man

Winter weather will soon be with us. With it comes fog, ice, sleet, snow, and slippery roads. What are you doing to prepare for it?

Every driver should see that his car is properly conditioned for winter driving. Windshield wipers should be reconditioned. The elimination of fog, sleet, ice, and snow from the windshield is very important, and many very good devices are on the market for this purpose. Equip your car with a device that will give you clear and good vision during such weather.

Control your speed on slippery roads. Go slow—go easy—be careful.

BUTLER EDITOR CALLED BY DEATH

The funeral of the late Luther H. Higley, for many years a prominent resident of Butler, was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the M. E. Church in that city. The Rev. J. W. Montgomery of Ft. Wayne, officiated and burial was made in the Butler cemetery.

Mr. Higley died at his home at 8:45 Friday night after 3 months illness. He was sixty-nine years of age and in his young manhood acted as superintendent of the public schools at Rolling Prairie, Ind., and as a teacher in the Butler high school. Many years ago he went into the publishing business and bought the Butler Record.

Mr. Higley built up a large publishing business, specialising in religious journals, including the Higley Pocket Sunday School Journal, the Higley Sunday School Commentary, and Religion on the Air. His publications had a national circulation. Some years ago he disposed of his local newspaper to his competitor, A. S. Powers & Son.

The survivors include the widow, a son, Dale, who is vice president of the printing firm, and two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Dunning and Mrs. Ruth Gowdy, of Butler.

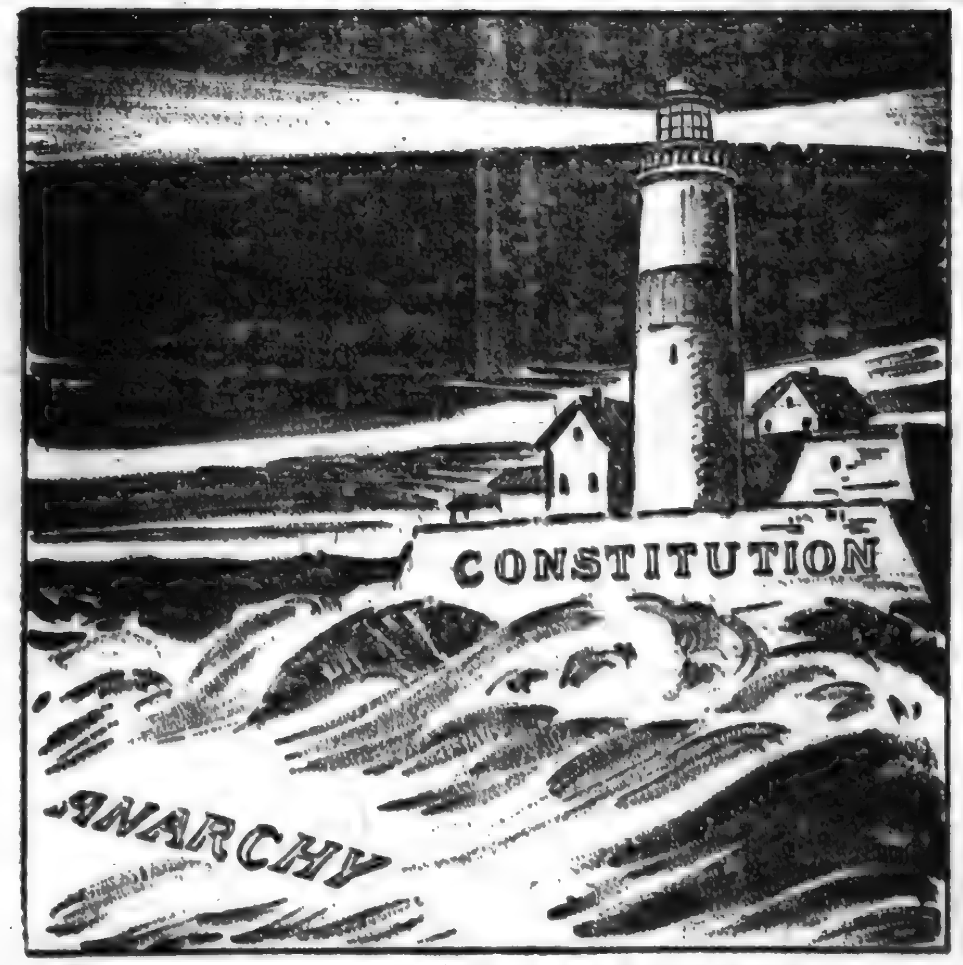
Come and See These Games!

No. 1. To Uphold and Defend the Constution of the U. S.



Every man, woman and child in the United States can participate in the program of The American Legion and help uphold the above principle. Every veteran should help promote it by lending his prestige through his membership to the Legion. JOIN today!

When the constitution of The American Legion was being drafted, it was but natural that the first ten principles which formed its foundation should have been a sacred pledge of allegience to the Constitution of the United States.

The men who founded the Legion had come fresh from the battlefield or cantonment. In the wake of the World War, political anarchy had been let loose upon a world bled white by suffering, sacrificing and stark tragedy. Revolution had buried its fangs deep in the throat of Europe; class hatred clutched at the heart of civilization. The men who had defended America in battle were determined to defend the American form of government against this new menace.

Strangely enough, there were some folks back home here who actually dreaded the reutrn of the soldiers and sailors. They were afraid they had been tainted by the spirit of revolution which was sweeping Europe; they actually were silly enough to believe that the very men who had saved America would now destroy it and turn it over to the reign of communistic terror.

The American Legion gave a quick and positive answer to these aspenkneed brothers of fear. It adopted a preamble to its constitution, the ten principles of which left no room for doubt that the patriotism and loyalty of the veterans was far above that of those citizens who held them in such fear. And the first one of those ten principles was a pledge to "uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States," a pledge every Legionnaire must subscribe to when he becomes a member of The American Legion.

Whatever our individual views may be, it can not be denied that the Constitution is the basic law of our law, that it is the great charter which has bound us firmly together as a united people, pointing the way to reform in the orderly, the American way when the people determine that reform is ncessary. It is the most American thing about America.

The American Legion does not hold that changes in government are either impossible or impracticable. The world changes, America with it. The basic law of our land has been amended, and may be amended many times.

Within the elastic limits of that great charter, as written now or later amended, will be found the means to accomplish all that is needed for the common good. The right of the people to change their basic law can not, and must not, be denied. It is provided in the Constitution itself.

The American Legion does not fear, it does not oppose, the right of any citizen or citizens to propose changes to be brought about in the orderly constitutional way, reserving the individual right to support or oppose such changes as we see fit. We do oppose, and ever will oppose, those who seek to overturn our form of government by force and violence. You do not have to be a Legionnaire to participate in this program. You only have to be an American.

The Actor's Christmas Party

By H. Lucius Cook

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

ALL of the actors of the Zoroaster Stock company were good, but perhaps Billy Kelly was the best liked by the townspeople. Billy had been there six weeks, now, and was living at Mrs. Perkins' on Center street. Hence Center street was particularly thrilled at this time, because it had never before harbored a real live actor, and it could not quite get used to the idea.

Mrs. Perkins was a respectable middle-aged widow who had to take a few roomers to help out on expenses. She was not quite sure that it was right to have Billy rooming there, as she had an inherited prejudice against actors, but he paid twice as much as she had ever had before for the rooms, did not cause any extra bother, and so far as she could determine, was a human being much like the rest of us.

It did seem strange to her, however, that a young unmarried man should receive one hundred and fifty dollars a week when Mr. Perkins with his family had earned only that much a month. She wondered if it was honest. And then, too, she did not always know just what to make of Billy's attentions to her. Why, one time when she had fallen asleep on the sofa without a covering, he had gone to his own room and got his genuine Japanese silk kimona and covered her with it. She had found it over her when she woke up.

Mrs. Perkins had just finished telling this and several other incidents to the Ladies' Aid society, when one of the progressive ladies asked:

"Well, what are we to do with him for Christmas? It doesn't seem right not to do anything, when he is away from his people and all."

Everyone else had been thinking the same thing, but had not dared mention it, and none of them had any suggestions to make. No one dared ask him to dinner (they were so shy), and Mrs. Perkins herself, who really should have asked him, had decided to go to the hotel so as not to have to do so. They certainly could not give him ties or socks, as Mrs. Perkins assured them that he had hundreds of socks and thousands of ties, which everyone readily believed, as they had never seen him dressed twice the same.

It certainly looked like a cold Christmas for Billy. But next door to Mrs. Perkins lived a dear old maid who had been housekeeper for the Wellers for many years. Every Christmas she made mittens for all the children in the neighborhood, and when they grew too big for mittens, she gave candy to the girls and neckties to the boys. She was a community institution, but nobody ever thought of her in connection with Billy.

But when Christmas morning arrived, and Center street was busy with its toys, Billy had not been forgotten. The Perkins children were just opening their packages from the housekeeper next door when one of them discovered an envelope for Billy. He darted upstairs, and timidly knocked on the actor's door and slipped the envelope under.

"What could it be?" wondered Mrs. Perkins, for she knew it was no Christmas card.

She had not long to wonder, however, for Billy soon came running down flourishing a crisp new dollar bill which he had found in the envelope, and called to one of the children coming he told Mrs. Perkins of the welcome present, and how it had suggested to him to give a party next door in honor of the housekeeper. He told her to take the children over there quickly, as he would be back in twenty minutes.

True to his word, he was there in twenty minutes, and with him the whole Ladies' Aid society, and, to the delight of everyone, a whole gallon of ice cream which he and the kindly housekeeper served to all assembled, with many jokes and much merriment. Then Billy sang some rousing Christmas songs, kissed the housekeeper on the brow and taxied all the ladies home.

He had so many invitations to dinner he had to refuse them all, but he was not sorry for this as he joined Mrs. Perkins at the hotel, and he really liked her best of all.

Might Have Been Worse

"What did your wife give you for Christmas?"

"Nothing."

"That was tough."

"Well, it might have been a necktie or a smoking jacket."

SMILES

"Sap!"

"That means fight where I come from!"

"Well, why don't you fight then?"

"'Cause I ain't where I come from."

A man crossed a traffic-filled street while looking up at an airplane overhead. Three busses shaved him so closely that his beard didn't appear again for a week, the wind from six passing cars raised the nap on his last year's suit, one five-passenger car removed the shine from the back of his left shoe, and the drivers of seven others of assorted makes stripped their gears in an effort to avoid him.

After stumbling over a curbstone on the farther side of the road, the pedestrian was heard to murmur: "My gracious, those chaps do take risks!"

Chagrined by a critic's disapproval of a scientific book, the late Garrett P. Serviss, the noted writer and astronomer, once said:

"This criticism reminds me of the Pennsylvania Dutchman before Niagara Falls. He went to Niagara on business, and his host took him out for a walk. Presently they came to the great Falls, but the Dutchman said nothing.

"'Well?' said his host; 'ain't it a wonderful sight?'

"'Ain't vot a wonderful sight?' replied the Dutchman.

"'Why, that vast body of water pouring over the great precipice.'

"'Vel,' said the Dutchman, 'vot's to hinder it?'"

The decrepit old car drove up to the toll-bridge.

"Fifty cents," cried the gateman.

"Sold," replied the driver.

Under the weeping willow trees,
The village speed trap stands,
The natives laugh to see such sport
And the constable rubs his hands.

Printing
Is But a Small Part of the Cost

IN getting out a circular, circular letter or other piece of printed matter. The paper, the addressing, the mailing easily total more than the printing. Yet, in a large measure, the Results Depend Upon the Printing.

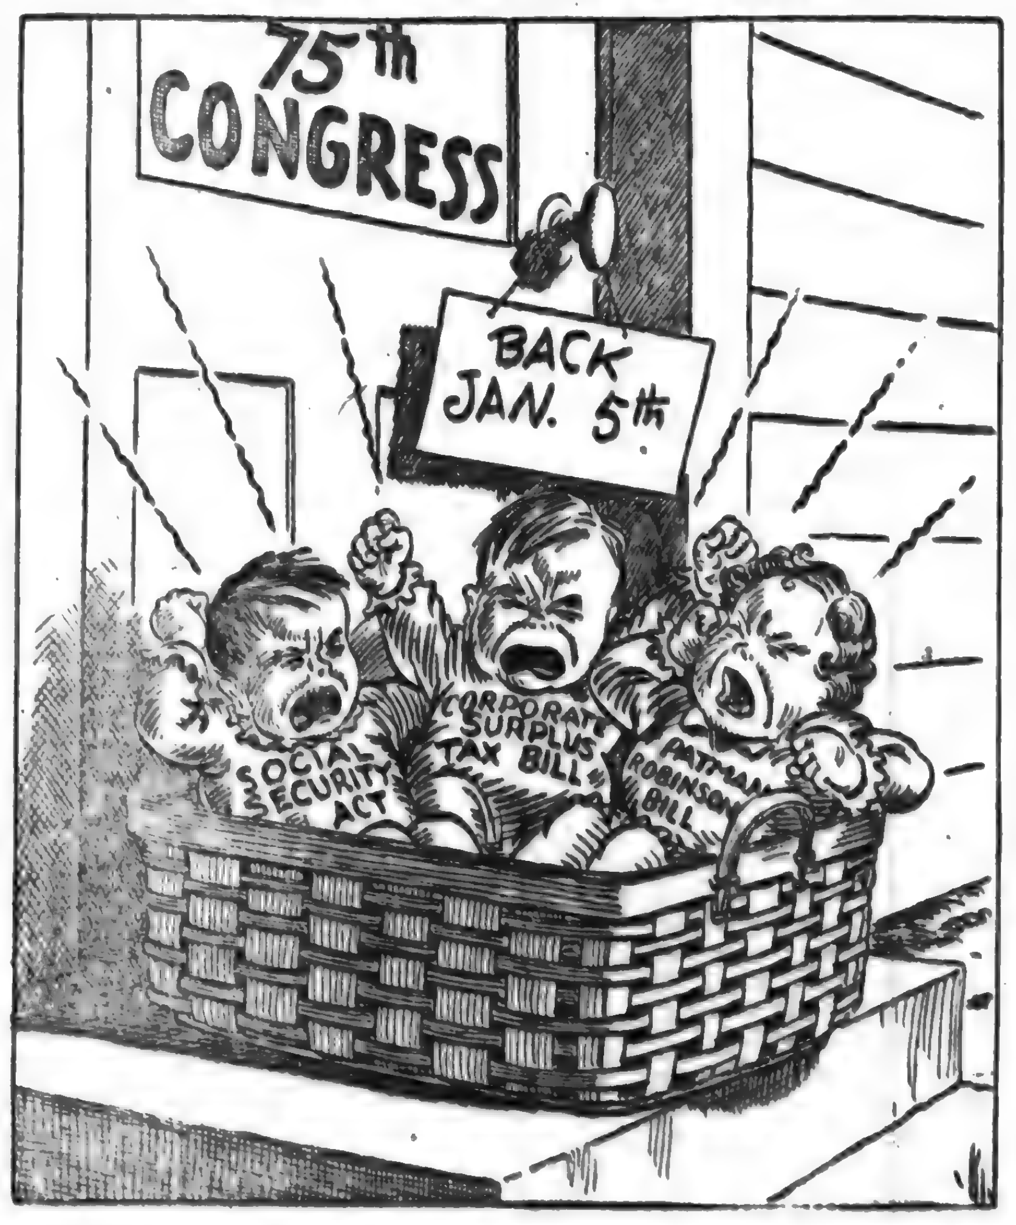
CRYING FOR ATTENTION



A REAL RECORD OF GIVING MADE

Concord Township can justly feel proud of her part in the Red Cross Drive ending on Thanksgiving Day. $70 was raised, which will help a great deal towards eliminating human suffering. The drive was in charge of Mr. J. B. Munn, Supt. of Schools of Concord Township.

BIRTHDAY RECEPTION

A company of thirty-four friends and relatives spent a very delightful afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart, Sunday.

The occasion, honoring the birthdays of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart, was in the nature of a surprise, very cleverly arranged by the host and hostess.

The greater part of the afternoon was claimed by pleasant, congenial conversation. Mirth was created by two contests, "Predicaments" and "Letters" conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Hart, a third, a Biblical contest, sharpened wits for ready answers. A table of gifts placed before the honor guests proved very interesting, disclosing many useful and pretty presents.

Miss Alice Hart and Mrs. Lehr Wilder assisted the hostess in serving tea, wafers and home-made candies.

Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Washler, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Laub, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Scholes, Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Mason and grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart and son, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Perry, Elwood Hart, Miss Alice Hart, Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Mrs. Alice Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, of St. Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Hart and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hart, of Hicksville, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pinkerton of Bryan, O., and the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart.

Here From Michigan

Mrs. Clara Maurer and son, Kenneth and Mrs. Constance Maurer of Union City, Mich., visited Tuesday and Wednesday with Mr. D. D. Burley. Mrs. Constance Maurer remained for a longer visit with her father. On Wednesday they all took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

R. H. C.

Mrs. Ines Hadsell entertained the R. H. C. on Tuesday, Dec. 8, at her pleasant country home, with seventeen members and one guest, Miss Baker of Specerville, present. Final plans for the Club's Christmas party, to be held at the home of Mrs. Ellen Hart, were made. A pot luck dinner at noon, and a gift exchange will be features of the day. A very tasty lunch was served at the close of the meeting, and election of officers for the coming half year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Minnie Gee; vice president, Mrs. Winifred Hart; secretary, Mrs. Eleanor Crothers; assistant, Mrs. Ellen Hart; reporter, Mrs. Mildred Curie.

LICENSED TO WED

Keith Davis, 21, farmer, Newville township, and Jean Ridgway, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway, St. Joe.

Lloyd Reade, 19, mechanic, Kendallville, and Wilma Bishop, 18, Spencerville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bishop.

HOPEWELL SCHOOL TEACHER EXONORATED

Dismissing a case against Walter Lung, teacher at the Hopewell school in Jackson township, from a charge of assault and battery on one of his pupils, Judge W. P. Endicott Saturday declared, "I am in favor of punishing children in school and if there was more of it I would have less trouble in court."

The boy involved in the case is Paul Tyndall, 11, and the affidavit was signed by his father, Elmer Tyndall. A jury was to be empaneled for the trial but a jury trial was waived.

The teacher accused Paul of smoking cigarettes and creating a disturbance and he admits he whipped him with a leather strap, striking him, the teacher says, six times.

The boy was taken by his father to the office of Carl F. Stallman, county superintendent. Mr. Stallman examined the boy and heard the stories told by him and the teacher. Then he decided the teacher had handled the case properly and he told the court that that was his decision.

"I will sustain your decision," Judge Endicott said. "Of course, I do not believe children should be injured, but I don't believe this boy was hurt very much. If there was more school and home training there wouldn't be so many cases in court."

VOTES IN DEKALB COUNTY COST 52 CENTS

For two years the votes in DeKalb county cost the taxpayers 52 cents each, while in 1930 they cost 94 cents and in 1932 they cost 70 cents each. This calculation is made from the claims allowed by the county commissioners, showing a total of $6,747 as against 12,930 votes.

Payments for the fall election aggregated $3,321, while the primary last May cost the county $3,426. The largest item of expense was for the members of the precinct election boards, the inspectors being paid $8 each, the judges and clerks $5 each and the sheriffs $3 each. The members of the board of election commissioners received $125 each. An allowance ranging from 35 to 50 cents was made for meals for the precinct boards.

Thoughts on the Holiday Season Communiy Tree Celebration

The Holiday season is approaching rapidly. This week our stores will become veritable beehives of activity. It is then that the job of the clerk or salesman in the average retail store is not one to be envied. It is rush, rush, rush from morning till night. Is it any wonder that sometimes patience gives way when irritated nerves are extended beyond the limit?

Shop In St. Joe

We urge the public, therefore, to do your Christmas shopping now, as early as possible. You cannot get the service and you cannot possibly have the range for selection if you wait until the last minute. Start your Christmas shopping right now, and start here in St. Joe. We have had an opportunity to note the stocks in local stores, and we assert without fear of contradiction that you cannot do better anywhere else in this section.

Home Decorations

Community Christmas decoration is another subject to which we like to direct public attention. A few years ago the writer visited a small city at Christmas season where the majority of home owners gave some thought to decorations outside the house. Those with evergreen trees in the yards lighted them. Others placed lighted wreathes and other decorative pieces in their windows or at their doors.

The effect created was highly pleasing. It was much as though the entire community were saying: "Welcome visitor, Merry Christmas."

Maybe there was no real dollar value in these decorations. But we certainly left that community with a pleasant recollection, and such impressions are always worth much though their value cannot easily be measured.

Community Celebration

This year a community Christmas tree celebration, sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary is being planned, all of which will bring the community together in this gala event.

Already the store windows have taken on this yuletide spirit in their decorations and every one seems to be in readiness.

At a meeting Monday night by the several committees plans were made for this event.

The living Christmas tree in the Wm. Strouse front yard, right down town, will be lighted this week with colored electric lights, and each evening next week will be lighted with the city furnishing the electricity.

The commuity program will be held on Wednesday evening, after which a treat will be given to every child present.

Every organization and the business men are co-operating splendidly with financial aid in order to put the program over, and the work and responsibility is being carried by the Post and Auxiliary members.

Come to St. Joe and enjoy the Christmas spirit.

CALVIN BROWN DIES AT FORT WAYNE

Calvin H. Brown, aged 79, former Allen County Auditor and widely known here, died at 12 o'clock noon Monday at the Medical Center Hospital after an extended illness.

Mr. Brown's death was caused by bronchitis, which was believed to have resulted from a severe attack of pneumonia in October, 1935. He was taken to the hospital Sunday afternoon.

Surviving are three sons, Jay M. and Kenneth M. Brown, both of Fort Wayne, and George H. Brown, of Danville, Ill.; three daughters, Mrs. Alice Fitch, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Bertha Ashley, of Cranford, N. J., and Mrs. Bernice Reynolds, of Fort Wayne, and a brother, Herman L. Brown, of Auburn.

Mr. Brown was born in Morrow County, Ohio, and has resided in DeKalb and Allen counties since childhood. For eight years he taught in the Leo School.

His first wife was a sister of Mrs. Wm. Curie of St. Joe and he remarried into the Henry Murray family at Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crick and Walter Brown and son, Fritz, of Fort Wayne and Raymond Crick of Anderson, were Saturday dinner guests of Charles Morr and family. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wyatt of Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morr of Fort Wayne, were Sunday afternoon guests in the same home.

Mrs. Sylvia Ginther is spending some time in the Larry Condrey home in Chicago.

Wilma Bishop, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bishop of Jackson township was married Saturday to Lloyd Reade, 19, of Kendallville, a mechanic in the Forest Garage. They will make their home at 323 North State St., Kendallville. One week previous the twin sister, Thelma, was married to Harold Smith, also of Kendallville, a farmer. The young folks have the best wishes of their large circle of friends in and about Rehoboth community, where they have resided these years and have worked faithfully in the church. Congratulations.

WANTED ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY VOICES

For the big Community Christmas Tree Chorus next Wedneseday Evening.

Details and program of this big out door event will be found elsewhere on this page.

We very much need fifty adult voices to aid the one hundred school children, especially when we sing, "Joy To The World."

We will rehearse for this Chorus next Monday evening at seven o'clock in the school gym.

The Legion sponsors this program so will YOU please help them to make it the very best ever?

Come to the rehearsal and enjoy a half hour of real, genuine, old fashioned community singing.

Committee.

WELCH BOYS IN TRIPLE CEREMONY

Three brothers, who went to Ft. Wayne, from their Spencerville farm a few weeks ago, were marrieed at a single ceremony to three Ft. Wayne girls before approximately two thousand spectators Sunday afternoon. So attractive have the three grooms found Fort Wayne that only one, Ivan Welch, aged 42, the eldest, is going back to the farm. He was married to Miss Helen Bowman, aged 34. The other two couples will reside at 1419 Boone Street.

The contracting parties united at the Faith Tabernacle by the Rev. F. W. Battenberg, are as follows: Dorothy Budd and Adrian Welch, Lucille Maring and Everett Welch Jr., and Ivan Welch and Miss Bowman.

The story of the three brothers was briefly described by Everett when Ivan had hastily declined an invitation to tell of the events leading up to the unique ceremony. Everett said:

"Ivan came up from the farm a couple of months ago, leaving Adrian and me to work it, and by and by let us know he was going to get married. So Adrian and I decided to come up, too, and look around. The funny thing is that we fell in love just as fast as Ivan, and we proposed and were accepted on the same night. So we decided we might as well start off all even in married life, too."

RAY HART TO SERVE TIME FOR STEALING

Ray Hart of Newville township, made an effort Monday to have his sentence for stealing modified, but failed. He will have to serve six months at the state farm and pay a fine of $1 and the costs.

Hart was placed in the county jail three months ago on a charge of stealing 70 rods of wire fencing from the Shilling farm near Concord. Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm said he found the stolen fence at Hart's place and signed the affidavit against him. Hart also was suspected of other farm thefts.

Hart at first pleaded not guilty to grand larceny, but reappeared before Judge Endicott a month ago and changed his plea to one of guilty to petit larceny. At that time he was granted time to take care of his potatoes and other crops, but was told that when he came back Dec. 14 a sentence of six months would be imposed. In the meantime he was under parole to his attorney, W. W. Sharpless.

Hart declared when he reap- that he did not take the fencing, altho he had previously admit- though he had previously admitted his guilt. Judge Endicott refused to hear him further and turned him over to the sheriff for the execution of the judgement.

Hart never started any proceedings against his former housekeeper, Mrs. Cora McCullough, who is said to have sold $150 worth of grain and hogs from the farm after Hart was arrested and then drove away in Hart's truck. The machine was afterward found abandoned in Fort Wayne.

Schoo lClass Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch very pleasantly entertained the members of the school class of Mrs. Koch, on Sunday. Those attending were, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Carper, Mr. and Mrs. Keplar Shull, Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox and Mrs. Hattie Fairfield and daughter. Other guests in the home were Stanley Koch and wife and Joseph Koch, wife and son, Jommie.

They Helped Make Christmas a Healthier (and Happier) Time for Their Fellow-Americans

By
ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IF CHRISTMAS this year is a healthier (and therefore a happier) time for many thousands of Americans—just how many there is no way of knowing—a part of the credit for that fact is due to two women. One of them was born on Christmas Day 115 years ago and the other was mainly responsible for giving her fellow-Americans a gayly-colored little "scrap of paper" which has become as much a symbol of Christmas time as holly wreaths, pine trees, red candles, carols, or even Santa Claus himself.

No doubt, you are familiar with the names of both Clara Barton and Emily P. Bissell, but you never happened to think of them in connection with the idea of a "healthy, happy Christmas." The purpose of this article is to show that connection.

* * *

On Christmas day, 1821, a baby girl was born in the farm home of Capt. Stephen Barton near North Oxford, Mass. Her parents gave her the name of Clarissa Harlowe, after the heroine of Samuel Richardson's Eighteenth century romance, but when she grew up, being a practical-minded young woman she dropped that romantic name and became known simply as Clara Barton.

If she had been a boy, perhaps she might have followed in the footsteps of her father, who had served in the Revolution under "Mad Anthony" Wayne, and joined the army. As it turned out, she was destined to go to war, even though she was a woman, but she went to alleviate pain and suffering, not to cause it.

Clara Barton was a sickly child but by engaging in vigorous outdoor exercise she changed herself into a robust young woman, a fact which was important to her later career. Even while engaged in teaching school (in 1854 she established at Bordentown, one of the first free public schools in New Jersey) she kept up her outdoor exercise. When she went to her New England home for summer vacations she worked in the garden and in the hay field. In winter she was a devotee of skating and other winter sports.

Service in the Civil War.

After a very successful career as a teacher Miss Barton went to Washington and served as a clerk in the patent office where she was working when the Civil war broke out. Then she determined to devote herself to the care of wounded soldiers on the battlefield and she was instrumental in organizing the sanitary commission which took charge of nursing sick and wounded soldiers in the field and in hospitals.

She served with the Army of the Potomac and in 1864 she was appointed "lady in charge" of the hospitals at the front of the Army of the James. In 1865 she went to Andersonville, Ga., to identify and mark the graves of Union prisoners buried there and in the same year President Lincoln placed her in charge of the search for missing men of the Union armies. As a result, her bureau of records traced out the fate of more than 30,000 "unknown soldiers."

During the years 1866-67 she lectured on her war experiences and afterward went to Switzerland for her health which had been seriously affected by her strenuous labors during the war. She was at Geneva when the Franco-Prussian war broke out and she assisted the grand duchess of Baden in the preparation of military hospitals. Also she became acquainted with the work of the Red Cross, the society of mercy which had been organized by Jean Henri Dunant, a Swiss, when she saw the horrors of war in northern Italy in 1859, and she gave unstinted aid to that society during the conflict of 1870-71.

EMILY P. BISSELL

SCENE IN AN ARMY HOSPITAL DURING THE CIVIL WAR

At the joint request of the German authorities and the Strasburg "Comite de Secours," she superintended the supplying of work to the poor of that city in 1871 and in 1872 had charge of the public distribution of supplies to the destitute people of Paris who had undergone the horrors of siege and the reign of the Commune. At the close of the war she was decorated with the golden cross of Baden and the iron cross of Germany.

Upon her return to this country in 1873 Miss Barton inaugurated a movement to secure recognition of the Red Cross society by the American government and finally, during the administration of President Arthur, saw her labors rewarded. Naturally she became the first president of the American Red Cross when it was organized in 1881.

Miss Barton's humanitarian labors did not end with the wars. During the eighties she was busy superintending the work of succoring the afflicted in the great fires which swept Michigan, in the floods on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and at the great Johnstown flood in Pennsylvania. She served as president of the American Red Cross for 22 years and to the end of her days, which came in 1912, she was the living exponent of the spirit which has made the Red Cross "the greatest mother in the world."

* * *

Presentation of the Original Red Cross Flag, Made by Clara Barton, to Chairman John Barton Payne at National Headquarters in Washington.

As for the other woman who in years past (and this year) has contributed to making a "healthy, happy Christmas"—Miss Emily Bissell—she was a disciple of Clara Barton in the humanitarian work of the Red Cross. Back in 1907 she was secretary of the Red Cross in the state of Delaware and was trying to raise money for an open air pavilion to help in curing children in her state who were afflicted with tuberculosis.

Four years earlier a man named Einar Holboel, a postal clerk in the post office at Copenhagen, Denmark, had conceived the idea of selling special Christmas stamps and using the proceeds to build a hospital for tuberculous children in his country. His idea had been highly successful and one of his fellow-countrymen who had become an American, Jacob Riis, wrote an article about it for the Outlook magazine in the summer of 1907.

The Origin of the Idea.

One of those who read Riis's article was the secretary of the Delaware Red Cross, who wondered if Delaware couldn't issue a similar stamp in order to raise money for the pavilion which her state division of the Red Cross wished to build. For Miss Bissell to think was to act, so on December 9, 1907, two pretty girls in Red Cross uniforms took their place at a table in the post office in Wilmington, and began selling, for a quarter each, little pay envelopes labeled thus:

25 CHRISTMAS STAMPS
One Penny Apiece
Issued by the Delaware Red Cross, to stamp out the White Plague.

Put this stamp with message bright
On every Christmas letter,
Help the tuberculosis fight,
And make the New Year better.

These stamps do not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry them.

The first day's sales were encouraging but Miss Bissell soon saw that they would not be able to sell enough of the seals to raise the required amount of money. So she made a trip to Philadelphia to enlist the aid of a newspaper there. It was the North American and its president and editor was E. A. Van Valkenburg, who had been the first to displease doctors by proposing publicity as the weapon to use against the white plague.

Van Valkenburg immediately saw what a great opportunity was offered by Miss Bissell's proposal. He placed at her command every facility of his newspaper to publicize the Christmas seal idea. As a result, the presses which were printing the seals in Wilmington couldn't turn them out fast enough to keep up with the demand in Philadelphia and the surrounding area, so a Philadelphia printer was enlisted.

Through its Washington correspondent, the newspaper got the postmaster general's permission to put up a booth in the Philadelphia post office lobby. Five days before Christmas the governor of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania branch of the national Red Cross indorsed the stamp. Four days before Christmas an editorial urged that "A Million Mercy Messengers" be bought by the people. Two days before Christmas "Happy New Year" was added to the stamp design, the demand having grown so. The day after Christmas more than half a million were distributed to city, state and nation.

Then came a flood of signed indorsements: from Washington; President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Root, Secretary of War Taft; from Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons; from other places leaders in public life, philanthropy and education all featured on page one.

A Great Success.

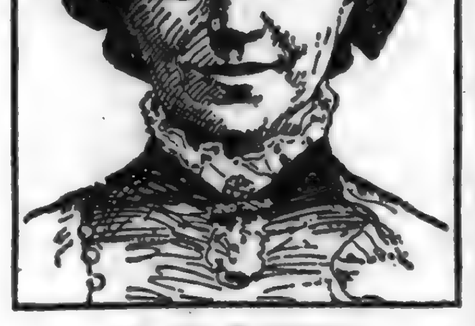
On January 8, a check for $1,013.97 was sent to Miss Bissell, the proceeds of the North American's part in this preface to stamping out the plague—several times the sum Delawareans had wanted to raise and feared they could not get. And as much more from other sources in Pennsylvania. All told, Delaware and Pennsylvania raised $3,000 from this first sale of stamps.

As a result of this success, Miss Bissell was able to induce the authorities of the American Red Cross to undertake a nationwide sale of tuberculosis Christmas stamps in 1908. Influenced by her leadership, women's clubs, religious groups, various publications, as well as local Red Cross chapters gave their support to the sale. By such united and enthusiasic effort more than $135,000 was raised in the first national sale.

From 1907 to 1910, the National Tuberculosis association had been organizing a nationwide warfare against tuberculosis. Soon after the launching of this campaign came the establishment of open air schools for the care of delicate children, many of whom were known to have been exposed to tuberculosis. Other children who appeared anemic—run down, and in what was in those days believed to be a pre-tuberculosis condition, were also sent to these schools. The use of height-weight tables to determine the health status of children was very popular, and youngsters 10 per cent or more underweight according to the tables, were automatically dubbed pre-tuberculosis and listed as candidates for the open air schools. It was in 1908 that the first school of this type was opened in Providence, R. I., and it was not long before others were scattered all over the country.

These pioneers had the support of the foremost scientists, but very few funds for their work. To strengthen the organization's effort, the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis association joined forces to conduct the Christmas seal sale together.

The partnership between the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis association lasted 10 years. During that time the scarlet emblem of the American Red Cross appeared on the annual issues of Christmas seals. In 1919, however, the double-barred cross, international emblem of the anti-tuberculosis campaign and trade mark of the National Tuberculosis association, was also embodied in the design of the seal. Since 1920, the seals have been "Tuberculosis Christmas seals."



CLARA BARTON

* * *

The use of these seals has become an accepted part of the holiday celebration in this country—a veritable Christmas tradition. Since they came into existence through a chain of circumstances in which two women, serving humanity by their work in the Red Cross, played important parts, that is the reason for remembering Clara Barton and Emily Bissell at Christmas as two women who helped make it a healthier (and therefore a happier) time for their fellow-Americans.

"The Man Who-O-O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE LADY CANDIDATE

EVER hear of Mrs. Belva Lockwood of New York? She was the woman who was twice a candidate for the presidency of the United States on the Equal Suffrage ticket. That she was defeated on both occasions is beside the point. The record shows that she was perhaps the most stalwart of the early-day advocates of "emancipation" in all its forms for the lovelier sex. And she accomplished most for them.

In 1882, two years before her likenesses were seen on presidential banners, Mrs. Lockwood obtained the admission of women to the Supreme Court of the United States. It was the culmination of a five-year battle, launched at the Suffrage convention in Lincoln hall, Washington, in 1877.

Mrs. Lockwood was a practicing attorney herself. For three years she had been empowered to appear before the Supreme Court of the District but was barred from the United States body by lack of precedent. She established the precedent. But it required a follow-up campaign of briefs, speeches and bills to obtain the desired end.

The speech of Mrs. Lockwood at the 1877 convention was convincing to her hearers. Contrary to current recollections of the masculine type of woman who first demanded political equality, she is described in a convention report as entirely feminine. As an example: Mrs. Lockwood wore a velvet dress and train.

Mrs. Lockwood was a candidate in 1888 as well as in 1884. She was active in public life almost to the day of her death in 1917, when eighty-seven years old. After women were allowed before the United States Supreme Court she championed the right of Negro lawyers to appear there. Then she shouldered legal cudgels for the Indians, went as a peace commissioner to Europe, engaged in a score of other worthwhile activities.

BALLOTS OF HATE

THE presence this year of a nationally known newspaper publisher on the ticket of a major political party has excited interest in the part newspaper men have taken as candidates in the past.

One of them who was very active was Horace Greeley of New York Tribune fame, a candidate of the "Liberal Republicans" and endorsed by the Democrats to oppose the reelection of Grant in 1872.

Greeley was made a presidential candidate by a reform group of Republicans which had found its nucleus in Missouri with the election of one of its leaders as governor and later held a national convention at Cincinnati.

The Cincinnati convention expected its candidate and platform to be accepted by the Democratic organization, sadly broken up by the disenfranchisement of southerners in the wake of the Civil war. So everyone was amazed when Greeley was named presidential candidate.

During the war, Greeley, a chronic sufferer from nervous disorders, had been erratic in his editorial positions, shifted them frequently—always with the belief that he was expressing what most people wanted.

While the South was still under arms, he had declared with great passion that the war should not end while slavery existed, yet petitioned Lincoln to appoint him commissioner to arrange a peace.

The result of all this was that he was threatened throughout the South and thoroughly hated there. Yet after the war he signed the bail bond of Jefferson Davis.

When the Democrats met at Baltimore a little more than two months after Greeley's nomination they adopted the Greeley ticket because they felt it their only means of opposing Grant.

A small group, it is true, broke away from the main body of Democrats, held a second convention in September at Louisville and placed a third ticket in the field.

Grant didn't fuss around with the election. He won overwhelmingly. It was the first time since the Civil war that all the states voted and Grant carried all but six of them, getting 272 electoral votes.

The states Grant didn't win—Missouri, Maryland, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, were fairly representative of the territory which hated Greeley. But Greeley died before the results were known. These states would have given him 66 votes had he lived.

Explains Lightning

Why certain trees are more apt to be struck by lightning is explained by Dr. W. J. Humphreys in the Kansas City Star. "In general, the trees most likely to be struck are those that have either an extensive root system like the locust, or deep tap-roots like the pine, and this for the very obvious reason that they are the best grounded and therefore, on the whole, offer the least electrical resistance."

After His Visit

CHRISTMAS AMONG THE PINES

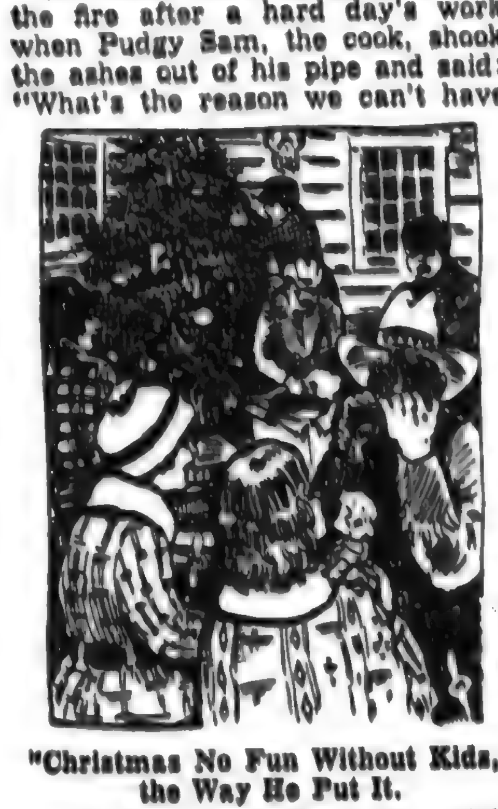
By

Jocile Webb Pearson

BIG BILL, in spite of his six foot four was a boy at heart. Boss of a logging crew he could be plenty stern when occasion demanded, but a Christmas tree and all the lights and cheer that goes with it was his weakness.

"Christmas is no fun without kids," was the way he put it. But, it looked like Bill was doomed to disappointment this year.

The crew were lounging around the fire after a hard day's work when Pudgy Sam, the cook, shook the ashes out of his pipe and said: "What's the reason we can't have a Christmas just like home right here? Plenty trees, if we can muster the trimmin's."



"Christmas No Fun Without Kids," the Way He Put It.

Bob, the kid dishwasher, was all enthusiasm. "We've got popcorn. I've strung yards at home for mom. Sam's got a harmonica, and Dave a Jews harp, an' some of you fellows can sing. And I'll trim the tree."

"The Boss wouldn't think much of a Christmas without kids," put in Dave. "There's the Martins. They got a couple kids; we can ring them in. I was by there t'other day an' heard them talkin' about Santa comin'."

"Boss said Martin looks sort of beat out, too," said another. "Suppose we appoint Bob, here as a committee of one to extend our invitation for them to join us. I feel we owe them something, the way they helped us when some of the men had flu."

Big Bill was jubilant with their plans. "You fellows took the wind out of my sails, but you'll do a better job than I could."

"Oh Little Town of Bethlehem," lead by Sam's harmonica, floated out from lusty throats upon another star-strewn night.

Big Bill in a scrambled suit of red flannel and a hemp beard was a satisfactory Santa Claus to at least two happy children. He handed out gifts to everyone. Sam had done his best on the feast that followed, and everybody joined in the "three cheers and a tiger" for a jolly Christmas among the Oregon pines.

A House Built Christmas Day

. . . by . . .

Frances Grinstead

A HOME that was built on a Christmas day stood for a long time on the old Santa Fe trail where it passed near Arrow Rock, Mo., on the Missouri river. Though not quite completed in a single day, with the help of his neighbors on that "holiday" about a hundred years ago, Henry Nave got his cabin ready for his family and the day after Christmas took them into his shelter.

Of course the house was built of undressed lumber, felled right on his farm. When he had selected the location this pioneer cut down round poles for the walls, rafters and joists—the framework.

Mr. Nave had found some large, flat stones, and in the afternoon they dragged these into place for the hearth. Then of other suitable rocks, by much puffing and pulling they built a fireplace—one of those great practical ones which served to heat the home and to cook venison, buffalo meat, corn pone and other "victuals." The exterior of this fireplace was wood, the stones providing a fireproof lining.

The mortar to bind the stones was chiefly mud; to obtain even this simple ingredient it was necessary to build a fire in the middle of the half-constructed cabin and thaw the ground.

While the Little Nave Children Wished for Things.

But, writes this hardy woodsman, "It was not many days until we were living snugly in our cabin and in good health and with fine appetites."

Holidays among our ancestors were made occasions for such celebrations as this, but they never witnessed the cessation from labor ours afford. There was always need for immediate shelter, crop harvesting, or game killing. Hence log-raisings, corn-huskings, and gun-shoots were made social occasions. But do you suppose we ever have more fun than Henry Nave's family and friends had building a house on Christmas day?

TO COSTUME Designer Royer went all of the research information on wardrobes for the 20th Century-Fox production "Lloyds of London," which embraced four distinct fashion periods between the years 1771 and 1806.

The overflow work for the wardrobe department caused an annex to be appropriated to house the day and night shifts of seamstresses, numbering eighty to each shift, and other wardrobe workers required to create the costumes.

Eddie Cantor

The newest and one of the loveliest celebrities of the air is Deanna Durbin, the thirteen year old girl whom Eddie Cantor recently added to his Sunday night broadcasts over CBS.

Little Miss Durbin is really young — quite unlike some of the girls fresh from Hollywood who have conveniently forgotten half a dozen years. If you have heard her on the air you know that she sings beautifully.

Leslie Howard has refused, once and for all, to allow his daughter, Leslie Ruth, to make "National Velvet" for Paramount. If you heard her on the air with her father you'll recall what an excellent actress she was on the air. The story calls for a young girl—and Leslie Ruth Howard is just thirteen, which seems to be the lucky age for motion picture and radio debutantes this year. But papa says no.

They're still searching for the right girl to play the heroine of "Gone with the Wind," whereby hangs a story. In New York there is a young actress who has proved her ability on the stage, but has never made a picture. The question is—would the public go in greater numbers to see the picture if a well known actress played the lead, or is the story big enough so that, if the unknown girl gave a grand performance, the crowds would go anyway?

Monte Blue, a favorite with film fans for many years, plays the lead in a picture that rekindles the pioneer agricultural west of a century ago. He has the role of John Deere, in "The Blacksmith's Gift," a story which recounts the life and times of the man who gave to the world the steel plow. The action takes place in 1837 in the Illinois of Abraham Lincoln's day.

Mary Rogers, daughter of the beloved Will, has gone to work at the Twentieth Century - Fox studios where her father made pictures, and has the bungalow dressingroom which he used, and which no one else has had since his death.

The beautiful Mary deserves a lot of credit. Her father's influence would have helped with a movie career, but she went out and got theatrical experience instead.

June Lang

When you see "White Hunter," sympathize with Warner Baxter and June Lang in the scenes where they battle against a tropical hurricane. The hurricane was made right in the studio, of course, but was none the less violent because of that. Baxter and Miss Lang spent a whole day with that storm, what with rehearsals and retakes and one thing and another, and were black and blue when it was over, where they had been bruised by objects blown against them by the wind.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . It cost Claire Trevor $20,000 to visit her parents recently; she'd have received that sum for making a picture for an outside studio, when she finished "Career Woman" . . . The color in "The Garden of Allah" is beautiful, and Charles Boyer's performance is excellent, but Marlene Dietrich's makes you wish she hadn't been able to get the role away from Merle Oberon . . . When Eleanor Powell arrived in New York some time ago she gave an exhibition of tap dancing in the railway station, to the delight of the crowds.

Where Speech Comes From

Actual speech, so far as is known, is an exclusive accomplishment of human beings. It requires not only the ability to make finely differentiated sounds, but also the ability to associate them in the memory with objects, ideas and emotions, according to a scientist. A part of the cortex known as Broca's area is believed by most neurologists to be the brain center of this associative process. It is found in both right and left frontal lobes of the brain, in regions marked off from the rest of the cortex by depressions known to anatomists as the "inferior frontal sulci."

Decorating for Christmas—

Some Handsome Window and Room Ornaments That Are Inexpensive

WHILE windows may have been decorated for Christmas before now, the arrangements indoors seldom are made until inday before the holiday. The freshness of the beauty is wanted without any diminution. If the novelty has worn off, some of the zest of Christmas is lost. This is so true that many homemakers refuse to have windows trimmed more than a day or so prior to Christmas.

If you happen to be among this latter group, let me suggest that you take sprays of a tree that is misshapen and so very cheap and make a splashing bow of red crepe paper for each and hang one in every front window downstairs. Or have one in each downstairs window that is discernible from the street.

You can dot the spray with holly berries, or whatever you have in addition to the green. Or you can dip popped corn in red stain or dye, and touch the kernels with glue and secure them to the sprays. These notes of red, with their irregular shapes, are intriguing, sometimes being mistaken for berries and sometimes for flowerets.

Bank the mantelpiece over the fireplace where the stockings are hung, using sprays of the green intermingled with holly, mistletoe, pine canes, bayberries, or silvered or other metal painted motifs such as acorns, fine twigs with many fronds, etc. When everything is fixed to your fancy twine a string of wee colored Christmas tree electric lights through the greens. These will look ornamental by day and have a glamor when lighted during the evening.

Baskets filled with greens and dotted with the novelty units lend notes of appropriate Christmas decoration. Any small baskets will do for this purpose. There generally are some about a house, but if not, metal paint or green stain some of the little market baskets such as strawberries, brussels sprouts or tomatoes come in. Make a rope or lengths of paper braid for the handles, painted or stained to match the basket. If a length of picture wire has been wound with the strands of paper rope and braid, these handles will keep their shape when ends have been thrust inside the baskets close to their opposite sides. The handles can be wired or glued to the baskets.

TRACTION MEANS GROUND GRIP!

GROUND GRIP MEANS "FIRESTONE"!

TRACTION on unimproved roads in bad weather is a problem which has long baffled tire engineers. Sure footing on a muddy football field is also a problem. But during the wet, slippery football season of 1936, thousands of players depended upon the cleats of their shoes to bring them through for the winning play.

During 1937 thousands of car, truck and bus owners will depend upon the rugged rubber cleats of Firestone Ground Grip Tires to pull them through snow, mud, sand, or over any unimproved roads.

The scientific tread of the Ground Grip Tire is so distinctive in design and so unusual in performance that it has become known as "the tire that makes its own road." It is almost unbelievable how these super-traction tires dig in, grip, and pull you through. They are self-cleaning. Chains are not necessary. Equip the rear wheels of your car, truck or bus with a pair of Ground Grip Tires and save time, money and trouble.

If you have not already equipped your tractor and farm implements with Ground Grip Tires do it now — they will save you 25% in time and fuel costs, reduce vibration, and provide greater comfort.

Call on your nearby Implement Dealer, Firestone Tire Dealer, or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today. Start now to reap the many advantages of the Firestone Ground Grip Tire — the greatest traction tire ever built!

What if you don't understand another thoroughly! Don't your own actions occasionally surprise you?

Many lettered men have held basic ideas which someone with just a little more knowledge h a s moulded into a fortune.

Four different writers of old have said in varying ways "All is not gold that glistens." When to trust and when not to trust has puzzled many a good man. As St. Joe merchants who have survived the depression can well tell you.

The boy who always thinks he knows more than his teacher or parents will later always know more than his boss and maybe later always know more than his board of directors and maybe still later know more than any bum on the dump.

Plautus said: "Consider the little mouse, how sagacious an animal it is which never entrusts his life to one hole only." Many a man has been glad during the depression that he had early in life learned more than one trade in which to "run to cover."

Election is over and, generally stated, the President is sure of his place for four years longer, but he ran a considerable risk as to the safety of his popularity at home when he departed from his native land at this particular season of the year, leaving the country in the hands of a powerful rival for popular favor. Even Presidents have to watch their step as the time for the arrival of Santa Claus approaches. Already thousands of letters addressed to that much beloved saint have accumulated in the dead letter office.

Although dollar bills are not being used for shaving paper by those who are sober, coins are in demand to such an extent that the machinery of the United States mint is stopped only for oiling or repair. The statement that the mint is too busy to turn out anything but our own coins recalls, or brings to notice for the first time, the curious fact that the mint, like the corner grocery, has customers, the patrons of our efficient money mill being foreign goverments who call upon the United States mint now and then to make their metal money.

A WATER SYSTEM

It is the purpose of the citizens of St. Joe to secure a water system ample to supply water in time of fire, as well as for each and every home consumption.

This can be done with our efforts in securing a P. W. A. grant from the government which in most cases amounts to 55% of the total cost of construction, leaving only 45% to be raised by the town.

Our share of this cost can be raised as other small towns in our nearby townships and counties are doing, without placing any bond of indebtedness on the town or the property therein.

By securing enough users of water at a standard or nominal rate per month, which is the same in all towns visited by a local committee, $1.25 per month for a minimum of 3,000 gallons. The earning of the system will pay for itself over a period of a few years, and bonds against the earnings of the system only, can be issued and disposed of very readily.

Every citizen interested in the welfare of his family and town can rejoice in the fact then being a user, and booster for this public need, can do so much for his comfort and happiness as well as those about us. The proper steps are now being taken to bring this to St. Joe.

SOME PUMPKIN, EH!

Pumpkins in DeKalb county are going Siamese. A twin set, weighing six and one-half pounds, was brot to County Agent T. E. Myers' office by Earl Stimman of Jackson township. Raised on highland soil, the freak fruits were joined at the stem. The vine harbored three other pumpkins, Mr. Stimman stated. The Siamese set, the first ever to be reported to have been raised in this county, will be saved by Mr. Stimman and the seeds planted in a special patch in 1937. Though little hope is had that similar pumpkins will be raised from the seed, Mr. Stimman wishes to conduct the experiment to see if he can develop a special twin pumpkin. The Siamese set is complete in all respects except that it has but one stem.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Mrs. Clara McCann visited friends in Auburn Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sechler spent Tuesday in Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kees and Mr. and Mrs. C. Chorpenning were in Auburn Monday.

Sam Shilling suffered a light stroke last week rendering his right arm helpless. He is improving.

Mrs. Ruth Buss and daughter, Pauline, of Garrett, were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alvy Perry and Paul Perry. Ray Herrick and wife of Ft. Wayne, also spent Saturday here with Paul Perry.

The Spotted Poland hogs displayed at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago by Carl Carpenter, were sold to a West Virginia hog fancier. The light pen sold for 13c and the heavy pen for 13¾c. The cash awards at the show netted Mr. Carpenter $60.00.

Regular bus service between Ft. Wayne, Auburn, Garrett and Kendallville will be available in the event the Pubic Service commission grants the Indiana Service corporation permission to abandon its northern interurban passenger service at a hearing to be held at Garrett Thursday.

All remember the good days, by no means the old days, when a personal message was carried on fast trains from New York to San Francisco for two cents, and would welcome their return. Three cents is entirely too much to pay for such a srvic. Th Post Office Department, however, is pretty well satisfied with three cnt postage and intimates that there is no chance that first class postage rates will be lowered. So it happens that George Washington, whose serene but stern face appears on the three cent stamp, will have to put up with a licking for some time to come. If it is any consolation to him, he may note that the dirty work has to be done behind his back.

The increasing beauty of the new automobiles has created a demand on the part of new car buyers for more accessories, and this demand is making itself felt throughout the industry during the Christmas buying season as never before. Automobile owners are taking greater and greater pride in their cars. A steadily rising sale of accessories has been the result. Such items as a radio, heater, defroster, clock, or vanity mirror are now being purchased as Christmas gifts. They not only add to the appearance of the car, but they also increase the safety, comfort, and convenience of driving. The fact that the public is spending more and more time on the highways has greatly stimulated the vogue of accessories.

MORTUARY

KOCH

Josiah Koch was the third of fifteen children born to Gotlieb and Catharine Koch. The place of his birth was at the old Koch homestead, east of Spencer township, where John Koch now resides. The time of his birth was January 23, 1854. He had attained to the age of 83 years, 10 months and 16 days, when he answered the final summons, Wednesday afternoon at the Amaden hospital in Hicksville after an illness of two weeks due to a heart ailment. Mr. Koch has lived on a farm near Macy, Ind., for the past twenty-five years.

He leaves three brothers, Martin of Spencerville, Isaiah of Ashland, Ohio, and Romeo of Muskegon, Okla., two sisters, Mrs. Louisa Vesper and Mrs. Mary Byroade, both of Hicksville, one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Hughes of Hicksville, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Walter funeral home in Spencerville with Rev. J. N. Scholes officiating and burial was made in White City cemetery.

Electric
REFRIGERATION
PRESERVES FOOD SAFELY

THE old idea of no need for controlled refrigeration in winter has been generally abandoned. Enlightened modern home makers know that all the year round refrigeration shows substantial savings. Even in winter, we have many ups and downs in temperature which are conducive to germ development in food.

Milk, meats and perishable fruits and vegetables are all preserved safely the year around with Electric Refrigeration. Leftovers can be converted into palatable meals instead of being thrown into the garbage can. The government has estimated that $4.50 a month is saved in this way by the average sized family.

Install your Electrical Refrigerator today and begin saving now on food.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Case and baby of Wolcottville, were over Sunday guests of Merritt Sechler.

Miss Jean Ridgway, daughter of D. B. Ridgway and wife was married Saturday to Keith Davis, son of Stanley Davis, of Newville, at Kendallville.

A new electric sub-station is in the process of construction by the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., on a small tract of land purchased from Harry Kees, on the north side of road one. Monday, three large transformers were unloaded from B. & O. cars, which when hooked up to the line will furnish 12,000 volts of electricity, as compared to the present 7,500 volts. All this change has been made necessary by the vast amount of rural line construction in this section during the past year. Many miles of new line are now being considered by the company.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

EVERY person wishes to succeed. The things in which this success is desired vary widely. Business prosperity, success in professions, and in careers, are among the chief material cravings. But there are thousands of persons who desire above everything else that success may reward their efforts in bringing up their children to meet the exigencies of life without failures. There are thousands who want home happiness more than anything else in the world. There are thousands of persons who are ill, or at least not in good health, who feel that life would be without burdens if only they could succeed in getting well. And there are the continual wishes for success in governing one's temper and ruling over one's own citadel of mind and spirit.

Since this desire for success in one thing or another is universal, and since some persons win out, while others loose, it is wise to gain some insight into methods that are fruitful. Success does not come by hap-hazard ways, but by earnest endeavors and steady purposes. There are methods to follow.

Definiteness.

The first thing to consider is precisely what you want. Definiteness is essential. The next thing is to have faith in your choice, and faith in your eventual success in it. No one can succeed who is not convinced in his own mind of these things.

Speaking of the mind brings up the necessity of constructive thoughts, and thoughts of success. No one can make a financial success who is thinking in terms of lack. This immediately stresses poverty above riches. The thoughts must be just the reverse. This same thing is true of everything in which success is desired. The thoughts must be continually progressive. It is amazing how ways open and ideas begin to formulate when the thoughts are set in the right direction.

Guard against destructive thoughts toward those who could block the path. Rather consider how to meet and surmount such obstacles as may be in the way. There are sure to be some of course. Sometimes a person stands in his own light, and then he has something in himself to conquer before success can be attained. It is possible, however, to efface, circumvent, or surmount obstacles. Learn to rejoice in overcoming difficulties. There are many pleasures along the way of success as well as in its culmination.

Bed Linen.

The young woman who is getting things for her hope chest, and planning the needed things for her trousseau, often is puzzled to know how to select household linens with discrimination. A few hints will not come amiss, then.

Sheets and pillow cases should be torn, not cut, into wanted lengths and sizes. If the sheets and pillow cases are made at home be sure to remember this requirement. Each ready-to-use sheet and pillow case should have been torn and not cut before hemming or seaming and hemming. Then they will keep their shape, and the hems will remain straight, unless the person making the article has been careless, or the machine has not been handled right when the sheets and pillow cases were run through it while being made.

Look carefully at all hems. Also to reassure yourself ask the sales person whether materials in the articles have been torn. Very cheap sheets and pillow cases are apt to be cut. The material is probably stretched unevenly in the process of making. When cut straight across the goods it will remain straight only until laundered. Then the sheets will not fold evenly, and the hems will wrinkle peculiarly. Seams in pillow cases will make odd looking curves and not come as they should in straight and even lines on the exact side edges.

Closely woven fine-spun cotton sheeting in full width size for beds is an excellent choice. The sheets and pillow cases will be sufficiently lightweight, yet durable. Sheets and sheeting that is full of sizing will be slazy when laundered. High grade sheets are never made with center seams.

Protect Shingle Roofs

Neglect of wood shingle roofs causes the wood to dry out and curl up. Splitting and breaking away soon follows because of rusted nails. A coat of preservative shingle stain applied periodically — once every two or three years—will make a roof last indefinitely.

NOONDAY LUNCH FOR YOUNGSTERS

Food Should Be Both Tempting and Nutritious.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHAT are you giving the children for lunch when they come running in from school these crisp winter days? If a noon dinner is the custom of the household or if there are small children who must have their main meal in the middle of the day this meal will be the usual type dinner with meat or eggs or a cheese dish, potatoes, at least one other vegetable and a simple dessert. If, however, dinner is served at night the lunch will be a problem by itself.

First of all there should be something hot like soup or cocoa. Nothing tastes so good as my own remembrance of this in my childhood days. At the same time the hot beverage seems to stimulate the appetite for the rest of the meal.

If a milk soup is chosen for the main dish with such a soup as vegetable or fish chowder, plenty of crackers, or toast, and a dessert even the hungry boys will be satisfied if they can have several helpings.

Of course it is a good idea to add a salad of some sort unless it is to be served for dinner. Perhaps you will say that your boys don't like salads. I have found, however, that "cole slaw" is not considered a salad by many men and boys and that it is always well liked. Of course every mother should aim to teach her children to eat and like all foods and the salad habit is a good one.

Eggs and cheese dishes are also a good choice for luncheon. Baked eggs with tomatoes or with a cheese sauce, cheese toast, creamed eggs, a tomato rarebit, or toasted cheese sandwiches are a few suggestions. A combination of rice or macaroni with cheese and tomatoes is usually liked.

Hot cocoa or a cereal beverage made with milk is better on a cold day than plain milk. Cocoa made by the easiest method is fortunately better than when it is made in a more intricate way. I am giving you here the simple method which always gives a smooth finely flavored beverage.

Cocoa.

¼ to ⅓ cup cocoa (according to taste)
1 teaspoon flour
1 cup cold water
3 cups milk
2 to 4 tablespoonfuls sugar
Salt

Mix the salt and cocoa and the flour, add the water and cook in the top of a double boiler over the direct heat for three minutes after the mixture begins to boil, stirring constantly. Add the sugar and milk, heat until it begins to look foamy. Beat with an egg beater to prevent the scum forming on the top and serve at once or place over hot water and cook until ready to serve. Leftover cocoa may be reheated and served, as the flavor improves rather than deteriorates by standing. For young children half as much should be used.

Egg and Tomato Casserole.

6 hard-cooked eggs
1 can tomatoes
Salt
Paprika
6 cloves
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ cup tomato juice
½ cup grated cheese
1 cup buttered crumbs

Cut hard-cooked eggs in half and arrange around edge of greased casserole. Drain tomatoes and place in center of dish. Sprinkle with salt, paprika and cloves. To make the white sauce, melt the butter, stir in the flour, add the milk and tomato juice and stir over the fire until thick and smooth. Add cheese and seasoning to taste and stir over a very low fire until cheese is melted and smooth. Pour over tomatoes and eggs. Cover with crumbs and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Vienna Noodles.

1 package noodles.
½ pound ham, boiled and chopped
¼ cup cream
½ cup cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons butter

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender, drain in colander and let cold water run through them. Butter a bread pan, dust with cracker crumbs. Place a layer of noodles, then the ham, then the rest of the noodles. Pour the cream over this, sprinkle cracker crumbs on top and dot with bits of butter. Bake one hour in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until brown and crisp. Remove from pan and serve hot.

Baked Salt Mackerel.

Soak mackerel over night. Drain, dredge well with flour and pepper. Put in a greased pan and half cover with rich milk. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes until tender. Add one-fourth cup of cream and cook ten minutes more.

Orange and Onion Salad.

3 oranges
2 spanish or bermuda onions
French dressing

Slice the oranges after peeling and arrange with slices of onion on a bed of lettuce or endive. Dress with french dressing and let stand at least one hour before serving.

The Christmas Quilt

by

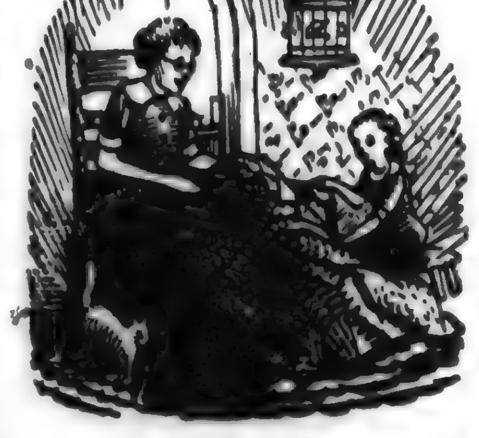
Blanche Tanner Dillin

THE snow was beautiful but made one feel somewhat lonely, Nancy Atwell thought as she stood at the window watching the falling snow. For an instant she regretted refusing the urgent invitations of her two brothers and two sisters to spend the holidays with them. Each of them had been insistent, but were all so far away it was out of the question, financially, and she didn't want them to furnish the money—and then for years she had spent Christmas here in the Connecticut hills with grandmother and she couldn't imagine it seeming like Christmas any place else.

Peggy North, her old and dear friend, had written that she could not get away for the holidays, so hoped that Nancy could be with her.

Nancy had done little toward any sort of festivities and had left putting up the decorations until the last minute. In fact she hadn't bought anything new—the old ones would do well enough. Perhaps she might just as well go up to the attic now and see what there was. It might seem more like Christmas with some decorations around.

As she opened a drawer in an old chest her hand touched grandmother's old quilt—"Grandmother's happiness quilt," as she always called it. It was just such a day as this so long ago, when sitting at grandmother's feet down in the "setting" room she had heard the history of the pieces in the quilt. There was no place here in the attic to look at it, so together with wreaths and garlands of tinsel she carried the quilt down to the room where she had heard its history for the first time, and spread it out on the bed.



She Had Heard the History of the Pieces.

Here was a piece from the dress grandmother had worn when grandfather proposed. Here was the piece of grandmother's wedding dress—others from Christening robes, party dresses, wedding dresses and dresses worn on other happy occasions—some almost in shreds, but still enough left to recall the stories to Nancy as Grandmother Atwell had told them. How grandmother had loved telling them and how she had laughed at some memory. Nancy had commented on what a happy life grandmother had had. No one ever had a happier one, grandmother assured her. How cheerful, unselfish, grandmother had been, never dwelling on her own troubles, but ready to help others in theirs.

Nancy recalled the times grandmother had been the means of making the path a little smoother, the pain less keen, by the gift of something Nancy especially wanted or the fulfilling of some cherished plan of Nancy's. And when Nancy was left alone in the old home and grandmother sent for her she must have guessed just how much Nancy wanted the rest and quiet the hills would give her. Nancy never forgot the smile and embrace with which grandmother greeted her — no rehearsing of painful experiences, but plans immediately made for happy days in the future. Nancy's loss had been grandmother's as well, but grandmother had never let others know the shadows that crossed her path.

What a satisfaction it must be to be able to help others as grandmother had. Then Nancy saw how she could do the same, in a measure at least. First she could give Anna a vacation over the holidays. Next she would wire Peggy she would be with her over Christmas. As she laid the quilt away after carrying out her plans, deep gratitude filled her heart for if she hadn't found the quilt she would never have known the happiness she now felt.

CHRISTMAS TIME

I HAVE always thought of Christmas time, when it has come around, apart from the veneration due to its sacred name and origin—if anything belonging to it can be apart from that—as a good time, a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time.

CHICK FEED NEEDS MINERAL BALANCE

Slipped Tendons Prevented by Care of Ration.

By C. S. Platt, Associate Professor Poultry Husbandry, New Jersey College. WNU Service.

Slipped tendons, an abnormal condition frequently found in chickens reared in batteries can be prevented by properly adjusting the mineral balance in the ration.

This difficulty arises from an oversupply of phosphorus along with a lack of calcium in relation to the phosphorus content of the feed. Baby chick feeds containing 10 per cent or more meat scrap, supplemented with bone meal, will have a phosphorus content of at least one per cent, while a phosphorus content of only one-half of one per cent is all that is needed for normal development.

In order to keep the phosphorus at the proper level, it is necessary to restrict the amount of fish scrap, meat scrap, or bone meal to five per cent of the mash mixture. Any protein required in addition to five per cent meat or fish should be supplied by milk in some form.

When chicks are being reared on a floor or are allowed to run outdoors, slipped tendons will not appear, even though the phosphorus content of the ration may be as high as one per cent. Regardless of the actual amount of the phosphorus present or the condition under which the birds are being reared, it is necessary for normal development that the calcium content be kept at a level two or three times greater than that of the phosphorus.

Iron and Copper Needs for the Poultry Flock

Chickens, like mammals, need both iron and copper for building hemoglobin, the content of red blood cells. The question has arisen whether practical laying rations contain enough of these elements to prevent anemia, or whether they could be improved by adding supplements of iron and copper.

Tests at the Wisconsin experiment station indicate that a practical laying ration will supply enough iron and copper to meet the needs of hens without supplementing the ration with extra amounts of these elements. At any rate, feeding additional iron and copper in the tests failed to increase either the hemoglobin content of the blood or egg production.

The pullets in these tests were of the White Leghorn breed and received whole wheat and corn as scratch feed, along with a mash consisting of 100 parts of yellow corn, 50 of oats, 50 of barley, 100 of bran, 100 of middlings, 75 of meat scraps, 25 of dried milk, 25 of alfalfa, 5 of iodized salt and 5 of sardine oil. The pullets also were given free access to oyster shells and water.

When Chickens Sneeze

Infectious bronchitis is one of the most dreaded of poultry diseases for four reasons. It is difficult to cure; it is infectious and it is usually fatal, besides being very distressing to the patient. One of the common signs that the birds have this disease is their coughing and wheezing in trying to get rid of excess mucus and clotted blood in the larynx and trachea. Here are other symptoms: The lining of these organs becomes swollen. There is difficult breathing as in cases of gapes. The neck is extended to facilitate breathing; there is a loud wheezing. Fowls violently shake their heads; there are paroxysms of coughing that terminate in death of the fowl. Laying flocks that become infected always suffer a sharp decline in laying and usually 30 days or more will elapse before they get back to normal.

In the Poultry Yard

Eggs are high in food value, but rather low in fuel value.

• • •

Improper temperature causes deterioration in egg quality.

• • •

Plan to keep the pullet laying flocks closely housed during the winter season.

• • •

Small amounts of salt are desirable in most rations for laying hens. Salt aids in digestion.

• • •

During the past ten years a big improvement in quality of eggs has been noted in the Northeast.

• • •

R. I. Reds are good producers of both eggs and meat. The roosters make fine capons.

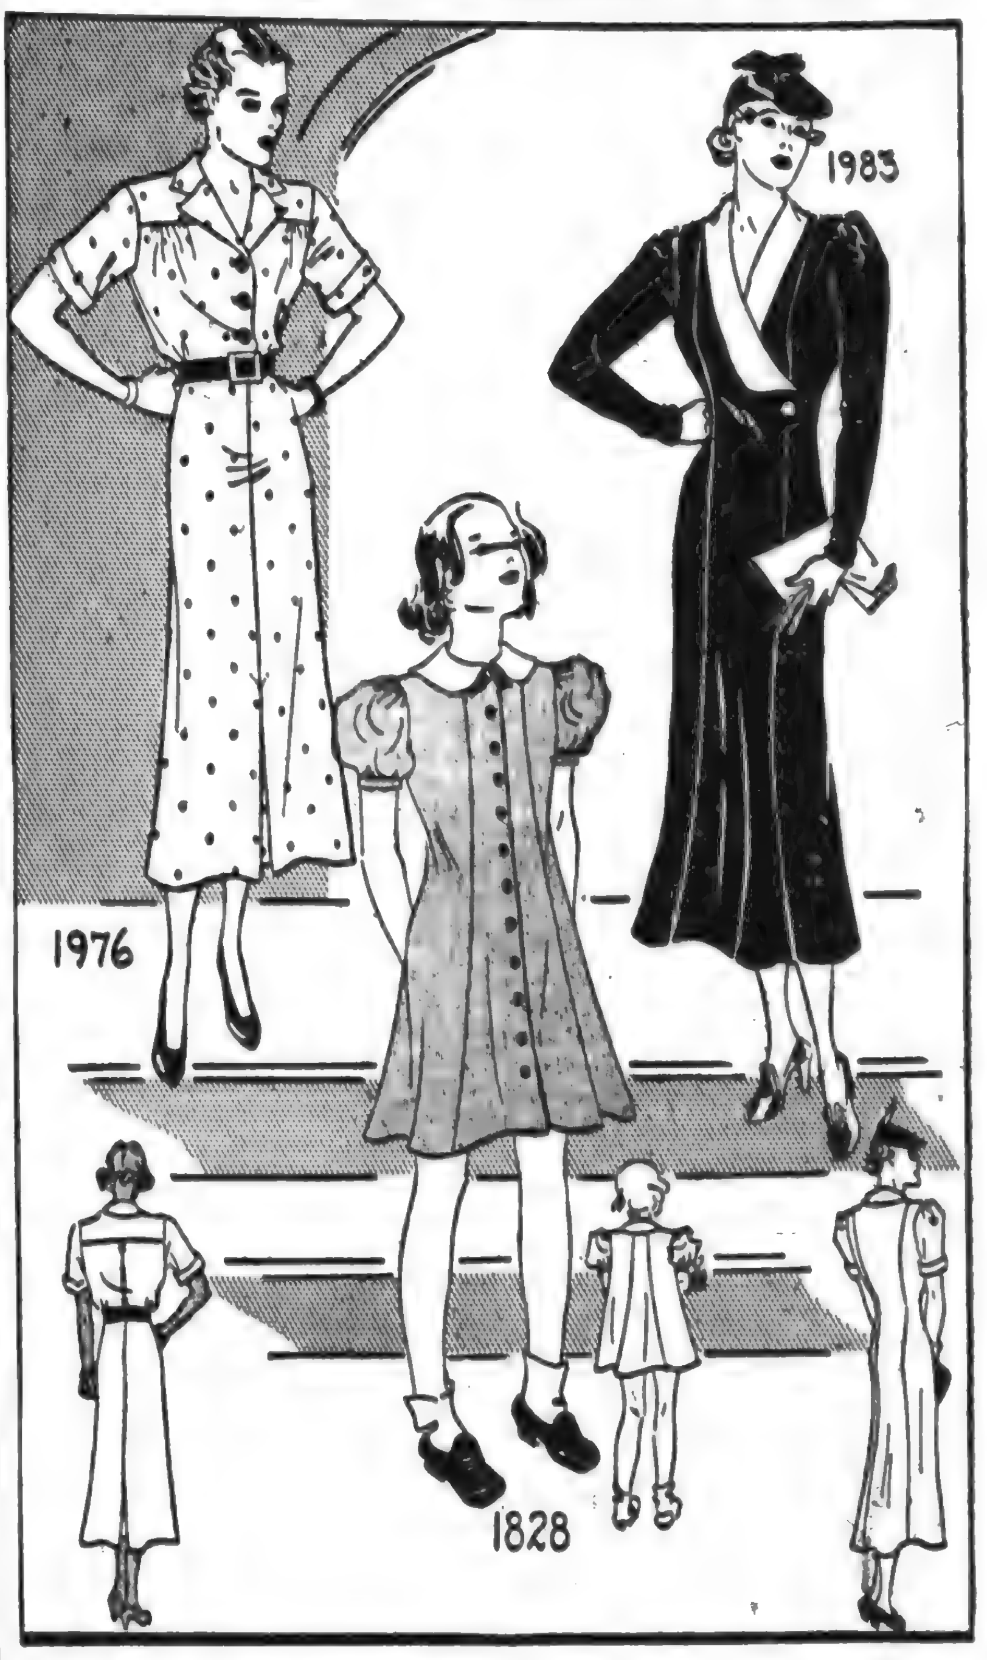
• • •

Poultry is a billion-dollar business in the United States and always will be growing in importance.

• • •

There are two varieties of the Rhode Island Red which are identical in color and type, but one of which has a single comb and the other a rose comb.

It's Princess Lines Again



AGAIN princess lines are riding the crest of the fashion wave. Good news for members of The Sewing Circle, for princess lines have always been favored by those who sew at home. And for morning wear, the timeless shirtmaker, a perennial choice for busy housewives.

The smart shirtwaister (Pattern 1976) is a utility frock distinguished for its trim lines and as easy to make as it is to wear. This extremely wearable number is available in a wide range of sizes. The notched collar is pert and youthful, there is fulness at the yoke, and the set-in sleeves fit well and wear forever. Send for Pattern 1976 in size 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 35 inch gingham or percale or shantung.

The slick little princess model (Pattern 1828) needs little comment for the picture tells the story utterly simple. Just seven pieces to the pattern, including the collar and sleeve band, it is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 inch fabric plus ¼ yard contrast.

The lovely daytime princess frock (Pattern 1983) is a model which can be made and worn successfully by 36's as well as 50's. There is a choice of long or short sleeves and there is just enough contrast in the graceful collar to give the frock a smart touch of distinction. Likewise simple — just eight pieces including the collar and cuff—this pattern is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50. Make it in satin, silk, crepe, sheer wool, broadcloth, challis, or linen. Size 38 requires 5⅝ yards of 39 inch of 3¾ yards of 54 inch fabric. Less with short sleeves.

Don't miss these grand numbers. A detailed sewing chart accompanies each pattern to guide you every step of the way.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

THE OTHER WOMAN LIVES JUST AROUND THE CORNER

IT may seem unreasonable, but most men cannot understand why a woman who is usually happy and loving should have recurring periods when her whole character seems changed. He cannot appreciate the distress, the discomfort that all women must endure. He does not know what it is to do housework with an aching back and failing energy. All he does know is that other women seem more cheerful by comparison.

Are you such a three-quarter wife?

Don't let the ordeals that all women face cause you avoidable discomfort or endanger your home. Do as so many wise women have —try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

MRS. ROY KOCH DIES SUDDENLY TUESDAY

All St. Joe was greatly shocked Tuesday morning to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Roy Koch.

She had been suffering with severe pains in the back of her head for a couple of days and Monday she became worse and Dr. DeMuth and son, of Hicksville, were hurriedly called also a specialist from the Lutheran Clinic at Fort Wayne was called, but without avail.

While Mr. Koch was fixing the morning furnace fire she passed away very suddenly.

Mrs. Koch will be greatly missed in the community with her musical ability and leadership.

The funeral will be held from the home Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein, officiating. Burial will be made in Riverside cemetery, with Mayola Kinsey & Son in charge.

The obituary will appear next week.

THIRD WEEK OF SPELLING CONTEST

The fifth, sixth and seventh grade spelling contests have been concluded with DuWayne Cook being the successful contestant in the seventh grade. Only five contestants participated in the event as follows:

No. 1. Imogene Staley, 12 years, Moores school, Miss Frances Miller, teacher.

No. 2. DuWayne Cook, 12 years, St. Joe school, Eloise Bowman, teacher.

No. 3. Nelda Kees, 12 years, St. Joe school, Eloise Bowman, teacher.

No. 4. Donna Mae Washler, 12 years, Spencerville school, Miss Ida Reed, teacher.

No. 5. Dorothy Hook, Newville township school, Carl Hart, teacher.

The eighth grade will spell the next time for honors and this promises to be an interesting contest.

The contests are open to the public in the room next to the bank.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club held its annual Christmas party recently at the home of Mrs. Ray Reasoner. The rooms were attractively decorated in the holiday colors.

After a short business session, an hour was spent in playing games and in contests, conducted by Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, Mrs. Glen Wineland and Mrs. Fred Hart.

The ladies each received a gift which was left under the Christmas tree by Santa. A very nice luncheon was served consisting of peaches and cream, homemade cookies and coffee.

There were 23 ladies present, one guest, Mrs. Joe Foltz. The next meeting will be on Jan. 6.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB CHRISTMAS PARTY

The holiday dinner party, sponsored by the ladies of the L. L. C., in honor of their husbands, was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Staman.

Mrs. Edith Cole was chairman of the committee on arrangements. She was assisted by Mrs. Thelma Baker, Miss Violet May, Mrs. Catharine Haller, Miss Janalyce Rouls, Mrs. Agnes Monroe and Mrs. Avis Staman.

The dinner was an epicurean feast with turkey as its base.

The house was aglow with festive decorations and the long white table was lighted by a sparkling Christmas tree, together with beautiful red and green candles.

The program was opened by a toast to "Our Husbands" by Mrs. Cora Curie, president of the club. It was continued by a series of toasts to the symbols of Christmas, Mrs. John Leighty acting as toastmistress.

The thread of this Christmas fantasy, dealt with the setting of the Christmas Tree, the Decorations of the house, the hanging of the Mistletoe, placing of the Yule Log, and the ringing of the evening bell. Mrs. Haller toasting the Christmas tree, Mrs. Dilley the Holly, Miss Hazel Storer, with an amusing skit, the Mistletoe, Mrs. Belle Woodcox the Yule Log, Miss Violet May Christmas Bells.

The story then moved forward to the preparations for the Christmas dinner. The table was laid in fancy and appropriate floral decorations were placed by Mrs. Buckingham in a toast to "The Poinsettia."

The gentlemen now made their contribution to the fun and demonstrated how much or little they knew about gastronomic excellence. They not only were the stars of the evening, as we were told by Mrs. Curie, but their toasts were gems of wit and good cheer.

Mr. Leslie Wilbern responded to the toast the Christmas Turkey with Billy Staman only a step behind, with "Oyster Dressing." The Salad course masqueraded as Pickles, dill or otherwise which was explained by Clarence Woodcox. Mince Pie, always a large subject, was bisected by Fred Leighty, and did we know what was in it?

Plum Pudding unfolded more things in its capacious interior, than was dreamed of by its maker, so we were told by Merritt Sechler.

The last of the mystical feast was "Nuts" with John Leighty as the Nut Cracker.

The program closed with a clever parody on The Night Before Christmas by Janalyce Rouls, in which participants of the evening received his classification at her hands.

The chairman, Mrs. Cole now took charge of events. Jingle Bells was sung and at that moment Santa Claus and his wife bounded in the room loaded with gifts for all. Thus the evening ended, and all agreed that they had been delightfully entertained.

Christmas Peace

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

To a troubled world, as this is written, returns the calm spirit of Christmas—to guide us anew along that footpath to peace from which man stumbles so pitifully when he relies on human vision alone.

For Christmas brings a pause, a breathing spell, in the spinning gyrations of human ambition and human striving. At Christmas time the voices of kings and of captains sound, somehow, less strident; the flags of nations flaunt, somehow, less defiantly; and men everywhere see the brother rather than the wolf in their neighbors.

That is because at Christmas time we walk not by sight, but by faith—the faith which the poet describes as "a higher faculty than reason," and the apostle as "the substance of things hoped for."

It is because Christmas comes as an annual, and—to a wearied world—a welcome, reminder that something infinitely greater, infinitely wiser than human reason keeps us from wandering too far from the path.

And at Christmas we remember, too, that Faith without Works is dead. The spirit of giving, which began under an ancient star still shining in the hearts of men, is an expression of that conviction. At Christmas all worldly joys are subordinated to the one joy of kindness—including that outpouring of fellowship and sympathy in which the poorest can share as lavishly as the rich.

This, too, brings peace—the peace within, which makes us realize . . .

That "sometimes, through the Soul of Man,
Slow moving o'er his pain,
The moonlight of a perfect peace
Floods heart and brain."

In this way comes Christmas.

PLEADS GUILTY TO ALTERING OF CHECK

Arraigned before Judge Endicott Friday, Nelson D. Haynes, 20, residing on North Randolph St., Garrett, pleaded guilty to a charge of altering a check.

Haynes, who has been married since May, obtained possession of a check for $1.65 made out with a pencil by Willard Hurni of George Freece's Sons of Nappanee, to C. C. Kelley and he changed the amount to $21.65. "I used the money to pay on my furniture," the youth said.

A confession was secured from Haynes by Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm and his deputy, C. M. Minnich, and Mr. Hurni, who lives at St. Joe, signed the affidavit prepared by Prosecuting Attorney Geo. E. Mountz.

The court took the case under advisement. During the afternoon the defendant's father, Wm. Haynes, north of Garrett, and his brother, Arthur Haynes of Auburn, interceded for him. The loss of the check was made good and the court suspended a sentence of two to fourteen years to the reformatory. A fine of $10 and the costs were paid and young Haynes was paroled to his brother.

FIDAC ALLY TO WORLD PEACE

Makes Specific Contribution to Prevention of War

FIDAC, or the Federation Interallies Des Anciens Combattants, an organization of 8,000,000 World War veterans of eleven allied countries, in which the United States is represented by the American Legion, pledged itself anew resolutely to fight for World Peace at its 17th annual Congress held at Warsaw, Poland. The Congress adopted the following resolution:

"Fidac, assembled in its annual Congress, reiterates its former determination to use all its efforts in the cause of peace. As veterans of the World War, who know the horrors and sorrows of warfare, we pledge ourselves to combat the false doctrine that war is inevitable. And we pledge all our efforts to combat propaganda of international hate and to aid in cooperation for the cause of world peace."

This was the report made to the National Executive Committee of the Legion at its November meeting at National Headquarters by the Rev. Robert J. White, of Boston, Mass., chairman of the American delegation to Warsaw Fidac Congress, American Vice-president for Fidac, and chairman of the Legion National Committee on World Peace and Foreign Relations. Other nations whose veterans' organizations belong to Fidac include Belgium, France, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, and Yugoslavia.

Cites Specific Contributions

Reviewing the peace efforts of Fidac during the 12 months preceding the Warsaw Congress, Rev. Mr. White told the National Executive Committee that it had labored unceasingly to bring about international good will and understanding. He listed the following specific instances of Fidac's peace efforts.

On Nov. 8, 1935, The Fidac Executive Committee approved a resolution expressing the will for peace of Fidac's 8,000,000 members, urging public opinion to show composure and apealing to the governments of Allied countries to find a pacific solution of threatening conflicts. This resolution was forwarded through diplomatic channels to the governments of all Fidac countries.

On October 31, on the eve of meeting of the League of Nations, Fidac addressed telegrams in accord with its peace program to Pierre Laval of France, Sir Samuel Hoare of England, and Baron Aloisi of Italy. When difficulties arose on the occasion of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, Fidac called an extraordinary Italo-Franco-British meeting. A resolution was communicated to the governments of Great Britain, France, and Italy. When relations became strained between Czechoslovakia and Poland, the national sections of Fidac in those ccutries exchanged "open letters" outlining their respective viewpoints. This explanation contributed to establish more friendly relations.

Increased Interest in the U. S.

Increased interest in Fidac in the United States was reflected by the demand for information on Fidac and its program, Rev. Mr. White said. The American Legion Auxiliary, he reported, printed and distributed 20,000 copies of the pamphlet, "What Is This Fidac?" The Legion distributed an additional 4,189 copies. The American Legion distributed 9,800 copies of the handbook on "Peace and Foreign Relations." A total of 1,150 copies of the mimeographed speech on Fidac and Foreign Relations was also distributed. President Roosevelt sent a message to the Warsaw Fidac Congress in which he stated, in part:

"Your organization, numbering in its membership 8,000,000 men in eleven countries, is in a position to make a great and lasting contribution to human welfare by continuing to practice as an important factor in its activities that true friendliness among nations in which lies the world's hope of peace and prosperity."

From the National Legionnaire.

THE NATION'S INSURANCE

Past National Commander Ray Murphy of the American Legion has said that the organization of World War veterans he heads is "the best insurance America could have." That is a large claim. So let's examine it.

Considering the Legion's history since 1919 when it was founded, to the present year, we certainly are forced to the admission that its long list of accomplishments are for the general public welfare, more often than for what might be termed the special benefit of veterans.

The American Legion began its career auspiciously. It has the great force which put to rout the greatest radical movement this country has yet seen. In 1919 and 1920, the radicals, anarchists, communists, and those of the I. W. W. stripe—based a strong hope for the conquest of America upon their ability to organize the returning soldiers and sailors into an overwhelming revolutionary force.

The radicals knew that there would be no jobs for the able-bodied veterans and practically no hospitals for the disabled. They knew that all of the glowing promises which rang in the ears of "the boys" as they marched off to battle would be forgotten as they marched back home. They knew there would be disillusionment, disappointment, and stark suffering. On all these things they banked.

What the radicals forgot was the inherent patriotism, the burning love for America, in the breast of the men who wore the uniform; what they did not bank on was the American Legion. If the American Legion had never since raised its hand to do another thing, America would still owe it an everlasting debt of gratitude for putting to rout the forces of revolution and destruction in 1919 and 1920. But the Legion has done things, many of them, since those trying years.

The American Legion found jobs for the returned veterans. It has stood as the greatest force for peace in this country; it has championed better education; it has gone in for youth training on a national scale, being big enough to recognize the outstanding value of other organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, and give them the benefit of its tremendous organization and prestige; it sponsors and supports 3,000 Boy Scout troops alone; its posts, located in every city, town and crossroads of the country, are sponsoring community service; they are caring for children who would be without care if there were no American Legion; and they are doing other things too numerous to mention here.

Sound judgment seems to confirm Past Commander Murphy's claim, lofty though it is. The honest decision of the court of public opinion must be in the affirmative.

The American Legion is "the best insurance policy America could have."

Start right, keep to the right, and you will probably finish right.

Some people feel that the middle of the road is meant for them. I have heard drivers argue that they like to drive in the middle of the road so that in the event of a blowout or tire trouble, they will have enough room on either side to keep the car on the road.

This is poor reasoning. Keep to the right and drive your car at a safe speed, and you will never be faced with the possibility of your car leaving the road because of a blowout.

Safety is 99% common sense—accidents are 99% thoughtless hurry.

Some drivers feel their ability to get out of a tight spot is a demonstration of skill.

Reckless driving is not a demonstration of skill. A driver may get a thrill from getting out of a tight spot by quick and expert handling of his car. He should not boast about it or get "cocky" from this experience.

A good driver never gets in a tight spot. He is always careful on the approach to intersections, schools, cross-roads, and other places where there may be a possibility of meeting other drivers.

The anticipation of an accident at these possible spots makes for careful driving. It's smart to be careful.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1937 NUMBER 1

MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS OVER SUNDAY PROVE FATAL

Accidents were extremely numerous over Sunday, most of them proving fatal.

A car turned over near the Standard Oil bulk plant Sunday evening, containing young people, but an eye witness stated he did not learn who they were or how the accident happened. They were only slightly bruised.

Butler Toll Seven

The worst crossing accident in the history of DeKalb County took place at Butler Sunday night at 7:55 o'clock when a New York passenger train snuffed out seven lives.

Two of the victims were girls living at Hicksville, O.; and the others were all Edgerton, O., boys. The list follows:

Marjory Roan, 15, daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Roan.

Gwendolyn Roan, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Layton Roan, granddaughter of Mrs. Evalyn Roan and niece of Marjory Roan. Both the Roan girls were sophmores in the Hicksville high school.

Richard Staup, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Staup.

Merle Sarver, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Sarver.

Lowel Blythe, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blythe.

Marvin Miller, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller.

Jacob Stauffer, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stauffer.

Staup, Sarver and Blythe were all sophomores in Edgerton high school and Stauffer was a junior while Miller was in the eighth grade. Three of the boys were members of the high school basket ball team.

At the inquest held by Dr. B. O. Shook, County Coroner, on Monday, it was decided the accident was purely accidental, that steam on the windshield believed responsible. The car was driven through the gates into the direct path of the fast east bound train.

The automobile was owned by the Sarver youth's father.

Betty Gruver, of Butler, had been with the group, but left the others at the home two blocks south of the Broadway crossing. Kenneth Myers, 15, of Edgerton, also had planned to make the trip, but made other arrangements. The mother of one of the two girls was attending a theatre in Butler when the crash took place. She went to the funeral home and collapsed when she saw her daughter's body. The two Roan girls were well known in their community as tap dancers and entertainers.

The train was running twenty minutes late. The locomotive was crippled by the collision and the train was delayed an hour while another was sent from Toledo.

Harlan Girl Killed

Miss Virginia Greenwood, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greenwood, of Harlan, accompanied by D. O. Hutker, 18, of near New Haven, enroute home from Muncie, where the young couple had visited, collided with a car at the intersection of Roads 8 and 1 at Fiat, in Jay County south of Bluffton. Miss Greenwood was rushed to Bluffton Hospital, where she died at 2:15 and Hutker passed away on Tuesday.

The car headed west on 18 was driven by Harvey H. Miller, 47, of Marengo, Ohio, accompanied by Bertha Rosencrance, 18, also of Marengo, who was killed instantly.

The cars were driving at a high rate of speed as there were no marks on the pavement of attempting to stop.

Miss Greenwood was an airplane pilot as were her sister, Lois and her father.

A $13,000,000,000 Tax Bill

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

A recently published forecast of the 1938 tax bill now piling up for the American people to pay, sets the total at more than $13,000,000,000.

That estimate, the forecast continues, is 35 per cent higher than in 1936, 30 per cent higher than in 1930, and 60 per cent higher than in 1921.

It will be collected through many agencies, Federal, State and local, but always from the same source — the public.

It represents 20 per cent of our anticipated national income. In other words, it will take one dollar out of every five earned collectively by the American people.

That is the heavy load on American enterprise and American earnings that extravagance in government—whether Federal, State or local — inevitably entails.

Announced with the opening of the New Year, the estimate introduces a discouraging note. It comes at a time when America has expressed its determination to spare no effort which would check recession and forward the progress of a healthy recovery.

But recovery cannot be attained by loading both labor and enterprise with heavy and disproportionate costs of government.

It can be aided by lightening that burden and by encouraging both labor and enterprise to progress. Promise of relief from unreasonable taxation would be one of the most constructive steps that any Congress or any State Legislature could take.

Many public men realize this truism, as recent developments at Washington and throughout the country have indicated. To them, the public should give encouragement.

And to legislators who fail to realize it—whether at Washington or in State Capitals—is due a reminder that every dollar of wasted public money is a dollar out of some constituent's earnings.

Money raised by taxes is the people's money—and to demand that it be handled without waste is the people's right.

NO CHANGE IS MADE IN DEKALB COUNTY

The county commissioners started the new year Monday by reorganizing the board and reappointing all members of the staff.

Following the policy of rotating the offices among the members, Arthur Grube, of Keyser Township, was made president, Wm. H. Brecbill, of Smithfield Township, vice president and Cleve H. Grube, of Stafford Township, secretary.

Cleve H. Grube started the last year of his second term as a member of the board. Mr. Brecbill began the first year of his second term and Arthur Grube is now on the second year of his third term. Cleve H. Grube was honored last month by being elected a vice president for the northern district of the Indiana County Commissioners Association.

The reappointments by the board Monday follow:

County Attorney, Edgar W. Atkinson, of Auburn.

County physician, Dr. M. C. Klingler, of Garrett.

County health commissioner, Dr. W. W. Swarts, of Auburn.

County highway supervisor, Clark F. Scholes, of St. Joe.

Deputy county surveyor, Kenneth D. Smith, of Auburn.

Deputy highway supervisor and mechanic, M. W. Baldwin, of Auburn.

Custodian court house, Wm. Stonebraker; janitors, Wm. Goe and Harpster Walter; matron, Mrs. Ella Johnson; fireman at the power house, Orville Summers.

All the regular highway employes were rehired.

No changes were made in the compensation, which follows: attorney, $400 a year; physician, $150 for the county farm and $40 for the jail; highway supervisor, $2 for each mile of county highway; the total being about 700 miles; deputy surveyor, $75 of county highway, the total being a- and mechanic, 50 cents an hour; custodian, $110 a month; janitors, $75 a month each; matron, $30 a month; fireman, $70 a month for eight months. The health commissioner's pay is fixed by statute on a per capita basis.

In previous years the commissioners have fixed the dog tax for the year, but this is now made permanent and uniform by a new state law. The schedule is the same as that decided upon by the DeKalb County board a year ago, as follows: male dag, $1; female, $3; each additional dog, $5.

TO HAVE SERVICES

There will be preaching services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday morning at 10:30. The Rev. Frank Stevenson will conduct the services, and there will be services every two weeks until further notice is given. Rev. Stevenson is a very capable young preacher and deserves the support of the Lutheran people.

The Independent basket ball team will be managed by Ed Storer this season. DuWayne Kinsey was chosen at a recent meeting but later he resigned the responsibility. Harry Hurah was chosen as treasurer and Donald Kinsey, coach.

FIRE DEPARTMENT RESPOND TO RURAL CALL

Fire caused considerable damage Friday morning at the Mrs. Elias Kline home, west of town, when the stove pipe burned out and set fire to the floor in the upstairs, through which the pipe passed to the chimney.

When the stair door was opened smoke burst into the face of Mrs. Kline. Vernon was at the barn and he was immediately called and with the aid of the family extinguished the blaze by the time the St. Joe Fire Department arrived.

Considerable damage was done to the plastering, floor, windows, and wall paper, besides burning up a bed and bedding and a pair of drapes prized by Mrs. Kline, and three dresses.

The family is extremely grateful for the help and issue the following statement:

"We want to thank all the people of St. Joe, Spencerville and surrounding community for responding to our fire call. We also thank the St. Joe Fire Department for their response and speedy arrival. Let's all give the boys a Boost.

Mrs. Mary Kline,
Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kline
and Family.

R. A. FRY RETIRES AFTER 22 YEARS WITH STANDARD OIL

R. A. Fry, of 409 South Indiana Ave., Auburn, ended twenty-two years of service with the Standard Oil Co., on December 31st and on the first day of the new year was placed on the retired list to enjoy the benefits resulting from his association with the corporation nearly a quarter of a century.

It was on January 1, 1915 that Mr. Fry started to work for the Standard Oil Co., at Grabill, Ind. He was there one year and was transferred to St. Joe where he remained two years and then moved to Auburn.

Mr. Fry, in recounting his early experience with the company, said that he drove a horse drawn tank wagon. When the roads were bad he drove three and sometimes four horses to the wagon. He made stops at St. Joe, Concord, Spencerville, Huntertown, Leo, Cedarville, Grabill, Harlan, Milan Center and Scio. Kerosene those days sold for 5 cents a gallon, with no tax and gasoline sold for 8½ cents a gallon, tax exempt. Motor oil sold at 28 cents a gallon. At the present time the company operates six bulk plants in DeKalb County and its distribution facilities make it easy to serve customers in any part of the county, with long hauls eliminated.

Mr. Fry said that the Standard Oil company had been "like a father" to him. By reason of his employment he has a home and a sizable block of Standard Oil stock, which with his pension and company insurance will give him a comfortable income the remainder of his life.—Star.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Our local market had liberal receipts and an active market this week. There were 78 head more than last week.

Lambs made a top of $7.75 with the best breeding ewes in the offering at $6.75 per head. There are plenty of thin lambs on sale and the spread between good lambs and poor ones grows wider each week.

Veals made a top of $11.80, with the bulk at $10.00 to $10.75 and not many as low as $7.00.

Cattle: Receipts of cattle were light again this week, reflecting a condition which seems to be universal among livestock markets. Prices are fully steady with last week's sale. Steers $5.00 to $6.25, heifers of like quality at about the same prices. Fat cows $3.50 to $4.80. Bulls $5.00 to $6.55.

NOT TO MARRY FOR TWO YEARS IS DECREE

Keith L. Wilmot and his bride, Irene Wilkerson Wilmot, couldn't get along, the former told Judge Endicott in the DeKalb Circuit Court Thursday in prosecuting his divorce suit.

The plaintiff, a resident of Concord Township, testified that his wife wouldn't perform her household duties and spent her time reading novels. He said, too, that she manifested a bad temper. They were married Oct. 22, 1935, and now the defendant lives near Lima, Ohio.

The plaintiff was forbidden to remarry for two years, as service of summons was secured only by newspaper notice. She was represented by C. E. McClintock, while Wm. H. Huselman, prosecuting attorney, entered an apearance for the state.

MORTUARY

HULL

Joseph Augustus Hull was born in Concord Township, DeKalb County Indiana, on October 21, 1860, and was the eldest son of Henry and Sarah A. Widney Hull, the father a native of Ohio and the mother a daughter of the Hoosier State. Henry Hull came to Indiana when fourteen years old and later settled on a farm of eighty acres which he cleared for cultivation. Afterward he purchased ninety acres more and prepared it for cultivation where a few years later his son Joe was to reside.

Joseph Hull received his education in the common schools and took part in the "literarys" of those days. At the age of eighteen years he engaged in farming for himself which he successully followed until age and health forced him to retire.

On December 7, 1882 he was united in marriage to Ella C. Baker, daughter of Stephen and Catharine Reasoner Baker, and to this union were born three children, Paul C. and Hubert E. who died in infancy, and Harvey J. at whose home in St. Joe the deceased had resided since the death of the wife and mother on January 13, 1928.

About twenty-five years ago, he became a member of William Hacker Lodge, F. and A. M., at Newville, Indiana, and when that lodge was discontinued he transferred his membership to Concord Lodge No. 556 at Spencerville, Ind. He was also a member of the Order of Eastern Stars.

Although he never made a public confession of faith, he loved the church and was an asosciate member of the Brotherhood of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at St. Joe.

He was an active political worker in his party, but took an independent attitude in later years feeling the best man should win.

A resident here of his entire lifetime has given his fellows full opportunity to observe him in his lines of activity, and his high standing was due solely to the honorable and upright course he pursued. Large hearted, generous, and courteous to all, he easily made acquaintances and enjoyed a large circle of personal friends.

After a two weeks illness, he departed this life at the home of his son on Friday evening, December 31, 1937, at ten thirty o'clock, aged 77 years, 2 months and 10 days. He leaves to mourn one son, Harvey J., one grandson, Calvin A., two brothers, Clarence H., of near St. Joe, and Delbert L., of Colorado Springs, Colorado, and a host of friends.

The funeral was held from the Lutheran Church Monday afternoon at 1:30, with Rev. C. J. Ferster, of Mulberry, Ind., a former pastor, at St. Joe officiating. Burial was made in Riverside Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The family wishes to express their sincere thanks to all their friends for expressions of sympathy in our hour of sorrow, to the singers for their beatuiful music, the donors of the beautiful music, the donors of the their services, the neighbors and the friends for their help, and all others who in any way helped to lighten our burden.

JENKINS

Ernest Leroy Jenkins, born April 28, 1867, near Concord, DeKalb County, Indiana, the first son of Charles A. and Lucinda Jenkins, both deceased departed this life Saturday, January 1, 1938, at the age of 70 years, 8 months and 3 days.

He was preceded in death by one brother, Thomas, and two sisters, Clara and Bessie, and is survived by one sister, Aletha Kinsey, of St. Joe, and three brothers, George F. Jenkins of Spencerville, and Harry J. and Fred E. Jenkins, of Fort Wayne, Ind.

He was united in marriage to Edna Wilmot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ella Wilmot, May 2, 1893, to which were born eight children, four having preceded him in death. Harold, of Cleveland, Ohio, Merrill, of Fort Wayne, Ind., Mrs. Florence Castelman, of St. Joe and Frances Barnthouse, of Detroit, Mich., still survive, together with six grandchildren.

He was united with the Church of Christ in Auburn twelve years ago and changed his membership to the Church of Christ at St. Joe soon after and was a member at that church until death, where the funeral was conducted at 1:30 P. M., January 4, 1938, Rev. Walter Coburn, officiating. Interment in Woodlawn Cemetery at Auburn in charge of Mayola Kinsey & Son.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to thank all who in any way helped us in their kind deeds and words of sympathy.

Mrs. E. L. Jenkins and Family.

LAUGH-A-LOT CLUB ENTERTAINED AT NEW YEAR PARTY

Miss Ruth Baker very pleasantly entertained the members of the "Laugh-A-Lot" Club and their husbands to a New Year's party, Saturday evening at her home north of Concord.

Seven tables were formed and the evening was spent playing bunco. Those winning prizes were Mrs. Marjorie Baker, Mrs. Thelma Baker and Mrs. Vera Jackson, and Mr. L. G. Fetters, Royce Gibford and Charles Morr.

A buffet luncheon was then served the following guests:

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo and son, James, Mr. and Mrs. Royce Gibford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coburn and daughter, Carol Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bake, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson and daughter, Iris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morr, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Krise, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Baker, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Fetters and sons, Wayne and Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morr, Mr. Sam Mumaw, Mr. Orla Baker, Miss Gazell Baker and the hostess, Ruth Baker.

After spending a very delightful evening the guests departed to their various homes with many thanks to their hostess.

The Laugh-A-Lot members will be entertained January 14 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook at Spencerville.

MAKES STATEMENT TO FARMERS OF INDIANA

"Not all farm income is subject to the ¼ of 1% rate of tax," Clarence A. Jackson, Director of the Gross Income Tax Division, warned farmers today. "Rates of taxation on farm receipts, as on any other income, apply according to the nature of the income or its source. The occupation of the taxpayer is immaterial, and the Law does not treat farmers differently than any other group."

"Of the income common to agriculturists, only wholesale sales as defined in the Law, that is, roughly, sales made for the purpose of re-sale, are taxable at the lower rate of ¼ of 1%," Mr. Jackson explained.

"Receipts to farmers, as well as to others, from the sale of products to a consumer, the sale of equipment or chattel property, the sale of livestock other than to markets, interest, dividends, commissions, rentals—among other types of income are taxable at the rate of 1%.

"All returns filed will be surveyed; additional tax found to be due is subject to penalties ranging from 10% to 50% of the tax and interest at the rate of 1% per month."

TOWNSEND MEETING

A Townsend meeting will be held in the assembly room of the court house on next Sunday at the hour of two P. M. The purpose of the meeting will be the explanation of the general welfare act that is found embodied in the Townsend Plan.

It is understood that the Townsend Plan is by no means a partisan movement. In fact no general welfare plan is or could be a partisan movement. Nothing can be partisan that has the best interest of all classes of people involved. Partisan means class benefits. General welfare means—general welfare.

The principal speaker will be J. W. Brown, the state manager of the Townsend movement.

Jeff Buss and his quartette will furnish the music for the occasion. The theme of the meetng is: It is necessary to understand a movement before it can be indorsed or condemned. "Our plan is to explain the Plan."

Believe it or not, hundreds of men who are sixty years old would have been rich if they hadn't dropped it all trying to pick up some more.

As a general thing, the rumor that has to be denied as many as four times usually turns out to be true.

The farmer raises his own feedstuff and his own foodstuff and cuts down expenses. It's the Fordstuff that causes him to worry.

It's pretty hard to trust the man who can smile when he reads that some millionaire has been stricken with a serious ailment.

Some married people find it so hard to stir up a fight that they even quarrel over how to make each other happy.

All that some women think about is pleasure—and about all the pleasure some of them get is in thinking about it.

About the only way coffee will break down your health is through losing sleep in trying to find a decent cup of it.

Still another question that bothers about nine-tenths of the people is how any of the other nine-tenths manage to get along without an automobile.

The cost of government may not be more than government is worth, but it's more than the kind we quite often get is worth.

The modern bride's idea of backbreaking work is having to operate a can-opener while her husband is around to do it for her.

Every husband knows that even if his wife smoked and he didn't he'd still be blamed for getting ashes on the rug.

The rising generation seems to know everything but one thing and that is that it pays to be good.

BE ON YOUR GUARD

Quite a few weeks remain before old King Winter packs his kit and begins his return to Polar regions, and quite a few things can happen in the interval. One thing especally that can happen, and a thing every reader of The News must still guard against is death through that greatest menace to winter motoring—carbon monoxide gas. Warnings against it have already been sounded in these columns earlier in the winter season, but it is still so great a hazard to human life that space can well be afforded to it now. Pick up a daily paper and you will realize from the frequency of deaths recorded the danger in starting a car in a closed garage on a cold day. This year the toll of death from this cause will run into the thousands, and yet there is no occasion for it. Just keep constantly in mind that you are safe so long as doors and windows of garage are open when you start the motor in cold weather. Otherwise your name, too, may yet be added to this year's casualty list.

THEN AND NOW

In a paper published in an Illinois city we note a comparative market report that ought to be of interest to every citizen of St. Joe and especially those who are capable of thinking back to what they now refer to as "the good old days." In one column the paper prints the current market quotations, in an opposite column the prices that prevailed in 1878—sixty years ago. The report shows that in '78 corn was quoted at 18c a bushel; potatoes, 15c a bushel; cornmeal, 75c a hundred. But flour was $3.25 a sack. Eggs were bringing 15c a dozen and "frying" chickens $1.50 a dozen. And country school teachers were getting $25 a month. Sixty years is a brief span as measured by old Father Time's yardstick, but when we compare these prices of sixty years ago with the price of the same commodities today it shows that we have come a long way in the matter of increasing the cost of living in a short space of time. And at the present rate it would be interesting to see another comparison, one made sixty years from now.

WHAT CAUSES 'EM

Motorists who wonder what causes the greatest number of accidents might try listening to Chief Flynn, for 30 years a traffic officer on the Chicago police department. He lists the causes in this order: First, speed; second, booze; third, horns, and fourth, carelessness. It probably will not surprise the average motorist to learn that most mishaps are the result of speed, though many had come to believe that booze had edged into first place within the past year or so. But few can realize that the horn—held by many experts to be an almost unnecessary part of the car—is responsible for so many deaths. Flynn explains that horns confuse both the very young and the very old, and they rush in front of a car instead of away from it. His entire list is interesting and worthy of study, and that part referring to the horn especially. Every motorist should think that over.

OWNING A HOME

The desire to have and to own the necessities of life is as old as the human race. It is a natural instinct that is common to animal life, high and low. It expresses a truth that is undisputed, and yet a recent survey shows that but one out of every five actually own a home. The largest majority, by far, are renters. Their chief argument for remaining in that class is that they can rent a home as cheaply as they can build one. In that they may be correct, but there is something about owning a home that far more than offsets any advantage in being a renter. There is security in knowing that you will not be compelled to move.

Those St. Joe citizens who own their homes enjoy a feeling of independence the renter cannot know. Home ownership makes for good citizenship and patriotism. A man's home is his castle, and the ability to say, "This roof above my head is mine" makes him a better citizen.

With the approach of spring there is going to be launched a nation-wide home-building campaign, and this community is certain to hear a lot about the subject before 1938 has progressed very far. Since it is considered today the most important campaign that could possibly be launched looking toward a complete restoration of prosperity, and as it comes when the nation has a shortage of millions of houses and must take some definite action at once, it is a subject that everyone ought to become interested in. Home-building will be the biggest movement in America this year, and this year should be the logical time for every man who has been postponing the building of a home to set about it without further delay.

IF WAR COMES

Everyone around St. Joe able to think back to 40 years ago will recall a battle-cry that sprung up as a result of a tragedy whose anniversary is now near at hand. We refer to the battle-cry, "Remember the Maine!" with which the nation went to war.

These older residents have doubtless by this time made a few comparisons of that historic occasion with events recently recorded in Chinese waters in which this country was, as it was in Havana Harbor 40 years ago, an innocent victim. It recalls that only a spark was needed to touch off the guns of war almost a half-century ago, and the battleship Maine furnished that spark. Knowing the horror of war through experience, and not hearsay, these older citizens cannot help but wonder if history is now about to repeat itself, with the Orient instead of Cuba the scene of a flash which will set the whole world on fire.

Every sane man dreads war. Every good American abhors it. For that reason, and remembering as most people do the terrible price this nation paid as its price in the last one, the average American insists that if we must again be dragged into conflict that it be through far more violent and far more destructive sparks than those which touched off the last two in which we were engaged. American life must, of course, be protected at all cost. But today, 40 years after there is still a doubt if the Maine was actually destroyed by enemies of this republic, and today, over 20 years after the sinking of the Lusitania, there is disagreement over whether or not it was actually engaged in transporting arms to the allied nations.

America enters the new year hoping and praying for peace. And if war outweighs her prayers, then this time she wants no shadow of doubt to exist as to war's justification.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Nobody knows, and probably never will, just who originated what we know in the business world today as "credit." It seems to be as old as barter and trade itself, and there has been barter and trade since the human race first came upon the earth.

Credit, as old as the business world itself, has in its more modernized usage become the largest part of business. Money we have, of course, as a medium of exchange, yet in actual comparison with credit money is really secondary. Today credit is money. Every business and profession, every individual, today computes and values credit on a basis of actual dollars and cents. A man is worth not what he may posess in dollars and cents but what he is "good for" from a credit standpoint. If his credit is good, he need not have a dollar in actual cash to make a desired purchase, but if his credit is gone, so is his reputation and his future is measured by how long his cash holds out.

Here at the turn of the year, when the average St. Joe man is endeavoring to balance his accounts and start with a clean slate—an old cutsom but a good one—is a fine time to keep this thing we call "credit" in mind and a good time to renew your determination to protect it and keep it good. After all, in rain or shine, in bad times or good, in sickness or health, credit is your greatest asset and your best protection. A wise man keeps his credit good because he knows that in an emergency his credit will keep him.

A BETTER MOTHER THAN THE HEN—ELECTRICITY!

INCUBATION methods that are inefficient, expensive or out of date, handicap your entire season's operation. You never realize what they cost until it is too late. For low first cost when getting started in the chicken business, there is nothing cheaper than the hen. But long ago the hen as a brooder for raising chicks was found to be costly and inefficient.

Successful poultry raisers recommend Electric Brooding. The cost is low, the fire hazard is absolutely eliminated, no auxiliary heating is necessary even during the coldest weather, and stronger, sturdier chicks, with greater resistance to disease, are developed.

He's An Industrial Worker!

YOU would naturally think of the man operating the tractor as a farmer. And he is a farmer, but he's also an increasingly important figure in the industrial world, not only as a consumer but as a producer. He's engaged in hoeing up a field of soy beans which later, after passing through various factory processes, you'll be using in the form of paint and varnish, soap, linoleum and scores of other products. Consumers Information points out that 91 million pounds of soy bean oil, a comparatively new crop for American farmers, was produced in one recent year. Of this amount, 2½ million pounds went into the soap kettles, 5 million into linoleum and 13 million into paint and varnish.

This brand new market for American farmers, who are now growing a large number of industrial as well as food products, has been developed, like many others, through the vast research programs undertaken by American industry, whose laboratories have added untold millions to the national wealth and also thousands of jobs for American workers.

The most important thing in all the world is the thing you have in mind to do. No sane man will leave his house unlocked, windows open, a fire burning in the fireplace, the gas water heater turned on, and the electric iron still plugged in.

No sane driver will leave his truck unattended unless he does the following things:

Shuts off the engine and sets the emergency brake; places it in low gear; makes sure that he is not stopped on a curve, or on a crest of a hill, or at any point where traffic can not see his vehicle from all directions.

These are some of the important things in driving.

HOW ABOUT A LITTLE TAX REVISION DOC?
OLD DOC CONGRESS

THE NEW YEAR
BY KATHERINE EDELMAN

ONCE again the birth of a New Year is calling us to high resolves! The bright, gleaming page that it holds before us is stirring our hearts to noble purpose! Ambition and earnestness have taken hold of us as never before. And we vow that we shall use all of the coming days advantageously.

Every New Year holds a challenge within it—a dare to do bigger and better things. As we look forward to the months ahead we are filled with enthusiasm; faith and trust in ourselves and our abilities burn strongly within us. We want to work harder than we have ever worked before; to plan and accomplish greater things than we have ever put over in the past. We look back with regret on the wasted hours and opportunities written on the page of last year—there were so many chances that we let slip by. This year, we resolve, we will not do that; instead, we will avail ourselves of every opportunity that it may offer and seek around for others that may be hidden in us, that we may do ourselves proud.

In greater measure, even, we make resolutions to avoid all the little pitfalls that made us trouble during the past year. We resolve to cut out the bad temper that cost us much in happiness and peace of mind; the sharp, sarcastic words that come so easily at times; the petty deeds of unkindness and criticism of which we may have been guilty. This year we will try to practice the golden rule as we have never tried before; we will try to give our friends and our folks the best that is in us, and we know there are many good deeds we can do.

A bright New Year lies before us! It is calling us to greater action and more noble and worthwhile living than any other year has ever offered!

As Scotland Observes New Year's

Time was in Scotland when New Year's far outshone Christmas in importance, and though the order is now reversed, many of the old superstitions survive to make New Year one of the gayest times sober Scotland knows. It is a busy season for the bakers who are making their hard loaves of rye bread and their fancy tarts and short breads. Their windows are festive with little ornamented cakes bearing iced sugar mottos wishing "A Happy New Year" and "A Merrie Auld Yule."—Detroit Free Press.

DORIS RESOLVES

By
ANNA L. NEWSOM

NUMBER THREE whistled at the crossing, slowed down, and came to a stop with a grind of brakes. Doris and Madge hurried up the steps to the platform. They said "good-by," and waited for the passengers to alight—the man whose trousers showed beneath his blue overalls, who held in each hand the hand of a sleek-faced youngster, the fat woman with a heavy coat—in this stifling weather—and three bundles, the stout old traveling man, the chic flapper, and the tall, dark-eyed man with two heavy grips.

"Did you see that man," Doris asked, as Madge gave her bag to the porter?

"Yes, now don't you go to smiling at him," admonished Madge.

"Not I," laughed Doris as the train started.

Doris went past her father's hardware store on her way home, but she didn't see the dark-eyed man in the office.

"And is that your daughter?" asked Lewis Hollman when Doris had gone. "Well she is the prettiest girl I have ever seen."

"Yes, and the dearest," said the father, "but as full of sentiment as can be. Believes all she reads in books about true love being synonymous with tempests." said the father.

Two hours later Charles Bowen brought home to supper Lewis Hollman, the son of an old college friend—now traveling for a hardware house.

When Hollman left at a late hour Mr. Brown said with a twinkle in his eye:

"Give your father my love—and bring your wife on your next trip."

Lewis grinned and was gone.

After that visit, once each month Lewis Hollman had supper with the Bowens. Doris had never asked her father any questions about him; but when Lewis happened in on New Year's eve—three days before he was due—and asked Doris to go with him to a show to watch the New Year in, she asked her dad if he was married.

"No, why," was his reply?

"He wants to take me to a show."

"Then go; you couldn't go with a finer chap."

Doris went and afterward Lewis said:

"Doris, dear, I've loved you ever since I saw you at the train—my first trip. Will you marry me?"

"But you're married—and my New Year's resolution is not to marry a married man," she teased.

"Surely, you knew that your dad—"

"Did it to make me love some one whom I couldn't have."

"Doris!"

"Lewis!"

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1938 NUMBER 2

HIGHWAY PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR 1938

To Blacktop Ten Miles—To Improve Other Roads and Start Work On Moving Fences for State Road No. 1

$91,000 IN HIGHWAY BUDGET

State Will Spend $300,000 In DeKalb County by Paving Road 27 Between Auburn and Waterloo

Plans of the county to blacktop ten miles of highway this year are announced by Clark F. Scholes, the supervisor. This work will be done on the Auburn-Ashley Road north of state road 6 and the extension of the Shumaker road in Smithfield Township.

Mr. Scholes states that on Jan. 17 his workmen will begin setting the fences back on road 101 from the Concord-Wilmington Township line south through Concord and Spencer Townships to the Allen County line. The state has taken the road over, but the county has the task of moving the fences about 20 feet on each side in order to make an 80-foot right-of-way.

The county will at the same time begin the ditching of the Butler Center road west from state road 27 to the Noble County line. Gravel is now being hauled in Jackson Township and the east side of Butler and Keyser Townships for maintenance of the county roads in that area.

The county has a $91,000 budget for 1938, most of the money being devoted to maintenance. It is expected the state and federal governments will spend about $300,000 in DeKalb County this year. The principal project will be the construction of a three-or-four-lane concrete pavement on road 2 between Auburn and Waterloo, a distance of five miles. The new section of road 327 from Corunna north to the Steuben County line, a distance of six miles, will be improved with grading and gravel. This route starts north from road 6 at a point a half mile west of Corunna and was recently taken into the state system. It is expected that the contract for the Auburn-Waterloo road will be let soon and the state has not announced whether it will have three or four lanes. This will be among the finest pavements in the state.

Supervisor Scholes states that the county built 10¾ miles of blacktop in 1937 at an average cost of $1,183 a mile. During the year the department acquired two new trucks and some road grading equipment. A fund of $5,500 was set up in the 1938 budget for new equipment and this will be spent chiefly for maintenance tools.

The county highway mileage is now about 875, including 42 miles paved. Total expenditures during the year were $101,129.36 and the balance on hand at the end of the year was $1,58. Disbursements for labor were $39,079.20; for gasoline, oil, etc., $21,876.34; for materials, $34,297.19; for insurance, $809.59, and for new equipment and repairs, $4,067.04. The inventory at the end of the year showed the department had $17,355.76 in equipment and materials on hand.

REGISTRATION OF VOTRES WHO VOTE FIRST TIME OR MOVED

Registration of DeKalb County voters in preparation for the primary election Tuesday, May 3, is now in progress, according to County Clerk Carl Walter.

Persons who are registered, but have not voted for two consecutive years, or who have moved out of the precinct in which they are originally registered, are required to re-register in order to vote.

Persons who will be 21 on November 8, or who have moved in from another state and resided here six months, are entitled to vote if they register.

Voters who have moved into DeKalb County from another Indiana County where they were registered must reregister here and have cancellation made of their previous register in the former county.

Monday, April 4, which is 29 days before the primary Tuesday, May 3, is the deadline date for registration and re-registration.

Mr. Walter stated that many persons eligible to vote will not be legally authorized to do so unless they either register or re-register. Any person who desires to ascertain whether or not he or she is properly registered is asked to visit the county clerk's office for authentic information.

The county board of election commissioners for 1938 has not yet been appointed.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts totaled more than one hundred head over last week. It proved to be a red letter day for sellers in all departments as prices on everything except hogs were well above last week's auction.

The bulk of the slaughter hogs were heavies ranging from 220 to 275 and brought from $7.60 to $8.15. Some light Yorks averaging 140 brought ten to fifteen cents above the heavier weights. Sows $6.35 to $6.50. Stags $5.00 to $5.25. Boars $4.00 to $7.10.

It was a wild day in the veal market; a top of $12.80 being paid rather freely for calves which would have been as low as second grade calves last week; few sold below $11.00 and the bulk brought $12.00.

There were not enough good lambs on sale to make a market but thin lambs found a ready market and fat ewes brought from $2.50 to $3.45.

Cattle trade was active; some quite good steers and heifers changed hands at from $5.25 to $6.70. Fat cows at $4.90 with cutters and canners within a price range of $3.00 to $4.00. Bulls $6.50 down and with the best milk cow in the offering bringing $71.00.

LESS TAXES WILL BE COLLECTED IN 1938

Total Amount on Duplicatds in DeKalb County is $713,337, a Reduction of $73,180 from Last Year

Most of the taxing units of DeKalb County benefit from the reduction shown on the duplicates for collection this year, the January abstract prepared in the office of County Auditor Frank E. Lyon reveals.

The total charged is $713,337.36, a decrease of $73,180 from a year ago, or nearly 10 per cent. The reduction in the last two years is $150,000. The current tax on the books is $571,906.95, a cut of $63,910, or 10 per cent. The delinquent remaining on the duplicates is $141,430.41, a decrease of $9,270, or 6 per cent.

The taxes due for collection include $19,211 for the county general fund, a reduction from $48,686; county welfare fund, $30,189, a reduction from $43,277; $30,189 for the county unit road bonds and interest, a reduction from $45,982; and $25,286 for township road bonds and interest, a decrease from $28,941.

Benefiting from reductions are Auburn, Butler city, Garrett, Altona, Ashley, Waterloo, Butler Township, Franklin, Grant, Jackson, Keyser, Newville, Smithfield, Spencer, Stafford, Union, and Wilmington Townships. The units increased are Corunna, St. Joe, Concord Township, Fairfield, Richland and Troy Townships.

Figures for Each Unit

The assessment against each unit follows:

Auburn $169,446.75, reduced from $187,229.

Wilmington Township $30,455.91, reduced from $33,448.

Report on Poor Relief

The poor relief taxes charged against each unit follow:

Butler Township, $1,738.69; Concord, $8,427; Fairfield, $1,668.09; Franklin, $3,208.42; Grant, $2,674.10; Jackson, $2,231.35; Keyser, $2,608.99; Newville, $296.89; Richland, $4,917.64; Smithfield, $1,813.95; Spencer, $1,231.36; Stafford, $1,744.35; Troy, $264.60; Union, $8,308.60; Wilmington, $3,368.93; Auburn, $36,177.71; Butler city, $1,949; Garrett, $4,471.17; Altona, $301.44; Ashley, $240.78; Corunna, $595.60; St. Joe, $2,049.91; Waterloo, $1,700.27.

The total property valuation is $27,444,450, which is a slight increase over a year ago. The cities and towns are credited with a total valuation of $10,051,100 and the townships with $17,393,350. The municipal utility of Auburn is valued at $158,610 for taxation and that of Garrett at $208,000. The Auburn utility plant was reduced $30,000.

The valuation in the towns and cities follows: Auburn, $4,517,350; Butler city, $1,218,100; Garrett, $2,691,960; Altona, $167,450; Ashley, $160,520; Corunna, $186,120; St. Joe, $259,480; Waterloo, $850,120.

In the townships the valuations are as follows: Butler Township, $915,100; Concord, $1,036,700; Fairfield, $1,112,050; Franklin, $970,720; Grant, $1,337,020; Jackson, $1,859,440; Keyser, $1,446,650; Newville, $593,770; Richland, $1,536,750; Smithfield, $1,209,260; Spencer, $870,530; Stafford, $830,630; Troy, $529,200; Union, $1,060,970; Wilmington, $2,105,560.

DEKALB TO SHARE IN GROSS INCOME DISTRIBUTION

Schools of DeKalb County will receive checks totalling $53,100.00 from the State in the current semi-annual distribution of teachers' salary funds made available by the gross income tax it was announced today by Floyd I. McMurray, state superintendent of public instruction. The checks are to be mailed January 15.

The county's share is part of a statewide distribution of $6,943,300, the largest single apportionment of school funds made since the gross income tax law was adopted, and the first distribution of state-collected school funds on the new basis of $700 annually for each teaching unit.

Payments on January 15 are being made to the school at the rate of $350 for each teaching unit, as compared to $250 a unit in the distribution last July. Teaching units are based on an average daily attendance of thirty-five grade school pupils or twenty-five high school pupils. A total of 19,838 such units were allocated in making the present distribution, according to J. William Bosse, director of statistics and finance for the Department of Education.

A similar distribution of $350 a unit is scheduled for next July, in conformance with estimates furnished school officials last fall when local property tax rates were being fixed for 1938.

In addition to school distributions, it is estimated that DeKalb County will receive considerably more from the State during 1938 than it received in 1937 to use for old age assistance, aid to dependent children, and other welfare services provided under the public welfare act passed by the 1936 special legislative session.

MARRIAGE OF FORMER TEACHER IS ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Borthwick, of the marriage of their only daughter, Priscilla W., to Mr. Donald Drummond, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Drummond, of Eton, Colorado.

Maybe you don't know it, but most of the houses that once lined Easy Street are now for rent.

In their ignorance, many people wonder how their parents managed to live without so many of the things that they can't possibly get along without.

Reform seems to consist almost wholly in trying to make the world seem better than the people who live in it.

Another reason for lower taxes is the people are finally becoming convinced that they can make better use of their money than the politicians can.

The wise St. Joe husband is the one who buys such expensive china that his wife won't trust him to wash the dishes.

We have also noticed that most people will give three cheers for a lot of things that they wouldn't give anything else for.

No farm movement is successful in the eyes of a politician unless it creates more jobs.

Next to losing your job after making the first payment on the car, nothing hurts like raising your head up under the corner of a half-opened cupboard door.

Some men are in favor of clubs for women all the time—and others only when kindness fails.

It's so much easier to dictate letters. Then you can ring in fine big words that you don't know how to spell.

Maybe that Vermont teacher who married one of her pupils only wanted to be sure that he would stay home at night and study.

Why is it that the man who loves to stay at home is married to a woman who wants to go somewhere seven nights in the week.

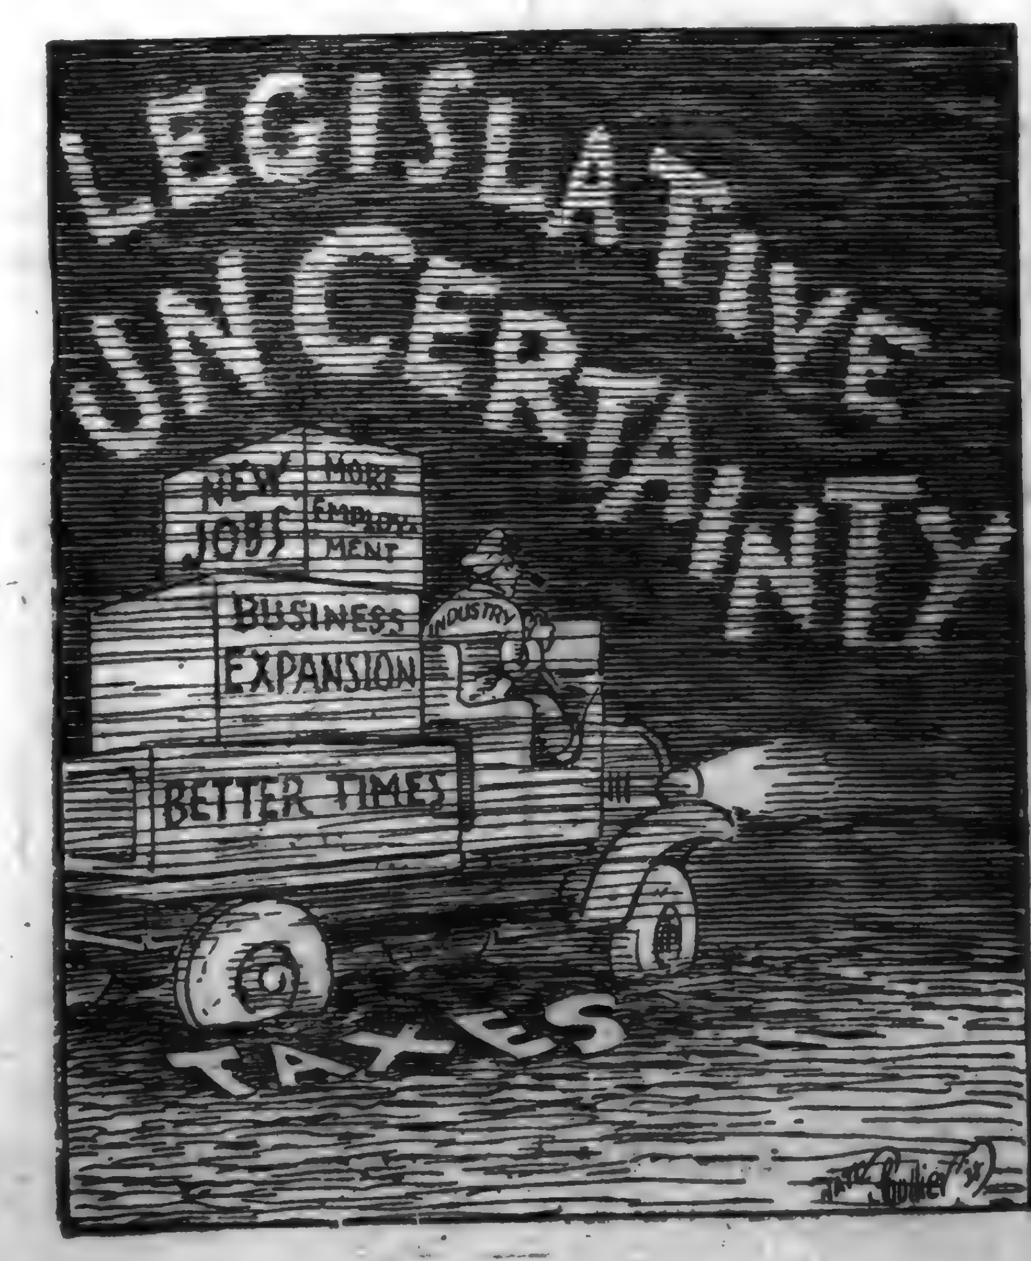
WHY NOT TRY THIS

Wonder why most people wait until spring to do a lot of odd jobs around the house when they could be done just as well now while there is more time to devote to such things? If there is a little inside painting or varnishing job to do there is no reason why it cannot be attended to, in a lot of instances, during the winter months. Opening the windows at top and bottom an inch or so for a short time in chilly weather won't freeze anybody, and the paint job will dry quickly. And locks and other hardware patching on the inside of the house can be looked after now just as well as in the spring, when there are so many other things demanding attention. The St. Joe citizen who accomplishes something along this line now that ordinarily would be put over until spring will find themselves ahead of their neighbors when the regular spring season arrives, and they will also find they have saved up a lot of energy by doing many of these inside jobs during the winter months. If you can't do these odd jobs yourself get some of those idle men around to do them for you.

ONE WAY TO BOOST

Don't get the impression that because St. Joe isn't as big as New York or Chicago that it isn't worth boosting to a stranger. It often happens that you have occassion to converse with a stranger here, but it probably does not always occur to you to speak a few words for the town. He may not think any more of the town when you have finished but he will have a better opinion of you for boosting it. Nothing gives a neighborhood greater favor in the eyes of a stranger than the knowledge that the residents of it are satisfied and are not just "another set of knockers." Speak of the schools and churches and good living conditions of your community at every opportunity you have to do so—and keep on doing it. You'll be surprised how often the stranger will be interested in what you have to say, and you'll never be able to measure the value of the good things he may also have to say of it as he goes on his way into other communities.

LIFT THE FOG!



JUST "CHARITY"

Nothing annoys the average business or professional man more than to be approached by someone soliciting ads for a church, school or lodge program. He knows to begin with that it isn't good advertising and he also knows that back of the solicitation is a sort of threat that "if you don't come across our organization will forget you when it comes to buying what you have to sell." The merchant knows this type of publicity is not advertising, but a form of charity, and while there is no law or local ordinance to prevent such solicitation there should be for the protection of the business and professional men upon whom such expenditures prove a constant and a heavy drain. Simply because their hands are tied and they dare not say "NO" is no reason why such a procedure should be tolerated, and the sooner the organizations engaged in it realize that the better it will be for legitimate forms of advertising—also for legitimate forms of charity.

EXPENSIVE RATS

Estimates of government agents place the rat population of the U. S. at close to a billion, with an annual food bill of from $250,000,000 to $1,000,000,000. Since each individual supports from two to four rats and that number of rats eats as much as an ordinary cat, the actual expense of maintaining St. Joe rat population is realized.

It is estimated that a good dead rat is worth at least $2 to any community. In addition to the vast quantities of food consumed, rats destroy annually millions of dollars worth of fabrics and furnishings, books and records, to say nothing of buildings rendered uninhabitable by their unwelcome presence. The rat has a gnawing mechanism that rivals the best carpenter's bit, and in some instances has been known to master even soft brick-work and lead pipes. Steel, iron, cement and glass, however, are immune to its destructive habits. The mysterious disappearance of valuable papers, and the actual maceration of paper money traced to rats will reach into the millions annually.

While in many communities "rat campaigns" are frequently conducted, with a whole neighborhood joining in the slaughter and prizes being offered those killing the most rats, organizing such drives is not always an easy matter. There is nothing to prevent each individual conducting a constant and never-ceasing warfare of his own against them, however, nor is there anything more profitable. Rid your premises of rats and help your neighborhood do the same thing and you not only save money but help to advance the health of the community as well. The local Conservation Club fell down in their efforts to arrange a pest hunt to close with 1937, an effort that was always appreciated by the community before.

PAYING THE PASTOR

We do not believe there is a community in the state boasting more conscientious ministers than will be found occupying the pulpits of the surrounding territory, and we feel sure churchgoers who are expected to support these pastors too often overlook the fact that they are among the poorest paid men in America.

This statement is made after having read that a recent survey shows that 60 per cent of the ministers of the gospel are receiving less than is earned by the average day-laborer or farm hand. Of the other 40 per cent it would probably be safe to presume that one-half of them break even with common laborers as to wages. That would leave but 20 per cent of them earning more than we pay men who do not have to spend years in study and preparation for their life work.

Every resident of this community is invited to give this subject some serious study. Isn't something wrong with a country that pays more for having its ditches dug than for having the souls of its people saved? Or that rewards a man who knows only enough to do manual labor as liberally as it rewards those who guide the nation in the straight and narrow path, and who point the way to higher, better and nobler living? Think it over and then ask yourself this one question: "Am I doing all that I might do and should do to put the preachers of this community on a little better financial footing?

At the present and since Oct. 1, 1937, St. Joe has not had a resident pastor, and naturally people become less attached to the church and its program.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Cecil Like is planning to move from the Leighty tenant house into the Chas. Bassett home this week.

Ray Reasoner is convinced that The News is the best place to advertise. His small ad last week brough him three calls by telephone by 9 A. M. on the first day following issue of paper. What more can we give anyone?

Mrs. Adam Shilling is spending the week with her son, Howard Shilling, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas A. Jones and son, and his mother, of Indianapolis, were Saturday and Sunday guests of Miss Elizabeth Jones in the Glen Cole home.

Harvey Hull spent from Monday evening until Friday last week at South Bend, taking his wife and son there following the funeral of his father, Jos. A. Hull, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull have both been on the sick list and confined to their bed a part of the time. Mrs. Hull is now able to be about the house. J. C. has not been able to work at the barber business since Christmas, and he stated that he will lease or sell his place of business and take a much needed rest.

Annual gross income tax return forms and information have been made available at five locations in DeKalb County. The annual taxpaying period closes January 31. Additional locations are as follows: Garrett auto license branch, Butler auto license branch, Arnold Hardware, Corunna, Citizens' Bank, Waterloo, and Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe. All persons who received more than $1,000 during the calendar year 1937 are required to file annual returns, regardless of whether or not they are liable for tax. Retail merchants, however, art granted an exemption of $250 a month in the amended gross income tax act upon receipts from selling at retail on or after April 1, 1937. This exemption is not in addition to the regular $1,000 exemption. Penalties for failure to file returns by January 31 range from 10 per cent to 50 per cent of the tax due, with interest payable at 1 per cent a month. The minimum penalty is $2.

POST OFFICE STATISTICS FOR ST. JOE OFFICE

Post office receipts for 1937 increased slightly over that of 1936 as shown in statement by Postmaster M. E. Storer.

Postal receipts for 1937 were $1,648.35; for 1936, $1,638.07; gain $10.28.

Money Order receipts for 1937 were $42,646.01; for 1936 were $38,844.41; gain $3,601.60.

Money Order fees for 1937 were $360.95; for 1936 were $364.42; loss $4.47.

Number of Money Orders issued for 1937 were 3,739; for 1936 were 3,770; loss 31.

COBURN CORNERS

Present at Bible School 61, collection, $2.66.

Glen Place has returned to his home at Defiance, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Furnish were guests of Elmer Inlow and family, Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Hart is now at the home of her son, Fred Hart, for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Place called on Mrs. Emily Shoudel and sister at Auburn, Thursday evening.

Miss Rosella Mercer, of Butler, visited several days recently with her grandmother, Mrs. Eva Shull.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Coburn spent Sunday with the latter's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walford, of Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Richards and family of Huntertown.

Have your glasses fitted by Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight Specialist, Office in American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio. 28tf.

Cad Shull is visiting with his brothers, Carl and Fred Shull, at Branch, Mich., and is reported as well pleased with the country.

Following our fellowship supper, at the church Tuesday evening, we had as our speaker, Dr. Hitt, of Hicksville, a returned missionary of India.

Little Mary Wilder, who has been seriously ill with flu, is slowly improving. Master Billy Wilder spent several days with grandpa and grandma Wilder.

Mrs. Dora Wilder and son, Lehr Wilder, Mrs. Tillie Ginther, Mrs. Jay Hart and Mrs. Millie Shull left Monday morning to attend the Agricultural Short Course at Purdue University.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Snyder, of Fremont, Ind., spent Tuesday with his sister, Mrs. Hattie Walker. Their sister, Mrs. Jennie Boston, of Burlington, Mich., who fell and injured her hip, is quite poorly.

The Rural Housewife Club met Wednesday afternoon at the pleasant country home of Mrs. Wm. Hamilton. The meeting was called to order by the president, Winifred Hart. Roll call response, what we received for Christmas. Secretary's report was read and approved, followed by collection of dues and fines, bills received and paid. The remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. Later a delicious lunch consisting of toasted sandwiches, salad, pickles and coffee was served to thirteen members and three guests. Club adjourned to meet in two weeks with Mrs. Lew Wahlier.

The Sands of Time treat your face kindly
WHEN YOU USE AN ELECTRIC RANGE

MODERN home makers who cook ELECtrically have so much more leisure time and so little nervous strain that their faces clearly reflect kind treatment. Their complexions are not roughened or reddened by flurried watching and bending over a hot, grease-throwing stove. The same soot and grimy film deposited on decorations and furnishings throughout the house necessitate constant scrubbing and cleaning to further wear out the housewife.

Cook ELECtrically—the New Way to Freedom from Kitchen Drudgery! ELECtricity is Cool, Clean, Fast and Economical.

The Safety Man

Again we are confronted with the hazard of slippery roads. For the next few months the danger of skidding will have to be kept in mind.

What precautions are you taking? Do you drive along at your usual rate of speed and trust to luck that you will not encounter anything that will call for a sudden stop? Many motorists do and later regret it. Applying your brakes, when driving at a high rate of speed, does not help. You merely slide along the icy pavement. The safe thing to do is this: drive slowly, approach intersections, stop signs, school zones, and traffic signals with caution and care; think!

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1938 NUMBER 3

COUNTY CONVENTION PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR FEB. 3 AND 4

The annual county convention of the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education will be held in the First M. E. Church in Auburn on Thursday and Friday, February 3 and 4, with a banquet on Thursday evening at 5:45 in the basement of the church.

The theme for the two-day meet this year will be "Advancement Through Training." E. T. Albertson, state secretary, will address the convention during the two days.

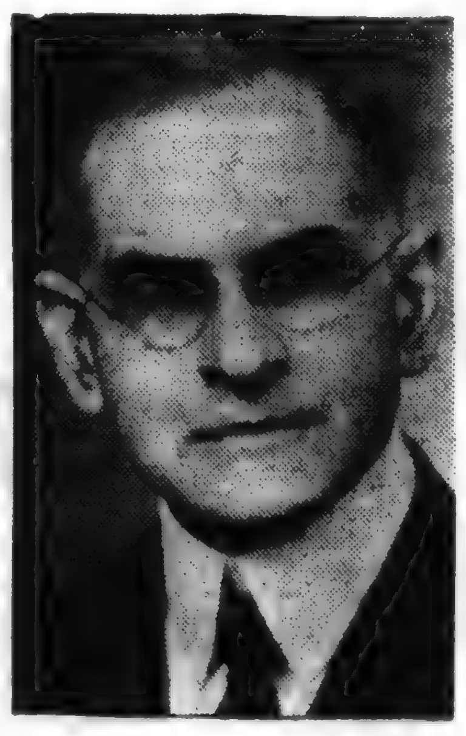
E. T. ALBERTSON

Thursday evening a travelogue on the Orient by Lee C. Fisher, of Portland, who will also direct the music during the entire convention.

On Friday night Dr. Raymond Schutz of Manchester College will be the principal speaker. Dr. Schutz has frequently addressed meetings in DeKalb county and is known as one of the most forceful speakers in Indiana. Others on the speaking program will be Rev. William T. Arnold, and Rev. Donald Dunkin of Garrett, Miss Julia Hodge and Dr. M. C. Wright the pastor of the convention church.

The entire program is built with the idea of helpfulness to those bearing the places of responsibility in the local Bible Schools of DeKalb County. All Sunday school attendants should plan to be in some of the sessions and especially those dealing with their specific work in the local school.

The banquet on Thursday evening is open for anyone to attend and a very unique program is in preparation by Mr Ward Jackman and Dr. Dale Treadwell.



REV. M. C. WRIGHT

This is the period of the convention for a jolly good time which is relished by everyone at times, so why not plan on attending the convention and get an inspiration that will spur you on to better work in your own church school.

Mr. Frank Campbell will direct his Junior orchestra on Thursday evening and his senior orchestra group on the Friday evening program.

The entire program will be filled with good things, making it important that workers from all schools be there. In making your plans to attend think of others of your school who might be in a position to go and thus do your school a good turn by inviting them to accompany you.

The closing of the convention program on Friday evening will witness the drama entitled "The Auction" and will be presented by players from St. Joe and community. Knowing the reputation of the Dramatic Club of St. Joe, you are assured of a program really worth attending.

Help to pass the word along.
February 3rd and 4th.

Mrs. Will Henderson, of Ashley, spent several days last week with Mrs. Glen Cole. Mr. Henderson joined her here for over the week end.

DISTRIBUTION OF GROSS INCOME TAX BEING MADE

Checks for school tuition support totalling $6,943,300 have been placed in the mail this week according to Floyd I. McMurray, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The figure represents the January payment of the annual distribution of state funds on the basis of $700 to each teaching unit. The money is allocated from Gross Income Tax payments to the Department of Public Instruction, which makes the distributions to the 19,838 units in the state. Eventually, tuition support payments will total $800.

The distributions were begun in 1933 when the Gross Income Tax law was enacted, and first payments were $200 per unit. The amount, paid in semi-annual installments, has gradually been increased to the present sum of $700. Another distribution will be made July 15.

DeKalb County received $58,100 as its share toward reduction of property taxes. The law was enacted in the hope of broadening the tax base.

TO SUPERVISE THE LEIGHTY ORCHARD

Mr. and Mrs. Lester I. Musgrave, of Vincennes, Ind., moved into the Leighty tenant home Monday, and he will assume supervision of the Leighty Orchard. Mr. Musgrave graduated from Purdue in 1933 and since that time has had charge of a 50 acre fruit farm in Southern Indiana.

The Leighty Orchards consist of 100 acres of apples. The News welcomes the young folks to our community and we are sure they will be delighted with their work, their new landlord and the community in general.

Mr. Musgrave takes the responsible position filled by Ray Reasoner for the past 24 years, and in a most satisfactory and successful manner to Mr. J. R. Leighty.

PETITIONS MUST BE FILED BY CANDIDATES

County Clerk Carl Walter pointed out Friday that candidates aspiring to nominations for office this spring must file with their declarations of intention petitions signed by qualified voters.

A new law provides that a candidate for a county office must present a petition containing names equal in number to one-half of 1 per cent of the vote cast by his party for secretary of state in the county at the last general election.

Ten is the smallest number of names that may be filed, this provision applying to some cities and townships. Petitions may be filed for a period of thirty days beginning March 4. However, candidates may make public announcement of candidacy before that time.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

There were 376 head of livestock on sale this week with demand active and prices as follows:

Hogs 140 to 160, $8.50. Fat sows, $6.30 to $6.50.

Veals: Choice $12.00 with the bulk of tops and good second line calves at $11.00 to $11.50. We had a lot of bucket fed calves weighing from 175 to 225 which brought $5.00 to $7.00 per pound, these calves were rough and did not carry much flesh.

Top lambs were $8.05 with thin offerings from $7.00 to $7.75.

Cattle moved on an active market this week with a number of new buyers in the ring. Heifers good enough for packers $5.10 to $6.70. Fat cows $4.00 to $5.00. Low cutters and shells from $2.00 to $3.00. Bulls from $6.00 to $6.65.

SUBMITS TO OPERATION

J. R. Leighty is in a Fort Wayne Hospital where his eyes are being operated upon for the removal of cataracts. He has been there for a week and one eye has been operated upon with success.

SPRINGER TO RETIRE AS REPUBLICAN CHAIRMAN

With DeKalb County politics simmering in anticipation of the primary in May and the general election next November, interest will center not only in the candidates for the numerous offices to be filled, but also in the party leaders.

Of paramount concern to the workers and candidates are the selections of county chairmen, Clayton M. Bailey, of Garrett, announces that he will again be a candidate in May for another two-year term as Democratic chairman, but Capt. H. C. Springer, of Butler, plans to retire from the Republican chairmanship after having served five consecutive terms.

The new precinct committeemen elected at the May primary by each party will meet the following Saturday in separate conventions in the court house and choose their respective leaders. Each county organization has a chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer, besides numerous committees.

AGE PENSION ROLL REACHES NEW HIGH

The number of aged DeKalb County persons receiving assistance by order of the welfare board has reached a new high at 281, it is reported at the office of the board's director, Miss Nora Brown, of Butler.

The number on the rolls ranged between 275 and 280 for nine months but was increased to 281 as the result of action taken at the board's January meeting. Four new awards were granted and four new applications were rejected. Of nine age cases reinvestigated, nine were ordered continued at the same rates as before, five were increased, one decreased and one application was withdrawn. Two deaths took place in the last month. As the result of the reinvestigation of one blind case, the board recommended an increase to the state board.

Four children will benefit from two new awards for assistance. Three children's cases were reinvestigated, resulting in one increase in award and two decreases. The number of children receiving assistance, 130, is also now at the highest level. Fifty-five families are involved.

JOHN BAKER PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF 75

John Baker, a retired carpenter died at his home at 306 West Eighth Street in Auburn, at 9:45 o'clock Wednesday night from the infirmities of age and complications. He had been ailing for six months and two weeks ago his condition became serious and he lost his sight. He was 75 years of age.

Mr. Baker was the youngest and last survivor of nine children born to James and Barbara Baker, residents of Concord Township. His early life was passed in Concord Township and at the age of twenty-one years he went West where he was employed by the Great Northern Railroad Company as a master carpenter at Walker, Minn.

Mr. Baker was united in marriage with Arvilla Draggoo, a resident of St. Joe, on July 28, 1888. She died in May 4, 1934. They had a daughter, Barbara, who died at the age of four years. Mr. and Mrs. Baker returned to DeKalb County shortly before the World War and during hostilities he was employed by the U. S. Shipping Board Emergency Fleet corporation in the Lorain, Ohio, ship building yard. He had been a resident of Auburn for the past sixteen years.

The deceased married Mrs. Addie Platter, of Auburn, on November 14, 1934. She survives.

Mr. Baker was a member of the State and National Fife and Drum Corps.

The funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the John R. Clark funeral home with Rev. O. B. Noren, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial was made in the cemetery at St. Joe.

Six nephews of Mr. Baker acted as pall bearers; Merritt, Orla, Frank and Walter Baker, Floyd Maurer and Walter Wilson.

REPORTS BIG INCREASE IN DRUNK DRIVING IN INDIANA

A startling increase in drunken driving on the Indiana highways was recorded in 1937, Robert G. Hill, state drivers' license hearing judge, said today.

The number of licenses revoked for drunken driving last year was 1,954, compared to 1,231 in 1936, an increase of 723. All together, 2,585 motorists lost their licenses through revocation, an increase of more than 90 per cent over the total of 1,410.

In contrast, Hill rpeorted that of 40,000 motorists who have taken examinations for licenses this year under provisions of a new law, approximately 10 per cent, or 4,000, failed to pass Most of those were unable to pass physical or mental tests. In other words, about 4,000 on the roads in 1937 with some impairment that might make their driving unsafe will not be permitted on the highways.

"I have had a lot of protests from persons who failed to receive licenses," Hill said, "but not a single denial has been changed. No political attempts have been made to 'fix' a case, either."

Drunken driving has increased each year since 1933, Hill said. In that year 572 drunken drivers lost their licenses; in 1934, 618, and in 1935, 838.

One bright spot was the showing for the last quarter of 1937. Revocations dropped from 891 in the third quarter to 715 in the fourth, while drunken driving fell from 687 to 561.

"This," Hill said, "shows the public finally is co-operating in the various safety campaigns. The 1938 report may be far more favorable."

Safetygrams
BY
FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

People are prone to blame accidents on weather conditions. The human being never wants to blame himself for failing to do something that might have prevented an accident.

A study of highway conditions made recently indicated that 75 per cent of the accidents occurred on dry roads. 85 per cent of the accidents happened in clear weather.

Here is an amazing fact—95 per cent of the vehicles involved in all automobile accidents in 1935 were apparently in good condition. We have repeatedly warned that brakes should not be overlooked. Braking power is needed; good lights are needed. These are mechanical contrivances that must be checked regularly to keep the automobile in perfect condition.

But the driver must be in perfect condition also.

PROPERTY LINE DISPUTE IN DEKALB CIRCUIT COURT

A dispute over a property line resulted Friday in the filing of a complaint for an injunction and damages in the DeKalb Circuit Court by Marion C. Blue and wife against Martha J. Soule.

The plaintiffs say that the defendant had a fence erected across an alley between their properties in St. Joe, three feet from the boundary line of the alley, and that this makes it impossible for them to drive their automobile into their garage.

The demand is for $500. Atkinson & Sanders represent the plaintiffs.

RED FLANNEL DAYS

"Women of the red flannel days were more sensibly dressed than the women of today," declared a merchant a few days ago. But he doesn't want his name mentioned for obvious reasons. "In those days," he goes on to say, "we used to sell 20 yards of silk for one dress. Now a woman buys three yards and considers that more than enough. Then there were only three or four shades of silk; now there are hundreds. The men of fifty years ago were superstitious in the matter of what they wore. In winter it had to be red flannel underwear and only a few people of the richer class could be induced to wear white merino. Today, manufacturers tell us, there are 4,800 different articles of women's underclothing and 1,800 different kinds and shades of stockings. Today it is as hard to find a red flannel garment as it is a needle in a haystack. And yet some of the old-timers often wonder if in the matter of comfort the old red flannel days did not, after all, have it all over these more modern times."

"SMALL TOWN STUFF"

Put out the lights in the farm house and the small towns of this country and Broadway, New York, would soon be as dark as pitch. That is because the money which makes Broadway's lights possible comes from outside of New York. The big city resident does a lot of talking about "small town stuff," and yet he is always eager to head his auto toward the small town where he knows he will find hospitality, good, wholesome food, clean air and noiseless sleep. He knows he will find the one thing the city lacks to make it worth living for—friendliness and a regard for one's fellowman. So more and more each year toward the small towns the big city autos are headed, carrying the sons and daughters of men who originally came from such places. For after all it was the small-town men who made the big city possible, and small-town men who still are largely responsible for their prosperity.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283

Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month.

In recognition of the American Legion's request for Posts to observe Go To Church Sunday, this month, the Post members are urged to meet at Commander Lehr Wilder's home next Sunday, Jan. 23rd, at 10:00 A. M. and attend church services at Coburn's Corners. The Legion uniform will not be worn on this occasion. Comrade Walter Coburn will deliver the sermon.

Service officers meeting will be held in the Legion Home of Post 47 at Fort Wayne, Sunday, January 23, at 2 P. M. This meeting is open to all members who wish to attend.

Post 47, of Fort Wayne, will entertain the Fourth District Meeting on February 4th. At this meeting Posts No. 148 of Fort Wayne and No. 283 of St. Joe will receive citations from National Haedquarters for enrolling their full quota before November 11th, last. Post No. 283 is now leading the Fourth District with a quota percentage of 160 or 40 members.

Great Work At St. Joe

W. C. Graham, Commander of a Post at Fort Wayne, has the following to say:—

You now lead, how does it feel to be a leader. Great, keep it up, don't let anyone get by you from now on.

We must do something at—
Garrett, they are behind last year.
Waterloo, they are behind last year.
Butler, they are behind last year.
Auburn, O. K.

Will see you at District Meeting, Ft. Wayne, Friday, Feb. 4th.

Want every Post in your County to Pass last year's membership.

It Can be done.

SPORTING NEWS

ASHLEY TRIUMPHS EASILY

Ashley High School swamped St. Joe under a 64 to 13 score Friday night, with Draggoo being the only St. Joe cager to score. The Ashley team was ahead, 37 to 4, at intermission.

LAFF-A-LOT-CLUB

Mrs. Winifred Shook, assisted by her granddaughter, Evelyn, entertained the Laff-A-Lot-Club, last Friday night, at her home in Spencerville.

The evening was very pleasantly spent in playing bunco and bingo. Those winning prizes were Mrs. Carrie Morr, Ruth Coburn and Iris Jackson.

The hostess then served a dainty two-course luncheon to the following members: Mrs. Cora Fetters, Marie Draggoo, Beulah Gibford, Ruth Coburn, Margery Baker, Vera Jackson, Iris Jackson, Carrie Morr, Mary Krise, Thelma Baker, Harriett Johnson, Gasell Baker, Edna Morr and Ethelyn Miller.

At a late hour the guests all departed to their various homes, thanking their hostess for a very pleasant evening.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Ray Reasoner suffered a severe attack of the flu the past week.

Have your glasses fitted by Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight Specialist, Office in American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio. 28tf.

Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Hathaway, of Butler, are the parents of a seven pound baby boy born Monday morning at the Dr. Bonnell Souder Hospital in Auburn. They now have three children, all boys.

Mrs. Otto Ginther is spending a couple of week in Chicago with her daughter, Mrs. L. M. Condrey and children, while Mr. Condrey is attending the National Road Building Convention in Cleveland, Ohio.

J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester College, has been chosen as the president of the Standard Life Insurance Co., of Indiana, succeeding former Governor Harry G. Leslie, who died in December.

Harry Randall and Gerald Kinsey, of Chicago, arrived Saturday evening as a surprise to their mothers, Mrs. Wm. Randall and Mrs. M. C. Blue, and spent Sunday with them. A day of pleasure indeed. Mrs. Blue has been numbered among the sick.

There still remains a number of Christmas Seals in the hands of individuals of St. Joe and Concord Township that have not been accounted for, and the Township chairman, Lora E. Leighty asks that returns be mailed to her in the stamped envelope. Please do this at once.

Two electric ranges were installed in the Lutheran Church basement this week purchased from the local electric company. One was financed by the class taught by Derwood Ridgway and the second by the Ladies Aid. The stoves are exactly alike. Vernie Monroe supervised the installation.

C. H. Minnick, of Garrett, deputy sheriff of DeKalb County, has opened the campaign by being the first man to announce his candidacy for office, subject to the primary on May 3rd. This announcement was made Saturday afternoon that he will seek Democratic nomination for the office of sheriff. He has served as deputy for 4 years under H. N. Grimm.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Jarrett entertained the following guests to Sunday dinner in honor of Harold Curie's ninth birthday. January is the birth month of Herbert, Frank Jr., and Joan Curie also. Those present besides the immediate family were, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie and Frank Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curie and daughter, Barbara, of Garrett, and Miss Ruth Curie and Mr. Wm. Moore.

Wm. Hurni and Harry Kees, accompanied by their wives, attended the revival in progress at the Hartford City Church of Christ, conducted by Rev. Catron, former local pastor. The meeting has been in progress one week with 26 additions. Rev. Fronsoe, of the Cincinnati Bible School, accompanied them from St. Joe and returned to his school. The St. Joe and Newville Churches have hired Rev. Fronsoe for their pastor and he stated that he expected to move to St. Joe as soon as suitable quarters are obtainable. His schedule of services appear in this issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1938 NUMBER 4

TO SELL SPECIAL ASSESSMENT DELINQUENTS

Announcement is made that the first section of the annual delinquent tax sale will be held in DeKalb County Monday, Feb. 14, by County Auditor Frank E. Lyon and County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch.

In the first installment of the sale, only property will be offered on which special assessments are delinquent. These include street paving, drainage and line fence assessments. In accordance with a ruling of the state, the real estate delinquent sale will be held in April, as was the case last year under a new law.

The number of items in the legal notice at this time is 315, divided as follows: Garrett city paving 39, Butler city paving 11, Auburn city paving 40, Garrett city drain 160, Hursey drain 8, John Diehl drain and Egbert drain each 6, Matson, Shank, Shull and Potts drains each 2, Metcalf drain 3, E. W. Harris, Dibbling, W. C. Smith, Scattergood, Varner, Dosch and Wagner drains each 1 and line fence 1.

MAKES REPORT ON ST. JOE VALLEY BANK

Harold M. Kelley, of Angola, special representative of the state department of financial institutions, has filed semi-annual report in the DeKalb Circuit Court in the liquidation of the St. Joe Valley bank.

With reference to the St. Joe bank, Mr. Kelley states that during the last half of 1937 losses were determined in the amount of $3,361.88; expenses of administration were $323.33; salary of special representative, $150; attorney's fees, $154, making a total of $3,989.21. Receipts from interest and inventory were $144.98. Assets remaining at the close of the year consist of $10,292.90 in personal and collateral loans, $17.44 in overdrafts and cash and bank account $2,885.47. The total is $13,195.81. No payments were received during the half year on stockholders' liability, the amount unpaid remaining at $14,093.55.

JENNINGS HOME SCENE OF COOKING DEMONSTRATION

A party of 18 guests were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jennings last Friday night, and witnessed the Wear-Ever aluminum cooking demonstration by the representative, K. S. Neptune, and then later were served the foods prepared.

The guests began to arrive at 7:30, the hour set by the hostess, and while the representative failed to arrive until possibly 8:30 the Jennings' became very much alarmed over the delay, and began to think they would be compelled to feed the guests. Much merriment was caused over the situation by the guests. Finally the official representative did arrive and this of course eased Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, but the poor guests had to sit there through a long period of demonstrating, before even given anything to eat. When the food did arrive everyone was quiet and really went to it.

The evening was indeed a pleasant one and all were grateful to the host and his wife for their hospitality.

40TH TRIP TO FLORIDA BRINGS FIRST CRASH

His 40th trip to Florida with a truck to bring back fruits brought the first accident to Eugene Webster, of near Newville, Monday of last week.

His truck struck the approach to the Maumee River bridge at Antwerp, damaging the machine, tires and railing along the embankment.

He was accompanied by Glen Hootman.

After repairs were made to the truck, they started again Wednesday.

Mr. Webster has made a practice of going South for many years to bring back fruits.

A SURPRISE

When Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and family returned from church Sunday morning, they found the yard filled with cars, the house filled with people, and a bountiful "carry in" dinner nearly ready to serve.

The surprise was completed when the group presented Mr. and Mrs. Jarrett with a beautiful lace table cloth and a nice rocking chair.

Joan Curie placed six candles on a lovely cake and thought she had a big surprise birthday party, too.

Those present besides the immediate family were: Mrs. Jennie Sechler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie and Frank, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curie and Barbara Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Jump and June, Ruth Curie, William Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mavis, Everett J. and Betty, and Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee.

FORMER DEKALB COUNTY CONSTABLE EXONERATED OF FORGERY CHARGE

Frank R. Snellbaker, of Newville, Ind., who was arrested on Dec. 18, 1937 by the Indiana State Police on a forgery warrant and taken to Indianapolis, went on trial in the Marion County Circuit Court at Indianapolis on Jan. 20th. When the case was called the State asked that the indictment be quashed for want of evidence.

The police detectives who caused the arrest admitted that they had arrested an innocent man. While Snellbaker was being held in jail the guilty man issued many more forged checks and when Snellbaker's case was called for trial the forger's checks were coming into the Indianapolis banks.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

Mrs. Lillie Williams, of Ft. Wayne, was a guest in the John Ulm home last week from Wednesday until Sunday.

The Concord Ladies Aid Society will hold an all day meeting on Thursday, February 3 at the home of Mrs. Ern Johnson.

Mrs. Jennie Bohls, 88, Garrett, a one time resident of St. Joe, died last week Sunday with burial on Tuesday. Another resident of those good-old-days in St. Joe, Curtis Craun, at one time leading photographer in this section, died at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla. These people will be remembered by the older residents of our community.

MORTUARY

SCOVILLE

Dr. Charles Reign Scoville, 68, of Eureka Springs, Ark., noted evangelist, who was born on a farm near Newville, died suddenly at Garden City, Kan., Sunday according to word received Monday.

Dr. Scoville was scheduled to open a series of revival meetings at Garden City Sunday evening.

Funeral was held Tuesday afternoon in the Church of Christ, Newville, and burial made in the Newville Cemetery. The body arriving at Butler about noon.

The evangelist is survived by his wife; an adopted daughter, Ruth; and three sisters, Mrs. Leslie Strong, Newville; Mrs. Ida Hadsell, Hicksville, and Mrs. Letitia Craun, St. Petersburg, Florida.

Dr. Scoville had made his home in recent years at Eureka Springs, and for a number of years had had headquarters at Winona Lake.

He was graduated from Tri-State College, Angola, Ind., in 1892 and later attended Hiram College. Leaving there he began his evangelistic work which had taken him throughout the United States and into several foreign countries.

Dr. Scoville made his annual pilgrimage to DeKalb County at the yearly meeting time of the Christian denomination and thus he kept in close touch with his home folks about Newville.

His demise is a great loss to the entire community.

COONS

Mrs. J. C. Coons, wife of a former St. Joe M. P. pastor, now living at Herbst, Ind., died Monday morning at 12:30, following an illness of three years or more. The burial took place at Marion, Wednesday forenoon at 10 o'clock.

POPER

Mrs. Cora L. Poper, Butler, died Monday evening at 7:30, following a sudden illness which overtook her only two hours before, while sitting at the supper table. For some years she had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Myra Malone.

Mrs. Poper was born January 17, 1859 and died January 24, 1938, at the age of 79 years and 7 days.

She was the widow of the late David Poper and the mother of two daughters and one son, Myra Malone, of Butler, Mrs. Opal Wilmot and Marvin Poper, of St. Joe.

Before moving to Concord Township with her family, they resided in the Newville community.

The funeral services will be conducted from the St. Joe Christian Church at 10:00 o'clock Thursday morning.

K. OF P. NEWS

The regular weekly meetings of the St. Joe Lodge Knights of Pythias are now being held on Monday night of each week. Attendance is improving and the lodge is looking forward to an interesting season. If you are a member you are urged to be present at the coming sessions. If you would like to become a member please make application as soon as possible. Rank of Page work is to be conferred soon.

County meeting at Auburn Hall on Thursday, January 27. Rank of Page to be given by Hamilton team in dramatised form. All members are urged to attend if at all possible.

Reign Schondelmayer is on the sick list threatened with a flu attack.

ST. JOE LADY FOUND DEAD IN BED

Mrs. Sarah Ann Maurer-Dilley, a life long resident of St. Joe, was found dead in bed Sunday morning by Mrs. Cora Maxwell, who had been taking care of her for the past several months, after an illness of several years.

She was born in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, near what is now known as Hopewell, on April 1, 1849, and departed this life on January 23, 1938 at the age of 88 years, 9 months, and 22 days.

On June 6, 1869, she was united in marriage to Vincent Dilley, and to this union were born six children, all of whom survive. The children are, Mrs. Cora Osburn, Ashley, Ind.; Mrs. Elizabeth Reasoner, Elkhart; Mrs. Effie Smith, Auburn Junction; Mrs. Mary Baker and Hollis Dilley, of St. Joe, and John Dilley, of Waterloo.

Mrs. Dilley is survived by one brother, Simeon H. Maurer, of Auburn, and 23 grandchildren, and a host of other relatives and friends. Her husband died in St. Joe on February 7, 1908, by accident at the west B. & O. crossing.

She was a member of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, from which place the funeral service is being held on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 conducted by Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, a former pastor, with burial in White City Cemetery, Spencerville, Indiana. Mayola Kinsey & Son, in charge.

PLANT BITTERSWEET FOR WILDLIFE FOOD AND SHELTER VALUE

Planting of bittersweet in fence corners and other uncultivated areas is being recommended by the Department of Conservation as a means of providing additional food and shelter for wildlife, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner, reports.

Extensive use of this fast-disappearing plant will increase the attractiveness of now barren fence rows and will be a material aid in providing the necessary food and cover for quail, pheasants and other wildlife. At the same time, use of bittersweet along fences will eliminate the time now spent in keeping down vegetation.

Bittersweet is eagerly sought each Autumn by thousands of Hoosiers and is widely used for decoration at a season when most of the flowers have stopped blooming. The bright red berries are an important food source for birds and wildlife during the winter months while the plant affords shelter from predators.

Use of blackberry and raspberry plants, is another way of providing shelter and food for wildlife as well as food for the farmer. Berries let to dry on the canes make excellent winter food for birds.

The planting of bittersweet, blackberry and raspberry along fences and in other uncultivated areas was proposed in a recent discussion of wildlife conservation at the Purdue Agricultural Conference, as one of the methods by which farmers can increase the game supply on their farms.

Elimination of much game cover in recent years through cleaner and more modern farming, makes it necessary for other cover and food to be provided if Indiana is to maintain or increase the supply of game. Land will support game to a saturation point, this point being determined by the amount of food and cover available.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to drink a lot of patent medicine of some kind or another just to get his picture in the paper?

Now that we have formed the habit of having most every kind of a week, why not go in for an "Early Spring Week."

The grouch may have his faults, but he doesn't hold you up for an hour to tell you about them every time he meets you.

Life is a tragedy. Even when a St. Joe man goes back to the scenes of his boyhood he finds the old swimming hole full of sand.

Another good idea is to park, whenever it is possible, next to a new, shiny car. The owner will back it out without scraping yours.

When a man insists on telling you how much he likes you, look around for a motive. When a girl tells you the same thing, look around for a house.

Now they've invented a machine that will brush teeth by electricity. But taxpayers will still have to scratch their heads by hand.

When the pioneers crossed the great Western plains they didn't stop every 50 miles for ten gallons of gasoline and a hot-dog sandwich.

Wouldn't this world be a paradise to live in if every man worked as hard for his religious denomination as he is willing to get out and work for his political party?

Why is it that a woman always feels complimented when you tell her that she looks like a movie actress?

Why is it that when the average engagement is announced a lot of people always say: "Well, it's about time."

Why shouldn't a woman be allowed to go through her husband's pockets when a congressman is permitted to do the same thing.

You can always tell a professional politician. When his foot slips and he gets in hot water he always blames the newspapers for misquoting him.

COST OF STRIKES

If the average St. Joe citizen realized what strikes cost him in actual dollars and cents he'd probably want every "sit-downer" taken out and hung. Ernest Wier, chairman of the National Steel Corp., says the cost of strikes has risen in this country from $375,000,000 in 1936 to $5,000,000,000 in 1937. Those figures are probably far too high, but if they were cut in half it still would leave a sad picture. The cost of strikes affect everybody in the country, though the price paid by the working people is the heaviest. And any system which permits such waste and such losses is not a good system. Need of greater co-operation between capital and labor was never before as great as now. If our present system won't permit of such co-operation, then let's get busy and devise one that will. This is the challenge to industry, labor and government alike, and a challenge that the American people would like to have answered during the year now well started on its way.

THE "PERFECT" AUTO

Prophecy is always risky, especially when it prophesies perfection. Many auto makers thought their cars were perfect 25 years ago. Away back in 1912 John N. Willys said: "Never will the auto be better made than it is today. Motor cars are as near perfect as mechanical genius, human brains and automatic machinery can make them. They will never be made any better because better wood will not grow, because the earth will never yield up better ores, because cattle will not produce better hide for upholstering, and because human brains and energy will never be at a higher development than now." Now if you want the answer to Mr. Willys' prophecy of 1912, just run a car of that model up alongside one of the 1938 models and compare them point by point. And yet, any St. Joe motorist who thinks these beautiful new 1938 models are "perfect," will be wise to remain from boasting. Someone might preserve his words and make another comparison 25 years from now.

AN EVEN BREAK

We've talked to a good many rural residents and we've reached the conclusion that the main reason why a man or woman buys from a mail order catalogue is because somebody was enterprising enough to send them the catalogue. In running through it they discovered something they would like to have, and since the price suits them, they sit down and order it, without ever thinking that the same thing can be secured right here at home at just as fair a price, and with a saving in time. So we have also come to believe that the old idea of fighting fire with fire is a good one—that the only way home merchants can hope to hold home trade is to meet the catalogue man half way—to put his message into the same homes the catalogue is going into. There is one way it can be done—one way you can get your message into the home and keep it there. That is through your home-town paper. You are entitled to an ever break with the catalogue man—the columns of your home-town paper will provide you with it.

THAT LITTLE CONTAINER

While Indiana motorists are being charged the full 25 cents permitted by statute for the title certificate holders they are being required to plaster on their windshields, Arch N. Bobbitt, Republican State chairman, said in an address in Indianapolis at a meeting of the first and second ward Republican Clubs.

The 1937 statute, which provides for containers, does not require that they be attached to the windshield. "It does require," he said, "that containers which are approved by the Commission of Motor Vehicles be used, and he is to take bids for approved containers and make them available for a fee 'not to exceed twenty-five cents.' Motorists are being taxed the last mill permitted by statute for containers which obviously ought to be furnished for less than that sum."

Mr. Babbitt recalled that the Marion County Prosecutor recently said in a statement to the press that he may not try to enforce the regulations requiring motorists to use the latest state house gadget. "The Prosecutor pointed out," said Mr. Bobbitt, "that to drive Indiana cars with these obstructions on the windshield into Ohio and Kentucky would violate the laws of those states, which prohibit stickers or other obstructions on windshields. Thus, the Indiana motorist is placed between the devil in Indiana and the deep blue sea in neighboring states. These state house approved obstructions can't even be detached at state lines so the motorist can conform to the laws of other sates. It means arrest here if they are not attached, and arrest in other states, if they are.

"That there is a profitable racket in this mess for someone is as transparent as is the container itself. Several hundred thousand Indiana motorists already in bad temper over the eyesore certificate holders and about half a million more will get that way by the time Governor Townsend's famous Christmas gift is reclaimed on March 1."

PLAYING WITH MATCHES

Now and then we read of a tragedy in which lives were lost, or persons seriously burned and property destroyed, through children playing with matches. The first thought that arises is that the parents have failed to teach that child the meaning of "safety first." But the real censure belongs on the shoulders of the person who leaves matches where children can get hold of them. And yet, children are not alone in "playing with matches." Many grown people light them, use them and then carelessly toss them aside as though all danger from them had passed. Recently a smoker in one of the largest cities of this state dropped a match he thought was extinguished into a waste basket and two hours later he had burned down the plant in which he worked, and thrown himself and several hundred others out of employment. We want no serious fire loss in St. Joe this year, so let's be extremely careful where we toss our matches when they have served their purpose.

THE GROUNDHOG

Despite his natural modesty and dislike for publicity, the groundhog always manages to come in for his share of it along about this time of every year. Once more he is again furnishing the topic for a good many conversations among citizens around St. Joe. No one openly admits with any degree of seriousness that he has any faith in His Hogship as a weather forecaster. And yet they always manage to call him to mind along about the second of every February.

This year the groundhog is not alone in coming forth with a prediction for the remainder of winter, and the fact that he has an expert competitor adds interest to the event. Now comes Prof. Selby Maxwell, noted Chicago weather shark, with a prediction covering the balance of the year—and an offer to bet that he hits it 80 per cent correctly. In view of the fact that Maxwell, who bases all his forecasts on the moon, has made some startling long-distance forecasts in recent years what he has to say now is worth listening to. So try to forget your old friend the groundhog for a moment and listen to these words from the Chicago expert:

"There will be no serious floods in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys in 1938. June rains will relieve unfavorable growing conditions in Southern Canada. The dust-bowl and middle Western states also will receive beneficial rains, but farmers all over the nation must be careful to conserve as much of the moisture as possible. The balance of February will be cold, with heaviest precipitation in Texas and the dust-bowl, and snow over the Atlantic states."

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

The first step in preventing a cold is to let some air into your house. See that a window is raised at night, otherwise the dry air will affect the mucous membrane of throat and nose, and a cold is easily contracted. Be sure that if more than one opening in a room exists that it does not create a draft. A teaspoon of soda dissolved in a half glass of water is helpful if used when first symptoms of cold are noticed.

NICE GOING REGARDLESS

The Merchants were defeated in another over-time game Tuesday evening by the Westminster A. C. team, score 33-31. The newly spirited H. S. team defeated the Alumni, score 28-19. Space prevents further comments.

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

A farewell party was tendered Geo. Hart and family by the members of the Culture Club and their families at the Hart country home last week. They expect to move near Sturgis, Mich., within the next month, where they have purchased a farm.

Guests in the W. L. Hamilton home for the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Lee O. Tustison, of Defiance on Saturday afternoon; Mrs. Lela Northrup on Friday and Sunday; Cecil Wisler, wife and son, of Garrett on Sunday and O. K. Shull and wife Sunday afternoon and evening guests.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWayne Baker are preparing to move this week from the Samuel Kaiser farm, 4 miles northwest of St. Joe, into their own property, purchased of J. I. Farley, in Jackson Township, a 40 acre farm just north of Sam Shilling's Corners on the west side of the road. The house has been recently wired for electricity.

The members of the Lutheran choir were entetrained Saturday night at the Wm. Staman home by Mrs. Staman and Mrs. Edith Cole. All the members were present and a pleasant evening was spent together. A delicious luncheon was served and at the conclusion a beautiful electric stand lamp was presented Leslie Wilbern for his efforts in presenting the Christmas cantata.

Jeanne Hatch, of Spencerville, spent the week end here with her brother, James Hatch.

Mrs. John Haverstock, of Detroit, spent Saturday night with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn.

Dean Kees is at Purdue taking an 8 weeks short course, in preparation for work as a tester for the Dairymen's Association.

Bill LaRue, of near Hopewell, has rented the H. H. Squires farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Squires will move into the Kaiser property, just west.

Mrs. Hazel Steward, of Spencerville, and Ercil Steward and wife, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday afternoon callers in the home of Mrs. Mary Betz.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Struble, of Sidney, Ohio, were Saturday and Sunday guests in the Henry Shroyer home. Mr. Struble is a brother of Mrs. Shroyer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hollabaugh and daughter, Margery and son, Ted, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pontius at Elkhart.

Mrs. Milton Fronsoe, wife of the Church of Christ pastor, is remaining in St. Joe for the week, while her husband returns to Cincinnati where he is attending Bible college.

Mrs. George Simanton suffered a stroke Monday and as we go to press she is improved. She was able to take some nourishment, talk slightly and be propped up in bed. Her condition was thought serious.

Announcement has been made that William G. Erick, of Spencerville, will be a candidate for the office of DeKalb County Recorder on the Democratic ticket in the primaries. Mr. Erick, a former Spencer Township Trustee, was appointed Recorder by the county commissioners August 23, 1937, upon the death of the incumbent, U. S. Raut.

Congressman J. I. Farley has made his official announcement that he will again be a candidate for re-nomination to that office.

The eighth annual meeting of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association was held Wednesday afternoon in the court house assembly room. Directors elected for two years were Oscar Noel, of Butler Township; Ward Baughman, of Keyser Township; John Washler, Newville Township; Ralph Hamman, Smithfield Township; William Greager, Troy Township; Orlo Deetz, Fairfield; Virgil Korff, Grant; Lester Boger, Union Township; Walter Mutzfeld, Wilmington Township, and Fred Hart, Spencer Township.

TO HOLD LINCOLN DAY DINNER FEB. 11

Plans have been completed for the annual Lincoln Day Dinner under auspices of the DeKalb County Republican Central Committee, to be held at the K. of P. Hall in Auburn on Friday evening, February 11th.

Judge Clyde C. Carlin, of Angola, will be the principal speaker of the evening. In addition there will be several musical selections interspersed during the evening, and the program committee has arranged for a snappy program that will last for an hour after the banquet is served.

The dinner will be served by the Pythian Sisters. The popular price for the dinner will make it possible for several hundred Republicans, men and women, to attend.

The tickets are now in the hands of the ticket committee and can be had from them on payment of fifty cents each. Or tickets can be procured by addressing H. C. Springer, county chairman, Butler.

The Lincoln Day celebration is expected to be made an annual affair in the future. The success and interest manifest in this meeting will count much on determining the future meetings.

TO OPEN EMPLOYMENT OFFICE AT AUBURN

The signing of a lease by the State of Indiana and representative of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce for use by the Indiana State Employment Service of the club room and the office room on the second floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building at 114 South Cedar Street, was announced today by Wallace P. Studencki, Fort Wayne Employment Service District Manager.

The quarters, formerly occupied by the Chamber of Commerce are being remodeled to meet the requirements of a public employment office. The Auburn office of the Indiana State Employment Service will be opened when this work is completed, probably about February 15, according to Mr. Studencki.

104 ATTEND DISTRICT AUXILIARY MEETING

Thirteen units were represented at the regular meeting of the Fourth District American Legion Auxiliary held in the Lutheran Church at St. Joe last Thursday.

Nellie Platner of Auburn, president, presided. The meeting was opened in regular form with the pledge to the flag, singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and reciting the preamble.

The morning was given over to unit reports. A two-course dinner was served at the noon hour followed by a short program by four St. Joe girls.

The various district chairmen reported in the afternoon. Five deaths were reported since the November meeting.

The March meeting will be held at Waterloo at which time nominations will be open for 1938-1939, the election to be held at LaGrange in May.

The 13 units represented were Angola, Auburn, Churubusco, Columbia City, Decatur, Ft. Wayne No. 47, Ft. Wayne No. 82, Garrett, Kendallville, LaGrange, Waterloo, Wolcottville and St. Joe.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club entertained with a ladies guest party Wednesday evening, Jan. 19, at the home of Mrs. W. L. Hamitlon.

A three-course dinner was served to club members and guests. The tables were appointed in club colors of purple and gold, covers were laid for 35.

The menu was interspersed with music and toasts. The welcome was extended by the president, Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Leonard Jarrett responded. Mrs. Hamilton introduced Mrs. Wisler as toastmistress of the evening.

The first course consisted of tomato juice cocktail. The word Lady was carried out in the toasts. The first toast given by Mrs. Courtland Price on Love. She brought out some very good points. Mr. Jerry Heinlen, of Garrett, sang two numbers, "Blossoms on Broadway" and "The One Rose." He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer.

Mrs. Herman Kessler then gave a toast on Aim, touching on the aims proper of the club.

The second course consisted of lettuce salad, creamed chicken and biscuits, whipped potatoes, harvard beets, rolls, pickles and coffee. Immediately following a toast on Duty was given by Mrs. Samuel Armstrong, she emphasized the duty of each and every one of the club members.

Mrs. Phyllis Hampshire, of Auburn, played three numbers on an electric guitar. They were "Song of the Island," "The One Rose," and "A Little Hula Heaven." Miss Hampshire and Mr. Heinlin are both students of the Miller Music Studio at Garrett.

A toast on Youth, given by Mrs. Ed Leighty, really gave a person a slant on how young you really should be no matter your age. The third course consisted of purple and gold brick ice cream, cup cakes, and coffee. A contest, a lesson in dentistry then was given by Mrs. Wineland and Mrs. Freeburn. Mrs. Jarrett carrying off honors and Mrs. Armstrong being a close runner up. A stunt was given which proved too much for most present. Miss Hampshire and Mr. Heinlin gave a number of selections by request which concluded the evening.

The guests were: Mrs. Sam Wyatt, Mrs. Adrian Washler, Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo, Mrs. Miles Oberlin, Miss Phyllis Hampshire, Mrs. Hollis Akins, Mrs. Leonard Jarrett, Mrs. Wilber Yeiser, Mrs. Marsh Andress, Mrs. Elza Fetters, Mrs. Dennis Gerig, Mrs. C. F. Scholes, Mrs. Derwood Ridgway, Mrs Joe Foltz, Mrs. John Crothers, Mr. Jerry Heinlin.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Mrs. Donald Hart, Mrs. Willard Hurni, Mrs. Paul Carpenter, Mrs. Glen Wineland, Mrs. Glen Freeburn, Mrs. Harry Hursh and Mrs. Cecil Wisler.

Individual Welfare Is Planned For 52 Pythian Home Children

With the advent of a new Indiana Child Welfare program, under Social Security laws administered by the State Department of Public Welfare, the Indiana Order, Knights of Pythias, has made better home care plans for 52 children of the Indiana Pythian Home at Lafayette. All now are secured in homes with parents and relatives or have been accepted into approved boarding homes. The above reproductions show a panorama of the Pythian Home, now devoted to care of the aged, and the principals in the child planning program.

The widow, Addie Florence Baker, and ten nephews and nieces are the beneficiaries under the will of the late John Baker, of Auburn, who died January 12.

The estate consists of $10,000 in personal property and $4,000 in real estate. The will was signed Nov. 16, 1934, with Capt. H. C. Springer and Marian Gibford as witnesses, and was admitted to probate in the DeKalb Circuit Court Wednesday.

W. K. Schaab was nominated in the will for executor. A bequest of $500 was made to a nephew, Walter J. Baker, of Spencerville, "in appreciation of the care and attention which he extended at one time," to a brother of Mr. Baker, Wm. Baker, who is now deceased.

The executor was authorized to provide "amply and suitably" for the widow during her lifetime or during her widowhood and to further provide for her funeral expenses if she then remains his widow. Following her death or the termination of the widowhood the remainder of the estate is to be divided equally among the nephews and nieces, who are Walter J. Baker, of Spencerville; Mrs. John Draggoo, of Fort Wayne; Orla G. Baker, Frank Baker, Frank Tustison and Mrs. Harry Harris, of Rural Route, St. Joe; Merritt Baker, Mrs. Walter Wilson and Mrs. Floyd Maurer, of Rural Route, Auburn, and Mrs. Ray Bouse, of Bluffton.

The executor filed $10,000 surety bond.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1938 NUMBER 5

TRI-TOWNSHIP FARMERS INSTITUTE

The Tri-Township Farmers Institute was held at St. Joe, Ind., Jan. 27, 1938. The meeting was opened by the School Band under the direction of C. A. Woodcox. The selection played was "Activity." The High School Girls' Chorus then sang, "Lassie of Mine." Following were Sylvia Washler and Paul Keller's cornet duet, "Moonlight and Roses," and Sylvia Washler and Jean Goldsmith's cornet and saxophone duet, "Down the River of Golden Dreams." The Band then followed with "The Star Spangeld Banner."

Acting chairman John Washler introduced speaker Russell G. Rieff, whose subject was: "Alfalfa Stands." The high points in his speech were: Requirements for good stand, Preparation of the ground, Best types of seed, Way of planting, When to plant and replant, Method of holding good stands, When to cut, and How to cure. Then followed a general discussion on alfalfa growing.

After the discussion acting chairman Washler introduced speaker Mrs. R. M. Brown, whose subject was: "Respecting our Jobs." She pointed out that of the four sources of national income the soil is the most important. She compared city life with the freedom of farm life and the closeness to God and to nature. She says that the farmer is the balance wheel of the nation. Mrs. Brown also stated that the present day farmer is the most efficient in history and that farm women are a necessary and important factor in successful farm life.

Following this talk was a short business at which Mrs. I. Hadsell, O. K. Shull and Ira Hook were appointed on the nominating committee for the election of next year's officers.

Dismissal prayer by John Washler.

Assistant chairman Lloyd Yeiser took charge of the afternoon session and at one o'clock the Gym Girls Drill Class, under the direction of Miss Jones, gave four numbers: Marching, Russian Dance, Tumbling and the Novelty Sports Rythmic Activity.

Speaker Rieff's afternoon subject was: "Planning the Farm Business." Some interesting comparisons were: Output and expense, Income and methods of increasing income and estimating yearly income. Probably the most important sentence in the speech was, "The Most Important Piece of Farm Equipment is Your Own Brain."

Speaker Mrs. Brown's afternoon subject was :"Playing Fair with the Citizens of Tomorrow." The outline of this speech was: 1. The youth of today and tomorrow have the most serious problems to face in American history. 2. The preparing of our youth to face and cope with these problems. (a) Proper health. (b) Good education. (c) Developing of character.

At the business session the report of the nominating committee for next year was: Mr. Lehr Wilder, president; Mr. Lewis Washler, vice president; Mrs. Fred Hart, secretary.

The meeting was adjourned to meet in Spencerville in 1939.

Acting Secretary Russell Borthwick.

WILLARD HURNI MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT FOR TRUSTEE

The first name to be announced for local township office is that of Willard L. Hurni, Republican, for nomination to the office of Trustee of Concord Township.

Mr Hurni became a resident of Concord Township 11 years ago, and has been employed by the George Freese & Sons Creamery Co., of Nappanee, Ind., for 14 years, and for 5 years he operated a cream station and general store in St. Joe.

He places his name before the Republican voters of Concord Township, subject to May primary.

Mr. Hurni feels that his present business will not interfer with his handling the duties of the office he seeks in any way, as he is over the township every week, and would only aid him in serving the people efficiently.

GEORGE MILLIMAN DIES FOLLOWING A STROKE

George W. Milliman, passed away at his Spencerville home Tuesday morning about 6 o'clock, following a stroke. He had been in poor health for some time suffering from sugar diabitis, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. He was raised in the Coburntown commulty, and funeral will be conducted from his home church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with burial in Alton Cemetery. Rev. J. N. Scholes, officiating.

The body will lie in state at the Walter Funeral Home until the funeral hour. He would have been 70 years of age the 21st of this month. He was operating a barber shop in Spencerville and one time lived in St. Joe and was engaged in the same business.

IMPROVING SINCE OPERATION

Reign Schondelmayer, was rushed to the Souder Hospital, Wednesday evening of last week by Dr. Hathaway, and was operated on for appendicitis. Today he is reported as improving rapidly and that he will be able to receive friends next week. Peritinitis had set in, due to a seepage of the appendix. Reign had been complaining for some time but not until the first of the week had he taken his bed.

Mrs. Schondelmayer and Reign's mother, from Macy, are taking care of him, and his father is here much of the time during the week.

P. T. A. STUDY CLUB

The Study Club Group of the P. T. A. will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. Leslie Wilbern. The discussion will be led by Mrs. Doris Stuck, of Garrett. Discussion periods will be at 10:00 o'clock and 1:00 o'clock. A pot luck lunch will be served at the noon hour.

Any Mother who is a member of the P. T. A. is welcome to attend this meeting and a later one which will give the 8 hours required for credit by the National Congress for a certificate of credit.

KITCHEN KINKS

A teaspoon of vingear added to a half pint of cream will sour it....Corn flakes toasted and crushed with a rolling pin makes a tasty substitute for cracker crumbs........A few slices of potato put into the lard while frying doughnuts will keep them from burning.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts were light this week on account of the bad roads and cold weather, however bidding was active and all stock found a ready market at the following prices:

Hogs: Weights ranging from 130 to 170, $8.85; 180 to 235, $8.50. Fat sows $6.25 to $6.50, stags up to $5.25. A sow with six pigs at heel brought $32.50, feeder pigs selling by the head brought prices equal to 10 to 12 cents per pound.

Veals: A top of $12.75 was paid for select calves with "Firsts" going on a liberal sort at $11.75 to $12.25. Third line calves $5.00 to $9.00.

Cattle: Young cattle seemed to sell a little lower than last week in line with the drop in terminal markets although butcher cows did not seem to reflect the weaker market and sold fully steady with like quality a week ago. Steers $5.50 to $6.65, heifers $6.00 to $6.25. Fat cows $4.50 to $5.15, shelly canners and low cutters $3.00 to $4.40. Bulls $5.00 to $6.40. Milk cows $41.00 to $58.00.

OFFICERS RENAMED BY FARMERS MUTUAL

Frank Shook, of Grant Township, was re-elected president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., of DeKalb County at the 60th annual meeting of the policy holders, held Saturday afternoon in the court house assembly room in Auburn.

Other officers named were E. E. Turner, Grant Township, vice president; Lester Boger, Union Township, secretary; Perry Foote, Richland Township, treasurer and Ira Williams, Union Township, actuary. Directors elected for two years were George Harmes, Fairfield Township and Albert Yoder, Jackson Township. The holdover directors are William Potter, Franklin Township, Charles Mutzfeld, Wilmington Township, and Albert Thrush, Butler Township.

The company, organized in 1878, has in force $10,000,000 in insurance and according to the annual report Saturday showed all losses have been paid for 1937 amounting to $12,268.07. The balance on hand January 1, 1938, was $7,453.65.

A. M. Baker, guardian of Richard Meek, was authorized by Judge Endicott Thursday to sell the undivided one-tenth of 80 acres of land in Newville Township. Appraisement by Samuel Keesler and Laney Gee is in the sum of $400. The guardian filed $1,000 additional bond, with John A. Baker and Lola Meek as suerties.

The sale by Horace Meek, guardian of Clarence Meek, of a one-tenth interest in 80 acres of land in Newville Township to Lola Meek for $438.27 was approved in the DeKalb Circuit Court Friday. An appraisement in the sum of $420 was made by W. G. Erick and Chas. E. Miser and the guardian filed $900 additional bond, with John Meek and Luella Hensley as sureties.

Fur pelts, taken legally during the trapping season and confiscated by the Division of Fish and Game, are on display for sale at the Riverside state fish hatchery in Indianapolis. Licensed fur-buyers have been invited to inspect the furs and to submit their bids to the Director of Fish and Game, by Feb. 10. Furs confiscated during the trapping season, on which bids are being asked are: 235 muskrat pelts, 30 opossum pelts, 22 raccoon pelts, 10 skunk pelts, 2 weasel pelts and one fox pelt.

REPUBLICAN DINNER TICKETS SELLING FAST

The ticket sale for the Lincoln Day dinner at Auburn on Friday evening, Feb. 11, has already exceeded the expectations for the advanced sale, and it is expected that the ticket sale will be limited before the time of the meeting. Tickets for the dinner are placed at fifty cents, and the committee in charge of the tickets report that while many are being sold, it is advisable to get tickets early to insure accommodations. These tickets can be had from any member of the committee.

The dinner will be served in the K. of P. Hall at Auburn at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. The Pythian Sisters will have charge of the dinner.

Judge Clyde C. Carlin, of Angola, will be the speaker of the evening. He will deliver an address especially appropriate for the occasion. Judge Carlin is an entertaining speaker and those who attend will be entertained as well as being informed on the political issues of the coming campaign.

There will be a musical program in addition to the address by Judge Carlin.

Capt. H. C. Springer, county chairman, will preside at the meeting.

ACCUSED OF LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Donald Ayers, of Newville Township, entered a plea of not guilty when he was arraigned in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday afternoon on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Bond was fixed at $500.

Ayers is alleged to have failed to stop when his automobile sideswiped one driven by Karl Mavis, of Garrett, an employe of the Auburn Printing Co., on Road 8 east of Auburn the night of Jan. 27. Both cars were damaged in the accident.

Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm later found Ayers' machine at Butler and it is said that Ayers could not give a satisfactory explanation of how it was damaged. The affidavit prepared by Wm. H. Husselman, prosecuting attorney, was signed by the sheriff.

Ayers was arrested last year for assault and battery on complaint of his wife, but the case was later dismissed.

STARTED DAIRY ON FEBRUARY FIRST

Ray Reasoner began the operation of the City Side Dairy and the delivery of milk to customers taken over from Merriwold Farms, operated by George Hart for the past few years. Mr. Reasoner has six splendid cows in his herd and is now licensed by the State of Indiana to conduct a dairy.

Living close to city limits makes him accessible to customers at all times.

CLUB TO ELECT OFFICERS

There will be a Conservation Club meeting Thursday night. Election of officers. All members please come.

Harold Baker, President.

No man has reached middle-age wisdom until he learns not to put much faith in hair tonics.

Modern girls are old-fashioned in that they love spinning wheels—but they prefer to have them on automobiles.

They say an honest confession is good for the soul. Yes, and it's also good for a column or so in the newspapers.

Our advice to St. Joe men is not to knock the church. Maybe it has improved since you were there.

Most lawyers don't care who makes the country's laws so long as they can fix its juries.

Why is it that some fellows will pay $1200 for a motor car and then kick if the laundry loses a quarter collar?

It appears quite clearly by this time that the trouble with commercial and industry in this country is that congress does too much back-seat driving.

Urging the wife to keep account of the family expenses is just a sly way of calling attention to how much she spends on herself.

A woman likes for her husband to pay her compliments, but she wants him to remember that she can use a little money, too.

About the only thing the average wife knows about the perfect husband is that her's is a long, long way from being one.

Some men never hunt for a rheumatism cure because they don't want to lose their best weather indicator.

There is nothing funnier in this world than the 15-year-old boy or girl who is "tired of it all."

VANISHING HIRED HANDS

It has not been so very many years ago that practically every farm home of any consequence around St. Joe had its hired man. He was not regarded as a paid laborer; he was a fixture and could be taken into confidence as readily as any other member of the family. He seldom proved to be a "floater." He came out of the nowhere, and no one cared about his past. He was content with board and lodging and a little money now and then for chewing tobacco and a change of shirt and socks. He was a jack-of-all-trades, could fix anything that went wrong about the farm, and was an indispensable member of the family.

Times have changed. The hired man as he was once known and cherished has been melting into oblivion, and there is a vast difference between him and the farm laborer of today. Today's farm hand generally migrates with the season; he isn't content to spend his life in the employ of one family. Today he is nothing more than a man working for wages—and always as high wages as he can get.

The old-time hired man has succumbed to the lure of the city. He couldn't resist the dream of big salaries and wages and the fascinating life of the city. If he has found happiness there, all right. But when he left he took away from the farm a lot of sentiment and happiness that can't be put back by the hired man of the present day.

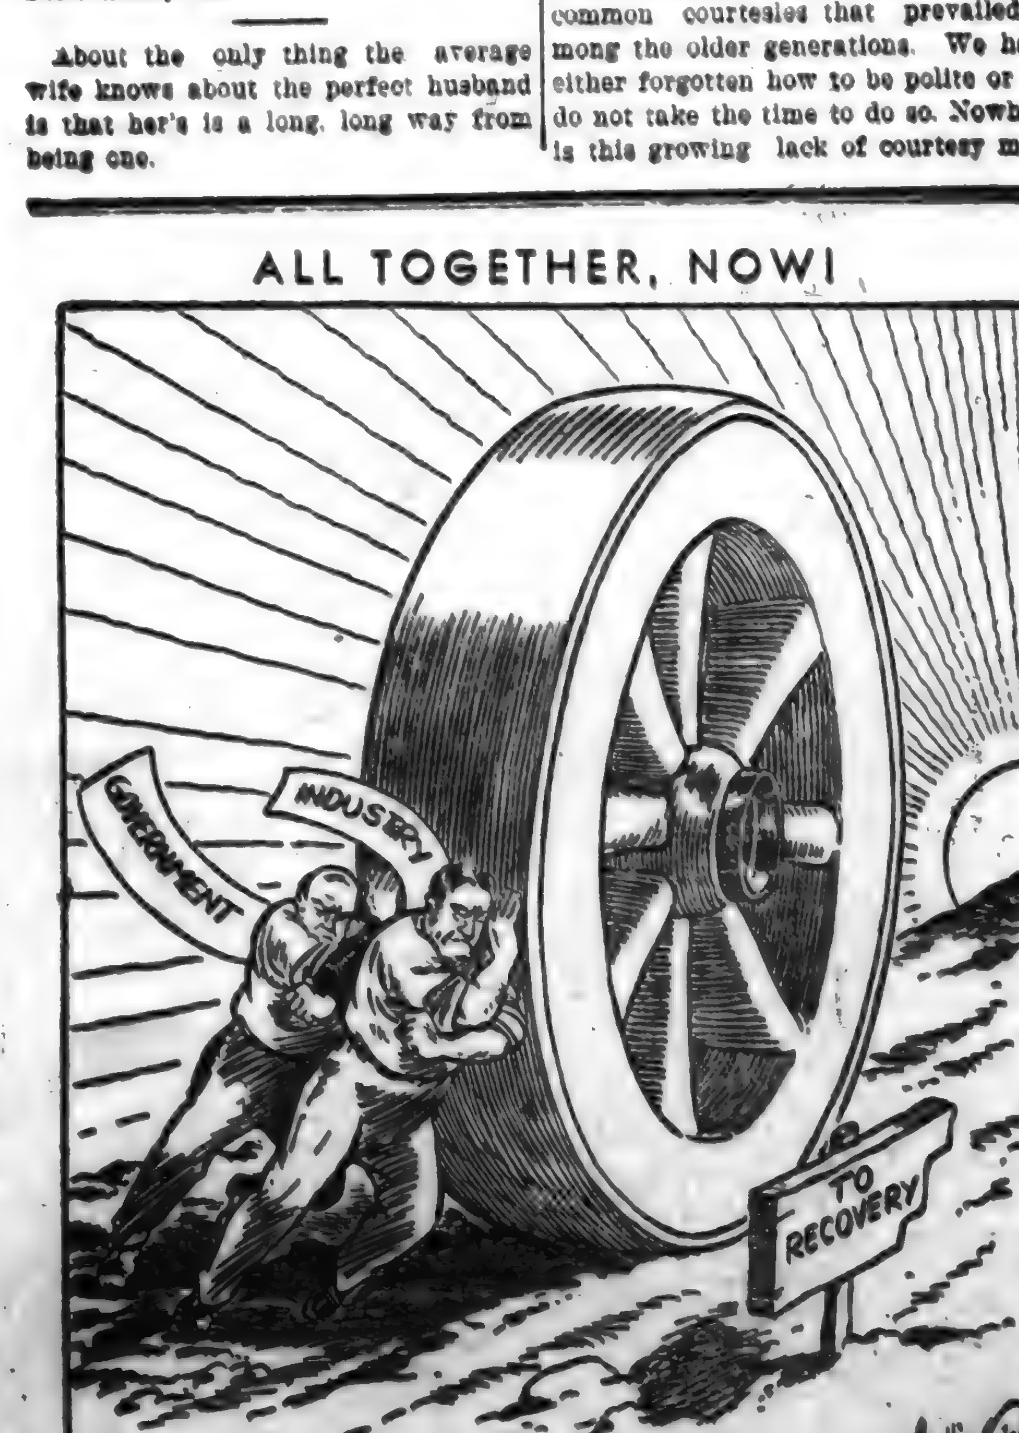
A GOOD EXAMPLE

When one town sets other towns a good example, then the town which does so is entitled to a little free publicity and the other towns are entitled to profit by following that example. The latest instance is offered by the town of Fulton, Mo., and its people are to be congratulated upon the development of a sound idea, one that the residents of St. Joe might do well to take advantage of through working out a similar program.

As a nation we are lacking in the common courtesies that prevailed among the older generations. We have either forgotten how to be polite or we do not take the time to do so. Nowhere is this growing lack of courtesy more evident than behind the steering wheel of an automobile. A large percentage of the highway accidents are due to this lack of consideration for other people, and all the propaganda turned out does not seem to make us any more polite on the road. Since they can't change the oldsters, Fulton citizens believe it will pay in the years to come to concentrate on the youngsters, so each year four cash prizes are awarded, the four children adjudged by a committee of local citizens to have been the most polite and courteous in the community during the year. Since every child in town is anxious to win the coveted honor, as well as the cash prize, the result on the general politeness and courtesy of the town can easily be imagined.

The example is passed on for what it is worth, but it is of interest to note in passing that the children who win the prizes each year are those who are taught courtesy and politeness by their parents in their own homes. That is the place for such lessons, and parents are the best teachers. But in more recent years both the homes and the parents have been somewhat lax. Maybe the example set by the Missouri town will go far toward remedying this.

ALL TOGETHER, NOW!



ROAD ECONOMY

As a rule, St. Joe citizens think of good roads chiefly in terms of speed, convenience and comfort. The highway research board in Washington has found another advantage—savings in cost of car operation and maintenance. The study was made among rural mail carriers in Iowa. It costs them 3.07 cents a mile to drive their automobiles over dirt roads. Gravel roads, at 2.17 cents per mile, are much better. But a good paved highway is easy enough on gasoline, oil, tires and the like to cut the figure to 1.44 cents per mile. As between the old dirt road and the modern highway that is a saving of 1.63 cents per mile—$163 annually for the driver who covers 10,000 a year. So good roads become a matter of good business. Motorists willingly paid for them even before the pocketbook argument was evident. But where special taxes levied for road building are diverted to other needs, the driver may well wonder if one factor doesn't offset the other.

A WELCOME VISITOR

One fellow who is welcome around St. Joe is the free delivery carrier. Nobody motions for him to drive on, and nobody ever stops him and says: "We don't want any mail today." In fact, everyone is happy to see him coming along the road. His job is not the most pleasant one in the world by any means, since it takes him out into all kinds of weather. But like a real soldier he is always to be found at his post of duty, uncomplaining and unmindful of the drab side of his life. We sometimes wonder if he gets all the smiles and hearty well-wishes to which he is entitled; we wonder is all of his patrons are careful to show their appreciation of his faithful service. Have you ever done any wondering along that line, or are you one of those who take him as a matter of course and withhold the smiles to which he is entitled and which would help him along in his work?

IT'S ALL WRONG

There may have been times when American business completely dominated the policies of the American government. And that, of course, was wrong. But when things are reversed, and we find business and government at loggerheads and lined up in battle array, it is not only just as wrong but a bad thing for the whole country. Every fair-minded St. Joe citizen will have to subscribe to that, regardless of his political beliefs or affiliations.

Neither our economic society nor our political society should dominate the other. Such a situation is not fair in the first place, and it cannot make for success and prosperity. It is only when these two powerful forces co-operate in harmony that we progress. Business and government should become reconciled and keep that way. There is nothing inherently wrong with our capitalistic system. It is the foundation on which we have built the might of Amercia. Where in the world today is there a better system? Where are there people better off, or as well off, as we are here in America?

There is nothing better in the world than the American system of government, no people who even approach the American standard of living. This being the case, why not continue the system under which we have grown great, and under which we live so well. Let us correct its errors, iron out its injustices and its inequalities, and add to it any improvements that are absolutely sound and good for the whole people. The best way to do this is by the whole hearted co-operation of everybody concerned, regardless of political beliefs. Continued quarreling isn't going to get us anywhere—except into deeper trouble.

A THIN ARGUMENT

When someone tries to tell you that the big city merchant can sell cheaper than merchants in the smaller towns because the city merchants buy in so much larger quantities, ask him this: How much higher are his taxes? How much greater is the cost of his light and heat? How much more expensive is his clerk hire? How much more costly is his advertising space in the big city papers than space in the small-town paper that serves your local merchant? How much more insurance must he carry because he carries a larger stock. And, finally, who has to pay all this added cost in the long run? If you've been believing that old stuff about "buying in larger quantities," forget it. Answer the above questions for yourself and you'll understand why the small-town merchant does not have to knock under to such sales argument as that, regardless of what section of the country he is doing business in.

DELINQUENT GROSS INCOME TAX COLLECTION FOR 1937

During the calendar year 1937, the Gross Income Tax Division collected through the activities of its delinquent, auditing, and proving sections delinquent taxes with penalty and interest charges totalling $1,736,332.48, Clarence A. Jackson, director of the state Gross Income Tax Division, announced Wednesday.

The delinquent collections in DeKalb County during 1937 totalled $7,823.02.

"In the state total of delinquent collections there is more than a quarter of a million dollars of penalty and interest charges. That is a high price for Indiana citizens to pay for negligence and intentional disregard of the rules, even though it does serve as an object lesson that attempts at tax evasion do no pay,' Mr. Jackson said.

"Since the inception of the law, it has been the uniform policy of the Division to make every effort possible to see that the Gross Income Tax Act is administered equitably," Mr. Jackson continued. "To that end, and for the protection of the honest taxpayer and insurance against his bearing the tax load of those with no compunction about 'chiseling,' the auditing and checking departments were established and have been operating with singular success.

"The state-wide auditing and inspection program is a continuous one, designed to cover the entire state each year. It is supplemented by an office program of checking returns against information on personal property assessment sheets, federal income tax returns, information returns filed by employers and others who pay out money, and other sources of information.

"The above amount of 1937 delinquent collections in DeKalb County, compared to the state total of $1,736,332.48, with due allowance for the size of the county, is probably indicative of the position of DeKalb County in the swing of the current auditing campaign."

St. Joe Secon Team Wins Over Scott Center

From the very beginning the Tiger Cubs led the way to an easy victory. Curie shooting a basket in the first few seconds of the game started it out in whirl wind fashion. This makes the second win for the local Cubs and playing head up basket ball this Friday against Pleasant Lake they should add another victory to their record.

The first team leading by only a few points most of the game lost in the closing minutes in the game with Scott Center due to the driving of Henny who took the place of Feyesh. His long shots and following in scored the extra points necessary to win.

The local clud did not work so smoothly in the Friday night game as they did on Tuesday eve. Many times during the season they have demonstrated flashes of excellent basket ball Should they hold to that style of ball through an entire game they could give most any ball club a royal dribbing.

MORTUARY

DILLEY

Mrs. Sarah Ann Maurer-Dilley, daughter of Jacob and Rebecca Maurer was born in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, April 1, 1849; departed this life January 23, 1938, aged 88 years, 9 months and 22 days.

On June 16, 1869 she was united in marriage to Vincent Dilley, who preceded her in death on February 7, 1908. To this union was born six children all of whom are living: Mrs. Cora Osbun, of Ashley, Mrs. Elizabeth Reasoner, of Elkhart, Mrs. Effie Smith, of near Auburn, Mrs. Mary Baker, of St. Joe, Mr. Hollis Dilley, also of St. Joe, and Mr. John Dilley, of near Waterloo.

She is also survived by one brother, Mr. Simeon Maurer, of Auburn, 23 grandchildren, 40 great grandchildren and a host of friends.

A short time after her marriage she confessed Jesus as her Saviour at the altar of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, and joined her husband in the membership of that organization and remained a faithful member of the church militant until transfer to the church triumphant.

She was a loving and kind mother always concerned with the welfare of her children and she will be greatly missed by them.

A good neighbor and a kind friend. She has lived more than the "fourscore" years here and is now beginning that eternal life that is not measured by years.

Funeral services were conducted in the St. Joe Lutheran Church Thursday afternoon by the Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, Indiana, and burial in the White City Cemetery at Spencerville, Indiana.

WHITE

Mrs. Dora White, of Spencerville, died Friday morning at 10:30 following a sudden illness at the home of a son, Ervin White of St. Joe, Ind.

Mrs. Dora White was born October 10, 1853 and died January 28, 1938, at the age of 84 years, 3 months and 18 days.

She was the widow of Mr. Ernest Henry White, who departed life on July 20, 1930. To this union was born six children, namely: Mr. Albert White, of Amarillo, Texas; Mrs. Lillie Vendrely, Huntertown, Ind.; Mr. Ervin White, St. Joe, Ind.; Mrs. Irma Harper, Spencerville, Ind., and Mary and Daniel who died in infancy.

Surviving are 17 grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Fred Matzen, Autwerp, Ohio, one brother, Mr. Henry Kreeger, Toledo, O. Three half sisters, Mrs. Treana Gassen, Toledo, Ohio; Miss Gusta Kreeger and Miss Anna Kreeger, Sandusky, O., and one half brother, Mr. Fred Kreeger, of Detroit, Mich.

Miss Dorothea Katherina Corlenia Kreeger was born October 10, 1853, in the village of Brunstead, Germany. In 1866 they came to this country. On October 12, 1877 was united in marriage to Ernest Henry White at Sandusky, Ohio. They came to Paulding County, Ohio sixty-one years ago when it was a vast wilderness, and moved to Spencerville, Indiana in 1920 and lived there until death.

The funeral services were held from the home of her son, where she passed away, on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Scholes officiating. Burial was made at Payne, Ohio.

POPER

Mrs. Clara L. Poper, daughter of Lewis and Clarissa Cole, was born near Newville, Indiana, January 17, 1859, and departed this life on January 24, 1938, aged 79 years, and 7 days.

On January 2, 1881 she was united in marriage to Hiram David Poper, of Milford Township, Defiance County, Ohio. To this union there were born three children, all living, as follows: Mrs. Myra Malone, of Butler, Ind., Marvin G. Poper and Mrs. Opal Wilmot, both of St. Joe, Ind. She also leaves nine grandchildren, and one brother, Malcolm Cole, of Newville, Ind., and many other relatives. After their marriage they lived for several years on a farm near Newville, and later moved to a farm near St. Joe, Ind., where they lived for several years.

Mr. Poper preceded her in death sixteen years ago. For the past seven years she had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Malone, in Butler, where she was kindly cared for during her closing years.

She, with her husband, united with the Newville Christian Church many years ago, and was baptized by Rev. Chas. R. Scoville, and later united with the church in St. Joe. She was a good woman, and lived a faithful Christian life, patient in her afflictions and passed peacefully into rest.

Funeral services were held in the St. Joe Christian Church on Thursday forenoon, conducted by Rev. F. A. Shape, of Butler, Ind. Burial was made in the St. Joe Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends in and about St. Joe for their kindness and words of sympathy, in the passing of our mother, Mrs. Clara Poper. Also wish to thank the pall bearers and singers for their services

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1938 NUMBER 6

CHURC HWORKERS SHOULD ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

County Convention Held at Auburn on Thursday and Friday Given Real Support by County. Twelve Townships Represented.

(Auburn Evening Star)

Officers for the year 1938-39 for the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education were elected at the closing session of the annual convention in Auburn on Friday.

Fred B. Leighty of St. Joe was named president of the council for the third consecutive year. Albert Yoder of Jackson township was reelected first vice president, Forrest Harding of Corunna, second vice president and Earl Beber of Union township, third vise president. Miss Sadie Coy of Auburn was returned to the office of secretary-treasurer. She has served seventeen years.

Mrs. Dora Carnahan of Jackson township will head the children's division, Lowell Peck of Corunna the young people's division with Mrs. Rose Means of St. Joe as assistant, Arthur Friend of Jackson township, the adult division and Mrs. Nora McDonald of Corunna, the educational division. A new department was set up, that of finance and the committee is Ora Norris and W. A. Arnold of Corunna, L. W. Bonbrake of Ashley, J. N. George, Ward Jackman and G. E. Beugnot of Auburn and Clyde Hart of Spencerville.

The audience room of the Methodist church was completely filled for Thursday night's program, which opened with two numbers by a chorus of thirty-five boys and girls under the direction of Mrs. Harold Nugen. Mr. Fisher led the song service. Rev. C. C. Cripe offered the prayer and Mr. Fisher played a medley of gospel hymns on the accordion. Rev. Cripe conducted the devotional period, taking the Sermon on the Mount, or the Beatitudes, found in the fifth chapter of St. Matthew's gospel, the first sixteen verses.

Preceding the service in the church a banquet was held in the church dining room. Ward Jackman, past president of the county organization, presided. Mrs. Melvin Koontz, on the violin, and Mrs. Ward Jackman at the piano gave the musical numbers. Dr. Dale Treadwell was the toastmaster. The members of the Corona class served the dinner.

Memorial to Frank Pfister

A touching memorial was given the late Frank Pfister who last year was the toastmaster at the annual banquet of the association. Those at the tables stood while Mrs. Koontz and Mrs. Jackman played softly, "Auld Lang Syne," emphasizing the thought, shall old acquaintance be forgot.

The toastmaster presented Fred Leighty of St. Joe, president of the county council, Rufus Strong, who for twenty-eight years has been superintendent of the Rehobeth M. P. Sunday school in Jackson township, George E. Beugnot of Auburn, vice president of the state organization, E. T. Albertson of Indianapolis, the convention speaker, and Pauline Roth, an Allen county Sunday school worker.

The theme of the banquet speakers centered around the assembling of the different parts of an automobile, by way of illustrating how the workers in all of the departments of the Sunday school should combine their duties in order to make the Sunday school a smooth running machine. The subjects discussed by the different speakers were, the engine, Rev. Donald J. Dunkin of Garrett; the steering wheel, T. E. Myers of Auburn; the automobile radio, Lee C. Fisher of Portland, Ind., who sang "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky," dedicated to Mr. Pfister; automobile insurance, Robert Raub; the brakes, Miss Ruth Kanaga of Fairfield township and the tires, Superintendent Charles Overmeyer of the Waterloo public schools.

Fear of Regimentation

"America is nearer regimentation today than we realize," declared Mr. Albertson, the convention speaker in his address in the church auditorium Thursday night. "Anything can happen," he said. "I heard men say that in twelve years, possibly a little longer, we will be where Germany is today if the church is not awake to its responsibility.

"The finest investment you can make is in your boys and girls and we are going to have to walk as we talk if we are going to lead those boys and girls. We've got a lot of people who will have to square their conduct. To win the world, we must have a real, genuine reality in God. The home must be revitalized. We have gotten so we don't believe anybody or anything anymore. A lot of boys and girls with new ideas have left the church because they were not allowed to give expression to those ideas. How many people today believe that 'whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap?' If we did, it would change the whole social order," Mr. Albertson asserted.

"This church can't live successfully in this town without the help of all the other churches in this town. You've got to get limbered up if you want to get going. We had a horse on our farm that was worth $200 standing and $250 moving. Would you have sold that horse standing or would you have sold it moving? You ask, 'how is that?' Well, that horse standing had rheumatism just above the hocks, but after we got her going she was all right and we had no trouble with her. She was limbered up. Some people in the church are like that. We've got to get them going in a revival meeting to make them worth something."

The program concluded with a drama, "Watch the Auction Block", by a group of young people from Concord, Spencer and Newville townships. A girl, representing the child life of the world was bound and placed on the auction block. The auctioneer asked the world for bids. Child Labor bid against all others. The next bidder was Race Hatred, because he desired profit from war.

Riches was the third and Power the fourth bidder. King Alcohol offered a bid which he was sure could not be matched, pleading that his very existence depended upon the youth of the land. Good Will placed an offer on the girl and although the bidder had no money she bid for the security of child life. The next bidder was The Spirit of the Church. She challenged the right of all of the others to possess the child, but when the Spirit of Christianity in the white robes of purity appeared before the auction block to plead for the child the others gave way to her.

Fred B. Leighty of St. Joe, president of the DeKalb County Sunday School association, called the 73rd annual convention to order Thursday morning in the First M. E. church in Auburn for a two-day session. Convention speakers scheduled are E. T. Albertson of Indianapolis, state secretary; Dr. Raymond Schutz of Manchester college, North Manchester, traveler and lecturer and the state president, and Miss Julia Hodge of Auburn who spent many years in the Philippine islands as a missionary teacher. Lee C. Fisher of Portland, Ind., is the convention song leader and musician.

The opening session Thursday morning started with a song service and Rev. O. B. Noren, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, was in charge of the devotionals. William Graham of Auburn, president of the Union township unit of the county organization, extended the greeting to the delegates and Albert Yoder of Jackson township, council vice president, gave the response.

Dr. Manfred C. Wright, pastor of the Auburn First M. E. church, preached the convention sermon.

Rev. Wright, using the text, "Now therefore give pledges to my master, the king of Assyria, and I will give thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them," Isa. 36:8, said in part:

"The part played by horses in transporting men has been great—in military movements, in early American migrations, in postal and messenger service. The equestrian statuary of the world shows it. The offer made by Sennacherib to Hezekiah of 2,000 horses, if accepted, would have started an advance movement toward the Assyrian capital. Happily for Judah's king and people that treacherous offer was not accepted and the honor of Jehovah and His people was preserved.

"The point for present use out of this bit of ancient history is that horses must have riders; as material equipment for advancement they must be guided and controlled by men.

"And riders must be trained. Organizations and material resources must be intelligently used. Trained men, as well as materials, for service overseas were needful to win the world war. Battleships and airplanes are worthless without commanders and pilots. Power projects must have trained engineers. Business and industry demand skill and executive ability. Education makes for culture, but it trains also for productive achievement.

Great Need of Church

"Riders for horses, in the sense of trained workers and leaders for kingdom advancement, is the great need of the church. Christian missions might have the financial backing of "America's 60 Families" but that would not carry the gospel to the ends of the earth with trained gospel messengers. Christian institutions and projects would fail without trained workers. The fields are white, but trained workers must gather the harvest. The local churches, with their Sunday schools, must have trained workers to advance the Kingdom of Christ.

"Three questions concern the riders for the horses of Heaven's King. Three answers fit the question as to trained workers and leaders for the advancement of the Sunday school and its parent, the church.

"First, where are they to be found? Answer, from the local field of work. Imported leadership, except from general staffs and central offices, in limited measure, cannot be expected to advance the local movement. It must come from the local membership and constituency.

"The children above the primary age offer one of the finest groups for training. Junior choirs and junior orchestras and other juvenile projects may present a beautiful service and give training of major importance. Young persons before they assume domestic responsibilities offer the best prospect for teacher training and church service. The speaker learned to ride the old farm horses at 8, 9 and 10 years of age. He learned to speak and pray in public at twelve. But for the latter early training he might never have yielded to the call to the ministry.

"Boys and girls at an early age begin to get their secular training. Some become trained in adverse and wicked ways. The youthful pal in the Ross kidnaping began his criminal training in his teens.

"Training in other lines as witnessed in athletics, Four-H clubs, radio and drama challenge to better training for religious advancement. Tomorrow's church depends on two things: First, the conversion of boys and girls and young people to Christ and his way of life; and second, upon training them for Christ's work and leadership.

"DeKalb county's slogan is one of the best: 'Advance through training.' Challenging projects are many. Personal prospects for training abound. The training task appeals most forcefully for the advancement of the kingdom of Christ."

"Let Some One Else Do It"

Speaking Thursday afternoon on the subject, "Preparing for Our Responsibilities," Mr. Albertson asked the large auidence the question, "Is it important that we teach religion, or do we believe it ought to just grow up like Topsy?" He declared, that in his opinion the church has built up a type of inferiority complex. There are people in the church today who say, "I know such and such ought to be done; but let some one else do it."

Said the speaker, "I wonder what would have happened had John the Baptist been in the church today. I wish we would get the conviction, the urge, the responsibility that John the Baptist had, for the need of plain old fashioned work. The trouble with a lot of people today is that they do not work enough to get tired enough to sleep. That's the reason we are turning night into day.

"The trouble is that we have too many interests and investments in other things and not enough time for the church. How is the church today concerned about being 'my brother's keeper-' What is your attitude in the church toward the human race—toward the Chinese, the negro. What is your idea on peace and war? What about the whiskey business? I heard a pastor last week who said the liquor question is now no longer an issue with the church. That is a challenge to the church.

"I wonder if it is not an issue with the church when eighty per cent of the inmates of Keely institutes today are women between the ages of twenty-five and forty years. I wonder if it is not an issue with the church when a large number of the women of our north side in Indianapolis, the socially prominent part of the city, are patrons of places where liquor is sold. I wonder if it is not an issue with the church, when we as church members patronize restaurants where intoxicating beverages are served. As Christians and as Sunday School workers we ought to rise up and say, by the grace of God these things shall not be. This generation in the church must be trained to its responsibility."

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The annual musical evening of the Ladies Literary Club was given on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Glen Cole with Miss Elizabeth Jones acting as hostess.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Inez Hadsell, chairman of the committee. The opening number was a piano solo by Mrs. Thelma Baker, entitled "Nola." Vocal duet, Lora Leighty and Edith Cole, "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By." History of music, Mary Wilbern. A double quartette then gave two numbers, entitled "Snowflakes" and "Night." The ladies were Florence Goldsmith, Mary Wilbern, Avis Staman, Daisy Woodcox, Edith Cole, Joyce Bollinger, Lora Leighty and Cora Curle, with Thelma Baker accompanying.

"Taps,' an eight hand piece for the piano was then rendered by Florence Goldsmith, Joyce Bollinger, Lora Leighty and Cora Curle. Vocal trio, "Londonderry Air" Avis Staman, Edith Cole and Lora Leighty, with Cora Curle at the piano. Mrs. Joyce Bollinger then played "The Dance of the Butterflies." Lora Leighty and Florence Goldsmith rendered a piano duet, a March from Tanhauser. The remainder of the members gave an orchestral number conducted by Belle Woodcox which was greatly applauded.

Mrs. Daisy Woodcox then conducted a song fest with Lora Leighty at the piano, at which time all heartily participated. Mrs. Joyce Bollinger composed a contest which was a story on the life of Lincoln, using mostly patriotic songs and hymns. Mrs. Cora Curle read the story with Mrs. Bollinger at the piano. Mary Wilbern won the contest by recognizing the largest number of songs used in the story.

Committee for the evening, Inez Hadsell, Florence Goldsmith, Joyce Bollinger and Cora Curle.

The ladies were then invited to the dining room where the tables were beautifully decorated, and the refreshments, which were in colors emblematic of the patriotic anniversaries of the month of February.

Miss Janalyce Rouls, of Angola, an honorary member, was a guest.

CAR CRASHES INTO LIGHT POLE AT WIDNEY'S CORNERS

Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm and his deputy, C. M. Minnich, Saturday took possession of a Buick sedan loaded with illicit alcohol that was abandoned early Saturday morning on Road No. 1 East of St. Joe.

The driver of the car evidently failed in negotiating the curve and crashed into an electric pole, crushing the front end of the car and disabling it. People living nearby notified the sheriff.

The car contained about thirty-five five-gallon cans of alcohol and bore Indiana license plates No. 816-760, 1938. No other signs of the identity of the owner were found. The license number is being traced through the state.

The crash occurred about four o'clock Saturday morning, and by the marks on the pavement by the skidding of the tires, the car was driving at a fast speed. Following the crash the driver spent some time at the Geo. Wilmot home and then left the car, also leaving his overcoat and hat.

Officials were called and took the car into custody.

GOLDSMITH STORE CHANGED HANDS LAST WEDNESDAY

Arthur C. Lyon, son of County Auditor Frank E. Lyon, became the owner of the Joe R. Goldsmith general store in St. Joe, last Wednesday afternoon, when the transaction was consumated in a very short time.

Mr. Lyon graduated from the Auburn high school in 1933, and had been connected with the A. & P. stores for four years, being promoted to store manager. Mr. Lyon is a single man. He became the owner of a thriving business in St. Joe, and states that he will do everything in his power to merit a continuance of the same fine trade of his predecessor.

Mr. Goldsmith, having run the store for two years and four months, can report a most successful merchandising business and people will be sorry to have him leave St. Joe. As yet his plans are not announced.

LOCAL HOG RAISER GETS OFFICIAL REGOGNITION

American Hampshire Herdsman Journal for February contained an article—Brood sow production winners of 1937 and written by Gene Harsch. The article is as follows:

"In the contest for the highest production record by a single sow or gilt, the gold medal awarded for first place goes to O. E. Ginther, Spencerville, Indiana. His top record of the contest was made by Case Acres Dash 554910, a spring gilt. The total 56 day weaning time weight was 402.5 pounds or 40.25 pounds to each pig, which had weighed 3.1 pounds at birth."

We are pleased to quote this splendid recognition as it again places the St. Joe Valley in the front line of successful Hampshire breeding. The 1938 goal is 100 members in this association.

$25 AND TEN DAYS FOR LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Donald Ayers of Newville Township, was fined $25 and costs and was sentenced to jail for ten days when he entered a plea of guilty in the DeKalb Circuit Court Thursday to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Ayers' car collided Jan. 27 with one driven by Karl Mavis of Garrett, on Road 8 East of Auburn. Mr. Mavis did not know at the time who was driving the other car, as it did not stop, but Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm making an investigation, found Ayers' car damaged and Ayers could not make a satisfactory explanation.

Ayers at first pleaded not guilty, but changed his mind Thursday.

COOKING SCHOOL AT ST. JOE, FEBRUARY 17

Ladies of this community who are interested in modern cooking methods in their home, are invited to attend the electric cookery school, held in the basement of the St. Joe Lutheran Church on Thursday of next week.

Catherine Elliott of the Home Service Department of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., will be the instructor.

You need not own an electric range to be interested, but if you do, it will be a real opportunity for obtaining expert advise along this line.

YOUNG BOY DIES OF HEMORRHAGE

Rohland Lee Thomas, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas, residing on the Snyder farm, formerly the Sheffer farm on the brick road south of Auburn, died at 1:30 o'clock Monday morning from a hemorrhage, the result of lobar pneumonia.

Rohland was taken ill three weeks ago on Saturday. He apparently was recovering. An abscess which formed on the lung resulted in the hemorrhage a short time before his death.

Rohland was the youngest of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and was born at Martin, near Toledo, Ohio, eleven years ago on February 24th. He was a pupil in the sixth grade of the DeSoto school in East Auburn.

Surviving are the parents and three brothers, Eugene, in the Auburn high school, residing with his parents; Reynold of West Seventh St., and Hoyte of Fort Wayne.

The Thomas family lived in the Coburntown community before moving to near Auburn living on the Wm. Somner farm.

Funeral was held Wednesday at Auburn.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283

Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. - - - -

The Legion, co-operating with the Township Trustees and County officials have secured a project for WPA workers of the county.

The project includes cleaning up, spading and re-seeding, and re-setting monuments and markers in the several neglected cemeteries of the county.

In order to assist in the re-location of markers, persons interested in the up-keep of the Jenkins Cemetery, are requested to see Vernie Monroe, and those interested in the Moore Cemetery to see Ford Jackson.

The Legion and Auxiliary will enjoy a potluck supper on Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, at 6:30 P. M. at the Legion Home.

A program will be given at 8 P. M. to which the public is invited. The program will be given in honor of Washington's birthday and will stress Americanism and Flag Etiquette.

Post No. 283 authorized a resolution to be formed and sent to our Senators and Congressmen urging the passage of the Legion's Widows and Orphans bill (HR8803) and the Universal Service bill (825 and HR6704.)

CULTURE CLUB

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 2nd, the ladies of the Culture Club were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton.

Following a short business session Mrs. Margaret Wisler invited the ladies to the kitchen where they expected her to give her lesson on culinary art. When to their surprise the door opened and in walked their husbands, a surprise planned by their hostess.

Mrs. Wisler then introduced Mr. and Mrs. Buckmaster and daughters, of Fort Wayne, who gave a demonstration of the Wear-Ever Aluminum and served the meal.

They were all asked to be seated at the tables with appointments in red and white, where they were served riced potatoes, roast beef and gravy, cabbage, carrots, apple sauce and coffee. On the tables was home made rolls, cottage cheese and pickles.

The second course, in keeping with St. Valentine Season, and served by the hostess, consisted of cherry jello and whipped cream with cup cakes decorated with red hearts. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games, stunts and contests, the men proving themselves good sports in all the games.

Another reason why most of our prayers are not answered is we are selfish enough to expect the Lord to do our hustling and worrying for us.

When you consider how many disagreeable people there are in the world it's a wonder hung juries are not more common.

How unfortunate it is that the only men who know how to handle big world problems prefer to spend their time whittling on a box.

If we had guns of smaller calibre and men of larger calibre we would be a long step further on the road to peace.

Our chief objection to the man who can quote from Shakespeare is that he is always doing it.

Wonder why it is that nobody ever seems to make a hobby out of minding his own business?

It is always much better to be able to blame an auto accident on a poor eye than on poor rye.

Old-fashioned parents once worried about getting their daughters married but nowadays they worry about getting them to stay married.

A true optimist is a man who suffers in a dental chair to preserve his teeth for another four or five years.

As soon as a man commences to make big money his wife commences buying up foreign furniture that was made in Grand Rapids.

VALUE OF THRIFT

We read in an interesting publication known as "Thrift Magazine" that statistics gathered over a long period of years show that 57 per cent of American citizens—haven't as much half tht population—haven't as much as $2,000 in money or property, or both, when they reach the age of 65 years. In other words, more than one-half of our population is dependent upon somebody else for a living, or on charity, when it reaches 65. That is a startling revelation and one certainly worth pondering over. It ought to prove a powerful sermon to St. Joe boys who are starting out to earn their way in the world, or to the man in business who has still some years to go before reaching 65. In a land of good wages and banks paying a reasonable rate of interest on deposited money there doesn't seem to be any excuse for such a deplorable condition. But the fact remains that it exists and it probably will exist until more people wake up to the fact that the most valuable habit anyone can acquire is the habit of thrift—saving against the days when they won't be able to earn.

THINK OF THIS

There was an item in the daily papers the other day to the effect that a big Chicago food manufacturer has announced he will spend a million dollars in advertising his products in 1938. When asked why, he answered: "Because advertising speakes to everybody, and I can talk to only a few. How can I sell them what they want if I don't tell them that I've got it for sale? I can't visit every house in the United States and tell the people living in those houses that if they'll buy my products they will save money. But the newspapers and magazines can visit every home, and they do. So I am going to have them carry my message into homes that I can not get it into in any other way." There's a whole sermon in a few words, and an argument that no one can successfully dispute. There is also an example in it for any other man who has something to sell. "How can you sell someone what they want to buy if you don't let them know you've got it for sale?" There's something for every man in business to think over.

TOO MANY PAINS

Ever notice that there appears to be more different kinds of aches and pains in general physical complains around St. Joe than used to be the case. Not that the health of the community isn't as good as in former years for it is. But more people seem to make public their ailments than in other years.

We've done a lot of wondering about it and have reached the conclusion that changing habits of eating and varieties of food has a lot to do with it. This generation isn't eating like the former one. This one goes in more for canned and fancy prepared foods. Housewives don't can the roughage their mothers did—pickles, corn, hominy, beets and that type of stuff. Now they can more jellies, jams and preserves. We are not finding fault with the changed custom—we are merely wondering if back of it doesn't lie the real reason for more minor physical ailments than befell our fathers and mothers in earlier days.

The death rate isn't as high now as formerly, for which everyone is truly thankful. We are more healthy, yet more complaining; we wear fewer clothes, yet we are more comfortable. So it's a funny proposition any way you take it and no one seems to know the answer to it unless it is "stylish" nowadays to brag about your ailments.

Educational Day Program

A special educational program will be rendered Sunday morning at the Lutheran Sunday School, presenting the drama, "Watch the Auction Block." Sunday School at regular hour, 9:30.

Boy Scouts of America Mark 28th Birthday...

Aged Dan Beard, national commissioner and godfather of the Boy Scouts of America, sees his charges celebrate their twenty-eighth birthday February 6 to 12. There are now more than 1,000,000 active scouts in America, and 7,500,000 men and boys have participated in the movement at some time. Physical, mental and moral benefits are sought by the Boy Scouts, shown below in typical activities designed to develop character.

These boys are making a canoe, one of the "crafts" being demonstrated in home towns throughout America during Boy Scout week. Since America's future lies in its youth, the Boy Scout movement has gained popular support.

Archery is one of the many activities commanding Scouts' attention. But the important 1938 Boy Scout theme will be safety, endeavoring to cut America's 40,000-death traffic toll of 1937. National Scout headquarters is preparing stage and radio sketches, posters and miscellaneous material to aid the drive.

During Boy Scout week expositions spring up in stores, windows and sidewalks as America's youth demonstrates what it knows and can do. In this picture a group of Scouts are studying aviation, always a popular subject.

FEARS WAR MAY WIPE OUT OUR CIVILIZATION

Dr. J. Raymond Schutz, Speaking in Auburn, Says 58 Per Cent of People Now Live Under Dictatorship

(Evening Star)

"At this moment there is a double threat, a triple threat, nay, a dozen threats that the world will again be plunged into the cataclysm of war that may wipe out civilization," declared Dr. J. Raymond Schutz of Manchester college, North Manchester, Ind., in the closing address of the 78rd annual convention of the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education in Auburn Friday night.

Dr. Schutz, traveler, lecturer and president of the Indiana council for seven years, discussed the subject, "Talking Peace and Thinking War."

There was a total registration of 481 delegates at the two day convention, the most successful ever held in DeKalb county. The workers were invited to hold the 1939 convention in the Auburn M. E. Church.

The senior orchestra of the host church opened Friday night's program and Lee C. Fisher of Portland, Ind., the convention song leader who contributed largely to its success, led the song period. Dr. Manfred C. Wright, pastor of the church in which the convention sessions were held for two days, conducted the devotions. At the conclusion of the address by Dr. Schutz, Mr. Fisher showed several motion picture reels of scenes which he recently took on his world tour, featuring those of the orient.

Spread of Dictatorships

Dr. Schutz in his address said in part, "Just twenty years ago tonight I spoke in an Ohio city when this country was in the throes of a World war. We entered that war to make the world safe for democracy. But did we? In these twenty years the world has had forty-two dictators and today 58 per cent of the people of the world live under dictatorships. How successful were we in our aim for democracy?

"We were told that we were fighting a war to end war. But did we?

"Up to this moment we have had thirty three major revolutions in those twenty years. The nations of Europe are in a mad race of armament, trembling on the brink of another catastrophe. A civil war in Spain, the war in China and the whole world is talking peace and thinking war. That is the contradiction that we fought a war to end war.

"We tried the League of Nations. It hasn't been worth the snap of your fingers. The world court was repudiated. The Paris pact was worth nothing. The disarmament conference was a failure. Only last week the president of the United States asked for a billion and a half dollars to increase our navy. What is at stake in the colossal danger that we face tonight and how can we get out of it?

"It was Christmas and voices came from heaven singing 'Peace on earth and good will to men' and I thought as I read those words, that because Christ was born into the world we would have peace. The Greek translation is 'Peace on earth and good will to men of good will.' Is it not true, then, that peace is not universal? Peace is not universal because it is limited to certain capacities. Why, leaders of peace societies even recommend that we boycott Japan. To me that is inconceivable. My Lord said 'love your enemy. If thine enemy smite thee on one cheek, turn to him the other.' I am wondering how the professional pacifist squares with that.

"I have been four times in Europe and I know how those people feel. I know how the people of Germany feel because England and France and the United States triumphed in the World war. Germany is suspicious of peace and she is watching those nations.

"What is our reponsibility in this matter of peace? The human race has suffered three curses since the beginning of time—famine, plague and war. We apparently have been able to get rid of famine and plague through science. For thousands of years men fought hand-to-hand. Now, science has made war more terrible by inventing the engines of war on the sea, under the sea, in the air and by poison gas. I have been told that now we have a poison gas so deadly that a single drop from an airplane could destroy every human being in New York City in twenty minutes—think of it, every one of those seven million souls. Science has developed something so deadly that it can destroy every form of human life.

"No, science can never stop war. Only the religion of Jesus Christ will do that, and unless we get busy with our job of good will everything in civilization may be wiped off the face of the earth. Whenever war ceases, famine and plague will cease, for cannot we trace most of our economic ills to war? Fifty per cent of every dollar today in the world is spent for armament. You can't shoot off fifty cents of every dollar and have anything but economic disaster and you can't figure it any other way."

In concluding Dr. Schutz said, "Peace on earth? The task of the church is to spread the gospel of good will in the world. If the Kingdom of Christ is to be perpetuated we must be the messengers and ambassadors of this peace."

AN INSPIRATION—"If you would be sure that you are beginning right, begin to save."

Back in the good old days an optimist was a St. Joe boy who believed everything he read on a circus poster.

Clubs from Allen, Noble and Lagrange are being entertained by Mrs. Peters today.

Lester Boger, a well known Union Township farmer, announced his candidacy on Monday for the Democratic nomination for the office of treasurer of DeKalb County, subject to the May primary. Mr. Boger is best known as the secretary of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Co-operative and also of the DeKalb County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company. He is vice president of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, graduated in 1917 from the Auburn high school, where he took a course in bookkeeping and attended DePauw University.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Around a farm, you will find roosters flappin' their wings and perching on the highest places they can find—and showin' off. But if you happen to be lookin' for something for an omelet, you do not waste your time up there on any roof.

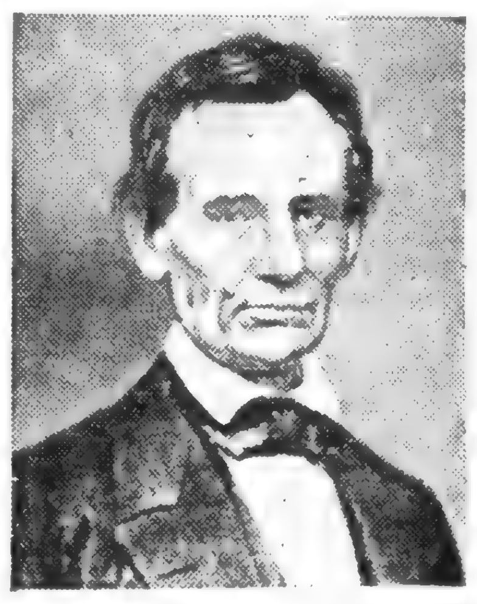
And in getting business revived and going again, it is gonna be the same, and whatever gettin' ahead is bein' done, it will be by the average kind of person who is still gettin' up at 6:30 A. M., and not by the fellers up there in the tree tops.

And the commotion in the high places, it just keeps people upset and confused, and not knowin' what is coming next. Like when a hawk flies over—the chickens run under the house, and do not come out till the danger is over.

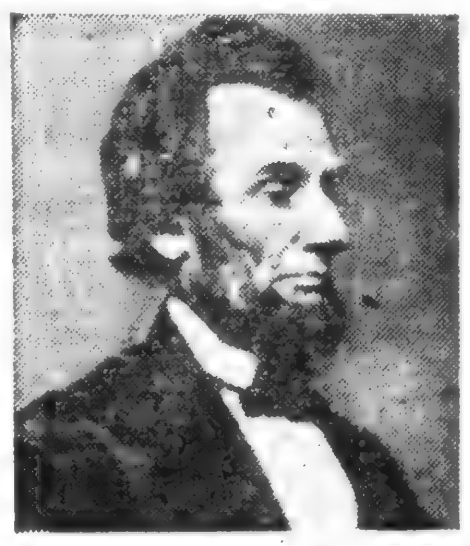
But one of these days, people will get fed up, as you might say, and they will mosey out there and pick off a few roosters from the high branches—and invite the neighbors for some fricassee.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

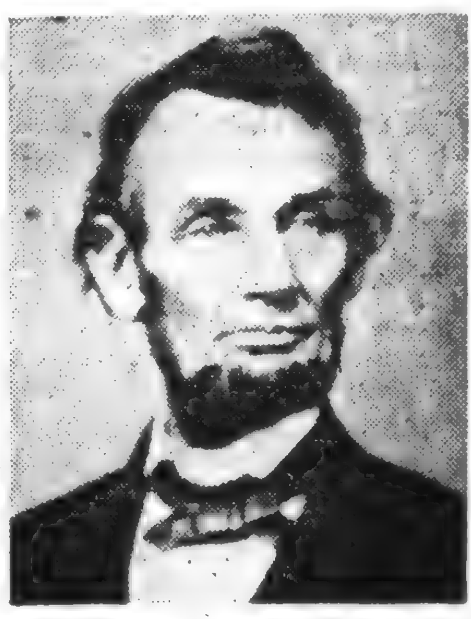
AS LINCOLN GREW OLD



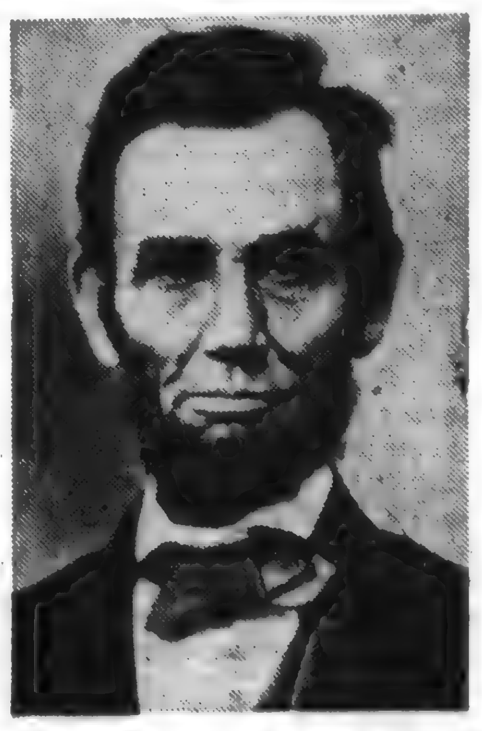
The tragic march of time that etched deep furrows in Abraham Lincoln's brow is clearly illustrated in these pictures from the Yale University Press. The above photograph was made by Matthew Brady, famous Civil war photographer, on February 27, 1860. This picture and his speech at Cooper Union, Lincoln once said, made him President.



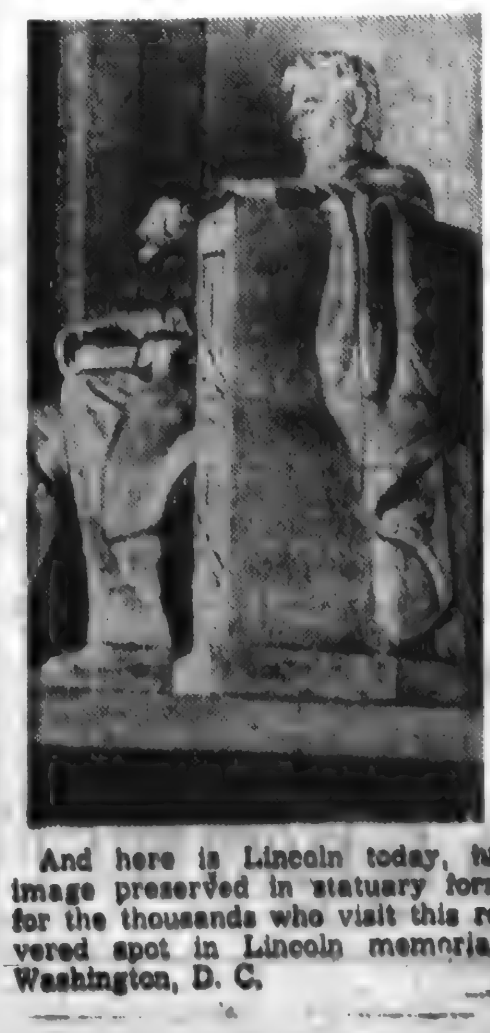
One February 23, 1863, two years after the war began, Brady again trained his lens on the features of Lincoln. Here we see him in repose, part of the war behind him, weary to his soul . . . a wise, saddened man.



Now it is 1864 and in the South Lincoln hears the steady, undiminished roar of the guns and the gasps of the dying while at home discontent rises. He is pleasant-faced and smiling here as he tries to give his followers a note of confidence. But who would say only four years separate this photograph and the first one?



Here is one of the most famous pictures ever made of Lincoln, taken during the last years of his life and showing a face scalded by time.



And here is Lincoln today, his image preserved in statuary form for the thousands who visit this revered spot in Lincoln memorial, Washington, D. C.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

MORTUARY

MILLIMAN

George W. Milliman, son of J. M. and Maria (Alton) Milliman, was born February 26, 1868 in Newago County, Michigan. But when he was a small boy his parents moved back to the old homestead at Coburn's Corners where he grew to manhood. He became a Christian when quite young and worked in the church as long as he lived there.

He was united in marriage to Mary Elizabeth Thomas on June 21, 1896. To this union were born three children, Merritt and Lysle, both of Ft. Wayne, and a boy who died in infancy.

The first home was in Fremont, Mich., but from there returned to St. Joe. While he lived there he learned the barber trade which he followed from then on until his last sickness.

About 1920 he moved to Michigan and remained there for some time but finally returned to Indiana and run a barber shop in Spencerville. Although he lived in different places his home was in and around St. Joe.

A few weeks ago he took sick and was removed to the St. Joseph Hospital and then with his son, Lysle. Then he removed to the home of his brother, Clifford, where he passed away, February 1, 1938, age 69 years, 11 months and 5 days.

He leaves to mourn his departure besides his two sons, two brothers John and Clifford, one sister, Amelia Beeber, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Coburn's Corners Church, Friday afternoon, the Rev. Walter Coburn, pastor, presiding. Burial in Alton Cemetery, Roscoe Walter funeral director.

LITTLE DRAMA HAS AN APPEAL FOR SERIOUS THINKING

The drama "Watch the Auction Block" sponsored by the educational department of the County Sunday School Association, and cast by local people, has been very much talked of the last few weeks, and last Sunday produced the drama for the second time at the close of the Lutheran Sunday School, with much comment as to the value of such productions before our people today.

Next Sunday at 10:30 the cast will again present the play at the close of the Christian Sunday School by request of the officers of the local organization.

Should there be anyone in the local community, who has not seen the short drama as yet, they will do well to take time out and witness the 20 minute production.

Some have said, "we like it because we need to think serious of the things brought out in this drama, as child life faces the many temptations of today."

COOKING SCHOOL AT 2 P. M. THURSDAY

Every lady in this community should avail herself of the opportunity to attend the Free Cooking School held in the Lutheran Church basement, Thursday afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

Catharine Elliott, home economist and lecturer for the school, working under the direction of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., will bring some most interesting and helpful talks on the modern conveniences and methods of cooking with electricity. Foods will be prepared and served at the school under Mrs. Elliott's supervision.

Every lady should plan to attend whether she is a user of electricity for cooking or not at the present.

Bring a friends with you.

PEST HUNT AND MEMBERSHIP DRIVE NOW ON

Harlow D. Sechler, of Orangeville and Walter Reinhart, of North-west of St. Joe, were selected as Captains for the annual pest hunt ,this week, staged by the local Canservation Club.

The counts must all be turned in Saturday night, at 8 o'clock at the Town Hall, wehre the counts will be made by the committee composed of Lester Coburn, Morris Curie and Albert Moore.

The points to be considerede on the pests are as follows:

Hawk	1,000
Great Horn Owl	1,000
Crow	500
Ground Hog	250
Rats	100
Mice	5
Sparrow	5
Starling	25
Red Squirrel	25
Red Fox	5,000

For every new member secured this week 500 points will be allowed. All membership expired Jan. 1, 1938.

At the meeting held Thursday night at the Town Hall to plan for the drive, 40 memberships were turned in to start the pest hunt campaign.

A fine lunch was served those present and a dandy time was spent together.

Plans will be made Saturday night for the Victory Dinner and for the annual election of club officers for 1938.

If you are not a member, please offer to join.

GREAT BAND PROGRAM

The band benefit held last Thursday night at the gym was poorly attended, because of so many things taking place in the surrounding community. The program was exceptional from beginning to end and the one act play "The Little Red Mare" drew many hearty laughs from the audience. They of course added a little to their uniform fund but the worthiness of the cause demanded more of a support The band played exceptionally well and was worth the admission price alone.

SATURDAY EVENING SUPPER

A roast beef supper will be served in the Lutheran Church basement, Saturday evening, at the low charge of 25c. All the trimmings for a complete supper. COME.

A large crowd attended the George Hart sale Tuesday.

DEKALB COUNTY WOMEN ARE ENTERTAINED AT FORT WAYNE

Nineteen DeKalb County club ladies attended a dessert luncheon at the home of the 12th district president, Mrs. R. Earl Peters on Forest Park Boulevard, Fort Wayne, Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Guests included federated club presidents, district department chairmen and county officers and publicity chairmen of DeKalb and Whitley Counties. This was the second in a series of luncheons, given by Mrs. Peters, at which she entertained county officers and club persidents of two counties each day.

During the afternoon talks were given by Mrs. Allan S. Courtney, of Fort Wayne, state trustee of the Indiana federation; Mrs. R. W. Jones, of Fort Wayne, a district chairman; Mrs. O. B. Rose, of Garrett, district vice president; Mrs. A. C. Richards, of Ft. Wayne, committee chairman for co-operation for blind; Mrs. Geo. Beugnot, of Auburn, district historian; Mrs. Edward M. Wilson, of Fort Wayne, a past district president; Mrs. Charles Clarke of Auburn, state chairman of child welfare; Mrs. W. C. Allen, of Fort Wayne, state chairman of motion pictures; Mrs. E. W. Longfellow, Fort Wayne, district chairman of poetry and drama; Mrs. Fred Knott, of Auburn, chairman of old Fauntleroy Home, and Mrs. Tillie Isay, of Churubusco, community service and industry. Other officers were introduced.

Those attending from St. Joe Ladies Literary Club were Mrs. John Leighty, Mrs. C. A. Woodcox, Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Mrs. Allen Haller and Mrs. Glen Cole.

On Thursday afternoon the third luncheon of the series one of the outstanding talks was given by Mr. Jessie Calvin, Fort Wayne, on the cancer drive for women. Much good had been accomplished by the first campaign put on in this community last spring and much more is expected from the drive in the near future. She stated that this was up to the club ladies to take the lead. Mrs. A. C. Richards, also talked this afternoon on the work for the blind which was very interesting and gave the ladies a greater insight and interest in this work. A Mrs. Blaney of Ft. Wayne, gave some interesting information concerning the sponsoring of better pictures.

Mrs. Frank Curie and Mrs. F. B. Leighty not being able to attend the luncheon on Wednesday afternoon were guests Thursday afternoon.

Those attending this meeting brot back with them a larger view of the work and aims of the Indiana Federation of Women's clubs.

REV. TURNEY HEADS THE CHURCH EXTENSION APPEAL

(Special to The News)

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 14.—The Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America announced today through its office here that The Rev. H. E. Turney, D. D., of Indianapolis, Ind., President of the Indiana Synod will have charge of the church's Anniversary Appeal in that area.

Through the Anniversary Appeal, the Lutherans plan to increase their membership with a concentrated program of personal evangelism. A determined effort will be made to reach the millions of unchurched in the nation and through gifts from the members secure funds to broaden the scope of the church extension work.

The Appeal, according to the Rev. Zenan M. Corbe, D. D., Executive Secretary of the Mission Board, was determined upon at the last national convention of the U. L. C. A. as the most appropriate way to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the organization of the church through the merger of three general Lutheran bodies.

REV. H. E. TURNEY, D. D.
Indianapolis, Ind.

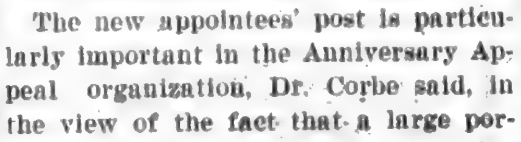
A vast army of workers is being mobilized throughout the United States and Canada to meet the spiritual and financial objectives of the Anniversary Appeal. An ambitious program of rallies, pageants and special services is being outlined for the Lutherans of Indiana.

Dr. Turney, in a letter accepting the Mission Board's charge, said he welcomed the Anniversary Appeal as a God-given opportunity to revitalize the Lutheran Church.

"A concentrated, Nation-wide attempt to keep the church from the danger of being too casually accepted by the existing membership, is of vital importance," he said.

"Only by strengthening our membership within can we hope to accomplish the primary objective of Christianity—the winning of souls to Christ."

The new appointees' post is particularly important in the Anniversary Appeal organization, Dr. Corbe said, in the view of the fact that a large portion of the church extension work being done by the Lutheran Mission board is centered at present in his area.



Every school in the nation should have a safety program. It makes no difference whether the school is located in the country or in the city, it should have a school police and school patrol operated and governed by the students themselves. Public officials should take an active part in such a program by sponsoring it and organizing it for the children.

Schools in many communities now have safety patrols and are finding them very effective in solving the traffic problems in the school zone. Children are taking great interest in them. Such training is very-necessary, since we all know that it isn't always the driver of the car who is to blame for an accident. Children must be taught safe practices and safe conduct.

Entertains Class Party

Jean and June Goldsmith were hostesses to their Sunday School Class Monday evening. Seven girls gave a one act play entitled "Mrs. Sullivan in Politics." Games pertaining to the Valentine Season were played, the grand prize being won by Myra Keesler. A dainty lunch was then served, with all appointments in red and white, to twenty-two girls and their teacher, Mrs. Nina Kees.

Valuable Aluminum Pyramid Caps Washington Monument

Few visitors to the Washington monument have seen the 100-ounce pyramid of pure aluminum which caps this famous 555-foot structure in the nation's capital. This rare picture was taken in 1934 when the monument was cleaned and overhauled.

Costing $1,300,000, the monument was started in 1848, was left unfinished when the nation entered the Civil war, and was finally dedicated on February 21, 1885. The capstone the peak of which is shown below the aluminum pyramid, weighs 3,300 pounds. Its placement was an unusual engineering accomplishment.

Photograph at the right shows the monument from a distance at night, its peak bathed in a bright light that makes it visible for miles.

MUST ANSWER TO ASSESSOR REGARDING INCOME TAX

An additional method of locating taxpayers delinquent in filing 1937 gross income tax returns, which are due by January 1, will be available to the State Gross Income Tax Division when personal property assessment sheets are prepared by citizens this year, officials pointed out this week.

Under amendments to the gross income tax law adopted by the 1937 Legislature, the following interrogatory is to appear on assessment blanks in 1938 and thereafter, and must be answered by tax payers under oath:

"Did you pay any gross income tax to the State of Indiana with respect to your gross income for the preceding calendar year?"

Township assessors and deputies are mandated by the law to require a n answer to the question, and the completed assessment forms are to be open to inspection of authorized agents of the Gross Income Tax Division.

"The new provision of the law," according to Clarence A. Jackson, division director, "wil give the division another tool to work with in our efforts to administer the law fairly. It should be particularly useful in connection with our 1938 check-up campaign in rural areas.

"For purposes of checking returns, the division also has access to Federal income tax returns, information returns filed by employers and others who pay out money, and of course other sources, including the field inspections conducted by our own staff."

Gross income tax forms for the current annual taxpaying period are available at all state automobile license branches. Returns are required from all perosns whose receipts in 1937 exceeded $1,000.

Here's one thing that's too one-sided. Motorists killed more than 15,000 pedestrians last year and not one pedestrian killed a motorist.

Everybody in this country is anxious for world peace, but most people can't see any reason for fighting for it.

A N. Y. chemist says he has a way to make crops grow faster. That's the trouble now—they grow so fast the farmers cant sell 'em.

The only thing worse than having a traffic cop raise his hand at you is having a bandit make you raise both of yours.

Many a girl has listened to honeyed words only to find out later she had been stung.

One advantage the auto has over the airplane is that when the auto engine stops so does the auto.

Man is an animal, all right. Ever notice that he growls like a bear when dinner isn't ready and then purrs like a cat after he has it?

Any St. Joe husband has a right to his opinions, providing they are the same opinions his wife holds.

Love is what makes some boys think they are stealing a kiss when the fact of the business is it is being forced on them.

Nothing pleases a hen-pecked husband as much as to have his daughter grow up and drive her mother out of the house.

That which the politicians call "what the people want" is often something they take because they can't get anything better.

One sad thought is that there is another generation now growing up around St. Joe that never saw and never will see a buggy whip decorated with a big bow of red ribbon.

Another difficult thing to understand is why some women can't realize the worth of their husbands half as quickly as they can their worthlessness.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE

A thoughtful St. Joe motorist dropped into the office a few days ago with one of the most unselfish requests any man ever made of any newspaper. "Do something for a certain class of motorists around here," he requested, "who have a habit of ignoring traffic when they are changing a tire along a highway." And it is a good and thoughtful suggestion. One does not always have a puncture or a blowout just where the road is wide, but it is easy to get the car as far off the main body of the road as possible before starting to repair or change the tire. It is also easy to keep a sharp lookout for approaching machines, and to avoid working on a curve where an approaching driver may not be able to see you until it is too late to avoid striking you as you stand or kneel alongside your car. Every motorist knows the danger referred to, but not all of them use the care they should when they encounter repair emergencies along the road. So we pass on the suggestion in the hope that someone who sees it may recall it when he has a roadside tire change to make—and protect himself accordingly.

LIGHT UP!

Good light costs less today than ever before—what with our low electric rates and new brighter lamps that give you more light at no extra cost.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN

PAST FAD STAGE

It won't be long until residents of Southern states have occasion to count up their winter tourist dollars, and when they do they are going to agree most heartily on this one point—the trailer has now passed the fad stage. Summer resort states, wondering about it, until last summer. Then they saw indisputable evidence of its truthfulness, and the trailer as a permanent institution. This winter the states that boast warm breezes when the North, East and West are snowed under have reaped a veritable gold mine from trailer owners. Now that is a year-round vehicle, and that a trailer owner can find an ideal camp in Winter as easily as he can in Summer, it makes this vehicle a still more profitable investment. With more and more modern campsites being constructed and opened to them, the investment is still greatly enlarged. With a knowledge of popularity last Summer, and this new proof from Winter resort states of their popularity in the colder months, it would seem that the citizen who has had the "trailer bug" in his bonnet can now profitably go ahead and let it bite him.

GOOD REASONING

A Wisconsin University professor, following an investigation over a period of several years, reaches the conclusion that the most prosperous and progressive communities are those in which the most reading is done. That sounds reasonable, because people who are posted do not spend as much money foolishly as those who are not in touch with the business and industrial world through newspapers. We honestly believe that survey would show that the families taking the most newspapers and magazines are likewise the most prosperous ones. Maybe the newspapers do not make them so, but they do help a great deal. It doesn't cost much to try the experiment of taking more than one paper and it is easy enough to stop if it fails. We would suggest, however, that to make the experiment more sure of success that you start in by subscribing for your home-town paper first.

OATS AND GAS

Older St. Joe residents recall that 40 or 50 years ago the farmer sowed about as many acres of oats as of corn or wheat. The oats went to fuel the power plant of the farm—the horses and mules which pulled the plows. There was a city market for the surplus, for horses and mules by the thousands pulled the ice wagons, the street cars, the drays and the carriage. It was an oats-drawn world.

The horseless city has been with us now for years, and again they are predicting that the horseless farm is soon to be a reality. One tractor pulling the plows now takes the place ten horses used to fill. Henry Ford is at this very moment preparing to introduce a tractor to do the work of many horses at a cost of one. It will eat no oats and hay. The horseless farm will destroy its own market for oats and hay. The soil once needed for those products is turned to cotton, corn and wheat. So up goes the supply, and down goes the price of those products, and Uncle Sam must step in and save agriculture by helping it fill or avoid the vacuum made by the coming of the horseless age.

Ford predicts a time not far away when the bodies of autos will be made almost wholly from corn husks, soy beans, wheat chaff and other products of the soil. He might have added that the ultimate fuel for the motor age will come in great part from the soil in the form of alcohol. Thus again, in due time, the farm will be furnishing the "oats" for the pulling machinery of country and town. And so it goes, around in a circle and everything eventually working out to the good of all mankind. The oat-power of yesterday is the gas-power of today, and there is no need in worrying about tomorrow. When the gas gives out the farm will step in again and provide a substitute.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS

We read in a daily paper an article in which a New York professor declares the little, one-room rural school house is a "menace to the nation" and not capable of laying the foundation for the kind of an education demanded in these modern times.

It's our candid opinion, and we believe that opinion is shared by practically everyone around St. Joe that the New York man is "talking thru his hat." The country need not worry about the one-room schools in which the boys and girls are drilled in a few studies by teachers who speak the English language and who constantly emphasize the importance of loyalty to the U. S. government. Of course our rural schools are not the equal of the great ones boasted by our cities and larges towns; allowance must be made for the inability of the rural neighborhoods to raise the money for big buildings and high-salaried instructors. But the thousands of American teachers in the little one-room schools scattered all over this nation are doing a work far more wonderful than they are given credit for, and they are deserving of the highest praise, not words of criticism. Such teachers are among this nation's greatest assets. If a poll was taken today in every city of any consequence in the country it would show that the men who are actually running those cities, and who are back of all their big business institutions, in a majority of instances received their education, or the foundation for it, in the little one-room school houses in the rural districts and the smaller towns of the nation.

THAT OPERATION

It may be boresome to sit around and listen to friends chat about some place they have visited if you have not been there; it becomes a bit irksome to litsen to a group extol the merits of certain politicians when you realize the futility of their conversation; and it is rather disheartening to listen to various members discuss their athletic ability when you are too old to play ball and to young to play golf. But the hardest and most humiliating blow of all is to listen to a group discuss their major operations and stand their glare of contempt and disgust when it comes your turn and you have to tell about the time you took a local anesthetic to have a tooth pulled. It is not often you are placed in this embarassing predicament as speaking time is valuable in a converation of this nature.

If you are not fortunate enough to even rate an amateur standing in this field, it is well to study a book on all the minute details of some certain kind of operation, and then when the time comes recite it as your own experience. If you get caught, you can pass it off that it didn't really happen, but was only a nightmare you had experienced.

The process of recovering from an operation may or may not be pleasant, but when you again get back into circulation you automatically become a member of a fraternity that may be bowed and bloody, but it can never be said of one of its members that he has been forced to resort to the weather as a topic of conversation.

THE YOUNG DRIVER

In a report just issued by traffic experts of the American Association for the Advancement of Science figures show that the most deadly class of drivers in the U. S. today are those in their teens. In fact, these same figures show that the driver in his teens is causing every year almost double the number of lives taken by average drivers in all other age classifications.

Most accidents, as shown by the report which covers a five-year period and a study of more than 2,000,000 traffic fatalities, are caused by drivers between 16 and 20 years of age. Drivers at the age of 19 get the worst rating of all, while it is shown that if motorists under 25 drove as safely as older operators 8,000 lives would be saved every year.

These are staggering and impressive figures, and should be given careful thought by every St. Joe citizen—especially thoes who have a boy or girl under 20 accustomed to operate a car. Drivers license laws carrying an age limitation have helped in some sections, but that is far from being a solution to the problem of what to do to make the teen-age driver less deadly. Safety instruction in schools will bring about a certain measure of relief from the annual toll of death. But the schools, for some unknown reason, do not go in for safety instruction as heartily as they should. So the country goes on gasping at the annual death list, wholly unable to control the teen-age drivers or to invent any way wehreby their parents might be made to assume so much of the responsibility that they would hasten to take a hand in the matter. And that, after all, may be where the final solution lies.

Bricks Never Imported

Wlistach says it is a pleasing but improbable tradition that bricks were brought from England for building in Virginia. There was an abundance of excellent brick clay here and no reason for importing brick. The tradition probably had its origin not in the fact of the place where the bricks were made but in the trade phrases "Dutch brick" and "English brick." These terms referred to sizes. Dutch brick were small and English brick large.

NEW DE LUXE FORD V·8

Ford gives you something really new in the De Luxe Ford V-8 that makes its bow to the motoring world this year. Back of it is a line of more than 26,000,000 Ford cars, honestly built. Ahead of it is a new public appreciation of performance and beauty in the low-price field! It sets a new high — an 85-horsepower high! The biggest and roomiest Ford V-8 ever built, offered in eight body types.

TWO FORD CARS FOR 1938

In addition to the De Luxe Ford, there's another outstanding Ford car for 1938 — the Standard Ford V-8. The two cars have many features in common, such as the 112-inch wheelbase chassis with its high quality of materials and workmanship. The Standard Ford V-8 offers a choice of V-8 engine sizes — 85 horsepower or 60 horsepower. Introduced last year, the thrifty "60" broke records for economical operation! (Many owners reported from 22 to 27 miles a gallon.) See your Ford dealer.

Remember, 1938 Ford V-8 prices are unusually low when you consider that delivered prices INCLUDE all the equipment necessary for driving comfort!

FORD V·8 FOR 1938

THE QUALITY CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

Milbur McCann and wife moved to Waterloo last week to be near his work. He lived north of St. Joe near Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole and Miss Elizabeth Jones were guests Sunday of Miss Janalyce Rouls and parents at Angola.

Joe Goldsmith will move next week to Milford, Ind., where he bought a general store last week and took possession Saturday.

Guy Shull, of Hicksville, has moved to the former Jos. Shull farm South of Coburntown. His father, Clem Shull, has purchased the farm.

Rev. Fronsoe moved his family from Cincinnati last week to Butler, and he will serve Newville and St. Joe Christian Churches from that point.

Mrs. Wilbur Shroyer was operated on last week at the Sanders Hospital for appendicitis. She is improving nicely and will be home in a few days.

George Watson, living West of Spencerville, suffered a stroke last week. His daugther, Mrs. Ray Wasson and family, are there helping in caring for him.

Clifford Kimmell will move to the Ole Braybrook farm in Sprinbfield Township, Allen County. He will live on the farm now owned by Mr. Braybrook.

Clarence Dorsey and family moved to Spencerville Monday from the A. M. Baughman residence in the West end. Clarence is working on the dam with the WPA.

Saturday guests in the J. P. Buckingham home were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stum, of Toledo, Ohio. Sunday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Metcalf, of Huntington.

All the Sechler cousins had a surprise birthday supper for Mrs. Hollis Dilley, Friday evening, at her country home. The evening was pleasantly spent together.

Logan Fuller, of Flint, Mich., was in town last week and while here purchased the Mrs. Anna Dilley property, expecting to return to St. Joe and retire. Mr. Fuller is a brother of Mrs. Sam Gee.

George Berry and wife, of Richmond were Thursday over night guests of his mother in the home of Mrs. Mary Betz, also Mrs. Hazel Steward and Miss Jeanne Hatch were supper guests at the same place.

The Lutheran Missionary Society meets Thursday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock. Everyone be on time so the meeting can adjourn for the cooking demonstration starting at 2 o'clock in the church basement.

John Smith spent Saturday and Sunday at Pleasant Lake, and he repors many of his old acquaintances having died during the past two weeks. He said the local cemetery had a burial each day for the last two weeks.

Mrs. Max Dressell was taken to the Souder's Hospital at Auburn, Wednesday evening of last week and submitted to an operation on Thursday morning. She is getting along fine and will return home in a couple of weeks.

Harry M. Shull, residing North of Auburn on the Morningstar Road, will seek nomination for state representative at the May primary on the Republican ticket, he announced Tuesday. Mr. Shull has served two terms as state representative.

No trace of the $48 in paper money taken from the purse of C. H. Hull, at his farm home, North of town, last week, by two gypsy women. A car drove up in front of his home and a man called him to the car to get the location of a Miller family who was ill. The women piled out and surrounded Mr. Hull, and succeeded in getting his purse. Having not been well, Clare was unable to defend himself against the women. They hurried North. No trace of the car has been found, by state police.

KITCHEN KINKS

Decorative colored sugar may be made at home by blending a few drops of cake coloring into ordinary granulated sugar......Keep a piece of dried orange peel in the tea canister and a pleasing flavor will result.......Much of the tartness of sour fruits will be taken away if a pinch of soda is added during the cooking process; also much less sugar will be required for sweetening.

Who cares about the right-of-way if an accident depends on it? Why worry about the right-of-way at an intersection, crossroad, private driveway, or other road entrance when a few seconds' delay will eliminate the possibility of a smash-up? Give the right-of-way to the other fellow and let him be on his way. In another two seconds you yourself will be on the safe side. That is courteous driving. It is the safest way.

To drive openly and defiantly headlong into an intersection simply because you have the right-of-way is not an act of courtesy nor is it safe driving.

Just ordinary good manners in driving an automobile will prevent as many accidents as reasonable care. The two go hand in hand and are inseparable.

Gin and gas do not mix. Even if each is in a separate container, the two are bad company.

I have no sympathy nor mercy for a drunken auto driver. The laws governing this type of convicted criminal are too lenient. Judges should enforce what laws we do have to the limit. The killing of innocent citizens by drunken drivers should not be permitted.

But the question should not be when is a man drunk? A man who has had only one drink cannot have the same judgment or control that he would have without the liquor. I can see no plausible argument for his defense; it is dangerous to allow him to drive. It seems hard to get this lesson thru people's heads, that drinking and driving are two very separate operations that have nothing in common.

The following poem, entitled "The Motorist's Prayer," which appeared in the London Church Times, is an expression of the earnest desire one motorist has to guard the lives and safety of his fellowmen. If all of us who drive took this particular problem as seriously, there would be a decided decrease in the number of automobile fatalities.

Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye,
That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest life, and I pray no act of mine
May take away or mar that gift of thine.
Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear me company
From the evils of fire and all calamity.
Teach me to use my car for others' need,
Nor miss through love of speed
The beauties of thy world; and thus I may,
With joy and courtesy go my way.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

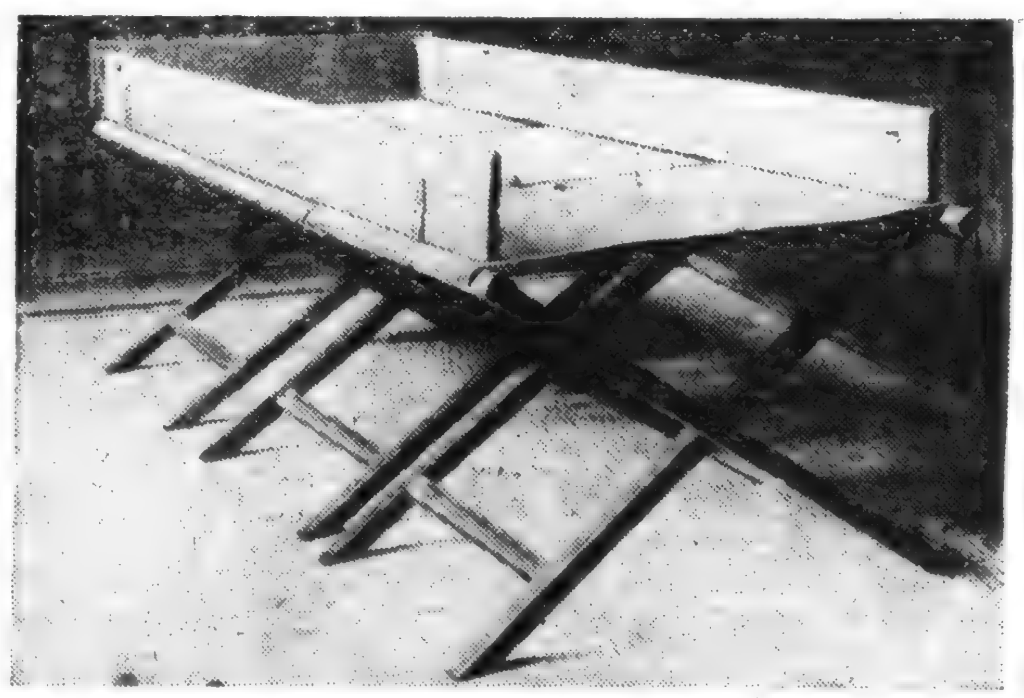
This Was Washington's Bed



Not unlike a modern folding cot (but much harder) was the rough bed on which George Washington slept during the famous winter at Valley Forge. This year, as America celebrates once again the anniversary of his birth, George Washington's bed reposes in the Smithsonian institution at the nation's capital.—Yale University Press Photo.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE AT AUBURN HAVING RUSH

Applications for employment were received from 99 persons during the first two days of business at the new Auburn office of the Indiana State Employment Service, E. Raymond Ellington, said. These applicants represented 21 different occupations.

The interviewing of new applicants will continue each day, Mr. Ellington stated. Now that the file of applications has a good start, he expressed the hope that all local employers will notify his office when they have job openings. Mr. Ellington also extended an invitation to residents of the community to visit the employment office to have its facilities explained to them.

A large number of Chamber of Commerce members attending the annual meeting Thursday night visited the new quarters and became acquainted with the methods by which applicants are placed in contact with employers.

The new office is located at 114 So. Cedar Street, Chamber of Commerce Building, and it is open from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M. each week day except Saturdays when it closes at noon.

The applicants registered for employment to date have had training and experience in the following vocations: Bankers, Civil Engineers, Managers, Salesmen, Production and Cost Clerks, Confidential Secretaries, Stenographers, Typists, Practical Nurses, Electricians, Factory Machine Operators, Carpenters, Tool Makers, Butchers and various types of labor.

In the two days operation of the office, twelve applicants have been referred to employers for the final selection for positions open.

Male registrations are being made in considerable number and Mr. Ellington expressed hope that women of the community would begin to register for employment.

The Auburn office serves DeKalb, Steuben and Noble Counties.

CONSERVATION DINNER PLANS FOR MARCH 3

The Conservation Club annual pest hunt dinner will be served by H. D. Sechler and his gang on Thursday evening, March 3rd, at the Gym.

This was decided Saturday night when the final count was made on pests and new members, and Jack took his defeat graciously, and Walter Reinhart was declared the victor.

At the count, a record of 226 members were reported.

Just what will be served at the dinner next week is to be determined by those serving.

It is hoped that the state will furnish motion pictures and a speaker, together with the election of officers, a full evening of pleasure awaits the group.

The total points gained on the two sides are as follows:

H. D. Sechler

Pest	No.	Points
Hawk	1	1,000
Rats	19	1,900
Starling	26	650
Sparrows	217	1,085
Mice	5	25
Members	67	33,500
Total Points		38,160

Walter Reinhart

Pest	No.	Points

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

The general trend of the market was strong compared with last week and with terminal markets.

Hog receipts were slightly less than a week ago with prices as follows: 160 to 220, $8.95; 225 to 300, $8.20 to $8.50. Roughs, $6.20 to $6.80. Boars, $3.00 to $6.00. Feeder pigs weighing 70 and upward are lower, selling at per hundred market price while lighter feeding hogs were one to two cents above per hundred price.

Veals made a top of $11.75 with the bulk at $11.00 to $11.50.

Cattle: Steers $5.50 to $6.20. Butcher heifers, $5.00 to $5.85. Fat cows made a top of $5.25 with others at $5. Canners and low cutters, $3.00 to $4.45. Bulls, $5.40 to $6.85.

A. M. Baker is reported on the sick list this week.

—And March Marches On!

Though it's just another month in the year, March probably has more traditions and superstitions behind it than any of the remaining 11 months.

Since Julius Caesar's time the "ides of March" have been famous in song and story, few people realizing that every month had an "ides" in the old Roman calendar. The fact that Caesar was murdered on the "ides of March" made that particular day more significant.

To the Romans, March was the first month of the year, a calendar custom that persisted throughout Europe for centuries. England did not adopt the present calendar until 1752, previously dating its legal year from March 25.

Literally, March is the month of Mars, based on Grecian legend. Certainly its warlike tendencies are borne out by the furious winds usually accompanying the month. If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb, or vice versa.

If people are "mad as a March hare" there's usually a mental ailment concerned. March beer is traditionally the best, since climatic conditions are supposed to be best for brewing in that month.

M. S. Slyder, of Garrett, who has served as station agent here at the B. & O. for the past two years, left Saturday to take over the Sherwood, Ohio, agency, and W. R. Adams, of Auburn, a former B. & O. employe, has been assigned here.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

"The gifts of the heart—love, sympathy, hope, comfort—cannot be bought with money."

Listen much, keep silent when in doubt, and always take heed of the tongue; thou wilt make few mistakes.

Without the silence of life there can be no true greatness, and no man can be great in the hours of expression and daily activity unless he has first been great in the silent places of his individual life.

The imporper use of private drives and especially during the thawing period is an offense that can be handled by law the same as trespassing, and should not be overlooked by anyone. A farmer friend reported today that his drive was continually being ruined by cars using it to turn around.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley spent a couple of days last week in Chicago, being called there by the illness of his father, R. J. Pugsley, who has been there with his daughter, Mrs. Edna Green, since Thanksgiving. He is suffering with hardening of the arteries, asthma and heart trouble. He was better when they left for home.

THE MODERN JUDGMENT

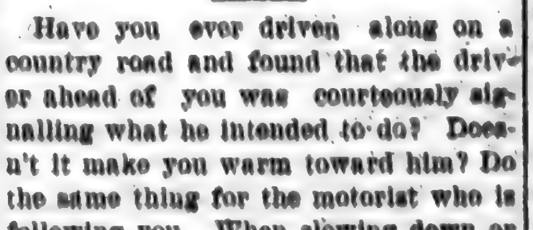
Suppose that, on a given day, we rounded up nearly forty thousand American men, women and children, herded them into a field, and there proceeded to slaughter them. Suppose that, at the same time, we wounded, blinded, crippled and otherwise harmed several hundred thousand more.

Horrible? Impossible? More b a r barie than the barbarians? Of course it is—but, in effect, that is what happens on American highways every year. The slaughter doesn't occur on a single day, but over 365 days. And instead of killing the victims with shell and rifle fire, and gas and grenades, we use that well known servant of mankind which can also be a monster of destruction—the automobile.

If an airplane falls and kills ten people the fact is headlined throughout the country and millions feel a sense of horror. If a ship sinks and 50 men die, the entire world knows is in a few minutes, and world-wide sympathy is extended to the victims and their survivors. But when automobiles crash and people die horribly as a result, we note the fact absently, and turn the page to the comic strips.

Our people are criminally negligent in driving automobiles. And America is criminally complacent in its attitude of more or less bored indifference toward the accident toll.

Juggernaut is no more—but the automobile more than fulfills its gory role.



Have you ever driven along on a country road and found that the driver ahead of you was courteously signalling what he intended to do? Doesn't it make you warm toward him? Do the same thing for the motorist who is following you. When slowing down or perparing to turn, give the chap behind you a signal. Be sure it is the right signal. Then do what you have signalled.

Know your signals. They vary in different localities, but it is easy to learn what they are.

Most highway accidents, you know, occur because one person does not know what another is going to do. You set the example by signalling your intentions. Start today.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Quance and children, Raymond, Mary Anne and Helen and Mrs. Vina Quance, of Auurn, called on Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. A. Cormany, of near Rehoboth, left Sunday evening by bus for Stuart, Florida, to visit two of her daughters. She expects to be gone three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Talbert Austin, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Lorene Bryan, of Bellwood, Alabama, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of Walter Keesler and family.

The ducks that have flown North and the Spring birds that arrived recently, will evidently turn to the South again, because of the extreme winter which came upon them Saturday.

Joe Goldsmith and family moved their household goods Wednesday to Milford, Ind., where they will operate a store. Carl Pugsley will move about March 1, and take charge of the meat department in the Goldsmith store.

Charles Thorpe was returned to his home Sunday from Souder's Hospital in Auburn, where he was taken a week ago for care of a broken hip. He is in a cast and can be cared for at home with the aid of his physician, Dr. Clayton Hathaway.

Frank White, of Fort Wayne, who is employed at the Ralph Sechler Pickle Plant, broke his right wrist Saturday evening when he was cranking his car to go home. He was hurried to his home by Robert Sechler and John Dilley. It will be a week or so before he will be able to return and supervise the operations at the plant.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull will celebrate their 54th wedding anniversary on next Sunday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hull have been extremely active in local affairs until this winter, when their health would not permit it, but at this time Mrs. Hull is able to take care of the home and look after her husband, who has not barbered since Christmas Day. They are both anxious f o r Spring to arrive, so that they may be out of doors.

Mrs. Jennie Abel is on the sick list and Mrs. Edna Jenkins is staying with her.

Ervin White and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Herrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bishop are staying at the Fred Ulm home taking care of the family and chores while Mrs. Ulm is in the hospital at Ft. Wayne. Saturday the two daughters were taken to see their mother for the first time since her sickness.

Perry Jump and family, Garold Cook and family and Wm. Moore, of Hicksville, and Ruth Curie, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday dinner guests of Frank Curie and family. Afternoon visitors were Leonard Jarrett and family and Herbert Curie and family.

Mrs. Charles Thorpe was taken severely ill Sunday night, shortly after Mr. Thorpe was removed to his home from the hospital. In addition to their illness, their daughter, who lives at Fort Wayne, is very low with cancer of the spine. The neighbor ladies are helping in the Thorpe home.

James E. Watson, U. S. Senator from Indiana from 1912 to 1932, announced that he again will be a candidate for his old senate seat at the Republican state convention in June. Simultaneously Walter F. Bossert, of Liberty, announced that he also would be a Republican candidate for the Senate.

Seventy-three ladies registered at the electric cooking institute held in the Lutheran Church basement Thursday afternoon, a crowd very pleasing to the management, because the day was visited by rain practically all forenoon. Mrs. Catherine Elliott, home economist for the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., had charge and gave the lectures. A similar institute is being held at Woodburn today.

Harold Wise, of Keyser Township, announced his candidacy for the nomination of sheriff of DeKalb County on the Democratic ticket at the primaries in May. Mr. Wise has resided since 1924 on the farm which he owns in Keyser Township. He is serving his fourth year as deputy assessor of his township, is active as a member of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association and was superintendent of the horse department for two years. He is married and is 30 years of age.

AMERICANIZATION PROGRAM BY LEGION AND AUXILIARY

The Legion and Auxiliary of Post 283 enjoyed a pot luck supper and entertained the public Tuesday evening, Feb. 22 in honor of Washington's birthday. About one hundred people being present. After the supper, a very entertaining and instructive program was given.

The program started with a piano trio played by Leila and Jean Hurni and Frances Reidenbach, entitled "The Stars and Stripes Forever," after which the Legion and Auxiliary Colors were posted by Sergeant at Arms John Crothers and Charles Bassett of the Legion and Mrs. Dorothea Kessler of the Auxiliary.

The address of welcome and introduction of the speaker, Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer, was given by Commander Lehr Wilder. The speaker gave an inspiring talk on the price America has paid for Liberty and said in part, that altho America is a peace loving nation, her men should be willing and able to defend her against any aggressive nation.

A ladies trio, Mesdames Avis Staman, Edith Cole and Lora Leighty, sang "God of Our Fathers."

Commander Wilder gave a short talk on the work of the Indiana Legion Boys' State and the good work it was doing in teaching the boys the principles of state government.

Three Scouts, Charles Hart, Franklyn Sechler and Dick Callaway, of the local Boy Scout Troop, gave a demonstration and talk on Flag Etiquette.

Post 283's Mens' Chorus consisting of Comrades Hull, Williams, Scholes, Wilder, Crothers, Kees and Reidenbach gave a pleasing redition of the song "Beautiful Flag of Liberty."

A very instructive playlet was given by ten Girl Scouts directed by Mrs. Doris Yeiser. The play "History of The Flag" showed eight different designs of the early flags of the Colonies and why the designs were changed as the country grew from Colonies to an independent nation.

A beautiful illuminated American Legion Emblem was presented to the Post by Past Commander Clark Scholes and Past Commander Roy Reidenbach explained to the audience what the various parts of the emblem meant to a Legionnaire.

A large silk flag was placed in a standard and as it rippled in the breeze created by electric fan formed a fitting back ground for the poem, "Your Flag and My Flag, given by Berniece Wilder.

After retiring the Colors, and dismissal each family was given a Flag Code which is being distributed by the National Americanism Commission of the Legion.

How many of you can remember when a girl got a thrill in the spring thinking about how soon she could hang out the hammock.

No man can control the weather—and very few of them can predict it with any very great degree of success.

A New York editor says when a man has been in politics 10 years he is fit for nothing else. Is that a knock or a boost?

Wonder why it is that some women can sit down and worry over the fact that they haven't anything to worry about?

The old-fashioned boy who used to get called out to the woodshed and given a licking for laziness now has a son who calls the same symptoms liver trouble.

Another difference between dogs and men is that when a dog doesn't like you he doesn't let on like he does.

You can convince a St. Joe girl that some day her hair will turn gray, but you can't make her believe that her dimples will ever become wrinkles.

Nowadays one-half of the world wonders how the other half ever raised the price of a new automobile.

Cows on Indiana state farms are to be milked three times a day to increase production. It is to be hoped that this new practice doesn't put notions into the head of tax collectors.

Most small boys never notice how mild the winters are getting until someone gives them a pair of skates for Christmas.

Motor cars made during the past 10 years total 42,146,000. And at least 80 per cent of them were equipped with back-seat drivers.

How much worse it would be if we were born old and had to look forward to growing young and silly.

How many people can remember when they bought liver and bacon from the butcher but only had to pay for the bacon?

There are some weeks in the official season when the spotlight of the news plays briefly on pretty nearly every branch of the Government at Washington. This is such a week. Congress, still lost in the fog of the anti-lynching filibuster and practically forgotten, except for the two flags flying over either wing of the Capitol, feebly promises action on "dat old debble" tax bill by early March...... The White House, barren of first-page-caliber news for several inexplicable weeks, breaks in again with Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that the Nation's price levels must be lifted.... The Solicitor General's office, vacant since Stanley Reed stepped up to the Supreme Court bench, gets the Senate Judiciary subcommittee's favorable report on the nomination of that lusty New Dealer, Robert H. Jackson, who had quite a hot time of it.

The Supreme Court hears that Justice Cardozo is recovering from his serious illness and may not find it necessary to resign; but in case he decides not to return to the bench, his successor may be Governor Henry Horner, who is of the Jewish faith, and has a notable reputation as a judge of the Probate Court of Illinois....

The State Department breaks into the news with the discreet rumor of a few private "peeves" because Adolph A. Berle, Jr. gets the enviable portfolio of Assistant Secretary of State, on which a lot of "career" diplomats had their eye.... During this Administration, the State Department has pretty well looked after its own. This is the era of the previously forgotten "career man." Even the wives and widows of our diplomats have not been overlooked. When Mrs. Warren Delona Robbins, widow of the late United States Minister to Canada, was given a job at the State Department—one specially created for her—to decorate our embassies and legations in foreign countries, there was satisfaction among the citizens hereabouts who had seen with their own eyes the bleak and delapidated headquarters of Uncle Sam's representatives abroad. Mrs. Robbins, who is noted for her beauty and elegance, and pale mauve tint to her white hair, will undoubtedly create an interior of charm and perfect modern decor, but what about the shabby exteriors, the outmoded equipment, the obscure streets on which the Stars and Stripes fly?.... It is a pertinent topic at this writing because the wife of the German Ambassador to the United States has just sailed for home armed with the plans for the new German Embassy to be built at great cost in one of Washington's "smartest" neighborhoods. Seems that Der Fuehrer was shocked and grieved when he learned that his Ambassador's staff was housed in the sprawling old red-brick building on Highland Terrace—notably fashionable when Von Bernstoff departed during the World War but since fallen from its high estate and abutting on tenements in the rear. Only the graceful terrace of forsythia—Washington's first harbinger of Spring—remains to adorn the neighborhood. Snapshots sent to Hitler brought speedier action than customary American red tape could credit; and believe it or not, the German representative will soon have quarters in keeping with the other palatial foreign embassies in this city.

Ready to leave the presses—and most apropos in its appearance, with the new relief program a topic of current interest—is a book entitled "America On Relief." It is the first really authentic book concerning unemployment benefits in the United States. Its co-author being a regional social worker for the Eastern area of W. P. A., it covers the ground of its subject from the very beginning of the New Deal.... Another book, involving the New Deal from a far different standpoint, is "The Bonus March and the New Deal" which has been written by a former Republican Governor of New Hampshire, John H. Bartlett, who also served at one time as Assistant Postmaster General. Those interested in the detailed episodes of that 1932 tragedy which will never be allowed to recede from the public consciousness, will find this one of the most illuminating presentations of that controversial case......

A few weeks ago this column discussed the pending world armament race. At that time there were still some frail shreds of hope this could be prevented by negotiations between the powers. Now those hopes are utterly blasted.

Japan, in response to an American inquiry, has refused to divulge her naval building plans; has said, in effect, that she will do what she wants and brook no interference. England, France and the United States will shortly hold conferences to establish their policies—which, unless a miracle happens, will involve bigger and faster building.

Latest U. S. plans call for the construction of 43,000-ton men-of-war, mounting 18-inch guns. Largest guns used in the World War were 15-inch. Japan is supposed to have actually embarked on the building of naval giants of similar size and potential destructiveness.

WONDERS OF SCIENCE

Last week Detroit newspapers carried glaring headlines to the effect that parts of a body had been found in a bag: "Two hands and a foot found in a yard." Two detectives of the Homicide Squad were assigned to investigate the story that a citizen had discovered a paper bag in his back yard containing two human hands and a foot. The man said he had absentmindedly given the bag a kick and a hand fell out. The detectives examined the bag and found other gruesome contents. The hands had been severed at the wrists and the foot at the ankle. Dr. Albert Hughes, the county coroner, by the aid of his long medical training rendered the opinion that he believed the bones to be from an adult male human being. He turned the bones over to the county chemists, and it remained for the scientists to unravel the mystery. The bones were the remains of a bear's foot, thrown away by a taxidermist. Now, ain't science grand!

To quote O. Henry, "In the depths of the great city, where the unquiet dregs are forever being shaken together," many strange things occur. It is not news when John Smith paints his back porch, and when Fannie Flutterbustle spends a week end with her uncle and aunt at Sod Corners, it is a closed incident. But when "a rag, a bone, and hank of hair" are found in a paper bag, the headlines scream, and the populace are agog. If the bones are found to be those of an animal, it is a bitter disappointment.

There have been times when the writer has been at his wit's end to find news enough of any nature to fill the front page, and all this time there has been a slaughter house just at the edge of town where gleaming white bones are strewn in profusion. How easy it could have been to slip two or three of these in a paper bag and drop them in some one's dooryard! But then we have no county chemists and the mystery would have gone unsolved.

QUEENS

It would seem there is no longer any reason for an American girl to tour Europe searching those countries for a husband with a title when there are enough different kinds of fruits, vegetables and what have you here at home so that they may all be Queens themselves. There are Cherry Queens, Peach Queens, Spinach Queens, Onion Queens, Orange Queens, Egg Queens, Cauliflower Queens, Oyster Queens, Pine Needle Queens, and thousands of others.

It may be okay to annex one of these funny looking creatures with a title that they bring back from Europe if they are first thoroughly disinfected, and of course if the girl has had a little experience around a zoo or menagerie, it will help. But why bother with feeding one of them when all that is necessary to grab off a title of their own is to think of some kind of vegetable or fruit that has never been glorified, and then become Queen of it.

THE REAL AMERICA

While complete figures gathered in the recent nation-wide unemployment census have not yet been furnished to the public, it will be of great interest to everyone around to learn one particular point in connection with it. That is that those figures which have so far been made available show that more than 80 percent of the approximately registered as out of employment are residents of cities in excess of 5,000 population.

Small-town America, where about one-third of the nation's population lives in hamlets, villages and small towns, is and always has been the last section of the nation to feel a lack of jobs. Even the rural areas, because of idle farm labor, show a higher percentage of unemployment than the small towns. Approximattly 18 per cent of unemployable men and women in the United States were without jobs as of last December 1. But the percentage of idle in small-town America does not run nearly so high, in fact, it probably does not exceed eight percent.

The small towns, the villages and the hamlets of this country are fortunate in more ways than one. Life may not have as many high spots in such places as it offers in the big and over-crowded cities, but neither does it have so many low ones. Men and women follow the even tenor of their ways in the small towns, the hamlets and the villages, and a far greater degree of peace and contentment, as well as comfort and well-being, is the result.

A BETTER START

Insofar as the elements are concerned, the present year got away to a much happier start than the last one, and the natural hope is now that it continue interrupted. Citizens of St. Joe recall the distressing floods of last year, and the widespread suffering that was going on in many sections of the country along about this time. Many predicted that many places hardest hit would never recover from their tremendous loss. But today, a year later, the sun again shines bright in old homes restored, or new ones that have replaced those swept away. All of which goes to prove that time is a great healer, and that the American people, trusting in the same agency which caused them suffering to likewise restore them to joy, will always find a way out of such visitations. Other disasters will come, of course. But it's still a poor idea to cross bridges before getting to them. It's still best to be thankful for today's sunshine and today's smiles—and to stand ready to help the other fellow, as he will be ready to help you, when the clouds do come.

suffer from Defective Vision

MOST parents think that their children's eyes are perfect at birth and will remain so for years. Unfortunately, this isn't always the case. Scientists tell us that by college age, approximately two out of every five persons have something wrong with their eyes. One of the most important things to watch is lighting. Proper light for easy reading or studying without eyestrain is essential.

HIS parents wanted him to be a bridge builder, but the family background of Sigmund Romberg was too melodic, and he took to music like the well-known duck.

At the age of fourteen, Sigmund Romberg had mastered nearly every playable instrument and was already conducting school orchestras and bands.

As a youth, he was always hanging around back stage and rubbing shoulders with the great in musical circles. At twenty, he joined the army and became involved in the Balkan war. After nine months more of service he left for America.

America really proved the land of opportunity for the young composer. From pencil patcher to cafe musician in a week—he made the trip from Second Avenue to Broadway in less than a year.

After several years in various Broadway cafes and restaurants, Romberg became a leader—his own boss. He performed in Bustanoby's by night and watched rehearsals of his first Broadway show, "Whirl of New York", by day.

Romberg wrote sixteen Winter Garden shows in a row, among them several Al Jolson successes, and six other productions, including "Maytime."

Waltzes in the tempo of Vienna — melodies inspired by Strauss, Lehar and other Danubians flowed from his prolific pen. Motion pictures and radio called him.

Romberg is proud of his membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, his position as Assistant Treasurer, and his membership on the Board of Directors. He is active in the struggle to protect the rights of other composers and authors.

LEST YOU FORGET

Unless the usual sign fails, there will be several more weeks of winter before the green shows any signs of getting back in the trees. That means for several more weeks to come your outdoor friends—the birds—are going to have a hard time scratching a living out of the ground and trees. So this is a final winter appeal to every citizen of St. Joe to keep right on throwing out crumbs, if they are doing so, and if they are to start at once and keep it up for a few more weeks to come. We could no more get along without these little feathered friends than we could get along without the grass and the trees. And when we consider that only for the birds we would be forced to lose our birds and trees, there certainly should be no hesitancy on anyone's part to look after the welfare of such protectors at a time when it is almost impossible for them to exist without human assistance. Keep up the noble work a few weeks longer—keep on tossing out a daily ration of crumbs for the birds.

CROPS AND THE MOON

There's one thing you probably have heard a lot of argument about, and which nobody has probably been able to explain to you satisfactorily, and that is what effect, if any, the moon really has on farm crops and garden vegetables. A lot of successful gardeners would no more plant cucumbers or peas when the "signs" are wrong than they'd chase a polecat in their Sunday suit. Yet agricultural college experts argue that it is all bunk and supersition. They say the moon doesn't affect plant life.

Despite their contention, however, there are still a good many people living right around St. Joe who are not willing to agree that these scientific gentlemen are right. They say that if the moon can jerk the ocean around and cause tides to ebb and flow, it can cut some figure in vegetable growth. They've seen cucumbers run to vine and potatoes refuse to sprout, or to bear decent sized potatoes if they did sprout, because they were not planted according to the moon.

It is an old question, but it has never been explained. Science and the farmer work fairly well together in a lot of things, but when it comes to this thing of the moon figuring in plant life, they simply cannot agree. That is why it is still, as it always has been, an interesting subject and one you can stir up an argument with as easily as you can by talking politics. Try it on the next farmer or garden maker you meet and see for yourself.

AN EDITOR'S LAMENT

Here is a dirge voiced by a Maine editor—but all editors can endorse it, for it is as true as Holy Writ. He says:

"We have many subscribers who have taken our paper for years and who have paid us nothing. Do such persons think that we can live on birchbark, like a Cossack's horse, or grow fast by inhaling the West wind? Do they suppose the W. C. T. U. or the Y. M. C. A. provides us with clothes? Do they think that paper, type, ink, fuel and many other costly and necessary articles are sent to us by unknown and invisible hands? We are not in the show business and we don't know anything about magic or making things appear from out of the empty air. When hungry, we have no time to fish and hunt, and it would be impious to expect a sheet full of good things to be miraculously let down from the skies. And as to being fed by ravens, as was a certain Bible character, it is more likely that the ravens will be feeding upon us unless a few delinquents get busy and pay their bills pretty soon."

SUICIDE BY TAXATION

"The biggest problem facing the nation today," says Roger Babson, "is not the recession; not the jobless; not the railroads. It is our taxation system." Unsound, excessive and inequitable taxation coupled with unprecedented government extravagance is slowly driving the nation to commit suicide by taxation. Reform in government spending and taxation is the crying need of the moment. As Mr. Babson declared, the only basic policy in our present system is an almost fanatical desire to conceal taxes from the ultimate payer—the consumer. Taxation has been instrumental in bringing private enterprise and industrial progress to the present point of stagnation.

Mr. Babson points to ten different steps that should be taken immediately:

1. Broaden the income tax base. 2. Pare down excessively high income taxes. 3. Reduce capital gains assessments. 4. Eliminate tax-exempt securities. 5. Tax government employes. 6. Remove the undistributed profits tax. 7. Stop the present policy of virtual "embezzlement" of social security funds. 8. Clamp down on special taxes. 9. Lower real estate taxes. 10. Cut public spending.

These are concrete suggestions for a practical program of solvency and business encouragement which, if enacted, would stimulate the private citizen to forge ahead. Private enterprise would take a new lease on life. Employment and wages would resume their upward march in step with the constantly rising standard of living that has characterized American progress for the last 150 years.

A National Objective

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Today in America both government and business enterprise are seeking a common objective.

It is to quicken to their accustomed pace the productive forces of the nation—and thus increase employment possibilities and the general well-being of all our people.

There have been recent indications that various leaders, both in and out of public office, realize the great need of working together toward this common end. All Americans concerned with the progress and prosperity of our people will hope that these efforts prove successful.

For, as the American people know, sound production—with its increased employment—always brings added production.

When wages are spent for food, for clothing and for the homes and recreational facilities of the average worker they create a demand for the products of the farm, the mine and the factory which requires still more employment to fulfil.

When wages decrease because production has been discouraged, that demand lags, and with it lag the employment and general prosperity that it formerly created.

No program of relief or other aid, however administered, can fill the place of sound production as a method of creating new jobs and greater income for the American people. No American prefers a bare subsistence income to the pay envelope that comes with a real job. No sound or lasting recovery can be expected until our familiar cycle of demand and production is restored.

Throughout America millions of workers and earners who understand these facts will continue to urge on our national leaders the sincere cooperation and team-play on which such recovery depends—and without which the traditional American program of advancement for all our people is halted.

LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

Mr. Morgenthau, down in Wash., he sent me a circular and some pictures, showing people with smiles and lookin' pleased, while they are buying his bonds—with so much down and so much a week. And our Govt., it has been hoppin' on the automobile guys, for offering easy terms, and the shoe, it looks like it might fit the Secy. of the Treasury.

And I looked at the pictures and everybody is getting on ocean liners, and playin' pianos, and restin', etc.,—and it looked great. So I read the circular but could not find if the bonds are O. K. with the SEC or whoever it is that tells other people what they can sell—and makes them prove they are not a horse thief.

And with the Govt. in the bond business, and other kinds of business, and never payin' two-bits in taxes, I am up a stump about who will pay, when it runs everything. And if I could write a letter and need no stamp, like the Treasury sends letters free, I would ask 'em.

But if I could locate a crystal ball, I could get the answer, I reckon—and save writin'.

ST. JOE WINS SCOUT CONTEST AT AUBURN

Troop 164 of St. Joe won the elimination match of the Boy Scout midwest first aid contest held Saturday night at Auburn by scoring 315 out of a possible 390 points. The winning team comprises James Maxwell, Charles Hart, Herman Collins, Franklyn Sechler and Paul Keller. Other teams were entered by troops 167 and 169 of Auburn.

Dick Reed, the sixth member of the team and an alternate, not being needed on the team, served as one of the patients for the contest.

Here is a sample question: A man was shingling a roof and let out a cry and fell off the building on the sunny side and when found his face was flushed, his pupils were of an unequal size and he had dark red blood oozing out of a cut in the palm of his right hand, his left leg was bent three inches below the knee and a dark spot was found on his right shoulder blade.

One member was selected to diagnose the case and give the directions to the team. He was given two minutes in which to do this. Then at a whistle they were to start and complete their first aid work in 8 minutes. Points were taken off for anything that was not right in any way.

The correct solution to the above case: skull fracture—ice pack and bathing his head in cold water; vein cut in the hand—compress; sunstroke—raise the head and move out of the sun; broken leg—put on a splint; cut shoulder—put on a compress; shock—cover him with a blanket and keep quiet; and send for the doctor. What would you have done?

ST. JOE YOUNG MAN MARRIES SMITHFIELD TOWNSHIP GIRL

Ralph Keeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Keeler, of St. Joe, and Miss Olevia Metzger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Metzger, of Smithfield Township, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 2:30 P. M., at the parsonage of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn, by the Rev. O. B. Noren, using the single ring ceremony.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Keller, of Richland Township.

Mr. Keeler attended the St. Joe high school, and has been employed at the Standard oil service station in St. Joe for about nine years.

Mrs. Keeler graduated from the Waterloo high school in 1935.

The bride was attired in an attractive blue print dress, with blue accessories. Both she and Mrs. Keller wore corsages of pink roses and snapdragons.

A note of unusual interest is found in the fact that last June Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Keeler acted as best man and bridesmaid at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Keller.

Mr. and Mrs. Keeler will make their home in St. Joe.

The News joins St. Joe residents in extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Keeler.

OLDEST MERCHANT IN DEKALB COUNTY DIES

William H. Crane, Sedan's 80-year-old general store merchant, died Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock after an illness of six weeks. His death came as the result of general complications following influenza. He had been in business in Sedan fifty-eight years. He came to DeKalb County from Berea, Cuyahoga County, Ohio, in 1857, and grew to manhood in the neighborhood where he died and for a year carried a star mail route from Sedan to Orland in Steuben County. He then became station agent for the New York Central railroad, Sedan then being a station stop and a place of some importance as a shipping point. Fifty-eight years ago he started in business for himself, wihch he conducted until his death.

HINDRANCES CHALLENGING POWER OF THE CHURCH

With Rev. J. N. Scholes as chairman of the DeKalb County Ministerial Association, a most interesting meeting was held in the Auburn Y. M. C. A. Monday forenoon. Rev. O. B. Noren read a paper challenging the pastors to a program of education in which the members of their respective congregations will refrain from many of the so-called questionable means of entertainment that is taking the country by storm, and as a result of participation, the church is losing its respect and influence in the community.

Much discussion followed the paper and plans were made for a more interesting session next month, when a special committee will report its findings upon a definite matter affecting the program of religious matters in DeKalb County.

A number of laymen attended.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club last Wednesday evening celebrated their annual musical evening at the home of Mrs. Mayola Kinsey.

The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Dale Hart. She introduced a group from Hicksville, Ohio, who gave the entertainment of the evening. In the group were Carol and Betty Shull, nieces of Mrs. Hart, the others, Max Carr and Elowene Eyster, the reader.

Miss Carol then took charge and announced the following numbers:

Piano Solo, "Moonlight Sonata" by Beethoven and "Lotus Sard" by Scott with description of each and why written by Max Carr.
Duet, "Crying Water" and "Where My Caravan Has Rested" Carol and Betty Shull.
Reading (musical) "My Soul" and "A Little Bit of Heaven," Elowene Eyster.
Piano Solo, "Sons Bois" by Stuab and "Danse Negra" by Scott, Betty Shull.
Duets, "Pickaninny Sandman" and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" Carol and Betty Shull.
"Polichinelle" by Rachmaninoff, Max Carr.
"Among My Souveniers" and "My Bit" Elowene Eyster.
Duets, "I Heard You Go By" and "Sing, Sing, Birds On the Wing," Carol and Betty Shull.

The reditions all showed careful preparation and were thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The hotsess served a tasty and attractive lunch, appropriate to Washington's birthday, assisted by Frances Reidenbach, who was dressed in a red, white and blue costume. There were two guests present, Mrs. Eva Shull and Mrs. Chas. Kinsey.

MORTUARY

SAYLOR

Calvin N. Saylor, son of Wm. and Rosan Wade Saylor, was born in Concord Township, at the old William Saylor homestead, two miles north of St. Joe, the date of his birth being May 13, 1850. He died at his home in Sprngfield Township, Allen County, Indiana, Thursday morning, February 24, 1938, having attained the age of 87 years, 9 months and 11 days.

In the Wm. Saylor family there were five sons and three daughters, Calvin being the oldest but one—a daughter. Two of these are now living—William Saylor, of Hicksville, and Orman Saylor, of Indianapolis.

December 30, 1880 Mr. Saylor and Minta Wyatt were united in marriage. To this union one son was born, Hurley F. Saylor, with whom the deceased was living at the time of his death.

Surviving are the two brothers mentioned above, the aged widow residing with her son, Hurley F. Saylor, the only child of the deceased, and two grandchildren, Eloise and Marion, at home.

Mr. Saylor lived his entire life within a few miles of his birthplace. He was always devoted to his immediate family and the local community. Honor and integrity marked his life course among his fellows, where he was privileged to live long and well.

He was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church, having been baptized into that body of people in early manhood.

The funeral was held from the late residence in Allen County conducted by Rev. J. N. Scholes and burial in White City Cemetery, Spencerville, Mayola Kinsey & Son in charge.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

There were hardly enough lambs on sale this week to establish a price but several lots of culls and throw outs from feed lost found ready sale on a six cent top. Breeding ewes at $7.30 per head and bucks from $1.50 to $2.00 per cwt.

Hogs topped at $9.00 this price covering rather a wide spread in weight with some heavies at $8.50. Roughs at $6.00 to $7.00. Boars, $3.00 to $3.95.

In the cattle department fat heifers ranged from $6.00 to $6.55, best offerings of fat cows $6.50 with the less desirable kinds down to $4.60, low cutters and canners seemed to go higher than a week ago, nothing below $3.60 and up to $4.70. Bulls, $5.50 to a top of $5.95 paid for a fat jersey aged bull carrying considerable weight. Veals made a top of $11.90 this week with off grades taking less cut than last week.

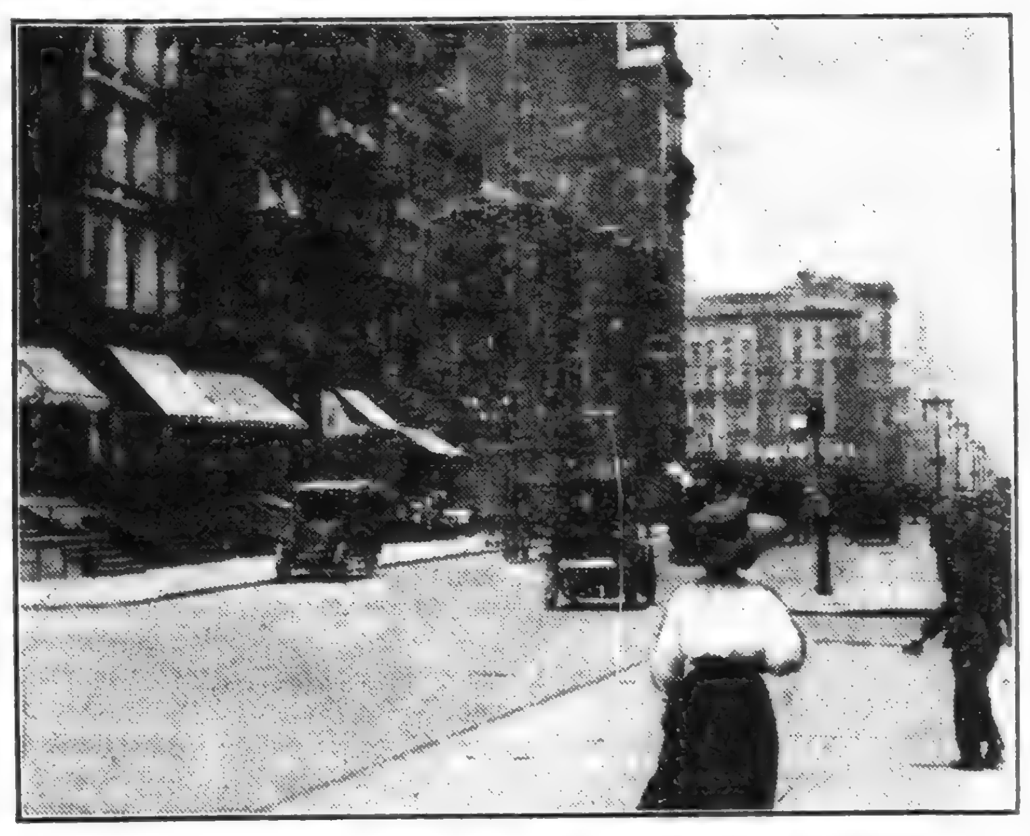
KITCHEN KINKS

Baking powder biscuits may be mixed and cut several hours before baking and placed in the ice box. It saves last-minute preparation......The easiest way to grease pans for baking is to use a small brush dipped in the fat ....Sprinkle fat over the food which has run over in the oven or on the stove and it will not smoke...... Do not open the oven door for at least ten minutes after a cake has been placed in it or it may fall.

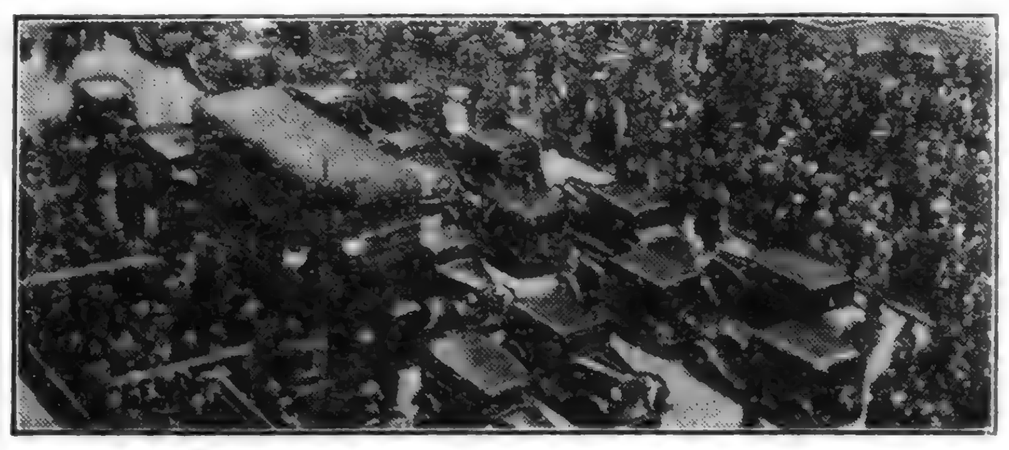
Don't give anyone a piece of your mind: you may need it all yourself.

Work is progressing slowly on the Spencerville dam, due to the high water. The timbers are being cut and put on the bank ready for the construction work to begin as soon as possible. Stone is also being hauled from about the community.

World's Busiest Street?



JUST LOOK at that traffic roaring by! Yes, sir, that's New York's famous Fifth Avenue, looking toward 42nd Street. And the lady in the stylish white shirtwaist and the snappy little straw skimmer had better be careful when she gets to the corner because you know how those horseless carriage drivers swing around the turns. With the national automobile show approaching, Consumers Information dug out this picture, taken in 1907, to show what a difference 30 years can make. The picture below shows Fifth Avenue as it is today. Advertising which created the demand, and research which perfected the product, are credited with changing the picture from that of 1907, when only a few thousand cars were on the country's roads, to that of today, with almost 30,000,000. The few small manufacturers of 30 years ago advertised to sell their primitive cars, which cost around $3,000 for a "medium-priced" model. They created a bigger demand than they could fill, and so bigger factories, increased employment, and constantly better automobiles resulted. And today we can buy an infinitely superior car for about one-fifth of the price, while half a million men are directly employed in the industry, compared to a few thousand at the time this picture was taken.



ST. JOE COUPLE WEDDED 59 YEARS, ST. JOE, MARCH 4TH

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling, of this place, will observe their 59th wedding anniversary on Friday.

They have spent their entire married life in St. Joe and vicinity.

Mr. Shilling was 86 years old on November 4, 1937, while his wife was 79 years of age August 9th. Both are in quite good health and able to care for themselves.

They are the parents of two children, a son, Cecil, and a daughter, Mrs. Lela Northrup.

The event will not be celebrated any more than friends calling.

STANLEY OF WATERLOO IS OUT FOR RECORDER

Albert Gould Stanley, of Waterloo, has announced his candidacy as a candidate for County Recorder on the Republican ticket, subject to the May primaries.

Mr. Stanley has lived in Waterloo since a small child, and has a wide acquaintance over DeKalb County. He was a graduate of the Waterloo high school and on completing his school work, he became a bookkeeper and accountant, working in Waterloo for six years, and for the past seven years has been employed by the R. L. Holben Auto Co., at Auburn, as bookkeeper. He was elected town clerk of Waterloo thirteen years ago and has continuously held the office of Clerk-Treasurer since.

When the World War was declared, Mr. Sanley was one of the first Waterloo young men to enlist and he went overseas, serving throughout the war. He was a charter member of Waterloo Post No. 206, the American Legion, and has held practically every office in the Post and was the last elected Post Commander, which position he has tendered his resignation in order to enter the race for Recorder. He is married and has one son, now in school. He owns his own home and is a useful citizen of the community, as well as a patriotic supporter of the principles of our government. He is well liked by his associates and is held in high regard in his home town. His record as a town clerk speaks for his popularity as well as his ability. During the time that he has served as town clerk, he has put the town records in the best shape that they have even been. With his general and business experience his nomination and election would mean that the office of County Recorder would be in good hands. 9t1.

Mrs. A. F. Gamble, of Lima, Ohio, was rushed to the hospital Tuesday and at noon she passed away. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and faimly left Wednesday morning, the family remaining until after the funeral. Particulars were not learned by the daughter here.

A hearing was scheduled to be held at the DeKalb County court house on Thursday afternoon on the petition of the Wabash Railway Co., for authority to close two crossings between St. Joe and Butler, but no representative of the public service commission appeared to take charge. The crossings in question were located along the northern section line of section 34 and along the east and west center line of section 27.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283

Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. - - - -

Members of Post 283 are urged to be present at the next meeting March 8th, as plans for the nineteenth birthday for the Legion will be discussed.

The 19th anniversary of the Paris Caucus which marks the birth of the American Legion will be celebrated by Posts throughout the Nation.

On Tuesday evening, March 15, at 11 o'clock (CST.) the Legion birthday program will be broadcast from Hollywood on a Nationwide hook-up, over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

National Commander Daniel J. Doherty, Mrs. Malcolm Douglas, National President of the American Legion Auxiliary, and Fred G. Fraser, Chief Cheminde Fer of the 40 and 8 will speak. The following Warner Brothers artists have been secured for the Birthday Broadcast: Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane, screen and radio stars, and Johnnie Davis, famous trumpeter, under the direction of Frank Hodek, will play on the program.

Legionnaire Jack Benny has accepted an invitation to appear, and Bob Burns, also a Legionnaire, will be heard if arrangements can be made with his sponsors.

Post 283 A. L. wishes to congratulate Troop 164 B. S. A. on their victory in the first aid (elimination) contest held at Auburn last Saturday. Good work, Boys.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Auxiliary Unit Number 283 meets on every second and fourth Tuesday night of each month at 7:30 o'clock in the Legion rooms of the K. of P. Hall in St. Joe.

American Legion Auxiliary will hold its regular business meeting next Tuesday night, March 8th.

Plans will be made to hold a birthday party for the Post, the week of March 15th.

The Flag Codes distributed last week at the Americanism program were purchased by the Auxiliary. We will also place Flag Codes in the St. Joe, Spencerville, Newville Township and Harlan Schools.

The Fourth District meeting will be held March 10th at Waterloo. Meeting to start at 10:30. Please make your reservations with Mrs. Clark Scholes by Tuesday evening, March 8.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

A birthday surprise party was given Saturday night in honor of Mrs. Will Hamilton at her home by members of the neighborhood birthday club. After a covered dish dinner was served at small tables, which all enjoyed, the remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in visiting and playing games.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Andress, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland of St. Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wisler and son, of Garrett and Mrs. Lela Northrup, of Fort Wayne.

BASKET BALL

What will probably be the best game of the present season on the local floor will be played Monday night, March 7. At this time the local Merchants team will play the St. Joe Valley Pickles, the proceeds of the game to go to the High School Athletic Fund.

The local team has been playing exceptionally good ball this season and as the Pickles represent the cream of Fort Wayne's industrial players the game should be good.

Be sure to come to this game.

Enrollment for citizen's military training camps starts March 1 in DeKalb County. There are openings for seven young men from the county in the 1938 summer camps. Applicants must be 17 with good health and character. Applications are in the hands of all high school principals in DeKalb County.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Some political campaign managers seem highly qualified to get and then forget.

Leslie Meek says once you have mastered the art of gossip, you don't need an auto to run down your neighbors.

"It isn't the fear of death that makes some motorists careful," says Mose Yeiser, "as much as it is the fear of getting their car scratched."

The kind of speaker most of us like when we get out to these little social affairs occasionally is one with a small gas tank.

Allen Coburn says he can't figure how old maids can get so much joy out of life when they haven't got husbands to complain about.

What worries us personally is not what congress is doing about taxes but what we are going to have to do about them.

"Before a man is married," declares Harry Hursh, "he needs an entire closet to hold his clothes, but after he has been married a few years he can get his entire wardrobe in one of the sewing machine drawers."

Hollis Dilley says he has often wonered why it is that the fellow who has the most to say usually does the least talking.

"It occurs to me," asserts George Baker, "that most of the farm bills they introduce are designed to help the congressmen about as much as they are intended to help the farmer."

ANTICIPATION VS. REALIZATION

According to recent reports, it is thought almost a certainty that Congress will order an investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, its activities, its expenditures, and its personnel. Between long drawn out arguments, between the directors, and charges of trick bookkeeping, waste of funds, etc., an increasing number of congressmen are showing a revived interest in just what is being done with public funds down there.

Senator McNary, the minority leader, is one who is in favor of an investigation. He points out that the great bulk of TVA expenditures have been charged off to flood control and navigation—and but a small part to power development. What this means is obvious. By writing down its actual power investment, TVA is able to charge a large part of its cost of generating to other functions. And, of course, the taxpayers foot the bill, instead of a few privileged ratepayers.

The country was told a few years ago that the TVA would introduce a "new era" in the Southeast. It was likewise told that the TVA would demonstrate with utter finality the blessings of public production of electric power. It was supposed that there would arise a practically unanimous public demand for the establishment of similar authorities in all parts of the country.

The realization, however, has been very different than the anticipation. The "seven little TVA" bill is apparently dead. The TVA has spent tens of millions of public money— and if its potential program is carried out it will spend hundreds of millions more. The Southeast seems as far from a "new era" as ever—and it isn't getting any better power service than it did before or, if all costs are considered, cheaper service. The TVA's directors are involved in an apparently insoluable controversy. It looks as if an honest investigation of the Authority would be both interesting and instructive.

ON WASH DAY

If a garment is streaked from a strong bluing solution soak it in strong ammonia water.......A rusted wash boiler may be made to give further service by lining it with unbleached muslin.......A handful of salt added to the rinsing water in the winter will keep the clothes from freezing to the line.

George Hart and wife are now located on their farm near Bur Oak, Michigan, making their last trip Monday afternoon. Fifteen truck loads were required to move. They will welcome any of their friends in their new home. The children will stay here with their grandparents until the close of the school term.

The new 1938 hunting and fishing licenses are now on sale at News office 49tf.

Two birthday cakes are too much for anyone, at least Sam Armstrong thinks so. Sunday he celebrated his 66th birthday, by having his children all home.

LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

Down on our corner we got a nice little drug store—with a pee-wee P. O. in the back—and the feller who runs it, we call him Dock, and he is around 60 and a pleasant kind of party.

And the reason I am tellin' about him, is because he is one person who is not squawkin' about big business eating him alive, but he is goin' ahead and selling whisk-brooms, and sodas, and lip-stick, and stamps—and I reckon some drugs, maybe.

And Dock he does not have a stomach ache about the chain stores, etc., and he is makin' money and sellin' our family a new kind of toothbrush every time we go in, and he has 4 or 5 clerks—and is not a gloom—so we all go back.

But he says the woods is full of meddlers, like little business versus business, so far—says he is out of know sour apples—and especially, down there on the Potomac. But he says it has been great sutff for his business, so far—says he is out of head-ache powders half the time.

Yours with the low down,

JO SERRA.

NEWSPAPER BORROWER IS TEMPTING FATE

We once knew a man who was too stingy to take the newspaper in his home town and always sent over to borrow his neighbor's paper.

One evening he sent his son over to borrow the paper, and while his son was on his way he ran into a swarm of bees and in a few minutes his face looked like a summer squash.

Hearing the agonized cries of his son, the father ran to his assistance, and in doing so ran into a barbed wire fence, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of pants.

The old cow took advantage of the hole in the fence, got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the farmer's wife ran out of the house, upsetting a four gallon churn of cream and fell down stairs, breaking her leg and a $19 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the cream into the parlor and ruined a $40 carpet. During the excitement, the daughter eloped with the hired man and took all the family's savings with her.

The moral is that every man should be a subscriber to his home paper.

PLAN TO CONSTRUCT 384 EARTH-FILL DAMS BEFORE JUNE 30TH

Construction already has begun in some localities and plans are on hand to complete three hundred and eighty four earthfill dams by June 30, as a part of the water conservation program, being conducted in Indiana by the Works Progress Administration in co-operation with the Department of Conservation, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner, announced today.

Heretofore the dams constructed in Indiana have been, for the most part of the low dam type. Since the program was inaugurated over a year ago, two thousand, three hundred and sixty two low dams have been constructed in sixty-six Indiana counties, with the largest concentration in the Southern part of the state. Counties having the largest number of both low and earthfill dams are: Owen, Harrison, Floyd, Warrick, Spencer, Jefferson, Switzerland, Ohio, Morgan, Wayne, Hamilton, Clinton, Fountain, Lawrence, Monroe, Gibson, Warren, Vigo, Clay and Vermillion.

Whereas the low-type dams were constructed in small streams and creeks, the earthfill dams are built on locations where a lake can be started. The earth dams have a minimum area of two acres; the largest has an area of 115 acres, and is located in Morgan County. It is estimated that the earthfill dam program, now in progress, will create water storage of approximately 8,000 acres.

In localities where the program is underway, conservationists and farmers are realizing the present and future value of both types of dams. They impound a part of the high waters which normally would run off quickly, conserving a supply which serves livestock on the farm and at the same time provide necessary moisture for the surrounding area during seasons when there is little rainfall.

The dams also aid in reducing soil erosion, and to ascertain extent, minimize flood damage downstream, by checking the rapid runoff of water after heavy rains. Last year the Department of Conservation planted thousands of game fish above the low dams and in the lakes created by the earth dams, taking advantage of the long pools created, and the larger flow of water in streams normally dry at times. This year other thousands of fingerlings will be planted above the dams, resutling in better fishing in a large number of Indiana streams. The additional water supply also will benefit game birds and other wildlife as well as the farmer's livestock.

PROPER MANNER OF DISPLAYING THE FLAG

There are certain fundamental rules of heraldry which, if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the Flag of the United States of America. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the Flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the Flag is the honor point: the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

1. The Flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be hoisted briskly, but should be lowered slowly and ceremoniously. The Flag should be displayed on all National and State holidays and on historic and special occasions. (However, being the emblem of our country, it ought to fly from every flagpole every day throughout the year, weather permitting.)

2. When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States of America should be either on the marching right, i. e., the Flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the Flag of the United States of America may be in front of the center of that line.

3. When displayed with another flag against the wall from crossed staffs, the Flag of the United States of America should be on the right, the Flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4. When a number of flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should be at the center or at the highest point of the group.

5. When flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States of America should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant flown in the former position should be placed above, or in the latter position to the right of the Flag of the United States of America, i. e., to the observer's left.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

7. When the Flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the Flag should go clear of the peak of the staff unless the Flag is at half-staff. (When the Flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope, extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the Flag should be hoisted out from the building towards the pole, union first.)

8. When the Flag is displayed in a manner other than being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the Flag's own right, i. e., to the observers left. When displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observers in the street. When festoons, rosettes, or drapings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red should be used, never the Flag.

9. When displayed over the middle of the street, the Flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

ASSESSOR REQUIRED TO CHECK ON INCOME PAYMENT

More than 1200 county and township assessors throughout Indiana were reminded by a letter from Clarence A. Jackson, director of the state Gross Income Tax Division, that they are mandated by law to secure an answer under oath to the new interrogatory on the 1938 personal property assessment sheets: "Did you pay any gross income tax to the State of Indiana with respect to your gross income for the preceding calendar year?"

It was pointed out in the letter that under the Gross Income Tax Act as ameded by the 1937 Legislature assessors and their deputies failing or neglecting to require an answer under oath to the gross income tax interrogatory are liable for fines up to twenty dollars for each case of such omission or neglect.

"We are confident that this additional check for gross income tax purposes will be welcomed by the vast majority of Indiana taxpayers," Mr. Jackson said. "It has been our experience that the people who are paying their taxes correctly are always more than willing to have their returns checked."

"Since the beginning of the Gross Income Tax Law it has been the uniform policy of the Division to see that the Law is enforced and administered equitably," Mr. Jackson continued. "To that end and for the protection of the taxpayer who is paying his tax honestly, the new interrogatory was placed on the assessment blanks and added to the material available for inspection by our investigators. This new source of information should be particularly useful."

SUGGESTIONS ON HOW TO RESIST COLDS

No illness is taken less seriously nor neglected so often as the common cold. Strange, too, when one considers how many serious illnesses are often directly attributable to a cold. At the very first sign of a cold, proper care should be taken.

The wise thing to do, of course, is to follow a few simple rules of health so that the body can build up the resistance necessary to ward off colds entirely. A few of them are:

1. Eat sensibly. Include plenty of milk, fresh fruits, and vegetables in your diet.
2. Get sufficient rest.
3. Keep kidneys and bowels in good working order.
4. Drink at least six glasses of water a day.
5. Keep your feet dry—wear your rubbers.
6. Keep away from persons with a cold.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1938. NUMBER 10

ST. JOE BOYS IN TOURNAMENT AT GARRETT

The following boys represented the local high school in the sectional tournament at Garrett, Melvin Zimmerman, James Draggoo, Walter Zonker, Delta Inlow, Walter Ervin, Frank Curie, Jr., Paul Cook, Marcel Pugsley, Burl Rude, and Richard Freeburn. Jack Chorpenning went as Student Manager.

St. Joe met Mets in the second game of the tournament. Before the echo of the final whistle of the first game had faded away the boys were out on the floor getting the range of the basket at different angles. The boys representing Mets were soon out on the floor. They were larger than our boys and as far as their season's record was concerned little could be learned.

With Mr. Wilbern checking on the line-up of the opposing team, and Jack administering to the wants of the players we were soon under way.

Every one was in good spirits and apparently physically fit for the struggle, with Zimmerman scoring two baskets, Draggoo one, Zonker two and Inlow two foul tosses in the first half. The score stood 12 to 15 at the end of the first half in favor of Mets.

The score having been tied several times but a foul shot and a basket on the part of Mets placed them in the lead. Paul Cook having been rather unfortunate in the first few minutes of the game in having three personal fouls called on him was relieved by Ervin. Ervin immediately went to work and drew two fouls but failed to connect.

In the second half Draggoo scored another basket and missed two foul shots. Zimmerman scored two foul shots out of seven attempts. Ervin tried two fouls but failed to connect. It was in the last half that Zonker scored four field goals and scored one out of two free throws. Zonker was outstanding because of the fact that he would take the ball off the back board when a foul was missed and make a basket for us. In on instance we hit the first foul toss missed the next recovered by Zonker and scoring a basket.

When the final whistle sounded the score was 25 for St. Joe and 30 for Mets. The score on the score board was not correct as it gave Mets 34 points. Throughout the game Mr. Wilbern kept a careful check with the official scorer in the event a mistake might be made.

The line up and scores of the game is as follows:

BASKET BALL

In a close and well played game of Basket Ball the St. Joe Valley Pickles defeated the St. Joe Merchants. This game was played for the benefit of the High School Athletic Fund and a fair crowd attended the game. The "Pickles" consisted of players from the best of the Ft. Wayne Industrial teams and have played as Pickles during the past two years.

The Merchants are all from St. Joe High School players and can hold their own with any team in this area.

In the preliminary game the grade team conpletely routed the Freshmen.

RAY WILLIS, OF ANGOLA, FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

Ray E. Willis, Angola editor who recently announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the United States senate, reports that his campaign manager will be Judge Noel C. Neal, of Noblesville, former judge of the appellate court. Willis said he expects to open state headquarters soon in charge of Neal and conduct a vigorous campaign prior to the Republican convention in June. Willis will run on a clear cut anti-new deal platform. His campaign will open Friday evening with a rally at the Moose Hall in Fort Wayne. A strong candidate in every sense of the word.

BETTER DISPLAY THAT CARD

A number of Garrett motorists have been ordered to appear in justice court Saturday and explain their failure to properly display a vehicle registration card. Under existing laws, it is necessary that the certificate of registration be prominently displayed at all times in the lower right hand corner of the windshield so as to be legible through the windshield to any observer outside the vehicle.

It is evident that this is to be enforced and people better comply rather than have an additional expense and then be compelled to display the card.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Everet Mavis in Auburn.

CONSERVATION DINNER WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

About 200 members of the Conservation Club attended the dinner last Thursday night at the school house, served by Jack Sechler and his men.

The program was held in the gym in which Dr. J. E. Graham, of Auburn, gave an interesting talk on the importance and benefits of conservation, followed by motion pictures of a trip by Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Gerig, of Auburn, to Florida. Many of the pictures were scenes and others of fishing activities. The boys greatly enjoyed the program.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Albert Moore.
Vice President, H. D. Sechler.
Secretary, F. B. Leighty.
Treasurer, M. E. Storer.
Spear Custodian, Lester Coburn.
County Council Delegates, F. A. Jenkins and Ford Jackson.

The Board of Directors consist of Fred Elson, Stanley Baker, Geo. Walter, Walter Reinhart, Wm. Brandon, Willard Hurni, Roy Wade, Sam Mumaw, L. B. Meek, John Engle and Roy Reidenbach.

The next meeting will be held April 7th, at the town hall.

Twenty-one new members will receive Outdoor Indiana, a magazine devoted to Conservation, beginning with April.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

There were not as many fat hogs on sale this week as last but prices were 20 to 30 cents higher. The top was $9.45 paid for lots averaging just under two hundred with a liberal sort which allowed hogs well above 225 to be included. The price range did not go below $9.00. Roughs at $7.00 to $7.70 and Stags, $6.25 and Boars at $4.10 to $4.75.

There were no select calves on sale this week and very few showing enough quality to be classed as tops. On a very liberal sort they made a top price of $11.60.

Cattle were active and definitely higher this week. Fat cows, $4.50 to $4.95. Many rough discarded dairy cows from $3.50 to $4.00. Bulls, $6.00 to $6.50.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION AVAILABLE AFTER APRIL 1ST

The Indiana Unemployment Compensation Fund has passed the $25,000,000 mark, Clarence J. Jackson, director of the state Unemployment Compensation Division, has announced.

"The fund now contains $25,100,963.76," Mr. Jackson said. "It can be used only for the payment of benefits to workers in the state who lose their jobs after April 1 of this year; provided, of course, that they fulfill all the eligibility requirements set out in the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law.

"Foremost among these requirements is the one that an individual must have earned at least $10 in employment subject to the law after March 31, 1938. Other requirements are that they must have earned certain minimum amounts, approximately $250, during the past year, must be able and willing to work, must register at the local office of the Indiana State Employment Service, etc.

"A worker who has earned $10 after March 31 and then loses his job should go to the nearest office of the Employment Service. At the employment office a claims deputy will help him fill out the necessary blanks and will inform him whether or not he is entitled to benefits, and if so, how much he will receive.

"The amount of benefits is based on past earnings records which have been filed with this Division by employers.

"After his registration, the employee must serve a waiting period of at least two weeks before he can start receiving benefits.

"Because of the requirements of $10 earnings after March 31, 1938, no one can make application for benefits until some time in April. Consequently, employees cannot make application or secure application forms now."

The Concord Township Home Bureau has accepted an invitation to attend an all day meeting with the Jackson Township Home Bureau at the community hall, March 16. A covered dish dinner will be served at the noon hour. There will be no March meeting for the local club. Each member is urged to attend.

TEST, TEST AND TEST

AMERICAN industry, according to Consumers Information, surpasses that of any other country in its exact methods of testing products and so assuring maximum performance before passing them on to the user. One company reports, for instance, that 25% of its labor and cost of production goes into testing. Above are shown tests of two of the 600 different operations which go into the manufacture of their vacuum cleaners. CHANGES MADE IN FARM OWNERSHIP AND RENTERS

Clifford Kimmell moved Tuesday from the Curie farm south of town, to the Ole Braybrook farm south of Coburntown, in Allen County.

Arthur Butler, wife and son and granddaughter, of Cromwell, Indiana, moved Saturday to the Saylor farm, 2 miles north of St. Joe.

John Platter moved from the former Markins farm, northwest of St. Joe, to a State Line farm, this week. Frank May, having purchased the former Markins farm of 120 acres, is preparing to move this week from the old Jos. Koch farm where he lived for several years. This farm is now owned by a Mr. Warstler, who purchased it from J. R. Shilling.

Paul Fetters now occupies the D. D. Burley farm.

Lester Weicht rented the south 80 acres of land from his father last week, and will move from St. Joe this week. The farm is lcated just west of Mount Pleasant Church. Mr. Weicht own two 80 acre farms with comfortable houses on each tract.

Merwood Rhodes has purchased the 20 acres of land owned by A. M. Baughman, located one mile south and a half mile west of St. Joe.

Jay Fetters disposed of his 70 acres south of Concord last week. Dell Draggoo bought the 30 acres including the buildings and Roy Wessel, who lives on the former James Ervin farm, bought the back 40 acres, joining his farm south of the Wabash depot, known as the Provines farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Keeler will occupy the M. P. Parsonage property vacated Tuesday by Charles Collins, who moved into the Abe Culbertson property.

COUNTY FAIR DATES SET

The board of directors of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association met Friday night in Auburn in the office of T. E. Myers, the county agent and decided on the dates for the 1938 fair. The fair will be held a week earlier than usual, September 21 to 24 inclusive.

When a boy gets too old for his mother to wash his neck and ears they never get a good washing until he falls in love.

Paying taxes by mail is shown to be a fine idea. Now the taxpayer doesn't have to leave home and walk back in a barrel.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to vote for the candidate who gave him the most five-cent cigars?

A tourist and a vacationist are two different things. A tourist is a man who fares forth to see the country without depending on a timepiece, a speedometer or a map.

One spring problem the old-time girl worried with that the modern one doesn't know anything about is when it's time to take off the heavy ones.

The old admonition to "love your neighbor as yourself" has been responsible for a lot of fellows landing in divorce court.

Right now the lay of the spring poet doesn't interest the average citizen as much as the lay of the spring hen.

One of the first things a fellow learns after he gets married is that a wife is someone he spends a lot of time waiting for after he gets ready to go some place.

Still another home where happiness always reigns is the one where Mother never kicks because she has to put Dad's shaving set away.

Many a man who thinks his wife couldn't get along without him probably would be surprised if he knew that she endures him just for the children's sake.

The little business men, it seems, are unwilling to end the song and let only the memory linger on.

It's been a month now since the outspoken little men of industry trouped out on the Capital stage and awed the spectators with their unrehearsed performance, but apparently they did not go home to rest on their laurels. Secretary of Commerce Roper has the evidence. He is still getting about 200 letters a day from these "little fellows," who, during their conference in Washington last month, adopted resolutions particularly critical of many Federal policies, especially those dealing with taxation and regulation and the "antagonistic attitude toward industry."

To date, about 5,000 letters have been dropped into the Commerce Department's mail box, but apparently any analysis of the contents is to be kept an administration secret. Secretary Roper recently said 1,900 of the letters had been analyzed for the President, but declined to make the analysis, public.

One significant inkling as to what the letters reveal was seen by many Washington correspondents in Mr. Roper's only comment when the analysis was sent to the White House. He said then that apparently the Nation does not favor any "long-term plans for control of production, either agricultural or industrial."

When the Secretary of the Interior appeared before the House Appropriations Committee last week, he explained that a $50,000 item in his budget requirements was for a new publicity section. He jestingly said he thought it necessary because the Interior Department had not been able to make page one in the newspapers since the "blue bathroom" episode several months ago! At that time there was considerable comment about the luxurious private bath in the Secretary's newly built private office suite, which also includes a kitchen.

The committee denied the request. The House, however, reinstated the item.

For those who relish statistics:

A total of about 1,176,000 words were spoken in the 46-day filibuster against the anti-lynching bill in the Senate; gallery employes counted 140 hours of actual debate and 49 roll calls; and Senator Ellender, of Louisiana, was the marathon performer, speaking against the bill for 40 hours, including one stretch of six daily sessions.

The deficiency measure giving the WPA an additional $250,000,000 for operations until June 30 is worth about three million dollars per word. Less than 90 words in length, the bill is one of the shortest ever tossed into the Congressional hopper.

It came too late to influence the farm bill one way or the other, but a telegram that a doctor in Iowa sent one of the Iowa Senators brought considerable laughter in the Senate cloak rooms last week. Addressed to Senator Gillette, it read: "Haven't read farm control law in its entirety, but we can't help wondering if farmer is allotted one calf and his cow has twins, whether law specifies that the officials shoot a calf, the cow, the farmer or the bull."

After showing the telegram to several of his colleagues Senator Gillette wired back: "The proper course would be to shoot the farmer's Senator."

ALL IN A WEEK:—As the public debt touched a new high of $37,632,120,451, into the Senate hopper was dropped a bill—for the relief of Charley McCarthy!

MERITED HONOR

When the state of Ohio started in a few years ago to confer the degree of "Master Homemaker," through its farm bureaus, it set a splendid example. It is interesting to note that numerous other states are adopting the same innovation. Yet it strikes one as strange that the country is just beginning to reward woman for a task she has been carrying out in a masterly way for thousands of years. Since the beginning of time, women have been the homemakers. There are dozens right around St. Joe entitled to be recognized as masters of the art. But the only prize they seek is the love and esteem of their families and the respect of their neighbors and friends. Is it different in this day of bridge parties and tin-can meals that prizes have to be offered to those who really know how to keep a house and how to make it worthy of the name of home? It might be necessary in some sections, but we don't believe this community has yet reached that stage.

THIS USUALLY WORKS

Just what to do with household articles she no longer has use for is a worry to more than one woman now about to engage in the annual task of house-cleaning. We know house-cleaning is a big job, and for that reason we again want to offer a hint that has solved the problem for many in the past, and to their advantage. Someone would be glad to have the old stove, chairs, bed, floor covering or other household furnishings you are discarding for something new this spring, and they would be glad to pay a fair price for it. But, unless they know what you have to dispose of, how are they going to purchase it. A few cents—a smaller amount than you would ordinarily think—will tell everybody for miles around just what you are willing to dispose of when those few cents are spent for a little reading notice in these columns. In that way you get actual cash for what you do not want, and someone else gets what they want at a bargain. Drop in and let us explain how this feature of your annual house-cleaning problem can be happily and profitably solved.

WELL SPENT

It would be a good idea for St. Joe home-owners, as the season for spring repairs draws near, to bear in mind that a dollar expended in this way means far more than a good investment in comfort or appearances. It means, in addition, an added value to the property itself—a dollar you get back through the comfort it buys and which you also get back, and with interest, at any time you dispose of the property. Nothing declines in value more rapidly than residential property that is allowed to fall into a bad state of repair; and nothing enhances its value more than keeping it in good condition and looking good. Always paint a house before selling it. The difference in appearances alone will bring you an increase in price that will more than pay for the paint job. Appearances, in a house as well as an individual, count for a great deal. Bear that in mind as you plan to give your house the spring repairs that should not be neglected.

MAKING IT PAY

The motorist who gets 100 per cent dividend out of his car is the one who utilizes it to get out to meetings and conferences held to further the improvement and development of his community; meetings that are directly in his interest since his own property is always involved in such plans as are under discussion. He gets some more out of it when he uses it to attend social gatherings, gatherings that bring him into closer and happier reunion with his neighbor. He reaps dividends by giving pleasure to those who do not have a car of their own by taking them for an occasional pleasure ride. He gets a return on his investment when he uses it to take a vacation jaunt into some distant community, where he can see how others work and play and live; where he gets a broader vision of the nation he lives in and a better understanding of those who are helping him to make it what it is. The St. Joe motorist who uses his car for these things can actually be said to come mighty close to getting 100 per cent dividend out of his car.

TRY IT AND SEE

We overhard a woman in a store a few days ago insisting upon having a certain brand of coffee. In fact, she was so insistant that no other brand of coffee would answer her demands that we asked her about it; asked her just why she insisted on that particular kind of coffee. "I see it advertised in everything I pick up," she answered, "and if it wasn't all right they wouldn't be advertising it." And we are constrained to believe that the same rule works with everything else sold over the counter. The best advertised goods move fastest—every merchant knows that, and yet there are merchants who fail to take advantage of this knowledge and advertise the goods they have in stock that they would like to see moving off the counters faster. It's a poor rule that won't work more than one way—and the columns of this paper are wide open to the merchant who wants to make a test of it.

HINT OF SPRING

There's no more positive evidence that spring is on the way than to glimpse the brightly-colored seed catalogue peering through the little glass window of a postoffice box, or staring out from the bigger galvanized receptacle out along the rural free delivery route. It is safe to assert that "spring is just around the corner" when the seed catalogues begin to arrive.

While gardening around St. Joe will doubtless be on as large a scale this yeas as it was last, making garden actually has become a lost art with a majority of the present generation. The more modern housewife contends that she can buy her vegetables cheaper that she can grow them; that she can get canned vegetables as cheaply as she can afford to grow them herself. But that argument doesn't go over with the old-timers who know from experience that nothing can offset or equal the satisfaction that comes with the production—with your own hands—of that which goes to provide a livelihood. Gardens and chickens always have meant independence to the rural and small-town families of this country. As an old friend once said: "It's fine to know that when you want a meal all you have to do is go out and pull it up or wring its neck."

There's something about a home garden that can't be figured in dollars and cents. There's a happiness tied up in a handful of vegetables fresh-pulled from your own patch that all the can-openers in the world can't match. So here comes the seed catalogue, and right behind it comes spring. It would be a good time to settle the garden argument to your own satisfaction.

THE HUMBE PENNY

Quite a few people are inclined to look down on the humble penny and ignore it on the ground that "it won't buy anything." Now they have occasion to change their mind. A big Eastern concern that does a nation-wide business in chewing gum and candy through penny vending machines has just issued its yearly report to its stockholders, and it shows that more than three and one-half billion pennies passed through those machines in 1937.

Here is proof that the penny is among the country's greatest circulating mediums, and that the individual or the company making a special drive for it can get rich. When we reflect

Seeds of Tyranny

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past few weeks Americans have watched with a sense of apprehension the ominous shadow of despotism lengthening across the map of Europe.

To many students of government, however, neither the latest coup nor its predecessors came as a surprise. It was the inevitable outcome of a willingness to let group hatreds and group ambitions overwhelm and supplant the spirit of free and constructive patriotism.

In the case of virtually every nation that has accepted the dictator's yoke, such students can recall a preceding period of internal strife, of warring blocs and pressure groups, each intent in gaining for its adherents special advantages at the expense of the people, or the nation, as a whole.

Out of the turmoil caused by the multiplication of such blocs, and the accompanying encouragement of hatreds among the people themselves, has emerged the man or the group that seized all power.

Sometimes the turmoil was stilled—at the cost of all individual liberty. Sometimes it developed, instead, into tragic civil wars. Daily the headlines from abroad repeat the story.

In all this there is an obvious lesson for America.

Here is a country that in a century and a half of national existence achieved a growth in territory, in population, in resources, in tolerance, and in influence unsurpassed throughout history. Here is a nation that through concerted efforts of all its people established a standard of living unequalled elsewhere on earth.

This advance was not achieved through the process of class warring against class, of group crowding out group. It was achieved through methods — sometimes interrupted — of progressive cooperation.

Here is something for the preachers of dissention to ponder as they scatter the seeds of tyranny. Here is something for the American people to remember when they are asked to relinquish a policy of cooperation for one of class hatreds and domination by political pressure groups.

To such demands, whatever their source, there is one conclusive reply. It runs:

"See what has sprung from such seeds abroad."

Mayor "Gets His Irish Up"

Mayor John F. Dore of Seattle celebrates St. Patrick's day in common with his Irish brethren in this community, a green hat on his head, a brick in his hand and a clay dudeen pipe in his mouth. Dore calls himself the "typical fighting Irishman."

Altogether I Need Lamps

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

how many newspapers the pennies buy every day, how many millions of letters and postcards it carries around over the nation every hour, then its value takes on new significance. But it takes a special report of a big concern dealing wholly in penny merchandise to make us see the tremendous buying power back of it. By itself, in those days of high prices, the penny really does seem insignificant. But there are $47,000,000 worth of them in circulation at this very minute, and that's worth striving for.

"Save the pennies and the dollars will save themselves" is a saying as truthful as if it had appeared in Holy Writ. And the happiest and wisest citizens are those who recognize it, instead of tossing the penny away as something "that won't buy anything."

PROPER MANNER OF DISPLAYING THE FLAG

10. When used on a speaker's platform, the Flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker; if flown from a staff, it should be in the position of honor, at the speaker's right. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of the platform.

11. When used in connection with the unveiling of a statute or monument, the Flag should form a distinctive feature during the ceremony, but the Flag itself should never be used as the covering for the statue.

12. When flown at half-staff, the Flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position; but before lowering the Flag for the day it should be raised again to the peak. By half-staff is meant hauling down the Flag to one-half the distance between the top and bottom of the staff. If local conditions require, divergence from this position is permissible. On Memorial Day, May 30th, the Flag is displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset; for the Nation lives and the Flag is the symbol of the living Nation.

13. Flags flown from fixed staffs are placed at half-staff to indicate mourning. When the Flag is displayed on a small staff, as when carried in a parade, mourning is indicated by attaching two streamers of black crepe to the spear head, allowing the streamers to fall naturally. Crepe is used on the flagstaff only by order of the President.

14. When used to cover the casket, the Flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The Flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried foot first.

15. When the Flag is displayed in the body of the church, it should be from a staff placed in the position of of honor at the congregation's right as they face the clergyman. The service flag, the State flag or other flag should be at the left of the congregation. If in the chancel or on the platform, the Flag of the United States of America should be placed at the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and the other flags at his left.

16. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National colors, but should be destroyed as a whole privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our Country.

PROPER USE OF BUNTING

Bunting of the National colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decoration in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below.

ALL SET TO START

Here's the first call for the bucket and mop brigade, the rake and shovel regiment, the paint and whitewash corps and the hatchet and saw recruits. The spring push is about to get under way. The entire nation is arming for its annual war on dirt and rubbish, soot and disease-breeding dumps. It's a mighty army that is now getting set for its annual campaign, and it behooves everyone around St. Jot to promptly fall in line.

There's no way of estimating the benefits that arise from a clean house, clean yard and a clean community as a whole. It not only means mere comfortable living conditions, but it assures health and prevents epidemics that might easily claim a heavy toll of death. Starting early means more time for other duties, too, and, serves to lighten the jobs that come along later in the season.

It is well to remember that no better beautifier and no more effective sanitary agent can be procured than whitewash. Use it, as well as the raw, unslacked lime plentifully about your premises. But get on the job now, for once you start your neighbors will follow your example, and even our city fathers will be encouraged to set about giving streets and sidewalks the attention they need to place them in proper shape for spring. Roll up your sleeves, whistle if you can't sing and help make the home town shine like the noonday sun. All this will be asked of you in just a few weeks, so be ready.

RAISING CHICKENS

Despite the fact that more money has been lost and more people discouraged in poultry raising than in most any other venture, it still remains one of America's greatest industries. In fact, government figures show more people directly interested in the production of poultry and eggs than in any other food commodity. Last year, according to a recent government estimate the business amounted to approximately a billion and a quarter dollars.

While the smaller cities, towns and villages still contribute much to tht general success of poultry raising, it is on the farms and in rural poultry yards that production piles up fastest and where the "big money" is made. Citizens of St. Joe who keep chickens are mainly in it for their own needs and yet, if they will figure a little, they will be surprised to find that a good profit can be had from even the smallest flock. In no other food is there as little waste as in eggs. No other food can be eaten in as many ways—boiled, raw, fried, scrambled, poacehd, steamed, shirred or scalloped. And no other food serves as satisfactorily in both sickness and health.

We are paying this little tribute to the American hen because she deserves it. She is a friend of humanity, and one we cannot get along without, since practically all cooking is based on eggs. Here's hoping her numbers never decrease and that come what may—strikes, floods, fires or earthquakes—she will always be found on the job.

ELEC
INDIANA & MICHIGAN

ELECtricity in the HEN HOUSE is a PROFITABLE INVESTMENT . . .

YOU will be more successful in your poultry raising when you apply modern electrical methods. Electric brooders provide the pure air so necessary to growing chicks. Electricity assures pure heat with no fumes, and there is no open flame to use up the oxygen in the air, so essential to life and growth. A properly designed electric brooder gives automatic, well distributed heat regardless of the weather.

The use of electric lights in the hen house to lengthen winter days to about thirteen hours increases egg production in the months when prices are highest. Electrified experimental farms have demonstrated that the cost of electricity in poultry houses for large flocks, as well as the provision of electrically heated drinking water, amounts to about 2 cents a year for each hen.

Electricity will work for you . . . Give it a chance in your Hen House!

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

BE SURE SEED CORN IS DEPENDABLE BY TESTING

Preliminary tests of seed corn and examination of corn at local and county corn shows indicate that there is much corn in parts of Indiana that has been damaged by the very low temperature of last fall and is not dependable for seed, according to the Agronomy Department of Purdue University.

Rag doll tests of crib corn, particularly from Northeastern Indiana, indicates that some of the seed is dead and much of it is weak in germination. This situation applies particularly to those farmers who were delayed in planting corn last spring due to the wet weather. This late planted corn failed to mature properly last fall and carried a high moisture content when it was cribbed, which made it susceptible to injury from the November low temperatures.

Seed corn which was early field selected and stored in a dry, well ventilated place or heated basement showed much stronger germination and in most cases would scarcely pay for testing.

Farmers should examine their seed corn now by eye test or better by germination of a representative lot of seed. If a germination test fails to show 85 to 90 per cent strong germination the entire lot should be ear tested.

Growers should not feel too secure because of their ability to pick out dead corn, as there may be much weakness in germination which can only be determined by actual germination. Farmers in many localities may secure testing service thru vocational schools or community testers.

Safetygrams
BY
FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Not long ago I saw an editorial in the Baltimore Sun on drunken driving, from which I want to quote a paragraph:

"Nobody has ever been hanged for one of these affairs, although some of them are just as much murder as if the victim had been shot from ambush. When a fool gets blind drunk and sends a 5,000 pound motor car hurtling through the streets at fifty miles an hour, any killing he does is not an accident—it is cold blooded first degree murder. If justice prevailed, the driver's neck would be broken by the common hangman."

That's pretty tough, but stop and think a moment what chance anybody has on the road, in an automobile or on foot, against a terrific speed of fifty or sixty miles an hour governed only by a man whose judgment is blurred and practically obliterated by liquor.

I will leave the answer with you.

DIES OF A STROKE WHILE IN CHICAGO

Reuben Pugsely, 74, father of Lester Pugsley, of St. Joe, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arlo Greene, of Chicago, Friday. The body was brot to the Kinsey Funeral Home on Saturday, and then removed to the home of a sister, Mrs. Wilbert Lutz on Sunday, where the funeral was held on Monday afternoon from the Church of Christ at 2 o'clock with Rev. G. L. Fisher and Jos. Ferguson officiating, and burial in Roselawn Cemetery, Auburn.

He had been poorly since last fall, when he accompanied his daughter to Chicago. He was stricken on February 25 with paralysis.

The deceased was born in Wilmington Township, DeKalb County, where he lived on a farm until going to Toledo, Ohio, where he resided several years. After returning to Indiana he was employed at the Auburn Automobile Co. factory until he became janitor at the Riley school building in Auburn.

Josephine Eberly, whom Mr. Pugsley married, died on April 13, 1932. There are four children, Lester Pugsley, of St. Joe, Harold Pugsley, of Butler, Roy Pugsley, of Toledo, and Mrs. Arlo Green, of Chicago; nine grandchildren and one great grandchild. The surviving brothers are Arthur Pugsley, of Lorain, Ohio, Frank, William and Edgar Pugsley, of Lima, Ohio, and the sisters, Mrs. Lutz, of Auburn and Mrs. Mayme Bair, of Findlay, Ohio.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Roscoe Sechler and son from Edgerton, Ohio and M. C. Blue were at Archbold, Ohio, attending a large stock sale, Monday.

Mrs. Chris Sailer, Mrs. F. B. Leighty, Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Andress, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh, Mrs. Ma-Donna Wade were Sunday afternoon and evening callers in the M. C. Blue home.

Sure you can order your automobile license plates at News office, and delivery will be made in just a few days.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Neva Hursh. The ladies are requested to bring their thimbles.

Frank Curie, Jr., spent from Thursday evening until Sunday evening in Garrett with his brother, Herbert Curie, and family, and attended the basket ball tournament.

GIVE HER HAPPINESS
AN ELECTRIC RANGE

"EVERY dog has his day—the cats have the nights, but your wife deserves all the leisure time she can get both day and night. Freedom from drudgery, time for recreation, and the happiness that the carefree attitude brings should be hers. An ELECtric Range may seem pretty unpoetic, but it is a practical way to give her that happiness.

In this country, one million eight hundred thousand women now enjoy the modern way of cooking—the ELECtric way. This means that they can cook an entire meal—automatically—while they are far away from the kitchen enjoying themselves . . . and it will be deliciously cooked, ready to serve piping hot at any time set.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1938 NUMBER 11

DR. GILLIE IN G. O. P. RACE FOR CONGRESS

Dr. George W. Gillie, aged 57, fourtimes Sheriff of Allen County and most popular candidate of the Republican Party in the last several county elections, Tuesday yielded to the insistent demands of delegations of friends and supporters from throughout the Fourth District and announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress.

Dr. Gillie's candidacy, Republican leaders believe, will bolster the entire G. O. P. ticket in the Fourth District in the forthcoming election.

Dr. Gillie had not planned to be a candidate for office this year, despite his success in former elections, but yielded when his supporters insisted.

Only other candidates from the G. O. P. Congressional nomination are Attorney Fred W. Greene, and Attorney Wayne L. Miller, also of Fort Wayne, who is expected to withdraw from the race in favor of Dr. Gillie.

In the event that Dr. Gillie wins the G. O. P. nomination, he will face James I. Farley, of Auburn, incumbent Democratic Congressman, in the General Election next Fall. Farley filed for re-election at Indianapolis Monday.

Dr. Gillie is considered an ideal candidate for the post in view of his enviable record of public esrvice, which dates back to 1908, when he was appointed meat and dairy inspector for Allen County, a position he held for six years.

DR. GEORGE W. GILLIE

Dr. Gillie was elected to office for the first time in 1916 when he was named Allen County Sheriff. Two years later he was re-elected to this post.

After a period of eight years he again was named Sheriff, holding office in 1929 and 1930. His popularity at this time was attested by the fact that he led the national ticket in this county in the number of votes received.

Dr. Gillie was last elected Sheriff in 1934, a Democratic year.

DATES FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETINGS IN DEKALB COUNTY

The executive committee of the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education, meeting Monday night with the County Secretary, Miss Sadie Coy, Auburn, arranged the dates of the Spring township conventions as follows:

Fairfield - Smithfield, March 20; Grant, March 27; Butler, April 3; Concord-Newville, April 17; Jackson, April 10; Spencer, April 24; Richland, May 15; Wilmington, May 22; Union, May 29; Franklin-Stafford-Troy, June 5. The date for the Keyser Township convention was not decided upon.

The county council will hold its semi-annual meeting in the Auburn First M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon, May 1. A special speaker will be secured for this meeting. Divisional conferences will be held at the same time.

It was decided that during this year each department will have a meeting. The date for the county convention to be held again in the First M. E. Church in Auburn, will be February 16 and 17, 1939. The state convention will be held at Winona Lake June 15, 16 and 17, 1938. The slogan for the state convention is "Every Sunday School, One or More Delegates."

Miss Eloise Bowman spent the week end at Bloomington and attended initiation ceremonies at the Sigma Kappa sorority.

DEAN KEES COMPLETES WINTER COURSE AT PURDUE

DeKalb County was represented this year at Purdue University's eight-week Winter Course in Agriculture by three young men, according to a report made by Assistant Dean V. C. Freeman of the Purdue School of Agriculture.

The Winter Course this year, which came to a close with commencement exercises last Friday morning (March 11,) had a record enrollment for the more than two score years it has been held. Intensive training was offered in general agriculture, animal husbandry, dairy production, and dairy manufactures.

The 185 graduates, in addition to their academic studies, participated in a winter course society, glee club, orchestra, and athletic activities. Certificates were presetned individually to the graduates by President E. C. Elliott of Purdue at the commencement.

The following DeKalb County students successfully completed the winter course work:

Delbert J. Dannenberg, Garrett, animal husbandry; Willard Dean Kees, St. Joe, dairy production; and John W. Brandon, Auburn, dairy manufactures.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts of Troop No. 1 wish to express their appreciation for the kind response to their cookie sale last Saturday.

Especially do they wish to thank the ladies who did the baking and the following merchants who so generously donated the material.

List of donors:

St. Joe Flour Mill, Flour 36 lbs.
Lyon's Store, 10 lbs. sugar.
Schondelmayer's, 10 lbs. sugar.
Mrs. Kinsey, lard.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

An average volume of livestock sold on an active market in this week's auction. Prices as follows:

Lambs: Veals made a top of $11.60, paid by The Home Packing Co., of Toledo, Ohio. Calves are of rather low quality the last few weeks. No selects and a low percentage of top calves.

Hogs 175 to 245, $9.60 to $9.80. Lighter weights, $9.90 to $10.05. Feeder pigs were unusually high selling by the head at prices equaling as high as 18c per pound. Boars, $4.50 to $6.20 and a sow and litter of ten pigs, $66.50.

In the cattle department steers brought $6.00 to $6.80; heifers, $5.00 to $6.00; fat cows, $4.50 to $5.15; canners and low cutters, $3.85 to $4.25. There is a good demand for young bulls large enough for service.

P. T. A. STUDY GROUP

What School Should Mean to Children and Education for Spiritual Values will be the subject of the discussion at the last meeting of the P. T. A. Study Group to be held at 10:00 o'clock Thursday, March 24 at the home of Mrs. Willard Hurni. This meeting will give an opportunity to those who have attended either of the previous meetings to complete the necessary number of hours required to give the local P. T. A. credit toward a Standard Rating in the state and national councils. This does not mean that others may not attend. Any mother is most welcome to attend this meeting. Pot luck lunch will be served at noon.

At a recent meeting held at the home of Mrs. Mildred Jarrett, the subjects discussed were "A Parent Looks at Home Work" and "An Education Looks at Home Work." Those present were Mrs. Willard Hurni, Mrs. Ralph Sechler, Mrs. Grover Curie, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Mrs. Doris Stuck, who presented the discussion, and the hostess.

FIRESIDE TALKS "THE IMMORTAL J. N."

Former Resident Recalls Memoirs Of 'Old Timer" Philosopher—E. L. (Peck) Sanders, of Mountrose, California, had the following to say in his paper recently;

The New Deal "Fireside Talks," during the past six years, always remind us of the "Immortal J. N."

The broad generalities in which the New Deal Utopian Mystics are eptomized, and the impracticability of the "planning" schemes appear to run parallel with the "Immortal J. N." theories.

Most older Ohioans and Indianans will recall memories of the Old Time Philosopher: "The Immortal J. N.," who lectured in those districts over a period extending through two generations.

The "Immortal" was a genial, liberal minded type of gentleman, who had delusions of grandeur and utopian ideas of delivering the human race from bondage and establishing Utopian life immortal.

A striking personality—Tall, dark, with hair that curled at the shoulders; he invariably wore a five gallon hat and a threadbare Prince Albert, just topping his knees, he was an impressive figure.

As boy and man, we had the privilege of listening in on some of his lectures? and side-talks, at our Little Red School House. As near as we could figuer out; his plan for deliverance was on the theory that the human equation was based on the existance of a "Positive" and a "Negative" pole of influence.

According to his philosophy, these two forces would connect, and bring about the "Utopian Ideal."

He would speak in wide generalities and "lecture" to the point? and just at the point, the "connnection" was to be made, he would "blow up" and lose the drift of his argument. The meeting would adjourn in disorder, wondering, what it was all about.

Many railroad conductors and hotel men in that section remember this genial, liberal minded character, as he did not believe in paying hotel bills and railroad fares. He invariably "got off" at the next station.

We recall an incident which might be evidence that he had a sense of humor?

In our home town we had a thrifty type of tavern keeper, popularly known as "Bill" Leighty, who traditionally "stood for" the free hospitality required by the "Immortal" on his lecture tours.

It's said: that one morning after serving the "Immortal" with the night's lodging and breakfast, J. N. asked how much he owed. Taken by surprise, "Bill" scratched his head and finally said: "now, since it's you, "Immortal. I'll charge you only half-price."

"Well! well! Landlord," said J. N., "that's very liberal of you. So, to show my appreciation of your generosity, I'll throw off the other half."

The "Immortal" passed to his final reward about teh years ago.

It may be that the soul of the "Immortal" marches on? It may be the inspiration for the "New Deal."

BARBER SHOP TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY MORNING

The J. C. Hull barber shop, having been closed on Christmas Day, will again be opened next Monday morning by Mr. G. L. Haver of Ft. Wayne, who has leased the shop.

This week is being used to redecorate the walls and get the room in order.

When a suitable house can be located Mr. Haver stated that he would move to St. Joe. Mrs. Haver is an experienced beautician, and will work in the shop with her husband, doing marcelling and finger waving and other work as the trade will demand.

The News welcomes them to St. Joe.

It's pretty safe to wager that the man or woman who buys without asking prices never had to work for the money.

Another reason for so many divorces is that too many girls get hitched up before they are able to support a husband.

When a married woman falls out with her sister-in-law the sister-in-law sees to it that the neighbors learn the real age of the married woman.

A German prisoner, now starting in to serve a prison sentence of 211 years will probably find the first 100 the hardest.

Some people make you wonder what they would get out of life if everything was so perfect that they couldn't find anything to knock.

We have also noticed that much of the advice people offer us shows no signs of having been used.

There's this much to be said in favor of airplane over auto travel—the noise of the airplane motor drowns out all comment from the back seat.

Our idea of an optimist is any motorist who can smile at a flat tire while being thankful that it ins't a broken axle.

There is no use in talking economy to the man who pays two dollars for getting the car washed when his wife is doing the family washing at home.

A business letter is a letter that is dictated by a man who can't write to a stenographer who can't spell and mailed to a man who usually doesn't know the difference.

Another expression you seldom hear any more is that old one about a horse being perfectly safe for a lady to drive.

The greatest ambition of some parents is to get their children to do something they tell them to do.

A London, scientist says the world will last 50,000,000 years longer. Yes, but the pedestrians won't.

The freight rate increase of 10% granted by the I. C. C. last week will add an estimated $200,000,000 annually to railroad revenues, which last year totaled $3,337,000,000. When the new rates become effective, it will cost 10% more to ship pianos, automobiles, furniture and other manufactured articles, 5% more to ship lumber, livestock, wheat and other agricultural commodities, ten cents more a ton for anthracite coal. The freight bills of retail merchants will be $6,750,000 a year higher, it is estimated.

This is an election year when all 435 Congressmen come up for re-election. Campaigning can't go on while Congress is in session and $10,000 jobs are scarce. Hence uneasy rumbling were heard on Capitol Hill last week and talk of "early adjournment" was in the air. The wages and hours bill and the government reorganization bill will probably be shelved for this session. If Congress lessens the tax burden and adjourns, business men, both large and small, will heave a sigh of relief. Some political writers believe that a conscientious investigation of T V A might develop into another Teapot Dome and prove very embarrassing to the administration.

It is still pretty early for talk of adjournment around the Capital City but there are definite indications already that an early curtain is in prospect for this session of the seventy-fifth congress.

A quiet canvass has just been made in both houses and June 1 seems to be the deadline set by most members, with May 1st as a long-shot bet and May 15 a strong possibility.

To clear the boards—barring any new legislative proposals from the administration's leaders—the members have only to dispose of the tax and relief bills, the big navy measure, three big departmental appropriation bills, the long-disputed wage-hour proposal and the rather ambitious plan of the administration to reorganize several branches of the national government.

Behind the desire for an early adjournment, of course, is the hard campaigning faced by most of the members before the polls open next November.

If necessary, many observers believe Congress may let some of the more bitterly fought legislative proposals slide until the next session. That would be more expedient than losing valuable time away from respective election districts.

The press gallery spectators are telling a story about a certain southern congressman who has hit upon a new way of "impressing" the folks back home.

He asked permission to extend his remarks in the Congressional Record—a privilege meaning that his prepared "speech" could be printed in the record without actually being delivered. But before sending his speech to the printer he carefully inserted no less than eleven notations of "applause." That is to indicate that his "speech" was "interrupted" that many times by "applause" as he "addressed" his colleagues.

There is nothing in the regulations governing the conduct of government department heads if they wish to show their anger at newspaper editors by sending telegrams or letters. But, by official ruling of the Comptroller General's office last week, it isn't up to the taxpayers to foot the bill.

The ruling was made in connection with a 3,676 word telegram sent by a WPA official to a newspaper editor whose paper had castigated the WPA on several counts. The telegram had been charged up to government expense but the Comptroller General refused to approve payment.

(It's this "watch dog" branch of the government that the administration seeks to abolish through passage of the reorganization bill.)

A CHESTNUT FAMINE

Most everyone around St. Joe recalls the poem of boyhood starting "Under the spreading chestnut tree the village smithy stands." And most everyone knows that the smithy has about disappeared with the advent of the auto. But few there are who realise that the chestnut tree is fast disappearing from America and may have entirely disappeared within another dozen years. A steady drop in the chestnut crop each year for several past has caused Uncle Sam to take notice, and he finds that a strange tree blight, caused by a foreign insect has been destroying this particular variety of tree all over the nation. The destruction is said to have been going on steadily for almost 20 years. So slowly, in fact, has been the work of destruction, that the average citizen has not noticed it. Thus are we being robbed of still another institution for long years linked pretty closely with boyhood joys—the chestnut tree.

THE NEW FACE

Thousands of Republicans over Indiana are today asking: "Who is Ray Willis, this new candidate for United States senator?"

We answer: Ray Willis is the new face in the party picture for which Republicans have been looking and longing. They have felt for some time that there must be a change; that the party wants, needs, must have a new face in our leadership if we hope to bring the party back to its former success and service of the people.

When we first hear of Ray Willis, we wonder if he is the right man—the right "new face" for which the party is looking. We search for objections to him; there are none to be found. We wonder about his ability and charater, and the more we learn about both the more Ray Willis stands out as our ideal.

He is not a financial wizard nor industrial magnate who has accumulated great wealth, but he has made a distinct success of a country newspaper and job printing business, and that takes business ability of high order combined with good education, the greatest of tact in dealing with people, and strength of editorial expression.

RAY E. WILLIS

Having lived among and worked with the common people all his life, Ray Willis loves and sympathizes with the common people. Living in a county of a hundred lakes and having helped to create famous Pokagon Park, he is a lover of Indiana's outdoors, her woods and lakes, her rolling landscapes and broad farms. He has lived close to Nature and close to the people.

Ray Willis is like William McKinley in his great kindliness of spirit, in his tolerance and generous feeling for others, in his home life. He is a mild William Allen White in his outlook on life and opinions on government policy. He is fearless as a lion in fighting for the right, as God gives him to see the right.

We believe here is the "New Face" for which Indiana Republicans are looking.

Michigan has a newpsaper man in the United States senate who has attracted the attention of the whole nation by his ability, his boldness and fairness, his grasp of public problems. We belive it would be a good and wise policy for Indiana to send another newspaper man to the senate to help in the fight to save our American system of government. — Plymouth Daily Pilot, March 10, 1938.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

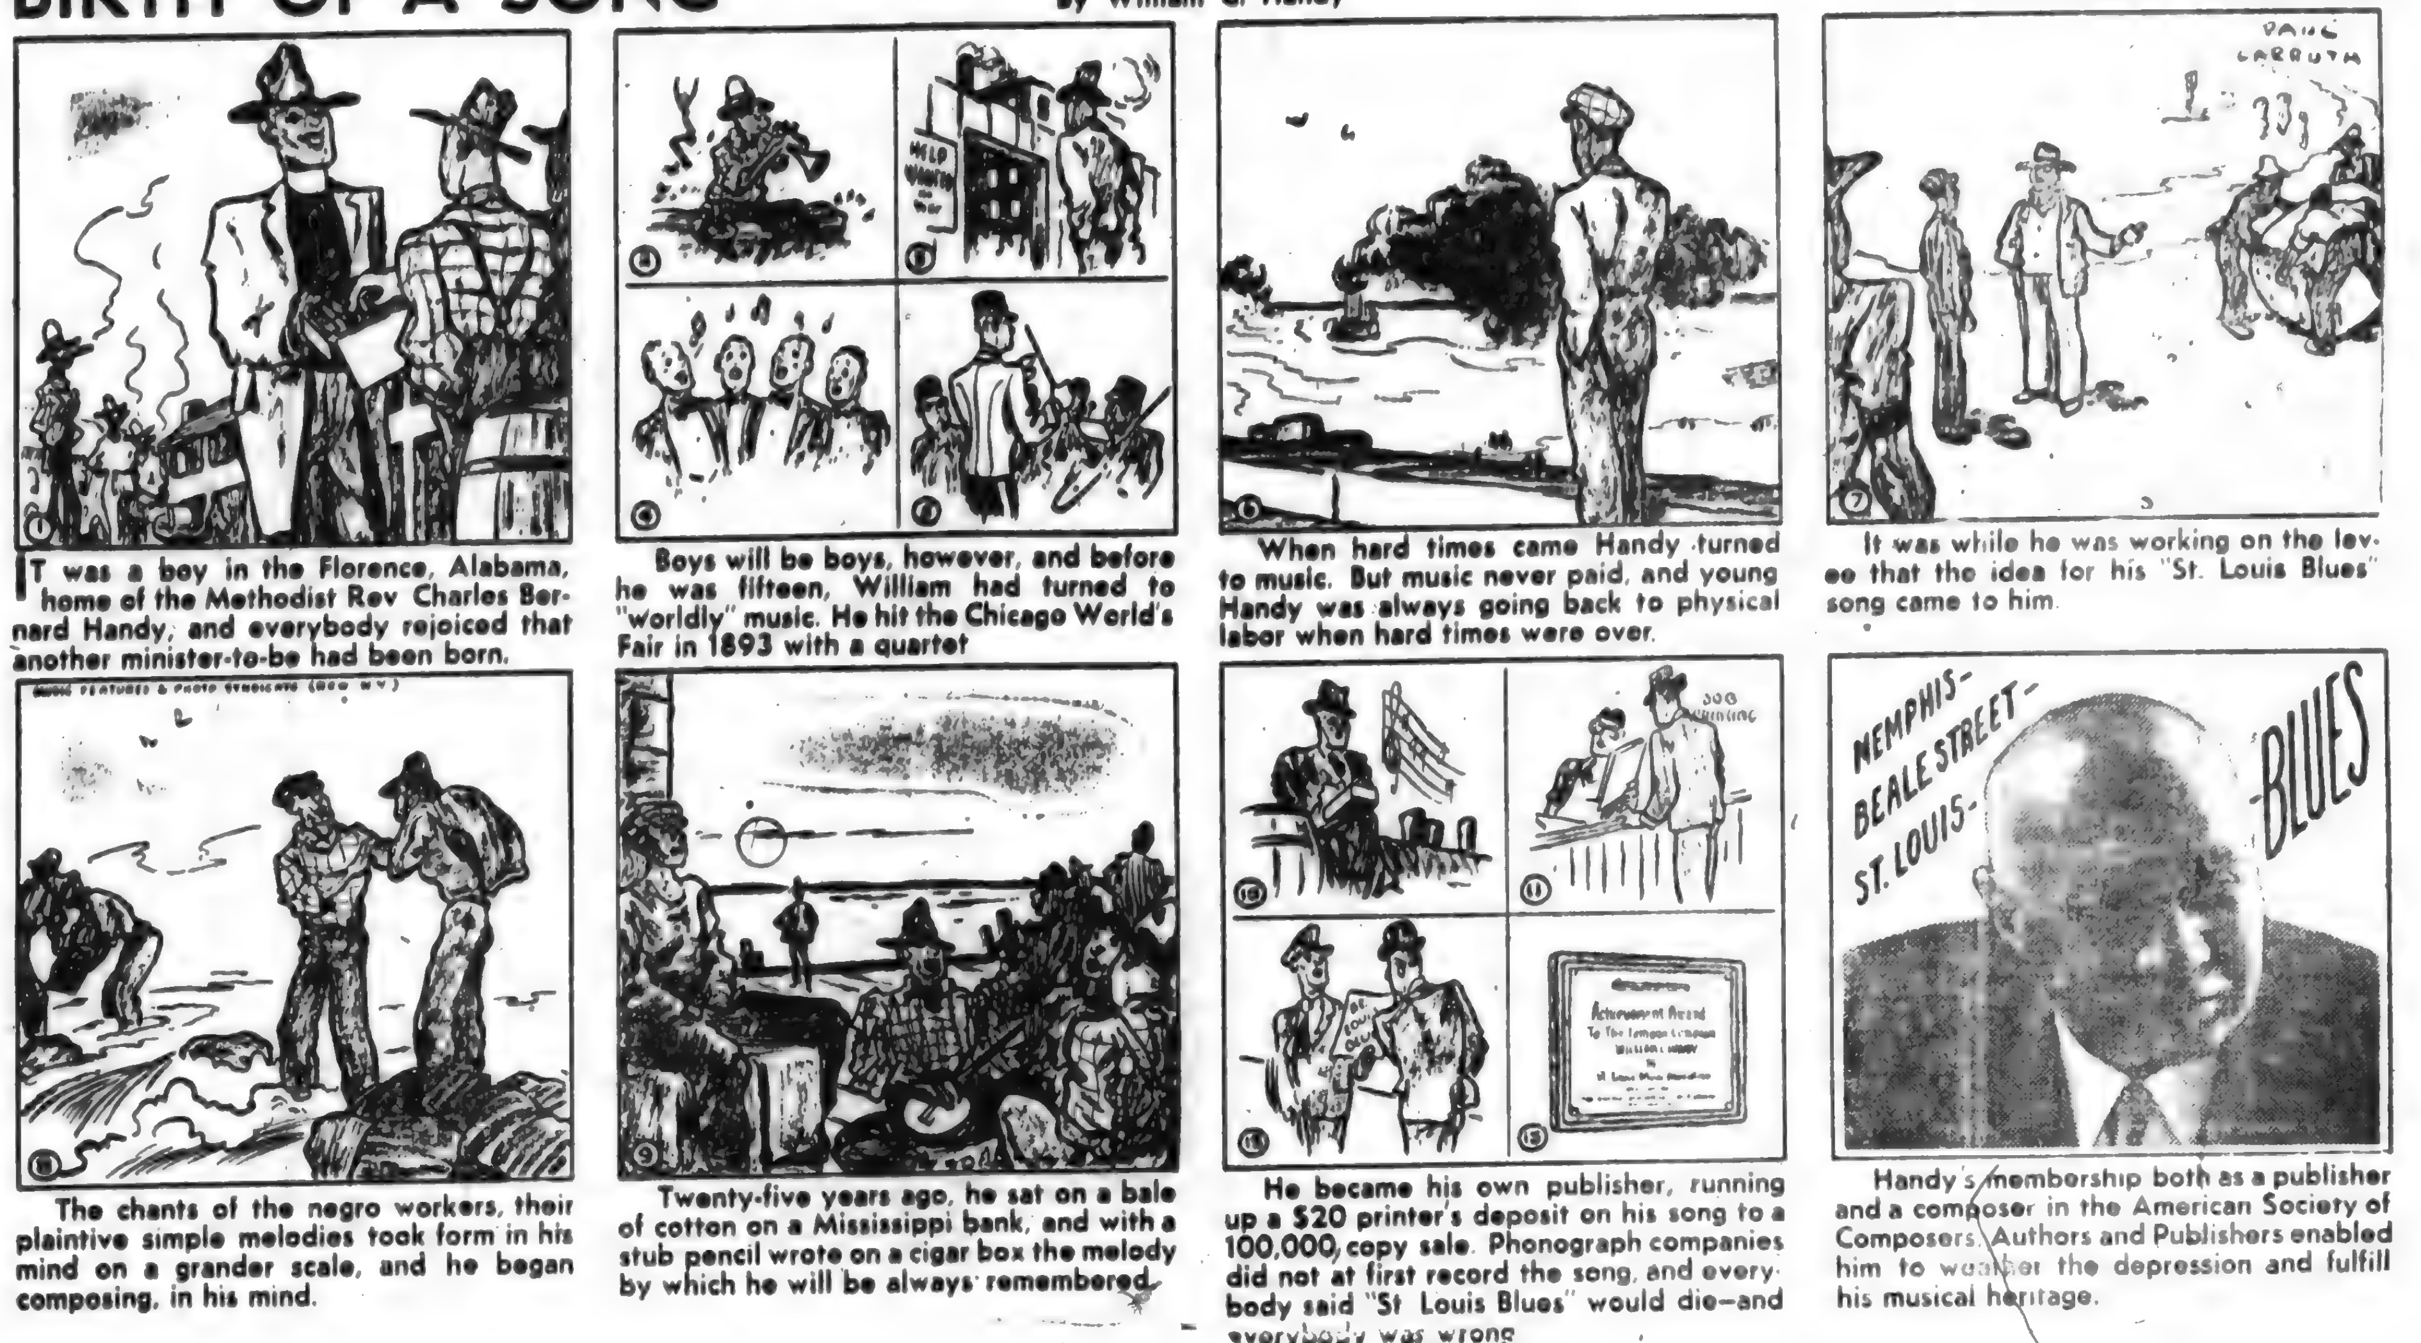
BIRTH OF A SONG

"ST. LOUIS BLUES"
By William C. Handy

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



IT was a boy in the Florence, Alabama, home of the Methodist Rev Charles Bernard Handy, and everybody rejoiced that another minister-to-be had been born.

Boys will be boys, however, and before he was fifteen, William had turned to "worldly" music. He hit the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 with a quartet

When hard times came Handy turned to music. But music never paid, and young Handy was always going back to physical labor when hard times were over.

It was while he was working on the levee that the idea for his "St. Louis Blues" song came to him.

The chants of the negro workers, their plaintive simple melodies took form in his mind on a grander scale, and he began composing, in his mind.

Twenty-five years ago, he sat on a bale of cotton on a Mississippi bank, and with a stub pencil wrote on a cigar box the melody by which he will be always remembered.

He became his own publisher, running up a $20 printer's deposit on his song to a 100,000 copy sale. Phonograph companies did not at first record the song, and everybody said "St Louis Blues" would die—and everybody was wrong

Handy's membership both as a publisher and a composer in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers enabled him to weather the depression and fulfill his musical heritage.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS EXPLAINED

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles explaining the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law, under which benefits will be paid to eligible persons becoming unemployed after April 1. The second article will appear in The News next week.)

Purposes of The Law

Benefits to eligible unemployed workers under the terms of the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law will first become payable next month.

Since April of 1936, employers of eight or more persons in Indiana (and others who voluntarily elected to become subject to the Law) have been contributing to the state Unemployment Compensation Fund, for the purpose of providing weekly benefits to their employees who lose their jobs after April 1, 1938, but are able and willing to work. Approximately $26,000,000 has been accumulated for this purpose.

Aims of the Unemployment Compensation Law are:

(1) To help stabalize employment by offering employers the opportunity to reduce their payments into the fund if they do stabilize employment.

(2) To reduce the hardships due to unemployment by providing weekly benefit checks to eligible unemployed persons.

(3) To help unemployed persons find new jobs by providing additional State Employment Service facilities.

(4) To assist business and the public by making money available for purchases during slack work periods.

Eligibility For Benefits

Unemployment Compensation is an insurance program, and therefore must operate according to insurance principles. Payments must have been made by employers into the unemployment fund, based on a person's employment, before benefits can be paid out of the fund to that person for a period of unemployment.

The person who receives benefits must have qualified himself for those benefits by fulfilling the requirements which the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law sets out. If he becomes unemployed on or after April 1, 1938, there are the requirements he must meet in order to be eligible for benefits:

(1) He must have worked, after January 1, 1937, for an employer or employers subject to the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law. In general, these are employers of eight or more persons in private business or industry.

(2) He must have received a certain minimum amount of earnings from such employers. This requirement, for an employee losing his job during April, May or June this year, is that he must have earned, from employers subject to the law, at least $250 during 1937 or at least $50 during each of three calendar quarters in 1937.

(3) He must have earned at least $10 after March 31, 1938, from an employer subject to the law.

(4) He must be able and willing to work, but unable to find work.

(5) Having met all of the above requirements, he must register at the nearest local office of the Indiana State Employment Service, or at a designated Special Registration Point, file a claim for benefits and serve a waiting period (usually two weeks) as described in the second article in this series.

Addresses of nearest Employment Offices or Registration Points will be posted after April 1 in establishments of employers subject to the law.

How to Compute Benefits

The amount of benefits which an unemployed person may receive—both weekly benefit amount and total benefits—is determined by his earnings during previous calendar quarters from employers subject to the Law.

When the employee works for an employer subject to the Law, his earnings are reported by the employer each quarter to the State Unemployment Compensation Division, so that the figures will be ready in case the employee should apply for benefits.

The weekly benefit amount, for an eligible employee who loses his job in April, May or June of 1938, will be 4% of his earnings in his highest calendar quarter in 1937. If this 4% is not an exact dollar amount, the weekly benefit amount is raised to the next highest dollar, but it cannot be more than $15.

The total amount of benelts which the same employee can receive is 16% of his earnings from January 1, 1937, to the day he lost his job. No more than $375 earnings in any quarter may be counted in figuring total benefits or weekly benefit amount. He cannot receive more than 15 times his weekly benefit amount, and since the highest weekly benefit amount is $15, no one can receive more than $225 during any one benefit period.

Only the wages earned from employers who are contributing to the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Fund can be counted in determining eligibility for benefits or benefit amounts.

As an employee enters each new calendar quarter of employment the earnings period on which his benefits would be based advances by one calendar quarter. Therefore, the weekly benefit amount of an eligible employee losing his job in July, August or September of 1938 would be based on his highest quarterly earnings in the second, third and fourth quarters of 1937 and the first quarter of 1938. His total benefits would be based on earnings from the beginning of the second quarter of 1937 (April 1) until he lost his job.

Next week's article on Unemployment Compensation will outline the steps which eligible persons should take to obtain benefits, explain partial unemployment benefits, and summarize the essential points of the Indiana Unemployment Compensation program.

The Power of Taxation

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Congress, as this is written, is deep in deliberation over proposed revisions of pending tax measures.

Somehow, there has been created the impression that these measures affect only that branch of American activity known collectively as business.

But this picture is incomplete. It covers too narrow a field.

What Congress decides, whenever it deliberates on taxes, affects profoundly every man, woman and child in our nation. It deals with the welfare of our great army of approximately 130,000,000 consumers.

Tax legislation can determine whether or not men should have jobs, and the amount of purchasing power which those jobs create. It can determine how well American families may live and progress. It can weave its influence through the entire fabric of our national economy.

For taxes, as every one knows, are a constant and inescapable part of our daily existence. Through the higher costs of necessities which unreasonable taxes entail, they intrude into the cost of all necessities.

They slip into the gas tank of every car and tractor; into the cloth of every suit and dress, into the rent or purchase price of every home and farm, into the cost-tag of every piece of home and industrial equipment, into the food basket of every housewife.

They can influence all production, all employment. For when they threaten the enterprise and the production which create employment, they threaten jobs. Our recent record of mounting unemployment bears tragic evidence of this.

Taxation, therefore, should be above all politics.

It is everybody's business, everybody's burden.

That is something of which Congress should be reminded as it deals with this great national problem.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

"I don't know of anyone entitled to more pity," says Harvey Hull, "than the man who got married just because he likes home cooking.

O. E. Ginther says the fact that there is a lot of unemployment in the country still doesn't explain why so many fellows are after political jobs.

"Beware of the man," warns Ed Storer, "who slaps you on the back. He probably wants you to cough up something."

Frank Bowman says we have progressed to the point where many want considerable here below—and expects it from the government.

The Augusta, Wisconsin; Union writes this about children on tricycles in the streets: "Children, my hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobile were ever thought of. All the automoiles on earth are not worth the life of one little boy on a tricycle. Any competent garage mechanic can put a car together, however badly it is smashed, but nobody on earth can put a child together once its life has been crushed out. We don't know what that child may some day be, but we know what you are, and it's unimportant. We could get along without you, but we can't spare a single little boy on this street."

Well said, Mr. Editor, and congratulations to you for the splendid thought. It's up to us motorists to protect those children who are so full of life and play and fun.

Think while you drive.

Revival Success

In a home force meeting held at Newville, Ind., February 13 to 27, at the Church of Christ, there were 17 additions, 15 by baptism and many reconsecrations. A grand revival was enjoyed by all who attended.

Milton Fronsoe, Pastor and Evangelist, stated he was well pleased with results and cooperation given him by those of the congregation who, of course, contributed greatly to the success of the meeting. He also thanks any and all who might have helped unknowingly. This leaves the church in a fine Spirit of Evangelism, let us hope it shall continue thru the coming years, build a church for Christ and His Kingdom. Although very bad road conditions had very fine crowds and met many people in homes who encouraged us by coming out.

Attendance at Bible School March 13 was 150. Help us keep up this good work.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1938. NUMBER 12

1938 Spring Hats Will Be 'Saner' —Or Will They?

Spring stylists are getting more level-headed about hats, so they say. This collection proves them both right and wrong. You can draw your own conclusions about the little feathered bonnet worn above by Rita Johnson of the movies. The skyscraping quill is bright blue.

Rita changes to a tight-fitting little number that's given added height by a colorful bouquet of spring flowers. The soft veil adds "luxury." Nice, we'd say.

But wait a minute. What's this? Betty Furness, also of the movies, dons a "nose-length" veil sprinkled with sequin flowers, fastened on the top of her head with a handmade rose in cerise. This isn't a spring hat, really. It's for formal dinner wear, which makes us breathe easier.

Here comes Betty Furness in something less startling and more springlike. John Fredericks designed this number, a dusty pink hat with a black suede band around the edge. The crown is high and a soft veil covers the face. What's your verdict . . . are 1938 hats better or worse?

TELEPHONE MANNERS BEGIN ON YOUR END

On the telephone, it's not so much what you say as how you say it.

Telephone conversations always should convey a feeling of personal interest, says John Turner, telephone executive and specialist on telephone manners.

When your phone rings and you pick up the receiver, he says, don't toss a perfunctory "Hello" or a vaguely inquiring "Yes?" into the mouthpiece. Give an informative, sociable "Mrs. So-and-So's residence" or "Mrs. So-and-So's telephone." If you have servants don't let them say "Mrs. So-and-So's maid (or butler,)" either. That sounds pretentious.

At the office it is well to give two items of information as soon as you pick up the receiver—the firm's name and yours. If there is a switchboard operator to give the firm's name, it's best for you to answer with "Mr. Business Man speaking."

Added telephone hints:

Hold your mouth directly in front of the mouthpiece and about half an inch away from it.

In making business calls be brief and to the point. The call itself costs money, the time is valuable to your firm and someone else may be waiting to use the line.

Nearly all employers will realize that a certain number of personal calls are necessary during business hours. But there must be an understanding between employee and employer on the subject.

DEKALB COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Of the total $95,948 distributed in the form of monthly cash grants of assistance to the needy aged, needy blind and to dependent children of DeKalb County since passage of the Indiana Welfare Act two years ago March 18, only a little more than one fifth is provided from funds raised through local tax levies, figures compiled in the office of T. A. Gottschalk, administrator of the State Department of Public Welfare, show.

This means that almost 80% of the public assistance allowances being paid within the county each month represents new money coming into the county. On the whole the state and county public assistance programs are financed 45% by the federal government, 34% by the state and 21% from local county funds.

Other comparative facts show that the number of aged being helped thru the county department of public welfare has grown from 248 in March, 1936, to 277 in February, 1938. A total of $72,592 has been distributed among these needy aged in the two year period. The federal government provided one half of this amount; the state 30% and the county one fifth or 20%.

The county pays no share of the costs of aid given the needy blind. The federal and state governments have equally shared the sum of $3,590 paid out to needy blind persons in the county since the beginning of the program. The number of blind recipients has increased from 4 to 17 since March, 1936.

Dependent children living with their mother or other prescribed relatives in the county have received $19,766 since this part of the Welfare Act became effective in November, 1936. Since then, the number of children being aided has increased from 58 to 129.

Prior to passage of the Indiana Welfare Act all aged dependents were supported directly from funds provided through local property tax, and 85% of all children now receiving aid as dependents were formerly objects of township relief or were being aided through mothers pensions from county funds raised by local property taxes. In spite of the fact that average payments for all recipients have increased in the two year period throughout the state and in spite of the growth in numbers of recipients of all classes, the county now pays a lesser percent of total costs than in 1936.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Slightly larger receipts of hogs in this week's auction sold as follows: 170 to 220, $9.00. Light Yorks averaging about 100 pounds, $10.35. Roughs, $7.25 to $7.75. Stags up to $6.25. Boars, $4.50.

Veals made a top of $11.00. Bulk of the second quality offerings around ten. Our market needs select and top calves. Receipts of calves has been liberal for several weeks but there is a noticable lack of high quality veals.

Cattle are quotable, active and prices strong. Fat cows up to $5.35. Cutters, $4.50 to $4.80. Cutters, $2.10 to $3.80. Bulls, $6.10 to $6.50. There were not enough lambs on sale to test the market but breeding ewes made a top of $6.10 per head.

CCC ENROLLMENT TO OPEN APRIL FIRST

Indiana's quota for the second quarterly 1938 enrollment in the Civilian Conservation Corps to be held April 1 to 20 has been fixed at 1,675 youths, according to notice received from the U. S. Department of Labor by Miss Helen Lowell, state supervisor of CCC selection.

The shifting of camps to summer locations and tentative plans for reducing the number of CCC camps in Indiana from 28 to 21 as a part of the national program reducing the CCC will have no effect on the April enrollment in Indiana.

Under the Act extending the CCC to July, 1940, restrictions limiting membership to those whose families are on relief have been lifted. Under present regulations any unemployed youth between the ages of 17 and 23 years who is unmarried, in good health and in need of employment may enroll for membersrip. However, preference is still given those who have needy dependents.

Minimum periods of enlishments are for six months and no youth may remain in the corps for more than 18 months either consecutive or accumulative, service to be computed from July, 1937. If a youth resigns from the corps he must wait for six months before re-enlisting.

While in camp the young men are supplied well-cooked wholesome food; supplied with ample, warm clothing and furnished comfortable living quarters. In addition, they are paid $30 per month, part of which must be alloted to dependents if they are in need. If the member has no dependents, he may deposit a portion of his wages with the camp finance officer to be held until completion of his enlistment.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283
Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. . . . .

About fifty members of the Legion and Auxiliary of Post 283 spent an enjoyable evening at the Legion Home March 17th in celebration of the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the Legion.

After partaking of the bounteous supper furnished by the Ladies of the Auxiliary, the members of the Post furnished an instructive, as well as entertaining program with Past Commander Clark Scholes acting as master of ceremonies. Roy E. Maxwell gave a talk on the Americanism program of the Legion.

Commander Lehr Wilder explained the Legion's Legislative program, stating that all bills which the Legion sponsors have their beginning as resolutions adopted by some individual Post, and being discussed and acted upon by District, State ,and National Conventions of the Legion. Four bills being sponsored by the Legion at present are: Universal Service, Widows and Orphans, Veterans Preference in Civil Service, and Adequate National Defense.

The Legionnaires Chorus, Comrades Crothers, Scholes, Hull, Wilder, Place, and Williams, entertained with two songs, "Where the River Shannon Flows" and "There's a Goldmine In the Sky."

Comrade John Crothers gave a history of the Boys' State Movement, which originated in 1933 and is now conducted in seven states. He explained how the boys are placed in groups representing governmental units as towns, townships, counties and districts of the state. Each group elects civic officers and they are taught their duties, methods of election and government.

Science Beats the Sun

INDUSTRIAL engineers have now developed the device shown above, Consumers Information reports, to test colorfastness of fabrics, so that manufacturers can make sure in advance that their materials won't fade in the sun. Women never used to be sure that their dresses and draperies would retain their original brilliance until they had actually been exposed to sunlight. But through the use of this machine, developed by industrial research experts, it is now possible to tell whether dyed fabrics will hold their color. This is just one more of the many examples of how industry helps the consumer.

DELINQUENT REAL ESTATE TAX SALE SET FOR APRIL 11

The annual sale of property for the non-payment of real estate taxes in DeKalb County will begin at the court house Monday, April 11, according to legal notice being given by County Auditor Frank E. Lyon, and County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch.

The delinquent ditch and paving assessment sale was held in February and now, under a new ruling, the delinquent real estate taxes are being advertised. The advertising is for non-payment of taxes for the year 1935, payable in 1936, and prior years. The sales will be held at the court house door and the notice states that it will continue from day to day.

The number of items advertised is 704, divided as follows: Auburn 134, Garrett 246, Butler city 71, Waterloo 22, Clairville 1, Uniontown 3, St. Joe 21, Ashley 17, Auburn Junction 4, Auburn Union 53, Altona 14, Cedar 1, Stametz Town 2, Spencerville 17, Sedan 5, Corunna 9, Fairfield Township 7, Franklin 15, Troy 1, Smithfield 2, Grant 4, Wilmington 10, Stafford 1, Keyser 9, Keyser out of Garrett 13, Buteir Township 4, Jackson 5, Spencer 4, Newvill-1, and Richland 2.

REAPPOINT TWO MEMBERS TO WELFARE BOARD

Reappointment of the Rev. J. G. Bennett, of Garrett, and Mrs. Vern Sparks, of Smithfield Township, to the County Welfare Board was announced Thursday by Judge Wm. P. Endicott.

Father Bennett has been on the board for a year, succeeding J. D. Brinkerhoff, of Garrett, who resigned. Mrs. Sparks has been a member two years. The new terms, effective April 1, are for four years.

The other members, whose terms haev not expired, are John C. Hull, of St. Joe, Mrs. F L. Kiplinger, of Butler, and Ward Jackman, of Auburn. The latter is chairman, with Father Bennett as vice chairman. The director, Mi-s Nora Brown, of Butler, acts as secretary.

The board held its regular monthly meeting at the court house Tuesday evening.

BASKET BALL

The last game of the season will be played on the local floor on Saturday evening, March 26. At this time the St. Joe Pickles will play the Huntington Armcos, winner of the Markle Tournament.

The Pickles will have their usual strong team and the game should prove very fast. The St. Joe Merchants will play too, but at the present time the opposing team is not definitely selected.

A radio will be installed so that the fans can keep in touch with the State Tournament.

BOARD TO REVIEW ASSESSMENTS FOR 1938

An order has been entered in the DeKalb Circuit Court reappointing Will Franks, of Garrett, and Chas. A Dohner, of Troy Township, to the county board of review for this year.

Mr. Franks, a Democrat and a retired school teacher, will be serving his twenty-fourth successive year on the board. Mr. Dohner is a Republican and a farmer and this is his sixteenth session as a member of the board.

The Couny Assessor, Charles E. Miser, is chairman of the board by virtue of his office. The other members are County Auditor Frank E Lyon and County Treasurer Claude P. Fitch.

The annual session of the board will be held in June. Its duties chiefly are to review the work of the local assessors and to approve mortgage exemptions. Taxpayers may appeal to the board from assessments made by the local assessors.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Don't put on yur brakes when you have a blow-out, until you are certain you save your car or truck under control. Then apply them gradually.

A blow-out, particularly on a front wheel and when you are driving at a high rate of speed, is one case in which jamming on the brakes might involve you in an accident that could be avoided by doing other things first. Grip the wheel firmly. Steer; don' tthink of anything but steering, at first. Brake pressure comes second.

Good rubber all around is the best insurance against blow-outs.

The end of the world will be in sight when it takes nations as long to declare war as it now takes them to declare peace.

GET GOOD SEED

In view of the fact that several gardeners around had the sad experience last season of getting hold of poor quality of seed it would be a good idea for those who desire to escape the loss of both money and time from this source to exert a little more care when purchasing this spring's supply. The money loss when seed fails to germinate is bad enough, but when the loss of time that was devoted to the cultivation of them is also taken into consideration it is found to be no little item. The disappointment, too, is great since it is usually too late to plant effectively after it is discovered that the original planting is not going to bring satisfactory results. The man who sells you seed is expected to know beyond doubt if the varieties are adapted to the soil and climate of this section. As a rule he does know, and he carries only that kind. For that reason it is advisable to purchase of reputable local dealers, to get only tested varieties, and not to buy just because they are priced a few cents cheaper than the best.

YOUR EDITOR'S PRAYER

Blessed are the merchants who advertise, for they have faith in their business, and their prosperity shall increase many fold.

Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or a wedding, for she shall see the details and names of her guests correctly reported.

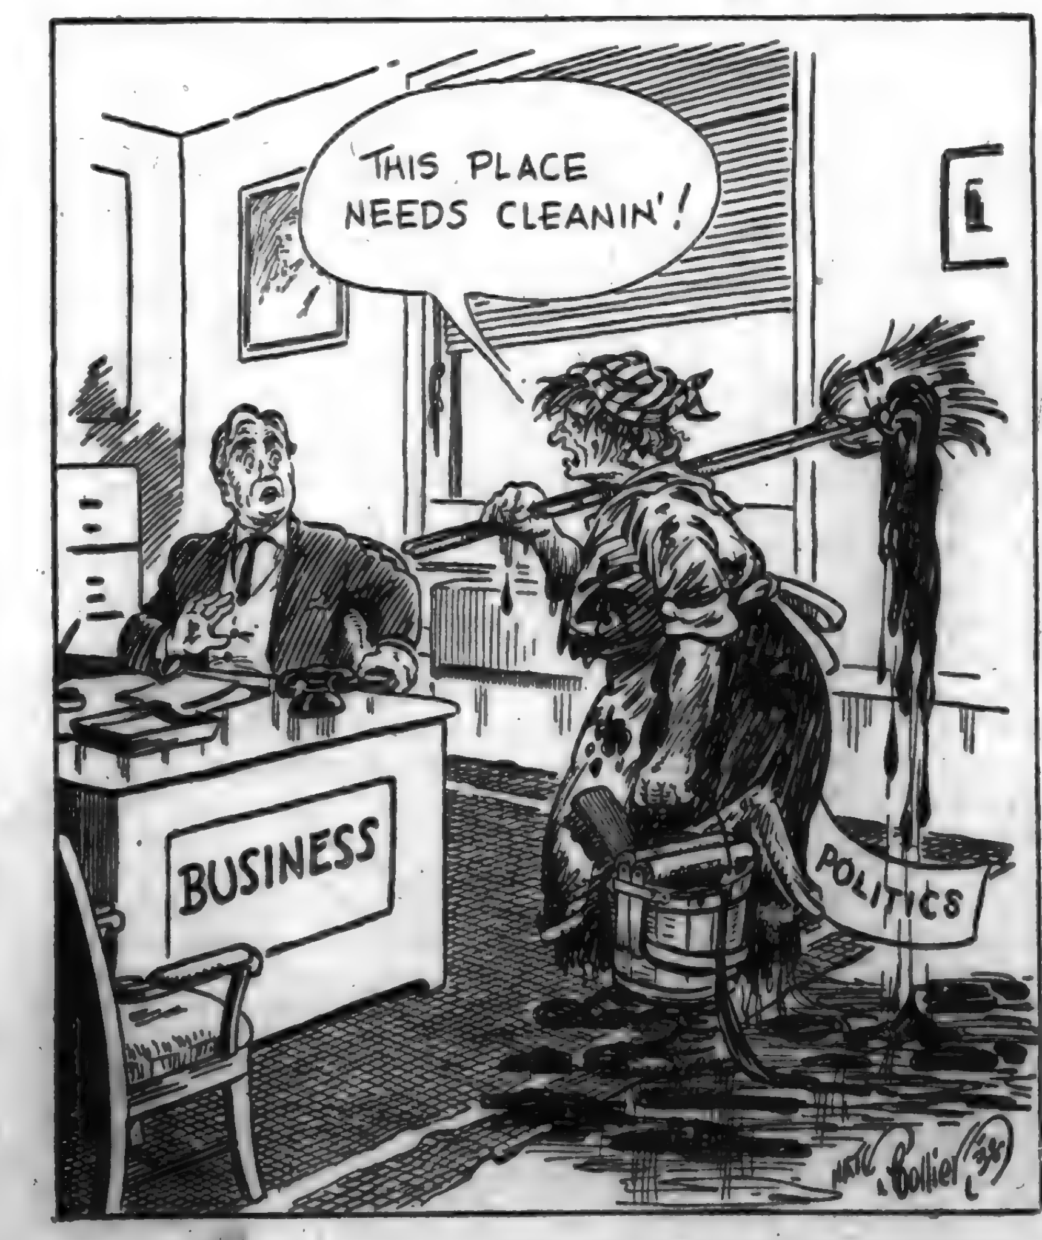
Blessed are those who do not expect the editor to know everything, but who tell him whenever an interesting event occurs in which they are interested, for they shall have a better newspaper in their town.

Blessed are they who get their copy in early, for they shall occupy a warm space in the editor's heart.

Blessed are they who co-operate with the editor in his efforts in behalf of the community, for their town shall be known to all men, far and wide, as a good place in which to live and do business.

Blessed are they who do not think they could run the paper better than the editor runs it—yea, thrice blessed are they because there are so few of them in the community.

THE NEW SCRUB WOMAN



IT'S TONIC TIME

The old custom of taking a "spring tonic" is due to neither superstition or habit. Ask your family physician and he will explain that along about this time of year one's blood commences to thin and the approach of warmer temperatures brings on muscle changes that we often attribute to laziness, and refer to as "spring fever." The doctor will tell you that it is natural and, while not serious, should have attention, especially among those of mature age.

The market is flooded with "spring tonics" and many of them do what their makers claim for them. But old nature hasn't been asleep on the job. She has furnished a few that man has never been able to excel. Along about this time of year mouths water for a mess of "greens." That is one of nature's spring tonics—greens and all the early garden truck you can get hold of. Sulphur and molasses serves the same purpose in the juvenile world; sassafras tea meets requirements in some localities, while sauerkraut is said to be efficacious. But nothing takes the place of green vegetables, eaten in reasonable quantities at every meal.

"That tired feeling" and 'spring fever" will soon be recognized as common complaints among St. Joe citizens, and so the spring tonic for those who are thus afflicted is in order. Everyone must do his own perscribing, of course, or leave it to his family doctor. But it will be well to remember that nothing can beat nature's own remedy—and that is "a mess of greens" two or three times a week.

CHEAP PROTECTION

These are busy days throughout the land, as the broom, mop, dust rag and carpet-beater are being worked to the limit. From coast-to-coast and lakes-to-gulf Uncle Sam's daughters are busy in their great annual drive on rubbish, dirt and disease germs, and members of this vast army in and around St. Joe are joining in the campaign with their usual hearty good will.

We have often called attention to the value of cleaning up the premises from a standpoint of health and community beautification. But here is another reason for house-cleaning that should be mentioned oftener and more emphatic—the prevention of fires about the house, barn or garage from spontaneous combustion. Insurance men estimate that last year's loss through this source amounted to more than $25,000,000. And that's a lot of money to be wasted through a cause that could have been prevented. Piles of rags, no matter where they are located, are apt to break into flame at any moment through spontaneous combustion. It is just as apt to occur in your home as in some home in a different state and the result is the same wherever it happens—a blaze that could have been avoided.

Cleaning up the premises is a health measure. Ridding the attic or garage of rags is a direct protection from fires. Keep that in mind. Get rid of the rags, and then do not wait until another spring to repeat the performance but keep them cleaned out all through the year.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

The members of The Ladies Literary Club entertained their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bollinger, Wednesday evening, March 16th.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Bollinger and sent upstairs where, after all had gathered, Mrs. Hollis Dilley in a clever way matched partners for the evening. They were then invited to the dining room where a delicious carry-in dinner was arranged. After serving themselves they were seated at small tables decorated in keeping with St. Patrick's Day.

The president, Mrs. Glen Cole, read the collect, after which the ladies to the tune of "Good Night Ladies" sang a greeting to the husbands, to which the husbands, using the same tune, responded with a thank you. Roll call of husbands was answered with clever little quotations on wives. Mrs. Frank Curie then read the ladies a very interesting recipe for "Husband Conserve."

A double quartette gave two numbers "Night" and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." Members of this quartette were Mrs C. A. Woodcox, Mrs. Geln Cole, Mrs. John Leighty, Mrs. Fred Leighty, Mrs. Harry Bollinger, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Mrs. Wm. Staman, and Mrs. Frank Curie, with Mrs. Hollis Dilley at the piano. A resume of the L. L. C. given by Mr. C. C. Woodcox was very interetsing. Mr. Woodcox told of some of the various studies and outstanding work done by the ladies in their forty-three years of work and of the large number of women who had belonged during that time.

An eight hand piano number "Taps" was played by Mrs. John Leighty, Mrs. Fred Leighty, Mrs. Frank Curie and Mrs. Harry Bollinger. Trio, "Danny Boy" Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Staman and Mrs. Fred Leighty. The rest of the evening was given to games and contests. The quartette to close sang "Good Night To You All."

In departing all voiced their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Bollinger and the ladies for the lovely evening they had enjoyed. The committee for the evening: Mrs. Clarence Woodcox, Mrs. Fred Leighty, Mrs. Frank Curle, Mrs. Harry Bollinger, assisted by Mrs. Hollis Dilley.

Emeritus members present were Mrs. Jennie Sechler, of Auburn, and Mrs. Delorn Curle. Guests were Mrs. Everett Mavis, of Auburn, and Frank Shull. There were also nine children present.

Members: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Woodcox, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Leighty, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Over Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sechler were Mr. J. K. P. Martindale and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morr and children, of Greenfield, Indiana.

Plans were announced Sunday for a Father and Son banquet in the Lutheran Church basement on Thursday evening, March 31. The movement is sponsored by the Brotherhood.

The final decision on the new weight tax suit will be rendered on Thursday, March 24, according to information received from Fred Knott who was at Indianapolis, Monday. This case is of importance to all truck owners and they are awaiting this decision with interest.

The Township Soil Conservation committees of Indiana were called to Indianapolis, Monday to hear a public explanation of the plans of the federal government. The meeting was so large that very little help or information could be obtained by those attending, and so they will have to iron out their difficulties the best they can. Merritt Sechler, L. W. Yeiser, Carl Perkins, Charles Krise, Lloyd Draggoo, John Ulm, Clyde Hart and Claude Laub represented Concord and Spencer Townships.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Woodcox and children, of Cedarville, were Sunday guests in the C. A. Woodcox home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman went to Ft. Wayne Wednesday to spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. Marguerita Hercules, and family.

Mrs. Minnie Kagey, who has been making her home for the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Wilson, will return to her home this week for the summer.

Mr. Chester Loucks and son, Walter, spent Sunday in the home of Clarence Dorsey at Spencerville. Saturday evening callers were Ellen Zimmerman, Peggie Chorpenning and Violet Cook.

County commissioners have authority to abolish townships effective January 1, 1939, Omer S. Jackson, attorney general, informed the state board of accounts at Indianapolis, Friday. Unearthing an 1895 statute, Jackson said the law invested commissioners with power to alter the names, number and boundaries of townships if "they deem proper." The accounts board said the opinion was sought after Perry County officials asked for guidance. Consolidation of townships in that county is being contemplated, the board said. Abolition of townships automatically terminates the rights of trustees who might be elected this November, the opinion said.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

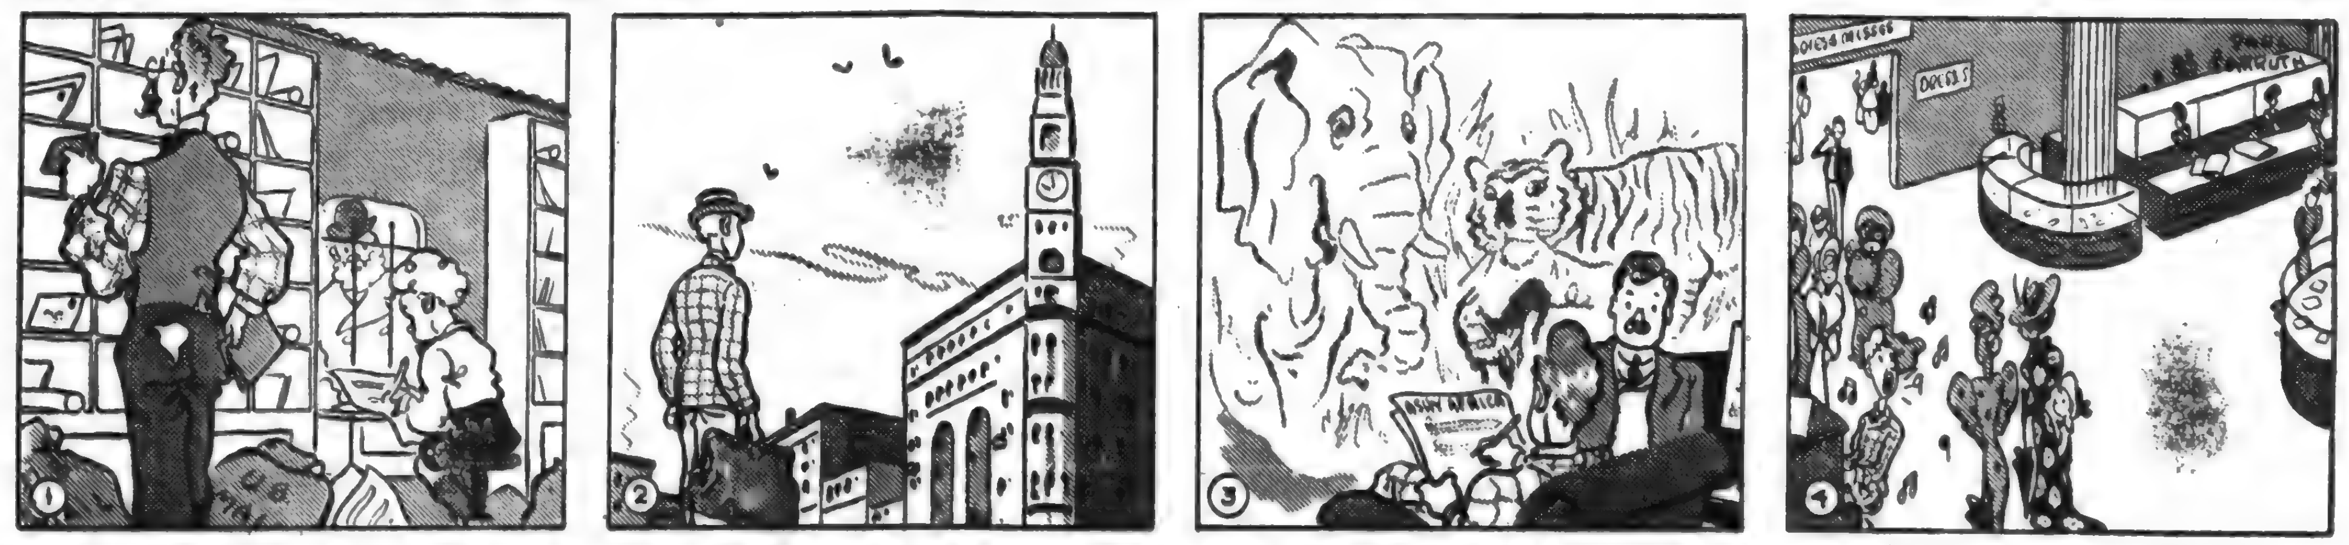
BIRTH OF A SONG

"PUT ON YOUR OLD GREY BONNET"
By Percy Wenrich and Stanley Murphy

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



PERCY WENRICH was a child prodigy back in Joplin, Mo., where his father was Postmaster. Papa Daniel was too busy singing to even read the postcards. Percy was composing at eight. Mamma Wenrich must have been fond of music to tolerate them.

Percy wanted to write popular songs, but at twenty-one the family sent him to the Chicago Musical College to study the organ and compose instrumental music.

Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck was then a music publisher, and Percy wrote his first published song to order for the firm of Buck and Carney. It was called "Ashy Africa." Nobody knows why.

Fred Belcher of Remicks gave Percy a song plugging job in a Milwaukee department store After six months there, he thought he w[illegible] enough for New York, and l[illegible]

Tin Pan Alley was cynical as usual, but Wenrich persisted until he composed "Rainbow," which sold over a million copies and established him as a composer of promise.

Stanley Murphy, then a struggling young lyric writer, came to Wenrich with a verse and chorus, called "Put On Your Old Sun Bonnet." Percy borrowed publishers' pianos to compose the score. Jerome H. Remick revised the title.

About this time, February 1914, Victor Herbert and others founded the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, to which Wenrich was elected. Followed fifteen years in vaudeville and song writing.

The culmination of his career came with "Castles In The Air." He now lives in Hollywood and continues to turn out good tunes, adding to Ascap's vast reservoir of music available to licensed users.

Sunday dinner guests in the Wilbur Shroyer home were Simon Nicholls, wife and family, Ivan Welch and wife, Byron Welch and wife, of Spencerville; Ivan Souder and wife, Wilbur Schwander and wife, of Grabill, and Henry Shroyer and wife. Afternoon callers were H. D. McCarty, Donald Mozeno and Mr. Petrie and their wives of Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shilling and daughter, Darline, of Idaho, were Sunday guests in the J. R. Shilling home. They are also visiting his mother in Auburn. Edward is contemplating being employed in the Warner Gear plant in Auburn soon. Lynn Shilling, of Auburn, Mrs. Lela Northrup and son, Curtis, of Fort Wayne and Miss Rosman Furnish, of Spencerville, and Cecil Shilling were also guests.

Gordon Martin was badly cut on the face Monday night when he fell on the pavement near Spencerville, with a roller skating party of young folks. He was given first aid at the Bowman drug store.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Monroe north of St. Joe were Mrs. Mary Sechler, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Staman. Callers in the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole.

Mrs. Frank Curie and Merritt Sechler were called to Auburn Tuesday morning by the illness of their mother, Mrs. Jennie Sechler, who is suffering from a streptococcic infection. Wednesday morning she was some better.

Owing to the increased demand for St. Joe Valley Pickles it has been necessary to buy pickles from outside sources, however this year efforts are being made to increase the acreage in the local territory, one hundred and fifty acres of cucumbers is the goal.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS EXPLAINED

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles explaining the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law, under which benefits will be payable to eligible persons becoming unemployed after April 1.)

Steps To Obtain Benefits

An employee in Indiana who loses his job after April 1, 1938, and has reason to believe he is eligible for unemployment compensation benefits under the eligibility requirements outlined in last week's article, should take these steps in order to secure his benefits:

1. He should obtain a Separation Report from his employer at the time he loses his job. This report will show his recent wage record and the reason for his separation from employment, such as "no work available," "discharge for misconduct,' etc.

2. He should go to the office or special registration point of the Indiana State Employment Service serving his last employer. The address of this office or registration point will be posted after April 1 in establishments of employers subject to the law. He should take his separation report and social security account number card with him. There he will register for new employment and make application for benefits.

3. He must serve a waiting period after he registers. The normal waiting period is either (a) two weeks of total unempolyment, (b) four weeks of partial unemployment (that is, employment yielding wages less than his weekly benefit amount,) or (c) one week of total unemployment and two weeks of partial unemployment. During the waiting period, the employee is to make every effort to find a job. A waiting period need not be in consecutive weeks; it may be accumulated within any period of thirteen weeks after April 1, 1938.

If an employee becomes totally unemployed he should register at once. If partially unemployed he need not register until he has been partially unemployed for two weeks.

Additional weeks of waiting are required if:

(1) The employee left his job voluntarily without good cause, (2) he was discharged for misconduct in connection with his work, (3) he fails to apply for or to accept suitable work offered to him or (4) he fails to return to his customary self-employment, if any.

During each week while the employee is serving a waiting period or is receiving benefits, he must report to the employment office on a specified day.

Partial Unemployment Benefits

Benefits under the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law are paid out only when an eligible employee is totally unemployed but also for partial unemployment; that is, when the employee has not lost his job with his regular employer but he is earning less than his weekly benefit amount.

In other words, benefits are paid to employees who keep on working but who earn less than they would receive in benefits if they were totally unemployed.

Benefits for partial unemployment are equal to the difference between the employee's weekly benefit amount and the amount of his weekly earnings. This provision makes it possible for the emplyee to retain his job without being deprived of certain minimum income per week.

The waiting period to qualify for partial unemployment benefits will usually be four weeks of partial unemployment. However, the waiting period may also be served in either of the other two ways outlined above.

If an employee is partially unemployed, he does not need to register at the employment office until he has been partially unemployed for two weeks. He should register not later than during the third week of partial unemployment. If he does this, his previous two weeks of partial unemployment will be counted toward his waiting period. No Separation Report is required for registration for benefits for partial unemployment.

Summary

As a final summary of these articles on Unemployment Compensation benefits, there is presented below a list of the primary requirements an employee must meet in order to obtain benefits if he becomes unemployed after April 1.

First: He must have earned at least $10 after March 31 from employer or employers subject to the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law.

Second: He must have earned during the entire year 1937 at least $250 from employers subject to the law, or $50 from such employers in each of three calendar quarters in 1937. (These tests are specifically for an employee losing his job in April, May or June. The general test is that these amounts must be earned during the first four of the five calendar quarters previous to becoming unemployed.)

Third: He must be willing and able to work, with no suitable work available.

Fourth: He must obtain from his employer a "Separation Report" and register for benefits and new employment at the nearest State Employment Office or Special Registration Point. He will continue to register each week while he is unemployed.

Fifth: He must serve a waiting period, during which he will attempt to find a new job.

Benefits will range up to $15 a week for a maximum of 15 weeks of total unemployment, depending on the employee's previous earnings record Weekly benefits for an employee losing his job in April, May or June will be approximately half of his average weekly earnings during the calendar quarter in 1937 when his earnings were highest.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

OUR FIGHTING PRESIDENTS

Our fighting Presidents are known to every schoolboy of the nation, for who has not heard of the bravery of Washington, Jackson, Grant and many many others who took part in the wars of our country? Few, however, know that John Adams, our second President, once fought as a U. S. Marine.

President Adams was a man of letters, more given to diplomatic or legislative affairs than to armed conflict. His keen mind and political insight led to his appointment to many important missions during our struggle for independence.

Fate led to his taking up arms when he was aboard the Boston, bound for France on a diplomatic mission in 1778, for Captain Tucker of the Boston could not resist the temptation to give battle when he encountered the heavily-armed British ship Martha.

When the ships neared each other the Birtish vessel fired a broadside, while the marines on the Boston retaliated with rifle fire. A shattered yardman knocked Captain Tucker to the deck, and as the smoke from the British guns rolled away, he was amazed to see John Adams calmly sighting his musket at the enemy.

As the sea duel became imminent, the future president had borrowed a musket and had quietly taken his post beside the sea soldiers. The skipper immediately protested. He could not afford to endanger the life of his distinguished passenger by permitting him to join the action.

Complying with the captain's protests, Mr. Adams reluctantly relinquished his post on the deck and went below, just as the British ship lowered her colors as a signal of surrender. His only plea was: "I ought to do my share of the fighting."

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

Miss Leota Hart, who is employed at Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hursey of St. Joe, were Sunday guests of Jay Hart and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart entertained Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Poper and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart, in honor of Elwood's birthday and Mr. and Mrs. Hart's eighth wedding anniversary.

The R. H. C. met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Alvy Perry, altho a stormy afternoon there was a good attendance and every one seemed to have a good time. The Sob Sisters are sure doing their duty. It is just surprising what expensive wrapping material and ribbons, also ornamental jewelry is given with these gifts. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Ray Herrick, of Fort Wayne, served a dainty lunch of sandwiches, pickles, salad, cake and coffee to 12 members and 4 guests, Margaret Wisler and son, Niel, Mary Wilder and Mrs. Herrick. Mrs. Lew Washler had charge of the special numbers, which were interesting. Club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Edna Jenkins at St. Joe.

NEWVILLE CENTER

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shaffer were recent guests of Mrs. Bethel Shaffer at Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Bidlack spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Mose Higgins at Hicksville.

It doesn't help much to tell the doctor after he has fixed you up that you had the right-of-way.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Treace spent Saturday afternoon with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Volkert at Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Beree and daughter were Sunday guests of Adron and Pauline Beree. Wilbur is manager of a Kroger Store at Antwerp, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller and daughter, Doris, called in the Ira Hook home Sunday afternoon. Other guests for the afternoon and evening were Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Walts, of Garrett.

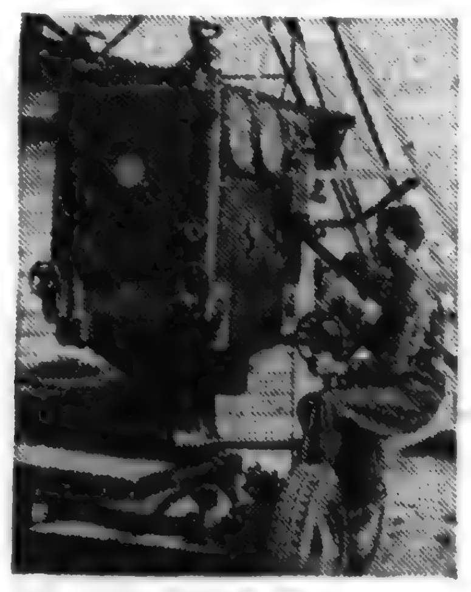
ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1938 NUMBER 13

Army Day In the Air

America observes Army day April 6 as Uncle Sam turns attention to his air corps, an important arm of defense. At March Field, Calif., aerial bombs are loaded with sand and water preparatory to defense maneuvers. The bottles contain smoke chemicals that leave a trail and enable the pilot to check his aim.

A mechanic adjusts 100-pound bombs beneath an army plane before takeoff for practice at Muroc Dry Lake.



While one branch of the army develops the offensive side of aerial warfare, another places emphasis on defensive tactics to combat enemy planes. At Fort Monroe, Va., this 1938-model soldier works on an anti-aircraft director.

DEADLINE SATURDAY FOR PRIMARY CANDIDATES

IRA BONE, 70, DIES IN SANDERS HOSPITAL

After two weeks illness, Ira Bone, of just west of Concord, was rushed to the Sanders Hospital in Auburn last Wednesday and on Sunday night he passed away at about 9 o'clock.

Mr. Bone had been in poor health for a couple of years, so that he was unable to continue with his farm work. For a number of years he lived on the George Hamm farm at the edge of St. Joe, then moving to his Concord farm.

Funeral service was held from the Concord Church, Wednesday afternoon conducted by Rev. Wm. D. Koehulein. Mayola Kinsey & Son funeral directors. Burial in Riverside Cemetery, St. Joe.

B. B. TEAM ENTERTAINED

The Basket Ball team of the St. Joe High School gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bollinger last Friday evening.

They enjoyed a pot luck supper seated at small tables decorated with their school colors.

The evening was spent in contests, games and stunts.

Those present to enjoy the evening were:

Walter Zonker, Jr., Richard Freeburn, Frank Curie, Jr., James Draggoo, Melvin Zimmerman, Burl Rude, Marcel Pugsley, Walter Ervin, Mrs. Naomi Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bollinger and family. Mrs. Curie and Mrs. Wilbern assisted the hostess.

The Safety Man

Now that warm weather is approaching, the number of bicycles in the streets will increase.

Because bicycle accidents have become quite numerous recently, a planned safety program is essential. City bike ordinances should be strictly enforced.

A few important rules bike riders should obey are:

1. Give hand signals before stopping or turning.
2. Keep close to the curb, on the right side of the road.
3. Equip your bicycle with a front white light and a rear reflecting red light.
4. Ride with both hands on the handlebars and never carry other passengers on your bike.
5. OBEY ALL TRAFFIC LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

FORMER CONCORD FARMER DIES AT GARRETT

Services for the late Harvey J. Lindley were held at the Garrett Church of Christ Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The pastor, the Rev. Price Roberts officiated and interment was made in Riverside Cemetery at St. Joe.

Mr. Lindley died Monday morning at 1:00 o'clock at his home in Garrett at 201 East Railroad Street after a week's illness from paralysis. He was in his seventy-second year, having been born May 18, 1866 in Ottowa County, Ohio. He operated a farm Ethel Likes, of St. Joe, and Charles years prior to moving to Garrett four years ago.

The marriage of Mr. Lindley and Nellie Lawson took place at Reynolds, Indiana, November 27, 1901. She survives, with two foster children, Mrs. Ethel Likes, of St Joe, and Charles Seigman, of Edon, Ohio., and two brothers, Ralph and Elbert Lindley, of Lagro, Indiana.

Mr. Lindley was a member of the Church of Christ.

Once again St. Joe citizens have arrived at the spring cleanup season of the year, and once again they are going at the job in a thorough and whole-hearted manner. Why not make it complete by cleaning up any old structures in the community that are known to be fire hazards or get rid of them altogether? They are not only dangerous but they are unsightly, and in many instances unhealthy to the neighborhood that maintains them. All that is needed to rid the community of such hazards is for just one citizen to start. And right here in the midst of the spring clean-up season is a most appropriate time to start.

The ladies left at a late hour feeling their morning had been well spent.

EXTENDING SERVICE OF EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

Facilities already available in the full-time Indiana State Employment office in Auburn to register residents of DeKalb County, will be extended to Kendallville, Ligonier and Angola on a part-time schedule.

Empolyees of the Auburn office, 114 South Cedar Street, wil go to Kendallville two mornings each week for the purpose of receiving employment applications or claims for unemployment compensation benefits. The part-time office in Kendallville will be held in the Council Chambers on the second floor of the City Hall at 9 o'clock on Friday and Saturday mornings, starting April 1 and 2 and is for registration of residents of Kendallville and the east half of Noble County.

The part time office at Ligonier is for registration of residents in the west part of Noble County. The office will be on the second floor of the City Hall and will be open every Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

Registration in Angola will be taken each Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in the Court House.

Thees towns are included in the 69 cities in Indiana chosen as a special registration point where applicants for employment and claimants for unemployment compensation benefits are to be served by the Indiana State Employment Service.

Employers wishing to hire qualified workers are urged to consult the interviewer in their respective town at the time specified. Anyone seeking work will receive a private interview during which an employment application will be taken. The representative also will receive claims for benefits from eligible unemployed or partially employed workers.

The scope of the Employment Service has been greatly extended recently until the number of full-time employment offices in the state has been increased from 21 to 43, making a total of 112 cities where service may be received.

It has about reached the point where instead of parents thinking their children need a chaperone the children think the parents need a guardian.

Kitchen ranges can now be had in a wide variety of colors but it takes more than a pink stove to make the average girl love a kitchen.

Why it is that some fellows imagine a neighbor woman is interested in hearing them tell things about themselves that their own wives get the earache from listening to 20 years ago?

If skirts ever get so long that they don't have to be pulled down every six seconds the nose will get powdered oftener.

Most women get as much satisfaction knowing they are not behind the times as their husbands get from knowing they are ahead of their bills.

No matter how flashy they paint a new auto, it never looks surprising enough to scare a locomotive at a grade crossing.

What has become of the old-fashioned boys and girls who could spend a pleasant evening playing Old Maid and Authors.

It used to be a woman could make her husband a necktie out of one of her silk skirts but now it's just about the other way around.

The greatest faith any woman can show in her husband is to sit quietly in the back seat and let him do the driving.

We heard the other day of a man who is on the verge of a nervous breakdown because his wife is always telling him how nervous she is.

The average man wouldn't object to having company for Sunday dinner if the could sit so far away that his wife couldn't kick his shins under the dining table.

If a man who can't see anything in his job will stand off and take a peek at himself he'll see what is the matter.

Men talk about women going back to sensible clothes, but you never hear one sighing for the four-inch collars and the stiff-necked shirts of the good old days.

If eating is a necessity, they why didn't nature arrange it so all women could enjoy cooking and dish-washing?

They say that the average common cold costs $3.30. We suppose the 30c is for the amusement tax.

The reason a merchant never asks a woman what size shoe she wears is because it is a lot easier to measure her feet than to argue with her.

If prices keep on ascending it won't be long until a beefsteak will be rare, no matter how you cook it.

Nothing is more annoying than to have to sit close to a fellow who carries a $3 cough to a 10-cent picture show.

Courtesy is the thing that keeps a woman smiling when a departing guest stands at the open door and lets a lot of cold in.

As a general rule the fellow who can "turn his hand to anything" seldom does so.

There is a vast difference between offering a man a suggestion and telling him how to run his business.

Who can remember when buttons would stay on a garment until at least six months after you bought it?

".....It is the duty of citizens to support their government and not the duty of the government to support its citizens."

A TOWN ROAD ECHO

The recent suggestion by a Kentucky senator that Congress provide an appropriation of one billion dollars for the construction of 4 great motor highways is not apt to meet with the nation-wide acclaim he anticipates. In fact, members of the older generation—and they are today's taxpayers—are pretty apt to start protesting such a plan the moment it comes to their ears. The proposed coast-to-coast and Canada-to-the-Gulf highways would, of course, be toll roads. The older generation has not forgotten and cannot forget what toll roads mean.

As far as the average motorist is concerned, there is no occasion for building toll roads so long as gasoline taxation can provide toll-free roads if the gas revenues are honestly and carefully expended. He encounters now and then an example of what toll highways mean when he is forced to pay an assessment at a bridge crossing. And yet the bridge tolls are being abandoned just as rapidly as the revenue reaches a point where it will pay for the bridge. Thousands of miles of old-time toll roads were made traffic lanes after the auto came into being, but at an awful cost to the taxpayers. Old-timers recall the graft and unjust toll rates charged, and they are pretty apt to sense in the plan of the Kentucy senator an echo of the old system. The country can use more highways, and especially more modern ones. Linking the coasts and the lakes and gulf by means of such thoroughfares would undoubtedly be a means to return to the old toll system, then the country will be better off to struggle along without them.

COST OF NEGLECT

Estimates sent out from Washington reveal that farmers who neglect or delay the regular painting of their homes, barns, fences and mechanical equipment from year to year actually piles up an annual loss to themselves of approximately $500,000,000.

In urging an immediate paint-up campaign the government points out the false economy of the idea that a property owner can save money by investing in other things besides paint. The decay of wood, the rust and corrosion of metal, both of which can be prevented by paint, is eating away the profits of rural residents at an alarming rate.

It should not be necessary to tell farmers around that heat and cold and moisture and dryness affect wood and metal for they know it without being told. Yet a lot of them apparently have not learned that they can save more money by applying a coat of paint every three years than they can by not doing so. These are facts, worked out after careful experiments over a long period of years and with every kind of wood and metal. Since there isn't any more floating about this neighborhood than is good for us let us look into this paint proposition at once and see if we can't stop at least one leak by protecting property exposed to the elements, instead of letting it go to rack and ruin.

LOOSE TONGUES

That America has become the country where loose tongues are not only tolerated but actually encouraged was evidenced a few weeks ago when another of those "cultured" Englishman of title, here on a lecture tour, publicly denounced and actually verbally abused the President of the United States. Of course he was doing so merely for the publicity it would bring his lectures, and the increased profits from his lectures. But that does not excuse the fact that since no decent, upstanding American displays disrespect for his president—regardless of what that American's politics may be—then no foreign-born interloper has a right to do so. The office of president carries with it just as much, if not more, respect than the office of king or dictator. Americans realize that, and they respect the office even though they may disagree with the principles of the man who holds it. A good many St. Joe citizens have often wondered why foreigners are permitted to come over here and indulge in such abuse as this most recent one is guilty of. And now they are wondering why Uncle Sam doesn't put a stop to it by making an example of this Englishman and shipping him back home on the first boat that will take him there.

ALWAYS DANGER

Regardless of season, there is always enough inflammable material in the fields and forests and along the roadsides of this country to make the flipping of matches and cigarette stubs dangerous. While the danger of forest fire is greater in some sections in winter than in other sections, the fact remains that in no section is the danger wholly absent, regardless of month or weather conditions. St. Joe citizens who follow their daily papers closely know this because they have read of heavy damage in several parts of the country in recent weeks as e result of carelessly tossed matches or cigarette or cigar stubs. A camp containing more than 300 fine trailers and sheltering more than 600 people had a narrow escape from destruction, and mayhaps great loss of life only a few weeks ago. So no matter what season of the year it may be—keep on being careful. Make sure the match or cigarette you toss carelessly away is extinguished before it leaves your hand. It may take a moment of time to do this, but what is time compared with what may result through your failure to do so.

SOME MORE COMMANDMENTS

Running through a bunch of exchanges we find a new set of commandments, and since they are very appropriate now that the house-cleaning season is on we take the liberty of reproducing them:

Remember thy cleaning day and keep it faithfully.

Thou shalt honor thy neighborhood, and keep it clean.

Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor by ignoring a fire menace nor by poisoning the air with rubbish.

Thou shalt covet all the air and sunshine thou canst obtain.

Thou shalt not keep all windows closed during the night season.

Thou shalt keep in order thy alley and back and front yards.

Thou shalt not steal thy children's right to health and happiness by forcing them to abide in surroundings that are not sanitary.

WATCH YOUR CHECKS

It will probably surprise the average St. Joe citizen to learn that forgers and check-workers reaped a harvest of almost $100,000,000 in this country last year. Financial experts point out that a great many people who would take the utmost care of a dollar bill, will write a check for any sum and hand it to a stranger. Often the check is made out with a pencil, and figures are supplied in a haphazard manner. All a crook needs is an eraser and he can change the figures to his own liking. It may take a minute longer to secure pen and ink and make out a check as it should be made out, but the time thus expended is, from a standpoint of protection, worth the effort. Don't take chances, for you never know who may handle your check as it makes its rounds, and you have no means of knowing but it may find its way into the hands of a crook. Use a little more care, and thus render your chance of escaping a forger greater than they will be if you make out and pass out checks in a haphazard manner.

CONFIDENCE

The reaction the ordinary reader gets when he sees something advertised attractively is that the product must be what it is claimed to be or its makers would not spend their money pushing it. They do not say much about the goods that they are not willing to back up. They may have to carry some brands of goods that are a drag on the market because the public has not been made acquainted with them, but when a maker or merchant endorses something heartily and enthusiastically you can depend on it that it is something that is advertised—evidence in itself that all the value claimed for the product it there. As a result of this kind of endorsement, advertising brings profitable returns. If the product offered is a real bargain—and merchants will not usually advertise it as such unless it is—then a demand is instantly created for it and the public will buy it. You can depend on advertised goods. They are better, or they wouldn't be advertised.

THE POWER TRUST

Nowadays if any individual free, white and over 21 years of age dares to cast an opinion in favor of the private electric utilities, or has the temerity to voice his opposition to public ownership (socailism) he is promptly branded a tool of the "power trust" by a lot of pink politicians. What is this so-called "power trust?" It is hundreds of highly taxed individual electric companies owned by millions of private citizens, publicly regulated, that supply the best and cheapest electrical service to be found in the world today. And far from being an all-powerful trust, the electric utility companies are so stringently regulated and harassed with government competition that their very existence is imperiled.

The "tribute" levied by this "powerful trust" on the average family pocketbook has been graphically revealed by a government agency—the WPA. Francis C. Fullerton, writing in the Magazine of Wall Street says: "..... A WPA survey of 59 representative cities recently showed that out of an average family income of $1,200 the average expenditure for electricity was 1.5 per cent of the total. Out of 12 living cost items classified, this was by far the smallest. It was less than was spent for ice, less than half of what was spent for insurance and less than a quarter of expenditures for amusement and recreation." The cost of electricity to the average American home is less than ten cents a day.

Ultimateyl the public will discover that the loud cries of "power trust" are simply used to camouflage a sinister movement to destroy private enterprise in the electric industry and replace it with something deeply abhorent to American traditions—socialism.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

Mrs. Alice Ives, mother of Mrs. John Gablick, who is making her home with a sister at Montpelier, Ohio, is critically ill - Mrs. Gablick is spending much of her time there.

Mr. and Mrs. DuWayne Kinsey were in Indianapolis Tuesday and Wednesday forenoon, where he was taking 5 hours of training under the Indiana State Embalmers Association.

Notices, Cards of Thanks, Resolutions of Respect, Poetry, Business, Local and all items pertaining to money raising will be charged for at our regular classified advertising rate.

Bids will be let by the state highway department for the paving of Road 27 between Auburn and Waterloo, a distance of 4.023 miles. This construction will be financed with federal aid funds.

Mrs. Wm. Randall became ill Sunday and upon arrival of Mrs. John Beard, of Waterloo, it was decided that she should go to the hospital for treatments and she was removed to Souder's Hospital at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Quance and Mrs. Chas. Quance and children, from Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Quance and childern, Mrs. Vina Quance and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Quance and two children, of Auburn, were callers Sunday afternoon at the J. C. Hull home.

Just to be sure that Farmer Jones lives up to the many rules prescribed by the government for the operation of his farm, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is going to do a little "aerial policing." The AAA has contracted with an aerial survey firm to photograph 108,854 square miles of farm lands as a start toward checking the performance of its conservation program.

Sunday visitors in the J. P. Buckingham home, were Mr. and Mrs. Porter Brattain and son, Earl, Mr. and Mrs. F. Beard and daughter, of Vanlue, Ohio, Mrs. Sybilla Ginkle, of Bucyrus, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Deck, and Mr. Willis Wiseman, of Ft. Wayne. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. Don Bidlack and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilbert, of Defiance, Ohio.

Mrs. Mary Sechler on Friday, March 25th, very pleasantly celebrated her 77th birthday anniversary in the house where she was born and spent the greater part of her life. Those present to enjoy the birthday dinner and the visiting were: Mesdames Frank Baltz and Jessie Sommer, of Auburn, and Mesdames J. R. Shilling, Mary Bets, Ada Berry, Cora Maxwell, Hattie Widney-Stone, Tena Engle, Avis Staman, Anna Sechler, Agnes Moree, Bernice Sechler, the honor guest and host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley.

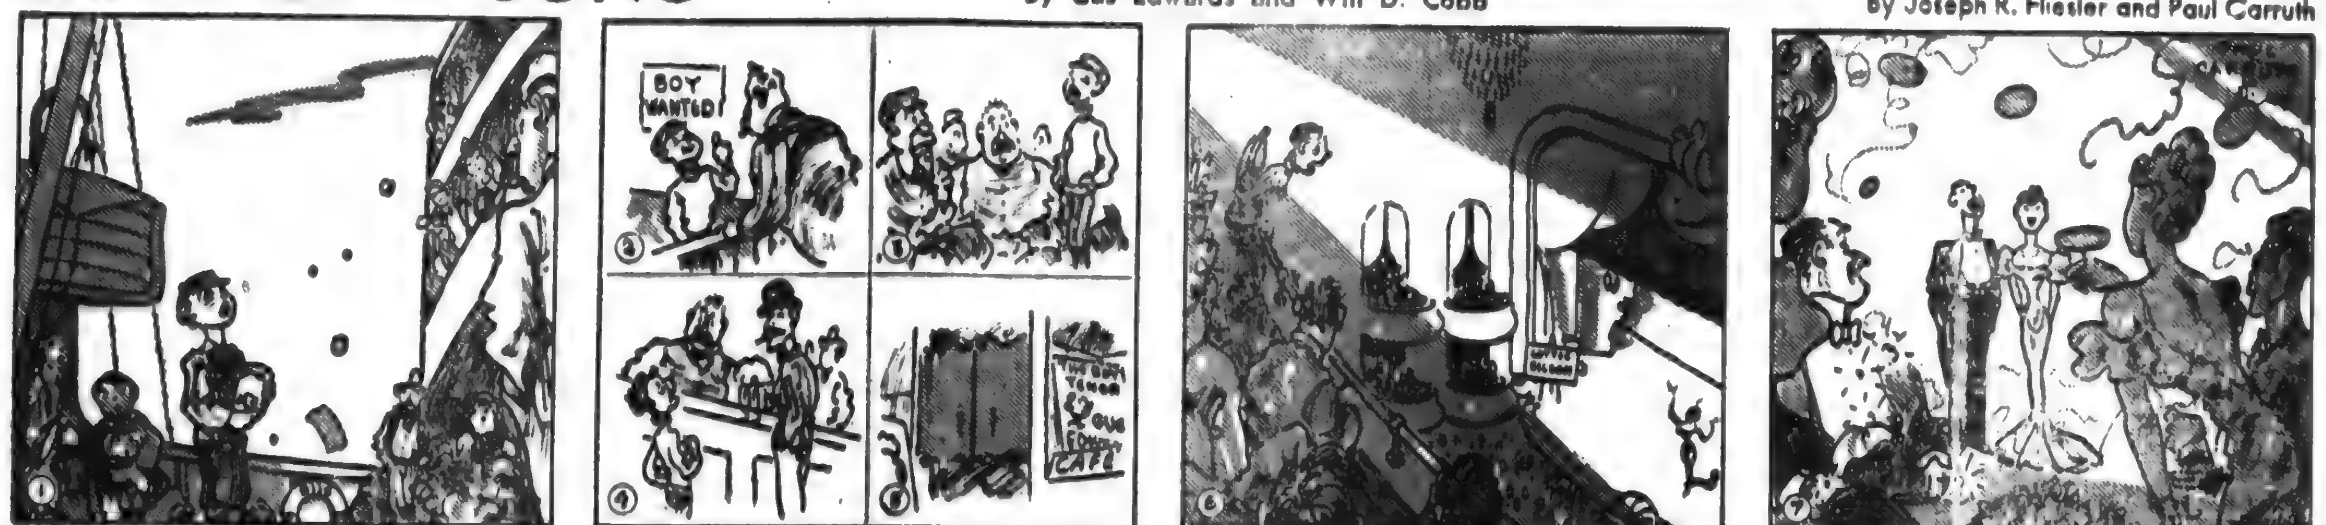
Few persons realise that the growing of peanuts in America is a $50,000,000 business which outranks silver mining before it was subsidized by the government. In addition to being sold both in shelled and unshelled form, peanuts find their way into candy bars, peanut butter and peanut oil, which replaces cotton seed oil in many industrial uses. Contrary to popular belief, peanuts grow on plants rather than trees. The peanut ripens underground and the plant is then uprooted and dried. More than a billion and a quarter pounds of peanuts are grown in America annually mostly in Virginia, North Carolina and Alabama.

Reports from various sections of the country indicate that retail business generally is running 11-12% under March last year. This is partly due to the fact that this year Easter falls on April 17th while last year it came on March 28. Sales of automobiles are about 15% under last year while restaurant and drug store business is reported from 5-7% under 1937. While sales in men's wear stores are sharply lower, it is estimated that the combined March-April volume will be off only 10 per cent. Sale of low-priced dresses and suits increased last week in department and specialty stores and will undoubtedly improve further as Easter approaches.

BIRTH OF A SONG

SCHOOL DAYS
By Gus Edwards and Will D. Cobb

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth

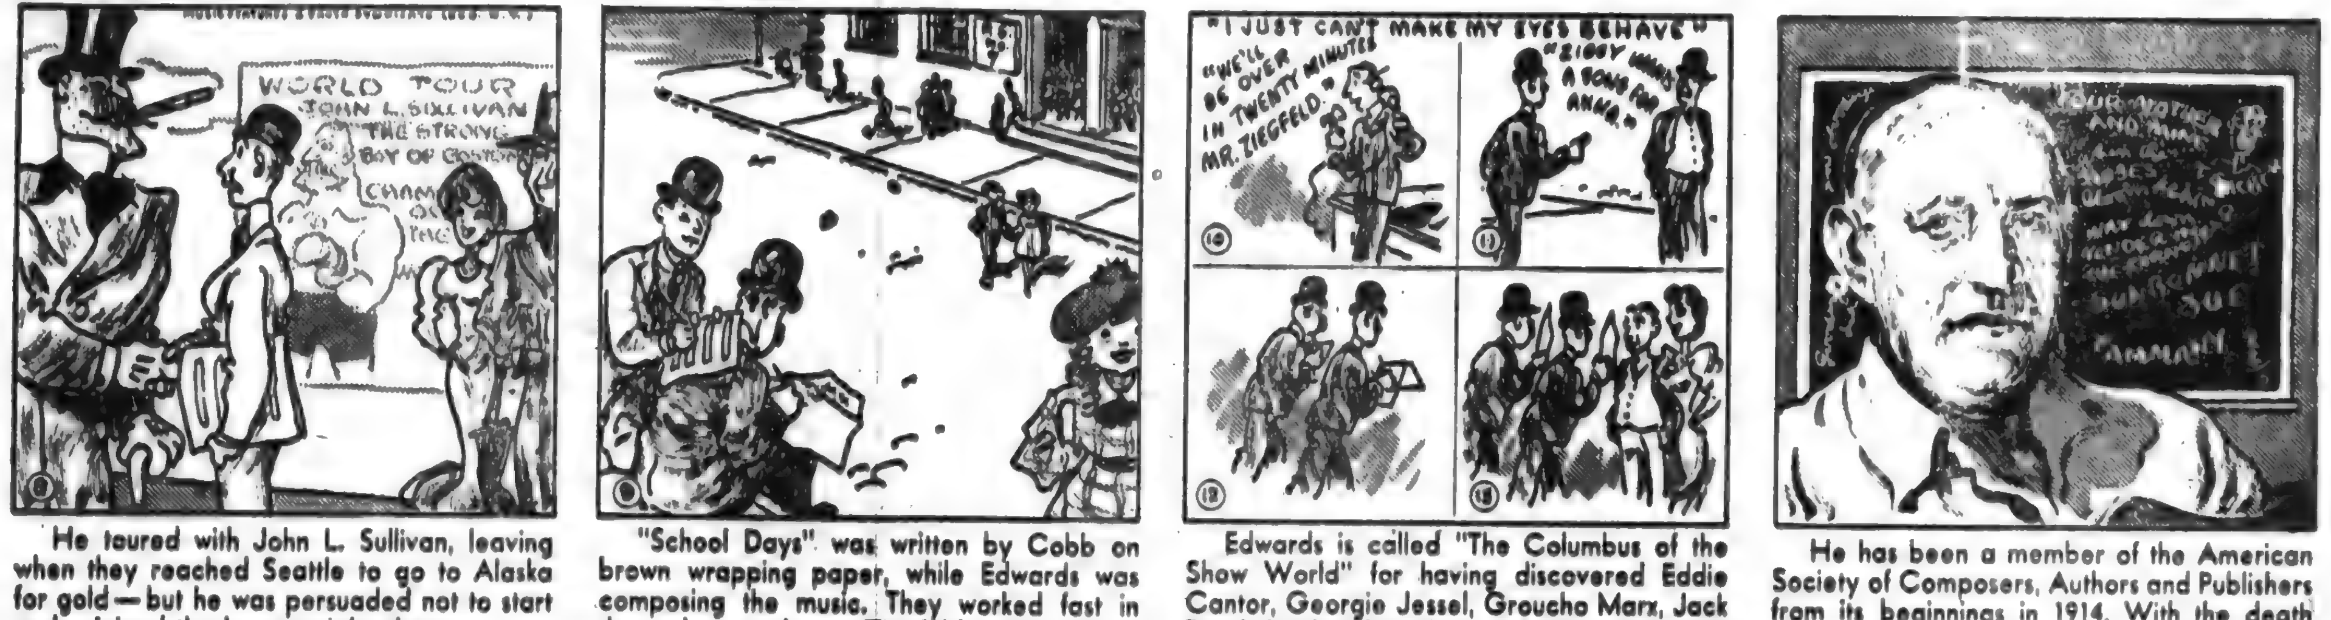


GUSTAVE EDWARDS SIMON, known now as Gus Edwards, was born to sing. On his way over from Rotterdam, he earned a jar full of coppers and silver by entertaining the first class passengers.

The family was poor, and Gus went to work before he was twelve, getting a dollar and fifty cents a week in a cigar factory, but he soon made more money singing in cafes and dance halls.

He joined in the first chorus of a song with Lottie Gilson, then a famous musical star, and she hired him to continue at two dollars a night for the rest of the week.

He "subbed" at Tony Pastor's for Maggie Cline, and thus secured professional engagements. He sang with Nora Bayes at a command performance for "Diamond Jim" Brady.



WORLD TOUR
JOHN L. SULLIVAN
THE STRONG BOY OF BOSTON
"I JUST CAN'T MAKE MY EYES BEHAVE"
"WE'LL BE OVER IN TWENTY MINUTES MR. ZIEGFELD"
"A SONG FOR ANNA"

He toured with John L. Sullivan, leaving when they reached Seattle to go to Alaska for gold—but he was persuaded not to start and rejoined the heavyweight champ.

"School Days" was written by Cobb on brown wrapping paper, while Edwards was composing the music. They worked fast in those days, and soon Ziegfeld sent for them.

Edwards is called "The Columbus of the Show World" for having discovered Eddie Cantor, Georgie Jessel, Groucho Marx, Jack Pearl, Walter Winchell and other theatrical celebrities.

He has been a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers from its beginnings in 1914. With the death of vaudeville, Edwards has been in Hollywood studying pictures and developing talent.

PROPER MANNER OF DISPLAYING THE FLAG

THE FLAG CODE

CAUTIONS

1. Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of the United States of America.

2. Do not dip the Flag of the United States of America to any person or any thing. The regimental color, State flag, organization or institutional flag will render this honor.

3. Do not display the Flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.

4. Do not place any other flag or pennant above or, if on the same level, to the right of the Flag of the United States of America.

5. Do not let the Flag touch the ground or the floor, or trail in the water.

6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States of America.

7. Do not use the Flag as drapery in any form whatsoever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

8. Do not fasten the Flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

9. Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railway train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis, or clamped to the radiator cap.

10. Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

11. Do not use the Flag as a covering for a ceiling.

12. Do not carry the Flag flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

13. Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs nor print it on paper napkins or boxes.

14. Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.

15. Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag is flown.

16. Do not display, use or store the Flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

Cautions and Suggestions:

Additional Points to Bear in Mind in Paying Homage to the Flag

Salute to The Flag

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute. Those in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the Flag passes.

Salute to National Anthem

When the National Anthem is played and the Flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the Anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the Flag is dispayed, the regular "Salute to the Flag" should be given.

The "Star-Spangled Banner" is now the National Anthem of the United States of America. It was made such by Act of Congress, March 3, 1931.

Pledge To The Flag

In pledging allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, the approved practice in schools, which is suitable also for civilian adults, is as follows:

Standing with the right hand over the heart, all repeat together the following pledge:

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

At the words "to the Flag," the right hand is extended, palm upward, toward the Flag, and this position is held until the end, when the hand, after the words, "Justice for all," drops to the side.

However, civilian adults will always show full respect to the Flag, when the pledge is being given, by merely standing at attention, men removing the headdress. Persons in uniform should render the right hand salute.

The Shield

The shield of the United States of America has 13 verticle stripes, 7 white and 6 red, with a blue chief without stars.

Federal Flag Laws

There is but one Federal statute which protects the Flag throughout the country from desecration. This law provides that a trade-mark cannot be registered which consists of or comprises, among other things, "the Flag, coat-of-arms, or other insignia of the United States or any simulation thereof." (33 Stat. L., p. 725, Feb. 20, 1905.)

Congress has also enacted legislation providing certain penalties for the desecration, mutilation or improper use of the Flag within the District of Columbia. (39 Stat. L., p. 900, Feb. 8, 1917.)

Suggested State Legislation

Based upon the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States of America rendered by Justice John Marshall Harlan, every State should enact adequate laws for the protection of the Flag. (205 U. S. 34, March 4, 1907.) State Flag laws should provide as follows:

1. That June 14th, Flag Day, be set apart by proclamation of the Governor recommending that Flag Day be observed by people generally by the display of the Flag of the United States of America and in such other ways as will be in harmony with the general character of the day.

2. That the Flag of the United States of America be displayed on the main administration building of every public institution.

3. That the Flag of the United States of America with staff or flagpole be provided for every school house, and that the Flag be displayed during school days either from a flagstaff or, in inclement weather, within the school building.

4. That the Flag be displayed in every polling place.

5. That printing or lettering of any kind on the Flag is prohibited.

6. That the use of the Flag for advertising purposes in any manner be prohibited.

7. That the use of the Flag as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying or delivering anything be prohibited.

8. That fitting penalty (fine and imprisonment) be provided for public mutilation, abuse or desecration of the Flag.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

In spite of disturbed livestock prices during the past week and muddy barn lots receipts of stock for this week's auction were liberal with plenty of packer orders at prices strong compared to competative markets.

—Hogs: The top of $9.00 was paid for a consignment of mixed weight for hogs consigned by Manuel Miller of Franklin Township. Light feeding shoats, $8.65 to $9.50. Fat sows, $7.40 to $7.55. Stags, $6.00 to $6.25. Boars $4.00 to $6.20.

Veals topped at $10.40 with the bulk at $9.00 to $10.00.

Cattle were plentiful with prices rather on the sellers side. Steers, $5.50 to $6.00. Heifers, $5.00 to $6.00. Fat cows, $4.75 to $5.30. Bulls, $5.90 to $6.10. Milk cows were of rather low quality and sold in a spread from $35.00 to $55.00 per head.

LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

I am kind of a half-way law-abiding citizen and I am not agin the Govt. But everything has its place. And the Govt., if it would stick by the army and the navy, it would have its hands full—except maybe the post-office. But even in the P. O., I have seen the blotter there, and I have tried the pen.

But you take your own off-spring, and if they are 6 or 10 or 20, you are for 'em 100 per cent, but even they have their place. And their place, it is not showing you how to take out an appendix, if you happen to be a doctor —or tellin' you how to make both ends meet, while they sit in the shade or use your credit card for gas.

And our Govt., it is getting to act like a juvenile and is diving in when it don't know how deep it is, like in this Tennessee electric shin-dig, and will maybe need a life preserver and we will get the hospital bill.

If I happened to live down there around this here new TVA diggin's, I would feel safer if I had a few candles handy.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

Twin Foes of Democracy

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

With shocked amazement America has been reading the tragic tale of what is happening under Communism and Dictatorship abroad.

Trials that are travesties, wholesale executions, widespread death by bomb and gunfire, reckless disregard of treaty rights, of national rights and of human rights—so run dispatches from Europe and Asia.

What are the purposes behind all this? What brought it about?

Essentially both Dictatorship and Communism, whatever their pretensions, are twin foes of representative democracy, as we have always known it in America.

Their aim is to subordinate the individual to the State. Their theory is that the citizen is incapable of running his own life, thinking his own thoughts, choosing his own religion, producing his own and the nation's goods under his own direction.

These things, they believe, can be better directed by the politicians in power.

The men who founded America and built it into a great nation established a different pattern. They held that government was of, by and for the people, and that the politicians were the servants of the people, not the masters.

They believed in the intelligence, the enterprise, the ability and the freedom of the individual citizen, and planned a government to encourage those virtues. The American epic proves how right they were.

But there are among us theorists and bureaucrats who disagree with the founders and builders of America. They would discourage initiative and enterprise—by vitriolic attack, by confiscatory legislation, by destructive schemes of taxation. They seek to stifle enterprise by law. They prefer to see the politician in power, the individual citizen submerged.

That isn't the American ideal of representative democracy. It approaches the way of the totalitarian states.

If Americans want to know where that path can lead, let them study the headlines from abroad, then route our own course to avoid it.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1938 NUMBER 14

Palm Sunday Is 'Courting' Day In South Italy

Palm Sunday, important in Christian observance of the Lenten season, is the day to court your sweetheart in Spezzano Albanese, Calabria. In this section of southern Italy bashful swains act much like they do on St. Valentine's day in this country.

Unattached young men and eligible bachelors are given the unusual opportunity of serenading their sweethearts in broad daylight, the custom being about 600 years old. Attired in finery, the youths assemble at the main piazza, carrying—instead of palms—bouquets of laurel blossoms.

They move in a procession, making the rounds of some 30 balconies, all of which are strewn with carnations and in which are girls garbed in picturesque pleated skirts and ruffled blouses. The young men sing their serenades and if their attentions are welcome they receive carnations.

LOCAL SCHOOL WON HONORS IN STATE CONTEST SATURDAY

On Friday afternoon April 1, fifteen students left St. Joe to enter the State Commercial Contest at Danville to be held the following morning. Those making the trip were Ivan Brown, Hilma Bleeks, Daisy Ellen Camp, Catherine Curie, Pauline Donley, Gwenevere Jenkins, James Maxwell, Virginia Poper, Dorothy Reas, Blanche Strong, Florine Swander, Garnet Washler, Iris Wilmot, Eva Young and Junior Zonker.

At 1:00 o'clock they loaded bag and baggage into the Frank Curie bus and started on their 180 mile trip, with Miss Jones and Mr. Wilbern as faculty sponsors. At 4:00 P. M. they stopped at the Wilbern home in Fairmount for their supper and then on to Danville. They reached their destination at 8:30 P. M. There they were taken to private homes for the night.

In the morning, after a good breakfast, they began their tests in Beginning Typing, Advanced Typing, Beginning Shorthand, Business Behavior, and Bookkeeping, which lasted from 8:00 A. M. until 12:30 A. M. in some cases. After dinner they were free to look over the campus and enjoy the entertainment provided for them by the college.

At 7:00 P. M. the college band gave a concert and then at 9:00 P. M. came the awarding of prizes. Only the first seven places received awards while the first twenty-six places count points for school honors.

Every team placed in the first 26 and won points for the school. The exact standing will not be known until later in the week when a report is received.

Our Advanced Typing team composed of Virginia Poper, Garnet Washler and Eva Young received a plaque for the school for placing third in the Advanced Typing test. This is quite an honor when you know it was a state contest and they were competing with larger schools such as, New Albany, Bedford, Peru and Bloomington.

Garnet Washler won a $40.00 scholarship by placing third high in individual honors in the Advanced Typing section.

Congratulations to the Commercial students, the Advanced Typing team, Garnet Washler and the school on bringing this honor to St. Joe. We are proud of you.

1937 SHOWS INCREASE IN INCOME TAX RETURNS

State gross income tax receipts for the 12-month period ending March 31, 1938 totaled $22,958,724.08, or more than $3,000,000 in excess of the collections for the previous 12-month period, it was announced today by Clarence A. Jackson, director of the Gross Income Tax Division, as the books were closed March 31, preparatory to receiving tax returns covering income in the first quarter of 1938.

The number of taxpayers filing 1937 annual returns was 487,418, an increase of more than 79,000 over 1936, for which period 408,115 taxpayers filed returns. For 1935 there were 354,610 annual returns filed, for 1934, 302,565.

Gross income tax returns covering income in the first quarter of 1938 are due April 1 to April 15. Quarterly returns must be filed by all those whose tax exceeds $10 for the quarter. All taxpayers are entitled to an exemption of $50 per quarter; retail merchants are granted an exemption of $750 per quarter from "receipts from selling at retail" as defined under the Gross Income Tax Act. This exemption, however, is not in addition to the regular exemption. The special retail merchants' returns have been discontinued and the regular individual, partnership and corporation returns have been revised so that they may also be used by retail merchants having "receipts from selling at retail."

Penalties for failure to file returns when due range from 10 per cent to 50 per cent of the tax due, with interest payable at the rate of 1 per cent per month; the minimum penalty is $2.00.

First Sunday After 'Paschal' Moon Is Astronomical Date for Easter

Astronomically speaking, Easter falls on the Sunday following the first Paschal full moon after March 21. But the date was originally set to help pilgrims who needed moonlight during their annual journey to Resurrection festivities.

Traveling day and night to reach the sacred shrines in time for this observance, the pilgrims decided to make the Easter date flexible for the sake of convenience. Therefore it may vary over a period of 35 days—from March 22 to April 25.

A coincidence accounts for the popular association of Easter Sunday with the arrival of spring. The day occurs almost simultaneously with the ancient heathen Roman celebration of the vernal equinox. So popular has this association become that spring clothing and spring flowers are used extensively as symbols of Easter. The Easter Sunday fashion parade down New York's Fifth avenue has become a recognized American institution.

Each nation has its own unique Easter Sunday customs. American children celebrate the day with Easter eggs and bunnies. In Germany spring lambs are sold for the feast.

MERCHANTS PLANNING FOR SUMMER ENTERTAINMENTS

A group of interested merchants of St. Joe attended the called meeting Thursday night at the town hall, to discuss plans for summer entertainment. A special committee was appointed consisting of Reign Schondelmayer, D. W. Yeiser and DuWayne Kinsey, who were to make a report at the Thursday night meeting, (this week.)

Officers for 1938 were chosen consisting of M. E. Storer, president, and Arthur Lyon, secretary and treasurer.

A report was made before the group by Reign Schondelmayer, in which he reported a cash receipt of neary $600 last year.

In discussing the form of entertainment, it was conceded that pictures brot more people, and from a greater distance than any other form of entertainment ever tried in St. Joe. While it was admitted that some of the pictures were not what the program committee desired last year, yet they did do the very best for the public that it was possible, without having given the films a preview, and this of course was impossible.

Whatever form of entertainment is to be decided upon, you can feel that those in charge will want to do the best they can.

It is probable that the entertainments will be started in about one month, weather being favorable.

QUAIL AND PHEASANT LIBERATION COMPLETE

Liberation of thirty-seven thousand quail and pheasants is being completed this week by the Division of Fish and Game in cooperation with local conservation clubs, it was reported by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation.

A total of 28,000 quail and nine thousand pheasants have been included in the liberations made in suitable areas throughout the state. These releases, coming in advance of the mating season, will serve to improve the quality of the native stock of game birds and increase the natural production.

Following a policy adopted last year, records are kept of the exact area in which each liberation is made and no releases were made on land which is closed to hunting.

MORTUARY

BONE

Ira Bone, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bone, was born September 3, 1867, in Missouri and passed away Sunday evening, March 27, 1938 in the hospital at Auburn, at the age of 70 years, 6 months and 24 days.

He came to Concord Township at the age of 12, on July 4, 1891. He was united in marriage to Diadem Keeler. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife and many friends.

Funeral services were conducted from the Concord M. P. Church on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. W. D. Koehulein, pastor, officiating. Burial was made in Riverside Cemetery, St. Joe.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their sympathy and deeds of kindness during our recent bereavement.

Mrs. Diadem Bone,

Mrs. Clara McCann has been quite poorly the past week, but is able to be up and around again.

Mrs. J. C. F. Abel is about as usual following a slight stroke, which affected her eyesight some. Mrs. Cora Maxwell is staying with her.

Little Miss Beverly Ridgway is still confined to her bed with inflammatory rheumatism. She is slowly improving.

Mrs. Frank Akins fell down stairs Friday night, breaking both wrists, besides injuring the back of her head, her shoulder and hip. She is unable to do any work, but has help to care for her cooking.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Willard Hurni Wednesday evening, March 30, in honor of the Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Jones and Mrs. Harriet Oberlin, teachers in the school, assisted by Mrs. Doris Yeiser at the piano.

The following program was carried out perfectly:

Song, Girl Scout Hiking Song by the Group.

Two Objectives of the Girl Scout Organization, ... Myra Keesler.

Then a two act original play was given, covering different types of their work.

History of the Scout Organization, ... Stella Hart.

Closing with their Scout Song.

Those taking active part in the play, out of the thirty girls present, were, Helen Goodwin, Ruth and Myra Keesler, Bettie Kees, Anna Bell and Dorothy Stewart, Kathryn Bell and Helen Fay Curie, Leila Hurni and Marcia Wade.

Popcorn and home made candy were served.

The club appreciated very much the teachers and Girl Scouts efforts in putting the entertainment across.

GETS JOB WITH THE UNITED PRESS

Kent Curie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Curie, of St. Joe, has resigned his position with the Kroger Co., at Ft. Wayne to take effect April 18, in order to take a new position with the United Press, in their Ft. Wayne offices, located in the Journal-Gazette building. For some months he has been attending night school in Ft. Wayne.

Kent will start in U. P. office operating the Teletype machines, which record the U. P. news as it comes in over the wires.

Joe Gaskie, city reporter for the United Press was instrumental in securing this worthy position for Kent, the boys were school chums at Kendallville. Here's wishing you the best of luck, Kent.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET LARGELY ATTENDED

Seventy-three men and boys participated in the Father and Son Banquet held at the Lutheran Church last Thursday evening, it being an annual affair and sponsored by the Brotherhood.

The music for the evening was furnished by a male quartet from the Hicksville U. B. Church, and the address was given by S. W. Lewton, of Fort Wayne, who was accompanied here by T. G. Allmon.

The ladies of the church prepared and served the supper. D. B. Ridgway had charge of the arrangements and Ralph Sechler acted as master of ceremonies. Leslie Wilbern made the welcome which was responded to by Franklyn Sechler.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

SHIPWRECKED AT SAMOA

Caught in the grip of a hurricane, seven war vessels were tossed about like corks in the harbor of Apia, Samoa, in March, 1889. Lashed by the fury of wind and waves, only one of the ships escaped, while others were wrecked on the reefs or stranded, despite the herculean efforts of their commanders and crews to save them.

Three of the ships were American, three German, and the other a lone British craft which managed to escape. The death toll on the ill-fated ships amounted to one hundred and forty-four, and the survivors witnessed unforgettable deeds of bravery.

Toiling furiously in the firerooms of the vessels were U. S. Marines and Sailors, expecting to be drowned like rats at their posts. Some were swept from the decks by gigantic waves; others were drowned while trying to swim ashore. Ship crashed into ship and the helpless workers on the shore were powerless to aid them.

Bluejackets and U. S. Marines behaved with the utmost courage. Fully one-half of the marines on the Vandalia were drowned. When their own ship was doomed, the gallant sailors and marines on the U. S. S. Trenton cheered the more fortunate British vessel which steamed to safety. Others raised the Stars and Stripes on their sinking crafts; the Trenton's band played our national anthem in a pitiful and forlorn defiance of death.

American, German, British and Samoan alike joined hands in a heroic effort to help one another, forgetting their differences in the face of a common disaster. Although the subsiding storm left behind ruined homes and the wrecks of powerful ships strewn along the shore, it had etched a new chapter in the oft-forgotten saga of the brotherhood of man.

FINAL WORD TO UNEMPLOYED REGARDING BENEFITS

Unless employees in Indiana have fulfilled all the eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation benefits, they are asked not to visit the local state employment office at Auburn during the next few weeks.

Applications for unemployment compensation benefits can be accepted only from those who seem to have fulfilled all the requirements set out in the Indiana law.

Those who are obviously not eligible will have nothing to gain in trying to make application, and will only be delaying the claims of those who are eligible.

Any worker can readily determine whether or not he is eligible for benefits by applying the rules to his own case. The rules which deetermine whether or not he is eligible are briefly these:

1. He must have a separation report which his employer, if subject to the law, will give him when he loses his job after April 1. He must bring this separation report to the local employment office. He must also have his social security account number card so that he can properly identify himself and inaugurate the procedure necessary to extract his wage record from the files containing records of nearly 750,000 different persons.

2. He must have worked, at times since January 1, 1937, for an employer or employers subject to the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Law. Generally speaking, there are employers of eight or more persons in private business or industry.

3. He must have received a certain minimum of earnings from such employers. For employees applying for benefits in April, May or June of this year, this requirement means that they must have earned at least $250 in employment subject to the Law during the year 1937, or at least $50 in each of three of the four calendar quarters in 1937.

4. He must have earned wages of at least $10 from employers subject to the Law after March 31, 1938.

5. He must be able and willing to work, but unable to find work.

6. Having met the above requirements, he may register for work at the local state employment office and make application for benefits.

In connection with qualification No. 4 requiring that an employee earn at least $10 after March 31 from an employer subject to the law, an employee does not lose his benefit rights simply because he does not immediately earn this amount. It merely means that his eligibility for benefits is delayed until provision has been met and he subsequently becomes unemployed.

Unless he has fulfilled all of these requirements he can not receive benefits and the Unemployment Compensation Division cannot, by the terms of the law, accept his qualification. No one connected with the entire program has any authority to waive any of these requirements—they are a part of the law as it is written by the state legislature.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

I have leased my barber shop to Mr. G. L. Haver, of Fort Wayne, consequently I have moved my insurance office to my home and will continue this business there, due to ill health. Would be pleased to have anyone interested, to call and talk over their insurance problems.

I wish also to thank all who have helped to make my agency the success it has been during the past 35 years in St. Joe.

Discretion is something that usually comes to every man when he is too old to benefit by it.

Another thing citizens will find well worth remembering is that a man doesn't have to be a detective to find trouble.

This is the year that you are going to get that tooth pulled that you promised yourself all last year you were going to get pulled.

Give George Washington credit for one thing. It was a hatchet he used instead of a hammer.

No man has ever lived long enough to get even with this big old world of ours.

It has about gotten so in this country that when a man finds a parking place he hurries around and buys a car.

Ever notice that the man who spends money for hair tonic is still bald and the woman who spends hers for reducing pills is still fat.

Man is never satisfied. If he is poor he stews over his debts and if he gets hold of some money he can't sleep for fear somebody will steal it.

Chicago estimates her population at over 5,000,000, but think what might have been had she never had any gunmen.

There wasn't any such thing as "snap judgment" in this country when a St. Joe citizen had time to take out his pocket knife and whittle awhile before rendering a decision.

A girl's idea of a sensible hat is one that permits her to see with one eye.

It is our firm belief that every man should marry. Every man needs somebody to help him worry.

Lifee as a great many women see it will be just about complete when someone invents a radio that will also wash the dishes.

In some respects life is speeding up, but it still takes six reels to kill a moving picture man where it used to take only two.

Wonder how the average St. Joe man who longs for the good old days would go about seating a couple of girls wearing hoopskirts in a rumble seat.

A recent news dispatch told of a Chicago grocer having 11 daughters. Imagine 11-sons-in-law working in the store at the same time.

A peace pact is something that gets picked to pieces and then a little later on gets shot to pieces.

As a usual thing the man who complains that he never had a chance wouldn't take one if he had.

The seed catalogues are just as promising as ever, but the weeds will thrive best after the garden is planted.

Who can remember when pink cheeks on a girl was accepted as a sure sign of good health?

The State Department is in something of a dither since its ambitious and humanitarian plan to fling a wide welcoming door to refugees from war-torn Europe. When notes to this effect were sent last week by the State Department to twenty-nine countries, the program was publicly understood to embrace only refugees from Austria and Germany. But Mr. Roosevelt's announcement from Warm Springs extends the plan to include political refugees from Italy, Spain, and Soviet Russia. Diplomatic complications are now thick, fast and furious, and prophecies about the outcome—especially about the whole thing falling through—are gloomy in the extreme........

Apropos of foreign arrivals on our shores, there are none more eagerly anticipated than the Finnish delegation which will come here in June to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the first Finnish and Swedish settlements on the Delaware River. Seven national leaders, from the only European country that pays its war debt in full, will head the delegation, among them Minister of Foreign Affairs Holsti, Minister of Agriculture Pekkala, and Parliament Speaker Hakkila—all "big" names in Finland. Womens' organizations, churches, and journalism will send distinguished representatives to do honor to the anniversary of that first modest settlement three centuries ago..............

The Senate took time off last week from such controversial matters as the reorganization bill and whether or not to hold a congressional investigation of the T. V. A., to do a little more changing of old traditions. In the past, Army band leaders have taught their organizations how to play stirring marches and symphonic pieces, but have not "commanded' them in military fashion. So, although the War Department protested bitterly, the Senate got busy and passed a bill by Senator Thomas, of Utah, elevating band chiefs from the ranks of warrant officers to that of bandmasters, with pay allowances and retirements similar to commissioned officers. The War Department's protest was not due to lack of appreciation of music, but to the fact that it claims musicians, as a class, do not make good commanders. Apparently, nobody but Congress, which has many strange ideas, ever imagined they did.

The week is not without it's sunny side: the Patent Office announces the granting of a couple of new patents which make life brighter—or funnier! One is a device for keeping a roast fowl from skidding off the platter while being carved; another is a "graph" which chronicles such things as the rise and fall of your sagging shoulders, your slipping waist-line; a third weighs you while you eat, and a fourth guarantees to do something about icicles on the roof, to keep you from being brained..........

To quote a leading business magazine, the threat of a world war "will affect almost everything that is done in Washington from now on: Naval construction, merchant marine, army expansion, taxes, Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade program, perhaps even government reorganization." War—past, present and future—is an ominous and exceedingly active element in American affairs today.

Most obvious example of our preoccupation with the prospect of war is the naval building program, the largest in our peace-time history. Its proponents—and there are many—argue that our best guarantee of peace is a mailed fist second to none. On the other hand, there are men of distinction and authority who argue with force that this program is leading us straight into war. Reason: Navy specifications today call for fighting ships of tremendous cruising ranges, and for supply vessels able to make runs of thousands of miles, provide the fleet with oil, food, munitions, and return to bases on the continental United States. How, say the opponents of the building program, can ships of this type be justified as essential tools of the national defense? Why do we not build, instead, small fast ships with a relatively short cruising range, sufficient in number and power to defend our coasts—but not to fight in foreign waters? Is it possible, they conclude, that the unspoken purpose behind the current program is the creation of a U. S. fleet primarily designed for and capable of fighting in the China seas or the Mediterranean?

There is no definite answer to these questions now—but they are indicative of the confusion that exists in the minds of the people. Even more important, perhaps, is the attitude of the State Department toward European troubles—an attitude that has received a great deal less interpretation than a subject of such moment deserves.

Apparently the day is over when representatives of great governments could sit down, argue differences, arrive at agreements and go home, with all concerned knowing that the agreements would be kept, at least until some crisis arrived which made one of the partcipants feel that it was necessary to sacrifice principal to expediency. The U. S. State Department at the present timt doesn't say it in so many words—but it obviously feels that the words, treaties and promises of the belligerent powers—Germany, Japan and Italy—cannot be trusted. There are two concrete examples of this which are not widely known. A few months ago the Japanese government intimated that it was again ready to discuss a treaty for the limitation of capital fighting ships—and the U. S. government offered no encouragement. And for two years, Hitler has periodically proposed an agreement among the great powers to ameliorate some of the evils of war, such as the unrestricted use of submarines and the ruthless bombing of civilian centers—and again this government has turned a deaf ear to the suggestion.

It is, of course, almost unthinkable to blame the U. S. government for this attitude. The dictators who agreed to non-intervention in the Spanish revolution have all but made a Franco victory certain by sending him apparently unlimited quantities of men, planes, cannons, and other essentials of war—and Japan, which now, burdened under a staggering debt, might wish to slow down the world naval building race, was the first to violate the previous naval building treaty. The State Department's attitude is simply an indication of the difficulties of carrying on diplomacy in a world where the old values have been so largely destroyed.

One by-product of this is Secretary Hull's policy of caution. Officially, we have not yet recognized Italy's conquest of Abyssinia, nor Germany's sudden seizure of Austria. We have made protests against these acts—but mostly in veiled and indirect terms. Our fear of foreign entanglements has made it impossible for us to take the lead or even a prominent part in seeking to curb the ravages and injustices of the dictators. Yet no one thinks that the feeling of this country is a neutral one—American sentiment against the dictators is almost 100 per cent strong. Judging by what evidence there is, the majority of Americans were disappointed at the failure of Eden and the adoption by England of the Chamberlain "peace at any price" foreign policy. It is not a remote possibility that this partisan sentiment will in the future be reflected in the government's attitude, and result in a more aggressive and pointed U. S. policy toward the totalitarian states. Whether that would make our participation in the next world war unavoidable is a topic that is being debated fiercely by all manner of theorists—but it cannot be settled save in the infallible test-tube of Time.

FORD'S FORECASTS

Henry Ford returned to his home a couple of weeks ago from two months spent in the South, and with him he brought the customary bunch of optimistic forecasts that every citizen we know aorund St. Joe is always glad to read about.

"Nothing that occurred during the past few weeks," said Mr. Ford on his arrival in Detroit, "has occurred to change my belief that a prosperous era is ahead of us. It will come through a greater realization that all wealth comes from the soil and that there must be a greater cultivation of the land. Reports from abroad have not served to make me change my convictions about the futility of wars. Nobody wins in a war but the financial interests that promote it and make preparations for it. If a dictatorship comes here it will be because the people have been asleep and deserve it. But there will be a way to handle or destroy a dictatorship if it springs up in this country. Immigration quotas need not cause alarm. This nation is big enough to absorb any or all of the quotas of those people who cannot find happiness in their own lands."

Whether you agree fully with Henry's opinions or not makes little difference—you've got to admit there is a lot of good philosophy in what he says. And especially when he said, nearing the end of his interview: "Deprive the world of the brains of men and women above 50 years of age and everything must come to a standstill. Neither age alone nor youth alone can run a world's affairs. A cross-section of both is needed."

AMERICA'S SHAME

When an important industry reports a shortage of labor these days it is real news. And when, despite such a condition, relief rolls in that same section show a steady increase, there is food for some sober thought. The N. Y. Dept. of Agriculture recently issued a bulletin in which it said: "Many farmers of New York state are seriously handicapped, and were even in the dull winter season, by a scarcity of labor." The reason as set forth is the unwillingness of city idlers to leave the security and assistance given them by public and private agencies when they become unemployed in industry. They would rather be paid for loafing in the city than take a job for pay on the farm. And this is the kind of reports that are making taxpayers around St. Joe sick and tired of "relief" as it is now doled out in every section of the nation. It is reports of this kind which are certain to hasten a clean up of the whole mess.

AID IN SIGHT

With figures showing that 3,500 lives were lost and $100,000,000 in property destroyed last year by fires in the farming sections of the country, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has stepped forward with what appears to be the best plan yet devised for curbing such waste. The chamber plans a national rural fire prevention movement, with a branch in every town about like St. Joe. In its effort there will be enlisted the aid of the Boy Scouts, the Parent-Teachers' Associations, farm organizations, the rural press, etc. A little study of it shows that it has the earmarks of a worthwhile program, and it should receive the heartiest support of the entire public. With fire-fighting equipment unavailable in rural areas, the only other recourse is to preach and practice fire prevention. Fire losses, as last year's figures reveal, are so great as to demand every possible effort to curb them.

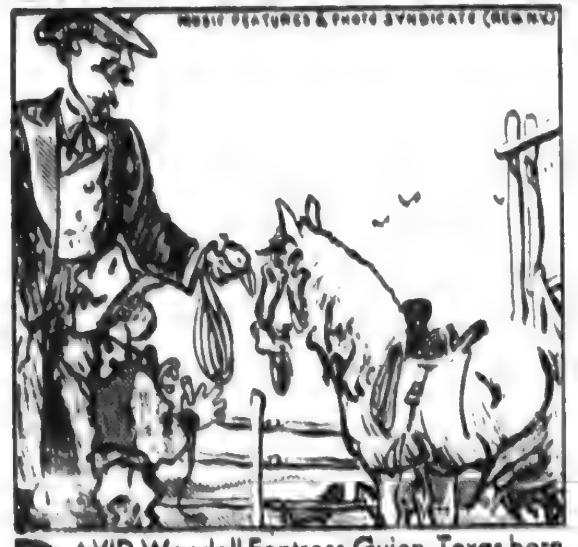
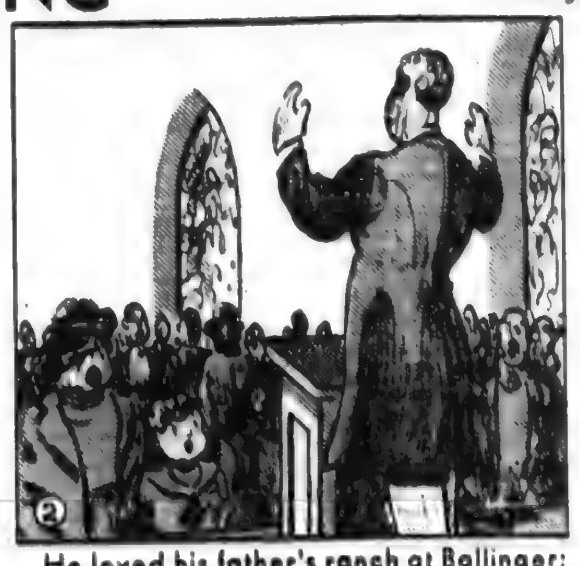
BIRTH OF A SONG

"HOME ON THE RANGE"
Arranged by David W. Guion

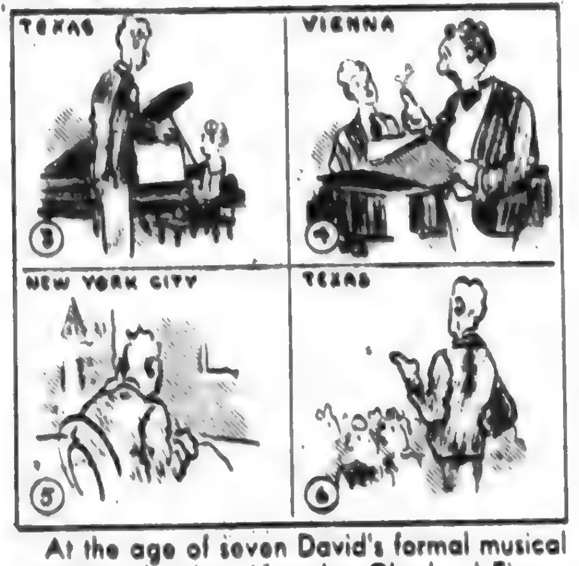
From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



DAVID Wendell Fentress Guion, Texas born of French Huguenot ancestry, whose paternal grandfather was Governor of Mississippi and whose father was president of the directorate of Texas A. & M. College, was just a small boy when it came to a pony.



He loved his father's ranch at Ballinger; learned to ride from the cowboys and to appreciate music from his "mammy", who had a fondness for revival meetings. Here Negro melodies imbedded themselves in the child's brain.



At the age of seven David's formal musical education began, with author Charles J. Finger as tutor; continued with Godowsky in Vienna; then to New York, en route to Texas to direct the School of Music in Daniel Baker College, Brownwood Cowboys knew the music teacher as a rodeo champion. He wrote down "The Bold Vaquero", one of the favorite songs of the 'punchers on his father's ranch. Here he first heard the crude melody of "Home on the Range".

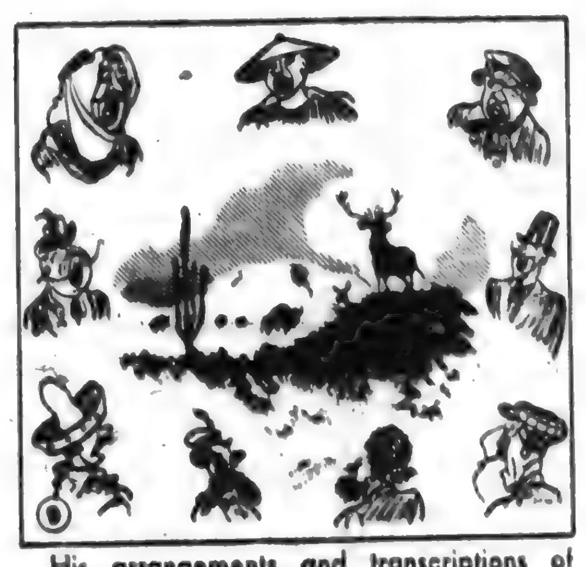
Guion transcribed into symphonic form the old hoedown "Turkey In The Straw". It became a hit when Percy Grainger featured it. Guion drew on his memories for further work.



His arrangements and transcriptions of Negro, sailor and cowboy songs run into the hundreds, but none has had the world-wide acclaim of "Home On The Range," which was the favorite of the President.

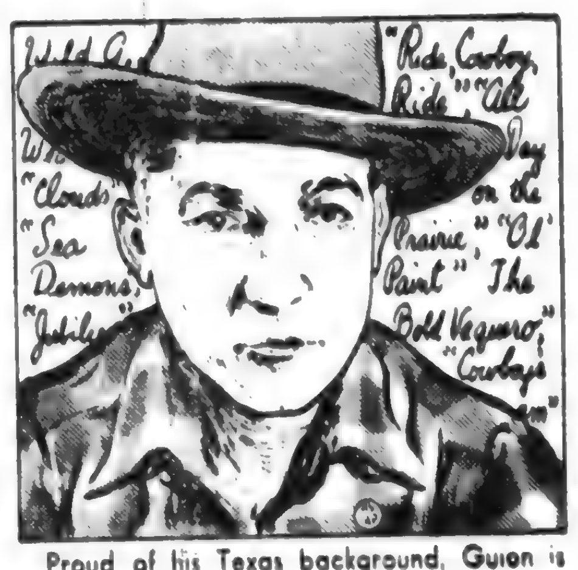
Grateful for the appreciation of his song, Guion dedicated one of his original compositions "The Yellow Rose of Texas" to President Roosevelt, with an interesting reaction.



Proud of his Texas background, Guion is prouder of his membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers fellow with the musical great of America.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton and son, James, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wisler and son Neil took Sunday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh.

Mrs. Inez Chapman and son, Max, of Moline, Ill., arrived here Sunday morning for a vacation. Mrs. Chapman has the Mrs. C. R. Price tenant home rented.

That mortgage exemption can now be taken care of by calling at The News office, and it really means cash to you. Don't put off filing until too late. Act today.

The monthly meeting of the Conservation Club will be held at the Town Hall Thursady evening at 7:30. All members are asked to attend. Special plans for the club are to be considered.

No man, declares Dennis Gerig wants a two-faced wife. He's afraid it might cost him twice as much for face powder and lotions.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Metcalf, of Huntington, were Sunday guests in the J. P. Buckingham home. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Peckhart and daughter, Margaret, of Auburn, were afternoon visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baxter, of Butler, were Wednesday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mason. Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Waltz, of Garrett, were Sunday evening callers in the same home.

The baccalaureate services for the 1938 graduating class, will be held Sunday evening at the Lutheran Church. Special music will be rendered by the choir and the message will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Geo. Stevenson.

"It seems inconsistent for the government to prosecute oil companies and others on a charge of price-fixing and monopolistic control....while that same government is spending hundreds of millions in the Tennessee Valley in an effort to monopolize and control the price of electric current."

The Lutheran Missionary Society will sojourn to Mulberry, Indiana, today (Thursday) to be the guest of Rev. C. J. Ferster, former pastor, who is in charge of the Lutheran Old People's Home. Several machine loads of local people are expected to make the trip. They will take their dinner along.

Sam Armstrong made the purchase alst week of a popcorn wagon at Auburn. It is now undergoing repairs and painting. Space has been rented from the I. O. O. F. lodge of Auburn, between the Postoffice and Schondelmayer's Store. This will give Sam an opportunity to better serve his patrons in every way.

DeKalb County will figure in the 1939 feeder road program with grading structures and surfacing on 6.63 miles of Road 327, from Road 6, north to the DeKalb-Steuben County Line. The road will be financed equally from state and federal funds. 92 miles of such feeder roads will be constructed at a cost of $800,000.

Mrs. Cleota Crick of Anderson, spent from Tuesday evening until Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Morr, and spending Friday in Auburn with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morr. Mr. Crick came Saturday and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morr, of Auburn, were all Saturday evening supper guests in the same home. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Promyre were evening callers.

Among the late candidates filing for office are Paul Dean and Golden High of Spencer Township, Democrat candidates for Trustee; Lewis Freeman, Republican, for Trustee of Jackson Twp., O. K. Shull, Marion Jennings and Vernie Monroe, Republicans, for Advisory Board, Concord Township.

Twenty-one years ago, on April 6, 1917, the United States declared war on Germany, an event whose anniversary poses the question of whether there will be another April 6th in the future for America. In some respects the world situation today is fraught with many of the same dangerous elements which contributed to the outbreak of 1914. In other respects there are factors present which are serving as checks to the ambitions of militarists and dictators.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

ENLARGEMENTS

Trimming and enlarging improve a picture. Both small and large picture here were made from the same negative. Any picture can be enlarged.

DO SOME of your pictures include too much — a lot of surplus background and material at top, bottom and sides that has little or nothing to do with the subject, and injures the picture effect?

Don't despair. Such pictures can be retrieved. Here's how: pick out the part you want, and have just that enlarged—to the size of the original print, or even larger.

For example, look at the picture of the little girl above. The head was the interesting part. Besides, her hands were too close to the camera, and showed up too large in the finished picture. The negative was "masked" in making the enlargement so that only the head showed. Result: a much better picture.

When you get a good picture, enlarge it! Any good snap is better when it's big. Enlarging "opens up" the details—lets you see interesting things you didn't see before. And a large picture just naturally has more appeal to the eye. Give a person two pictures, equally good, and he will automatically look at the larger one first. Moreover, he will look at it longer.

Don't let small size or surplus material handicap your pictures. Any snapshot can be enlarged somewhat, and some, especially those made on fine-grained film, can be increased many times in size. Very likely you have pictures in your album right now, that, if enlarged, would be worth framing and hanging in the home. Try it. You may discover you're a better snapshooter than you thought!

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

The pedestrian is still the cause of numerous traffic deaths

In 1937 almost fifty per cent of the people injured or killed in accidents involving automobiles were pedestrians. many of these accidents were caused by people walking on the wrong (the right-hand) side of the road in rural communities. This does occur in spite of the great number of bulletins, warnings, and splendid newspaper editorials which have appeared on the subject.

Every school, community, club and civic organization ought to stress continually the importance of pedestrians' obeying traffic rules and regulations.

Walk with the semaphore lights. Do not jaywalk. Do not cross in the middle of a block. If you must walk on highways or rural roads, walk on the left side of the road, facing the oncoming cars. These and many other warnings should be obeyed by all pedestrians.

Stop! Look! Listen!
Live longer!

Letters From Home

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Recently there descended on Congress from the folks back home a flood of protests on the so-called Reorganization Bill.

Specifically, many of the messages opposed features of the measure which constituents feared would remove certain brakes on spending of the public funds; would grant to the Executive branch of government powers they felt should be limited to the Legislative branch, and would change the administration of our Civil Service.

But fundamentally, in the opinion of experienced observers, what the public most feared was the possibility of further surrender by Congress of the powers and authority entrusted to it by the Constitution and the people.

This apprehension was not groundless. In recent years, in response to pleas of emergency, the public has seen many Congressmen willing to relinquish to the Executive branch of government and its bureaus responsibilities which they were elected to assume. Every surrender of such authority means, of course, a surrender of the power of the people those Congressmen represent.

If enough of that authority is bartered away, our boasted "balance of powers" between the Legislative, the Executive and the Judicial branches of government can become an empty phrase.

So long as that authority is retained by the people through their elected representatives, Democracy persists. If it is lost, Democracy falls. The Old World today offers eloquent evidence of what can happen to human freedom and human rights when representative government fails to assert itself.

That is something for Congressmen to remember when they read the mail which urges them to fulfill the responsibilities for which they were elected, and thus keep government close to their constituents, the people.

Hot Cross Buns Are Legendary

Whence came the hot cross bun Americans eat annually on Good Friday?

Several legends surround this institution, most of them apparently founded on the following explanation:

The early Greeks offered to Apollo, Diana and other gods, at the spring festival, corresponding to Easter in the Christian church, cakes or "bous," round with small horns. The round feature represented the moon, on which was placed four quarters, representing the stages of the moon.

The Christian church later adopted the custom, making buns of the same dough kneaded for the host, or bread or wafer used in the sacrament of holy communion.

PLAY TO BE GIVEN AGAIN WEATHER HURT CROWD

After six weeks of intensive training for producing the play "The Hoodooed Coon" by the local Dramatic Club last Friday night, as a band benefit, rain came in torrents and hindered many from attending. Of course everyone knew that the play would be a success, as the reputation of the club is well known by all. This play really affords an evening of entertainment.

Because of the many requests for the play to be given again, the club has agreed to do so at some date in the near future, giving all an opportunity to witness it.

VAST CROWD HEARS MESSAGE TO GRADUATES

The Baccalaureate Services, held at the Lutheran Church Sunday evening were attended by a full house. Special music appropriate for the Easter season was sung by the choir. Rev. Geo. Stevenson, local pastor, delivered the sermon.

This year's class numbers sixteen. Harold Baker, Ivan Brown, Walter Ervin, Donna Hindman, Delta Inlow, Alta Inlow, Ruby Madden, Maryellen Moudy, Virginia Poper, Blanche Strong, Florine Swander, Garnet Washler, Iris Wilmot, Eva Young, Pauline Donley and Walter Zonker, Jr.

The class was accompanied by the faculty and a number of the parents were also present.

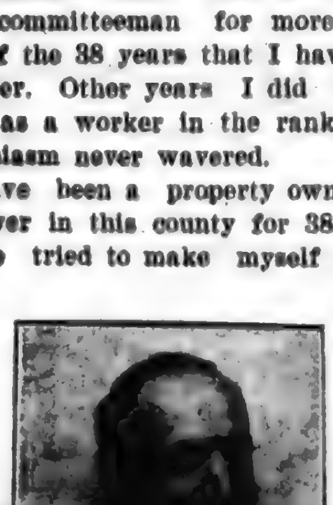
FOR COUNTY AUDITOR

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF DE KALB COUNTY:

I take this means of calling to your attention that I have been a precinct committeeman for more than half of the 38 years that I have been a voter. Other years I did what I could as a worker in the ranks. My enthusiasm never wavered.

I have been a property owner and taxpayer in this county for 38 years. I have tried to make myself conversant with the tax problems of both farm and city, and believe that such knowledge will be of benefit if elected to this office.



Now I ask your support for the nomination as County Auditor and promise that if nominated and elected I will try to so conduct the affairs of the office that my administration will reflect credit on the party as well as myself. LESTER FEAGLER.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283
Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month.

Walter Whitehurst Post No. 283 American Legion has been invited to send a delegation to the Tri-State American Legion Conference to be held at Hillsdale, Mich., June 18 and 19, according to Commander Lehr W. Wilder.

This conference is the first annual Tri-State event at which Legionnaires from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, will meet for a week-end of sports, entertainment and good fellowship.

Sponsored by Leighr A. Wright post No. 53 of Hillsdale, the "Oml" as the conference is termed, is being backed by the entire community of Hillsdale.

A committee of 50 persons is working on plans for the entertainment of thousands of Legionnaires and their ladies, and frienrs during the Saturday and Sunday conference.

The program will open Saturday afternoon with sporting events. The Hillsdale High School gym will be transformed into a gigantic banquet hall Saturday evening at which several personalities of prominence from the three states are expected to speak.

Sunday morning will be devoted to the entertainment of the Legionnaires at their respective out-door hobbies, including base ball, boat racing and golf. A nationally known air circus will perform over the fair grounds in the after noon, followed by the Pageant of the Flags presented by Hillsdale Lodge No. 1575 B. P. O. E. An address by the National American Legion Commander or his representative is scheduled for the closing of the conference.

Legionnaires, remember the date, June 18 and 19. This conference will be an ideal week end trip "along about knee-deep in June."

The next Fourth District meeting will be held at LaGrange. Auxiliary meeting in the afternoon and Legion meeting in the evening. The date will be announced later.

The local Legion Post rightfully feels proud of the outstanding young people who merit the distinction of receiving its 1938 School Award.

The programand granting awards will be held in the Spencerville Gymnasium, Friday evening April 15, at 7:30 C. S. T.

The following were the winners of the American Legion School Award:

WALTER COBURN TO CHANGE PASTORATES

A card from Walter Coburn, Corunna, has the following information of importance to the people of Coburn's Corners, and we reproduce it as follows:

Corunna, Ind, April 12, 1938.

"Dear Mr. Leighty:—I have resigned from the churches at Corunna and Coburn's Corners and will leave for my new charge at North Liberty, Ind., during the week following April 24. My farewell sermon will be preached at the Coburn Corners Church on Sunday evening April 17. This will end a ministry of almost six years there and two and one half here. The new charge is a full time church with a membership of about two hundred."

ABEL

Jennie Abel, daughter of Elijah and Mary (Flint) Thompson, was born in Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, August 21, 1861. She grew to womanhood and affiliated with the Coburn's Corners Community many years.

She was united in marriage to J. C. F. Abel on June 8, 1878. To this union was born one son, Glen, who now lives at Montpelier, Ohio. Several years ago they moved to St. Joe and have lived for many years in their home on Widney Ave. Her husband departed this life April 12, 1933. Shortly after his death she suffered a light stroke from which she never fully recovered and a few weeks ago she had another light stroke and was seemingly well on the road to recovery when an infection started in her right hand and spread rapidly. Her condition became so serious that she was taken in the Kinsey ambulance to the Bonnell Souder Hospital in Auburn last Friday afternoon and departed this life Monday evening April 11, 1938 at the age of 76 years, 7 months and 21 days.

She spent her entire life in this vicinity and her church membership is with the Coburn's Corners Congregation. She has a host of friends who will miss her cheery greeting and all feel her loss greatly. Besides the son, one half sister, Mrs. Artimitia O'Neal, of Traverse City, Michigan, and two half brothers, M. A. Hoyt, of Ringwood, Okla., and B. F. Hoyt, of Manhattan, Kan., and numerous other relatives and friends survive.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. J. N. Scholes will be held at 2 P. M. Thursday at the Kinsey Funeral Home with interment in the Riverside Cemetery, St. Joe.

BAKE SALE SATURDAY

The Friendly Circle Class of the Lutheran Sunday School will hold a bake sale in the store window of Kinsey's Hardware, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Provide that Sunday dinner with your baked goods from this sale.

LEE PORTS HOLBROOK

Republican candidate for nomination for Sheriff of DeKalb County, has been a resident of Butler Township all his life. The Holbrook family has lived in that locality for three generations and have been leading citizens and active in the Republican party.

Mr. Holbrook received his education in the public schools and the Logansport Business College. He has been an active worker for the Republican party, having served as precinct committeeman for many years and has freely given his time to the party and its candidates in past campaigns. If nominated for Sheriff in the primary, May 3rd, he will make a strong candidate, and if elected will fill the important office of Sheriff with credit to the people. The support of voters will be appreciated.

Easter Without Bunnies?

Nothing doing, said this youngster who found a whole colony of Easter bunnies to play with at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago. Rabbits and colored eggs are among the most popular symbols of this church event being observed throughout the Christian world April 17.

ST. JOE SHARES GASOLINE TAX DISTRIBUTION

DeKalb County and its municipalities received $33,601.68 from the gasoline tax distribution April 1, Laurence F. Sullivan, Auditor of State, announced today.

The following amounts, based on population, were made from the $2,000,000 fund:

DeKalb County, $30,257.92.
Altona, $81.43.
Ashley, $148.34.
Auburn, $1,211.50.
Butler, $391.21.
Corunna, $63.81.
Garrett, $1,054.35.
St. Joe, $96.91.
Waterloo, $296.21.
Total, $33,601.68.

Under the 1937 act, $2,000,000 is set aside annually to be distributed to cities and towns in equal quarterly payments, while the state general fund each year, receives a distribution of $1,250,000.

The remaining amount, after administrative expenses are deducted, is divided, two-thirds to the State Highway Commission and one-third to counties.

CERTIFIES PRIMARY CANDIDATES NAMES

The county board of election commissioners has certified the names of all the candidates who filed declarations in the office of County Clerk Carl Walter excepting that of Wirt Langley for the Republican nomination for Justice of the Peace of Union Township.

Mr. Langley presented his petition on the last night of the filing period and it contained the minimum number of voters, which was ten. The election commissioners found that one of the signers was not registered as a voter and therefore was not eligible to sign the petition.

The number of candidates to appear on the ballots is 332, of whom 191 are Democarts and 141 Republicans.

DEETZ RESIGNS AS THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE SECRETARY

Clyde C. Deetz, of Ashley, has tendered his resignation as secretary of the Democratic central committee of DeKalb County, according to Clayton M. Bailey, county chairman. Mr. Deetz, in a letter to Mr. Bailey, stated that he felt it best to withdraw from the position as he is now a candidate for County Auditor.

Philip Cool, of Jackson Township, who has been very active in Democratic circles, has been selected to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Deetz, which will end May 7. Mr. Cool is a brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio out of Garrett and is well known throughout the county.

LOCAL LADY TO BROADCAST

Mrs. Kathleen Scholes will make a radio talk next Wednesday afternoon, April 20, at 3:30 over Station WGL, on Child Welfare, as related to the American Legion Auxiliary. Friends are asked to tune in for this talk.

CONSERVATION GROUP TO MAKE DRIVE AGAINST CARP

There is considerable talk among the conservation members that some means should be provided to trap carp that comes into the back water, so at the club meeting last week, Roy Wade Lester Coburn and Frank Curie were placed on a committee to ascertain what could be done, and if anything, make it a federal project. This would assist in cleaning our river of much of this kind of fish. Two splendid sights were pointed out where this could be successfully carried out by the club.

The club county representatives were instructed to present to the county committee the possibility of a county fishing contest, to be sponsored by the entire county clubs instead of a local group.

The club also places a bounty on some of the most common pests for the summer as follows:

Carp, most pounds	$5.00
Red Fox	$1.00
Ground Hog	15c
Crows	10c
Red Tail Hen Hawk	50c
Great Horned Owl	50c

All those wishing to cash in on the bounty offered must report to the club president, Albert Moore. This is open to members of the club only.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, May 4.

An effort is being made to have a demonstration of bait casting.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

MUTINY AT MIDNIGHT

Quelling a mutiny would be an odd experience, even for the U. S. Marines. But a mutiny aboard a Siamese warship at midnight, which the marines were asked to put down, involved problems that the most imaginative sea soldier could not foresee.

It happened in 1853. The American warship Mississippi was lying at anchor in the Canton River, not far from Hong Kong, and several other naval vessels were anchored nearby. It was about midnight and all but the watch were fast asleep, when a nervous little Siamese officer came aboard and asked to see the American captain. The visitor was plainly distressed, and with signs, gesticulations and broken English he told of the calamity which had befallen his ship.

Cmmander Lee of the Mississippi made a quick decision. Soon the American and Siamese officers with ten marines embarked in a cutter and rowed away into the night, bound for an experience filled with great hazards as well as high adventure.

Under a midnight sky loomed the mutinous craft. The U. S. Marines pulled alongside. Soon they were aboard. Surprised by this sudden turn of events the mutineers gave way. One by one they were overcome and forced to give back the authority to their captain.

In less than four hours, the sea soldiers had embarked on a foreign warship, had restored order, were assured that the Siamese commander and the loyal members of his crew had regained full control, and had returned to their own ship in time for breakfast.

Fantastic as it may seem, the story of this midnight mutiny and its suppression is officially recorded in the log of the U. S. Mairnes.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

This week will end a pleasant and helpful year for the members of the Ladies Literary Club. One of the most enjoyable programs was the meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Hollis Dilley, when Mrs. George Beugnot, of Auburn, was a guest speaker.

Mrs. Beugnot's talk was on Club Federation and its work. Of especial interest was the History of the First Woman's Club organized and also that the second oldest club in the U. S. was the Minerva Club of New Harmony, Indiana. The Old Fauntleroy Home at this place was purchased by and is maintained as a shrine by the Indiana Federation of Clubs.

The ladies unanimously thanked Mrs. Beugnot for her most interesting talk and the helpful suggestions for carrying on the Federation work.

Guests present besides Mrs. Beugnot were Mrs. C. O. Krise and Mrs. Ralph Sechler. The hostess served a delicious lunch.

Officers for the year 1938-39 are:
President, Mrs. Glen Cole.
Vice President, Mrs. Hollis Dilley.
Recording Sec., Mrs. Lester Baker.
Cor. Sec., Mrs. C. A. Woodcox.
Treasurer, Mrs. Inez Hadsell.
Critic, Mrs. F. B. Leighty.
Parliamentarian, Miss Violet May.

FOR RECORDER

Simeon H. Maurer, a staunch supporter of Democracy and the Democratic Party, a life long resident of DeKalb County, will be a candidate for the office of County Recorder subject to the Primary May 3, 1938. Your favors and support will be appreciated.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts of livestock in all departments except the calf department were light this week. The buying was active on a strictly sellers market.

Hogs: 175 to 225, $8.50 to $8.65. Roughs, $7.40 to $7.45. Boars, $4.00 to $6.15. Feeder pigs were higher than a week ago.

Calves made a top of $11.20 with the quality noticably higher than last week. The medium quality calves sold in a price range of $9.50 to $11.00. Receipts were very light in the cattle department but sales were good at sharply advanced prices. Butcher cows topped at $5.60; heifers good enough to kill, $6.50. Bulls from $5.75 to $6.10.

I know no such thing as genius; it is nothing but labor and diligence.

Happiness in this world depends chiefly on the ability to take things as they come.

Since spanking has gone out of style a lot of parents have to take it out on each other instead of the children.

Who can remember the old-fashioned candidate who promised: "Elect me, and I'll reduce your taxes."

The more absurd a man's belief, the madder he gets when you fail to agree with him.

BOWMAN'S DRUG STORE
St. Joe, Indiana.

It may be difficult for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven, but it's just as tough for a poor man to hang around on earth.

Grandfather and grandmother used to walk miles to school through all kinds of weather. Now their grandchildren complain if they haven't a streamlined, air conditioned school bus with a radio in it.

Most citizens would find their wishes coming true oftener if they didn't make so many of them while they're sitting down.

It's a good idea to have things right where you want them when you need them, but that doesn't work out in regard to parking space.

When a St. Joe married man tells you that marriage is heavenly, it probably means that he and his wife are always harping after each other.

Dad says he is not right sure what his birthstone is, but at last reports he is inclined to believe it is a grindstone.

If you feel you are not getting anything out of your community, then try putting something in.

Fear is uppermost in the heart of almost every American politician today—fear that he won't be re-eletced, and that fear is more apparent since last week when the citizens protested the passage of the re-organization bill.

The easiest way to tell the difference between a fact and a theory is to remember that a fact doesn't need a lot of four-cylinder words to put it over.

It remains a debatable question whether the automobiles are ruining the younger generation or whether the younger generation are ruining the automobiles.

"HE IS RISEN"

Life, earth's greatest gift to the human race, has taken on a brighter hue within the past few weeks, for the season of Spring has returned and with it a deeper evidence of this gift, and its meaning to mankind. Again the green gets back into the trees, the flowers put forth their blooms, the song of God's feathered songsters is heard in all the land. It is the season of resurrection.

Who is there to stand among men, amid all this evidence of life, and of a new-born life, and doubt the promise of One who said in ages past "I will give you a new heaven and a new earth." Who can watch the unfolding of his natural blessings to mankind as Easter, the day of resurrection approaches, and question mankind's nativity, his way of salvation or his ultimate fate? Surely if all other proof failed of a divinity that shapes our ends, the Easter season would be sufficient.

Deep down in your heart as the anniversary morn approaches there must be an inspiration of the new life on all sides, the new beauties, the new desire to sing aloud the praise of One who alone knows the plan along which the old world moves, who alone has compass over all living, breathing within it.

And again, as this old world comes to shout the gladdest message that ever fell from human lips—"He is risen." Surely there is not one citizen of St. Joe but who finds again joy and gladness and hope and faith in its meaning to mankind.

It is Eastertide—the day of new life, new inspiration. Take new hope, therefore, all ye children of an all-high God, and let not your heart forget the story of it, for it is the story of the Salvation of the world.

A FORTUNE TO SHARE

STEPPED ONTO ONE OF THOSE PENNY SCALES out of which a little cardboard drops with one's weight on one side and one's fortune on the other, My fortune read: "You have the happy faculty of making things pleasant for those around you."

Penny scales can't think, let alone read character, but there is no quality I would rather possess than the ability to make things pleasant for those whom my life touches.

My own life is richer because I have had the good fortune to meet a number of fine men and women whose purpose in life seems to be to make life more worthwhile for those with whom they come in contact. They are kind, thoughtful, considerate. They have encouraged and inspired me. They have helped me over rough places. I feel I owe much of my humble success to them. They stand out in my mind as the most helpful men and women who have touched my life.

If we all considered the other fellow, if we all tried to make things more pleasant for those about us, what a great world this would be!

THE HOBO'S RETURN

It won't be long now until the hobo will answer the call of his mate and rural residents will again lose heavily in farm vegetables and poultry. The hobo army is greasing up its dilapilated flivvers preparatory to bumming enough gasoline money to "hit the road"—roaming all over the countryside, living off of somebody else. They don't ride the freight trains any more, to amount to anything. They find their transportation problems more easily solved if they can get hold of an old rattle-trap auto. Besides, with the auto, they can steal what they need and get into another county in less time and with smaller chance of detection. There will be the usual number of them in this section for the next several months to come, so our advice for residents around St. Joe is to make it so unwelcome for the first few that come through that it will get to the others that this is pretty good territory to stay out of.

QUIT POSTPONING

Weather changes are always somewhat indefinite, and waiting on them to become 100 per cent perfect before starting spring house cleaning alomst always results in delays that make the job harder in the long run. Somehow it seems that the women who take chances on the weather and get at it regardless always find the task lightest. And always the ones who, as a result of it, always have the most leisure time. No matter how clean any St. Joe woman may keep her house and premises, there is always something to be done in the way of cleaning and brightening up at this season. Paint, and paper and whitewash do not stay bright forever; they must be removed every so often. Winter brings trash and rubbish to yards and alleys, no matter what size town one resides in. But nothing is to be gained by using the weather as a schedule for removing it. Spring is officially here by the calendar. That means it's time to do spring cleaning, and it also means that those who get at the job without further delay will be rewarded by having more leisure time later on, possibly when they need it most.

IT SOUNDS QUEER

Wisconsin's new law to prevent trucking over the main highways on week-ends and holidays is going to be watched all over the country. It will come as a surprise to motorists to be told that instead of entering a protest against the new law the big trucking companies actually are welcoming it, so there will be no opposition from that source, queer as it may sound. They contend they can, by shifting schedules, get the most necessary part of their freight in the clear in time to observe the week-end as a holiday. They say it will provide more time for overhauling and needed repairs, and that means a saving of money. It will mean shorter driving hours, and that means their drivers will always be in better condition. And their damage suits will dwindle because most of their accidents are said to be over the week-ends. So the balance of the country is watching what promises to be one of the most advanced steps toward safety taken in this country in a long time.

UNSUNG HEROES

There are heroes to be found in all walks of life, and every time we read or hear of their exploits our faith in the finer quality of human nature seems to be bolstered anew. Down one of the steep mountains in Western Pennsylvania a Maryland driver was guiding his heavily-ladened truck. He discovered that his brakes were not working, and almost at the samt time he saw two passenger cars approaching. To avoid the impending collision he risked his own life by taking a chance and turning the big truck into a side road. It crashed into the bank, upset, and he lost his life beneath the wreckage. Unselfishness is always a mark of true heroism. This unheralded truck driver gambled with his own life to save the lives of others. He lost the gamble, and the penalty was death. There are many unsung heroes.

OPTICAL ILLUSION

LIKE TO GO PLACES? I do. One of my earliest recollections is that of kneeling on a seat in one of the old "day coaches" nose pressed against the glass....waiting for the train to pull out. Not more than two feet away, the train on the next track would start—it always went first—and I'd shout gleefully: "Look, Daddy! We're moving!"

But, as the last coach slowly rolled past, I would be very disappointed to find that we were still waiting to go!

It wasn't until later years that the force of this childish illusion registered its importance. Then I discovered that sometimes, as I watched others "going places" on the road to fame, success, personal achievement, I would say: "Look, we're going."

In watching them, I did not realize that they were the only ones moving ....until they were out of sight. Then I discovered that I had to look to my own power, initiative and "steam" to get me there. In other words, I learned that what was inside of me made me go......and if my friends went places and did things that I didn't, it was because they knew how to use that same power inside of them to better advantage.

Since then, I have been vastly more concerned about my own train than the conveyances upon which the others ride. Our business in life is not to get ahead of others, but to get ahead of ourselves.

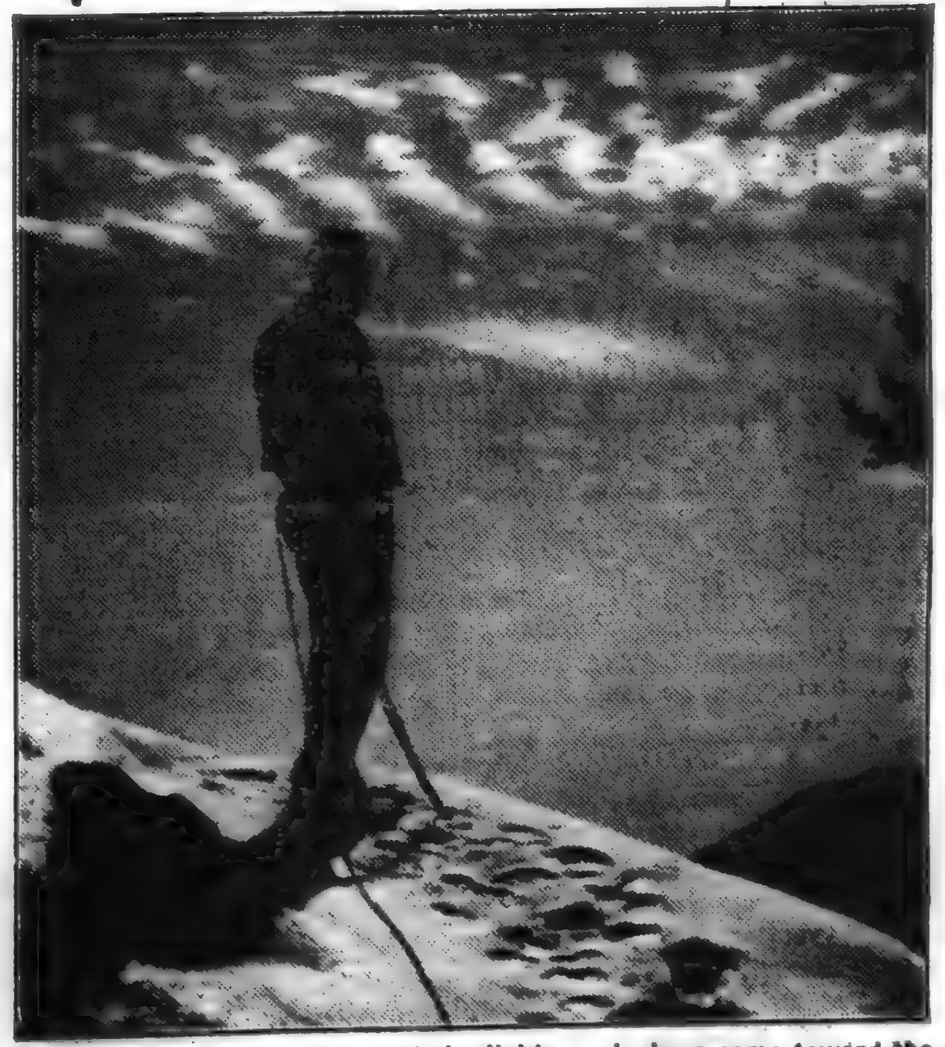
The SNAPSHOT GUILD

AGAINST THE LIGHT



This scene was snapped against the light, so shadows come toward the camera. Ordinary exposure gives the silhouette effect. A lens shade must be used—if direct sun rays strike the glass, they spoil the picture.

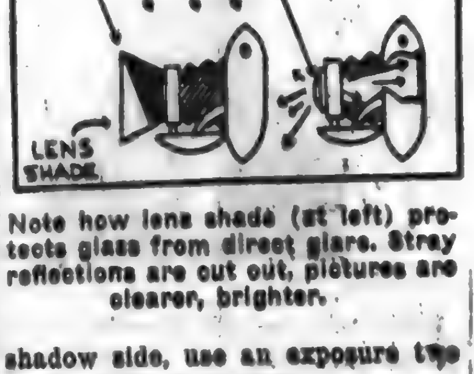
HAVE you ever tried taking pictures "against the light"— that is, with sun or photo lights beyond the subject so that the shadows point toward you instead of away from you?

This lighting is a source of many interesting pictures. Striking silhouettes of trees and persons can be obtained. Sunlight, coming from above and slightly behind the subject in an informal portrait, gives appealing highlights on hair and shoulders. Numerous "different" effects are possible.

When you take such pictures, your lens must be shaded so direct rays of sunlight or artificial light do not strike it. An inexpensive lens hood or sun shade (see diagram) is very useful, and slips on easily. Indeed, it is an advantage to use such a shade for many pictures. It cuts out stray sidelights and reflections, gives brighter, "snappier" pictures.

Of course, when the sun is low in the sky—almost on a line with your lens, the hood may not help, but frequently you can find a position where the sun will be hidden behind a tree trunk. Then the shadow of the tree will serve to shade your lens.

In "against the light" pictures, where the light is intense, give the ordinary exposure if you want a silhouette effect. To get details in the shadow side, use an exposure two or three times as long.



Note how lens shade (at left) protects glass from direct glare. Stray reflections are cut out, pictures are clearer, brighter.

For informal portrait studies, with the sun back of your subject, arrange a sheet of white cardboard or cloth so that it reflects light on the subject's face. And when the sky is the background of your picture, use a sky filter on the lens. This darkens the sky a bit and makes sunlit subjects stand out. It slips on the lens just as the sun shade does.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

BUSINESS—The unseasonal weather last week in many parts of the country and heavy snowfall in the Middle Western area and Atlantic seaboard had a dampening effect on pre-Easter sales in retail stores. April retail trade generally, however, is expected to show considerable improvement over March. Three important items last week would indicate that business is slowly turning upward. First, shipments of the United States Steel Company last month were the largest since November, totaling 575,000 tons; second, sales of new automobiles turned upward for the first time since last July; and third, engineering construction awards for new buildings were the best in March since 1930 and were 32% ahead of 1937.

WASHINGTON — Most important development of the week in the Capitol was the defeat of the reorganization bill by the House of Representatives. With the House in revolt it seems likely that the highly controversial wages and hours bill will also be tabled for the present. The administration announced a new plan for an enlarged public works program which will require an expenditure of from two to six billion dollars. It is proposed to finance this in part by non-interest bearing loans to local communities which would be callable in 50 years. Despite this feature the national debt will skyrocket well over the 40 billion dollar mark if the plan is approved.

WHEAT CROP—Crop experts predict that the largest winter wheat crop since 1931 is in the making and estimate that the crop will run to 717,000,000 bushels, which would be some 30,000,000 bushels greater than last year's crop. It is believed that the winter wheat crop alone will exceed domestic needs by some 70,000,000 bushels. Unless a sudden demand for wheat develops from abroad it is likely that farmers will receive less for wheat this year than in several years past. Early last week May wheat declined to approximately 80 cents a bushel, lowest it has been in three years, then British flour makers began to buy and the price rose.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR — A chemically treated package of charcoal and shredded paper, which it is claimed will bring the fire in your furnace to full flame in five minutes.. ....chromium steel "wall paper" for rooms......unbreakable eyeglasses made of transparent plastic material ......antiseptic paint to keep walls sterile, made with ethylal which gives off vapor deadly to germs....automatic base ball thrower which will put any kind of a curse on a ball.....bed mounted on pulleys so that it can be raised to ceiling during daytime...... a coal dust carburetor which its inventor claims will run an automobile 35 miles on a gallon of dust.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

One thing that amuses an editor is the remarkable number of college graduates who can't spell.

Dr. Price says he can remember the time when the first thing a fellow did after falling in love was to have his picture taken.

Good old days were those when young people worked hard to support the old folks. Now the idea is to pension the old folks so they can support the youngsters.

EASTER CANTATA

"The King Triumphant" an Easter Cantata will be given Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Lutheran Church, by members of the choir, assisted by others of the community, under the leadership of Leslie Wilbern. The program cannot be printed because of the lack of room.

Rev. Geo. Stevenson will bring the Easter message. The public is cordially invited.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Ladies Home Bureau will meet Friday afternoon of this week, April 15th at the home of Mrs. Ethel Wineland in St. Joe. Numbers on the program will be given by Mrs. Arline Koch, Mrs. Laura Washler, Mrs. Vada Wyatt, Mrs. Iva Yeiser, Mrs. Katie Storer; Mrs. Hulda Reasoner and Mrs. Ruth Wise. Project leaders Mrs. Wineland and Mrs. Sible will give the lesson which was given by Miss Aneta Beadle in Auburn April 7th. Plans will be completed for the club to attend the meeting at News-Sentinel Kitchen Institute in Fort Wayne on Monday, May 2nd. The committee assisting Mrs. Wineland will be Mrs. Maude Jenkins, Mrs. Beulah Coburn and Mrs. Mayola Kinsey.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

The Lutheran Ladies Aid Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Edith Cole. The ladies are requested to take their thimbles, shears and needles.

Mrs. Velma Mohney and daughter, of New London, Ohio, and Mrs. Inez Girardo and daughter, of Fort Wayne, are here visiting their mother, Mrs. Letha Kinsey.

Clayton Wyatt and family, of Fort Wayne, M. H. Andress and Harry Hursh and their wives, were Sunday guests of Lloyd Miller and wife west of Hudson, Mich.

While skating on the pavement Monday evening, Carma Jean Wilcox, fell striking her head and rendering her unconscious for some time. Tuesday morning she was about.

Mrs. Emily Hallabaugh, of Washington, D. C., arrived home for a few days visit. She is on her vacation trip and will visit in California before returning to her work.

Mrs. Nettie Hess, of Painesville, O., was a Saturday afternoon guest of her brother, J. C. Hull, and wife. She was enroute to South Haven, Mich., to visit her sister, Mrs. Emma Slentz.

Joe Miller, wife and baby and Miss Jane Clouse were Sunday afternoon guests in the Henry Engle home. Mrs. Harry Clouse and Mrs. Laura Hull stopped in the J. C. Hull home for a short visit.

Curtis A. Harris, of Ensley Ave., Auburn, has purchased the Henry Shroyer property just west of the grist mill. Possession will be given in a few days, when Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weicht will vacate.

Seventeen men of the Lutheran Church attended the Brotherhood meeting at the home of F. B. Leighty, Monday evening. Ralph Sechler was the leader for April, and Derwood Ridgway, Merritt Sechler and Harry Hursh discussed phases of the topic. The social hour and luncheon concluded the evening. W. L. Hamilton will be host to the May meeting.

Rev. Milton Fronsoe and family are moving into the Kosht farm home north of St Joe on Road One. They have been living in Butler and serving the St. Joe and Newville Christian Churches. This will place him in the center of his territory. Electricity was connected last week to this property, adding much to the pleasantness of a rural home.

The Lutheran Missionary Society had planned last Thursday to drive to Mulberry, Ind., to visit their Old People's Home and Rev. Ferster, but owing to the storm they postponed it until Saturday and then high water prevented them from making the trip. All who had planned to go, met at the church Sunday for a pot luck dinner. Eleven dinners were sent out to the sick and shut-in.

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

The 1938 American Legion School awards were presented to the winners from Harlan, Spencerville, Newville, Newville Center and St. Joe on Friday evening, April 15 at the Spencerville community hall by Commander Lehr Wilder of Post 283 of St. Joe. The Post serves the five communities.

Comrade Carl Graham, Commander of the Fourth District gave in inspiring address before a large and appreciative audience.

Commander Graham spoke on the points by which the award winners were selected, stressing the fact that if America is to continue, a government by the people, the future leaders and citizens must be educated in citizenship, leadership, initiative and instructed in the processes of our Democratic form of government.

Comrad Reidenbach gave a talk on the Legion insignia and what it represents to those who are privileged to wear it.

The numbers by the various schools were given in a very creditable manner and were well received by the auidence.

The Legion Posts of LaGrange and Wolcottville will be hosts to the Fourth District meeting which will be held May 12 at Oliver Lake.

HOME BUREAU

Mrs. Ethel Wineland was hostess to ladies of the Home Bureau for their April meeting. The program consisted of a group of songs led by Mrs. Laura Washler. Business. Secretary's report, respones to roll call, my favorite wild flower. The value of different foods was instructive and well given by the project leaders, Mrs. Clara Sible and Ethel Wineland. A short story "God and the Governor" was read by Mrs. Arline Koch. "The origin of April Fool Day" was well presented by Mrs. Katie Storer.

Laura Washler gave a reading entitled "The Church Walking with the World." A very amusing contest blow your balloon was conducted by Mrs. Ruth Wise, the prize was won by Mrs. Katie Storer. The hostess assisted by the committee served hot buttered buns, potato salad, pickled eggs, fudge and coffee.

The next meeting will be held at News-Sentinel Kitchen Institute, Fort Wayne, May 2. Mrs. Storer and Mrs. Wineland were appointed to arrange transportation. Any club member who can drive and can take others with them or any member who desires a way please notify either of the above ladies before April 29.

Progress vs. Politics

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past few weeks various groups of citizens have appeared before Committees of Congress to urge constructive action in the cause of recovery.

They have been asking government to lift its foot from the brakes which slow down progress, re-employment, and our national well-being.

America, they have pointed out, has the resources, the energy, the strength and the intelligence to continue the program which in a century and a half developed our country from a fledgling republic into one of the greatest nations in history, and created high standards of living for its people.

In these statements they are supported by established facts. They, and the many American workers and earners whom they represent, can show that in the United States we have, in addition to generous natural resources, more automobiles, more telephones, more radios, more railroads than any nation on earth.

They can show that the purchasing power of the American people is greater than the purchasing power of all the millions in Europe or in Asia.

They can add that the American people top the list in facilities for education for all. Throughout the world our nation is acknowledged as the home of religious tolerance and widespread opportunity.

These things, they can show, were not the gifts of office-holders and politicians. They were created and developed by the initiative, the strength and the love of freedom of the people themselves.

With such facts not only evident, but universally acknowledged, the average citizen continues to ask that our progress be allowed to continue, unchecked by the hand of politics, whether it bears gifts or a goad.

Congress, it would seem, is lending a more willing ear to the demands of the people. In several recent instances it has demonstrated a readiness to put their desires above the promises and the pressure of politics.

All Americans will hope that Congressmen continue to consider the demands of the people above the voice of politics, and thus set us again on the road to recovery and re-employment.

MORTUARY

HAY

Valentine Hay, age 78 years, 2 months and 1 day, the son of Michael and Cordella Hay, was born in Kosciusko County, February 13, 1860 and departed this life April 14, 1938. He was united in marriage on September 25, 1880 to Elizabeth Hursh. To this union were born six daughters, all of whom survive: Mrs. Ray Baker, Mrs. Charles Brattain, Mrs. Elmer Smith and Mrs. Charles Kimes all of Spencerville, Mrs. Alva Place of Ft. Wayne and Mrs. Samuel Bowerman, of Angola. Besides the six children, he leaves one sister, Mrs. Lottie Hohman, of Warsaw and one brother, Jess Hay, of Warsaw, nineteen grandchildren and eight great gradchildren and many other relatives and friends.

He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Spencerville and for many years has been a member and left this toilsome journey to enter the land of rest where suffering and pain are never known.

Funeral services were conducted from the home Sunday afternoon with Rev. Earl Clayton officiating. Interment was made in White City Cemetery.

HULL

John C. Hull, died at his home in St. Joe Sunday morning at 6:15 from heart trouble. He was nearly 76 years old and was St. Joe's oldest business man, having been a barber here for over fifty years.

Mr. Hull had been in failing health for two years but since Christmas morning he had not been able to be at his shop to work and was bedfast only the last two weeks.

The deceased was the son of Augustus and Samantha Hull and was born June 22, 1862 on a farm one-half mile north of St. Joe. He had three brothers and four sisters, two sisters of whom survive, Mrs. Emma Slentz, of South Haven, Michigan, and Mrs. Nettie Hess, of Painesville, Ohio.

He was united in marriage to Miss Loretta Quance of Spencerville, February 27, 1884. There were two children, Lora, wife of Fred B. Leighty, of St. Joe, and Merritt, who died a few years ago.

He had been a member of the M. P. Church of St. Joe since 1899, was a member of the Auburn unit of the I. O. O. F. Lodge and the Encampment at Butler.

For a period of one year and seven months in 1885 and 1886 Mr. and Mrs. Hull conducted a barber shop and hotel at Auburn Junction. And for about three months he barbered at Payne, Ohio. Since March of 1886 he has continuously barbered in St. Joe. He also conducted an insurance agency in connection with his business for many years.

The funeral services were conducted from the home on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein officiating, assisted by Rev. Fred Clark of Elwood, Indiana and Rev. Otis Jones of New Haven. Interment was made in Riverside Cemetery. Mayola Kinsey & Son in charge.

CARD OF THANKS

A busy business life of over fifty years has been discontinued and we fully appreciate the friendships made by J. C. Hull during these years. Your expressions of friendship and sympathy have been a great consolation to us and will continue to be so in the days to come. Again we wish to thank you.

Mrs. J. C. Hull.
F. B. Leighty and wife.

NAMED AS MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD

Ralph Sechler of St. Joe to Take the Place of Late J. C. Hull in Welfare Group—Five Age Pensions Granted

An order was entered in the DeKalb circuit court by Judge Endicott appointing Ralph Sechler, residing a mile northeast of St. Joe, as a member of the county board of public welfare.

Mr. Sechler will complete the four year term of the late John C. Hull of St. Joe, which expires April 1, 1940. Like his predecessor, Mr. Sechler is a democrat. He was graduated from the Butler high school and Indiana State Normal college and is a World war veteran. For some years he has been engaged in the business of packing pickles, catsup, mustard and kraut under the name of St. Joe Valley Brands.

The county board considered thirty-one cases at its monthly meeting in the court house Thursday night. Five new age assistance awards were granted, three new applications were rejected and one case was continued for further investigation. Fourteen age payments were ordered continued without change. Four changes were made, three being increases and the fourth a reduction. Three deaths of the age beneficiaries during the last month were reported.

Recommendation was made to the state board that assistance to one blind person be increased.

Of three new children's cases considered, one award was granted, one application was rejected and in the third case assistance was granted to a woman for grandchildren. The woman is also receiving assistance for her own children. This is the first instance of the kind in DeKalb county.

Miss Nora Brown, county director, and Wilbur Kimmell, the secretary of the board and county parole officer, were in Fort Wayne Wednesday attending a regional meeting sponsored by the state division of corrections. The principal speaker was Dr. Edwin Sutherland, professor of social work at Indiana university and a noted criminologist. Sixteen counties were represented at the conference.

CANCER FATAL TO JOHN H. REINOEHL

DeKalb County Resident Failed by Two Years of Achieving Ambition to Teach School for Half a Century

Cancer of the stomach claimed the life of John H. Reinoehl, a teacher in DeKalb county schools for forty-eight years, Wednesday night at 11 o'clock. Mr. Reinoehl passed away at his home in Fairfield township two miles west and one mile south of Ashley.

The deceased failed to reach his great ambition in life—to teach for half a century—but only by two years. He was an instructor in the grades and taught in the schools in Garrett, Keyser township, St. Joe, and Fairfield township. Last year he was teacher in the Schopf school, south of Garrett in Keyser township, but was forced to give up the work at the end of the term because of poor health.

In addition to teaching, Mr. Reinoehl for ten years operated the telephone exchange at St. Joe. The deceased was born in Fairfield township on Sept. 8, 1869 and was 68 years of age at the time of his death. He started teaching at the age of 19 years.

Mr. Reinoehl was married twice, first to Miss Effie Hamman and in 1916 to Miss Cora Stomm. Following are the surviving relatives: The widow, three sons by the first marriage; Henry S. of Fort Wayne, Willis W. of Fairfield township and Harold E. at home; two sons and two daughters by the second marriage, Olga May, a student at Purdue, Ruth, John and Paul at home and one grandchild, Billie Lee Reinoehl.

Mr. Reinoehl was a member of the Odd Fellows and K. of P. lodges.

Funeral services will be held at the South Hudson church at 1:30 central time Sunday afternoon. Interment will be made in the Fairfield Center cemetery.

LICENSED TO WED

Lester Haver, 24, clerk, and Marie Maxine Beree, 18, Butler.

Terry Lee Wright, 23, machinist, and Bethel Berlene Beree, 19, Butler.

TOP HATS!

Top Hats were the order of the day, the occasion being the banquet given in honor of the Seniors by the members of the Junior Class at Miller's Cafeteria in Fort Wayne, Saturday evening, April 16, 1938.

The tables were attractively decorated with a top hat centerpiece filled with spring flowers, miniature top hats concealing the nut cups and tall white wax candles with black top hat holders. The place card programs were also miniature top hats. Each Senior girl was presenfed with a wrist corsage of erd roses, the class flower, and each Senior boy with a rose boutonniere. James Maxwell, Junior Class President welcomed the Seniors, whose response was given by their President, Garnet Washler. Between courses Gwenevere Jenkins prophesied the future of each Senior and Virginia Poper read the Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1938.

The party was then directed to the Emboyd Theatre where they enjoyed the current picture "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" as guests of the Junior Class.

ANNIVERSARY DAY FOR AUBURN CLUB

Members of Ladies Literary, Organized 57 Years Ago, Observe Occasion with Luncheon and Program

The fifty-sixth anniversary of the Ladies Literary club of Auburn was observed by a luncheon Tuesday at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. D. M. Link on North Main street. Active, associate and honorary members of the club and members of the Kenwigs club, the junior organization, were present.

Small tables were placed in the two spacious living rooms of the Link home, each centered with jonquils and ferns, the club colors being yellow and green. The large table in the dining room also had a center bouquet of jonquils. The menu for the luncheon consisted of escalloped potatoes, ham loaf, baked beans, assorted relishes, celery and tomatoes, light rolls, loaf ice cream centered with a jonquil and rolled in ground nuts, assorted light and dark cakes, cookies, date balls and coffee.

The program followed with Mrs. Harold Nugen singing two numbers. "The Slave Song" and "When I Have Sung My Song."

Little Miss Suzanne Weathers gave two readings in costume, "Dutch Dolly" and "Ittle Bittie Sister" followed by Miss Elizabeth Carper at the piano playing "Romance of Laughing Water."

Mrs. B. O. Fink told of her recent trip to Hawaii and gave a vivid mental picture to all those present of the gorgeous colors and beautiful scenery of the islands.

The club president, Mrs. Frank Weathers, in a short talk, expressed the club's sympathy to Mrs. Dorothy Eagles and Victor McCord in the death of their mother, who was an honorary member of the Ladies Literary organization.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH CORONER'S VERDICT

Noble County Official Completes His Investigation of Crash in which Mrs. Matilda McCord of Auburn was Injured

Accidental death was the verdict returned by Coroner Myron Hutchins of Kendallville Wednesday after completing his investigation of the automobile collision in which Mrs. Matilda McCord, aged 75, of Auburn, lost her life.

Mrs. McCord died Sunday night as the result of injuries received at Skinner lake, near Albion, Ind.

Coroner Hutchins says that witnesses testified that Ray C. Dilgard of Auburn, in whose car Mrs. McCord was riding, with Mrs. Dilgard and her sister, Mrs. Leone Hicks, was driving about thirty miles an hour at the point of the accident. The highway is half concrete and half gravel. The coroner reported Wednesday that Mr. Dilgard's Cord automobile was half on and half off the concrete when it collided with a Model A Ford Tudor sedan being driven by Harold Magnuson, 23, of Wawaka. With Mr. Magnuson was another young man, Robert Inks, 23, of Elkhart. Magnuson is employed at the Auburn Rubber Corp. plant in Auburn.

Mr. Magnuson drove out from the Skinner lake dance resort between a lane of parked cars onto the highway without stopping, the coroner says. The car of Mr. Magnuson was struck on the right side at the front fender and door and upset. Mr. Magnuson received a gash on the top of his head and Mr. Inks a cut and bruises on his face. The latter was thrown out of the car.

Mr. Hutchins said the accident is being investigated by state police at the Ligonier barracks and the matter is now out of his jurisdiction.

Coroner Hutchins, after examination of the body had disclosed no direct evidences of injury in the crash, stated Wednesday that Mrs. McCord died of acute thyroid edema, a condition superinduced by the impact of a blow received on the neck when Mrs. McCord was hurled against the rear of the front automobile seat. Mrs. McCord was afflicted with a goiter, the blow on the neck causing enlargement and eventually strangling her to death as she was rushed to Lakeside hospital in Kendallville preparatory to an emergency operation.

Funeral services for Mrs. McCord were held at her residence on West Seventh street at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Hubert F. Craven, pastor of the First Presbyterian church officiated and burial was made in Woodlawn cemetery.

REACH AGREEMENT ON STOCK EXHIBITS

Satisfactory Plan for Location of Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Sheep During the DeKalb County Fair Worked Out

A plan satisfactory to a representative of the board of directors of the DeKalb County Fair Association and the streets and alleys committee of the city council for the placing of tents for livestock during fair week, October 4 to 8, was decided upon Tuesday night at a special meeting at the city hall.

The horses and cattle will be housed in tents on Cedar street from Eleventh street north. The sheep and swine will be placed on the county lot near the power house west of Union street. This is the same location as last year.

Residents in the vicinity of South Union street objected to the horse tent being placed on that street on account of the odor and the meeting Tuesday night was a continuation of one Monday night when fair officials asked the councilmen to give them permission to use the streets for fair purposes.

The council committee requested fair officials at Tuesday night's meeting to furnish special police to take care of the parking of automobiles during the fair this year. For several years the city has furnished police for this purpose but there was not a sufficient number to cope with the situation and prevent congestion in traffic. The request will be placed before the fair directors. Funds are not available by the city to hire the large number of special police necessary to look after parking and the fair association was asked to cooperate with the city in this respect.

WORK PROGRESSING ON ATHLETIC FIELD

Former Robbins Baseball Park in Auburn is being Converted into Modern Playground—Entire Field to be Fenced

Work is progressing on the athletic field in South Auburn, formerly Robbins baseball park. The straight track, 640 feet long and 24 feet wide, permitting eight 3-foot lanes is nearly finished. The track is constructed of coarse stone for a base, coarse and fine gravel and a layer of coarse cinders, with a top of fine cinders, making a course which will be well drained.

The circular quarter-mile track is now under construction. The football field is being graded. In addition there will be a court for softball and two courts for tennis. The remainder of the field, containing nearly five acres, will be graded and seeded with grass. The entire field will be fenced.

DANGEROUS CRIMINAL FACES LIFE SENTENCE IN INDIANA

Laporte, Ind., April 21.—Russell Knickelbein, 36, once regarded as "the most dangerous man at large in Indiana," today awaited arraignment on a habitual criminal charge, conviction on which will mean a life sentence.

Knickelbein, caught in Chicago Saturday after a series of robberies in northern Indiana and Illinois, was returned here yesterday by Sheriff Joe Wolf, lodged in the same jail, but unknown to Knickelbein, is Mrs. Bertha Meading, suspected of being an accomplice in many of the robberies.

Sheriff Wolf said Knickelbein readily talked of his crime career and identified Burt Garrison, Laporte taxi driver, as one of his victims.

THREE AUBURN STUDENTS ARE LISTED IN "WHO'S WHO" GROUP

John Rice, aged 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfreth Rice of 801 South Jackson street, a fourth grade pupil in the Harrison school, Harold W. Carmer, age 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carmer of 411 East Ninth street, in the second grade of the DeSoto school and Jane Schooley, age 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schooley of 367 West Seventh street, who is in the third grade of the Harrison school, are listed in "Who's Who" of the third annual exhibition of "Young America Paints."

The paintings of the three Auburn school children were exhibited at Rockefeller Center, New York City from March 5 to March 19. Paintings for the exhibit are selected from the best work done in public, private and parochial schools in every part of the United States.

UNION LEADERS SENTENCED FOR FATAL INDIANA STONING

Indianapolis, April 20.—More than three years after John M. Penny was found unconscious in a truck which had been stoned by labor agitators, Harry Peats, age forty-four, and Victor Crickmore, age thirty-five, today were sentenced to two to twenty-one years at the Indiana state prison for manslaughter.

There they will join Gerald Haygood, who turned state's evidence and pleaded guilty, receiving a similar sentence in 1936.

Neither Cox nor Peats had any comment to make. Crickmore's attorney, Clyde C. Kurrer, said he believed his client was not guilty, and when the judge asked whether Crickmore had anything to say he responded: "I'm not guilty."

Although Peats and Crickmore were convicted in 1936, each appealed. The Indiana supreme court recently upheld their convictions and also denied rehearings, thus forcing them to start serving their sentences. They and Haysgood were connected with the Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, Local No. 135, as was Joseph Emmett Williams, who was acquitted.

The attack on Penny, a driver for the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, occurred in the National road near Belleville in March, 1935. It was the climax to a year's campaign of rock throwing and intimidation intended to compel Kroger drivers to join the union. Penny died in a hospital in Indianapolis, and because of this the state elected to try his alleged assailants here, although the rocks actually struck him in Hendricks county.

Two young women witnesses testified at the trials that they were riding with Crickmore and Haygood when the rocks were thrown. Peats, according to evidence presented at the trial, was the official who instructed the men to "go out and get some trucks."

FORT WAYNE PRESBYTERY TO MEET IN AUBURN IN FALL

The fall meeting of the Fort Wayne Presbytery will be held in the First Presbyterian church in Auburn, it was decided at the spring meeting at Ligonier on Monday. Rev. Hubert F. Craven, pastor of the Auburn church, attended the meeting. Rev. Craven will continue as chairman of the National Missions board of the Fort Wayne Presbytery and by virtue of that position will also be a member of the synodical Board of Missions for Indiana.

Pastors and laymen were present from twenty-eight churches in the Fort Wayne Presbytery.

Rev. A. P. Bourns of Fort Wayne, a former Auburn pastor, for 14 years stated clerk and treasurer, was unanimously re-elected for a three-year term.

Rev. H. J. Jordan of Garrett was named ministerial commissioner to the general assembly at Philadelphia May 25, with Rev. P. E. Chalfant of Columbia City as alternate.

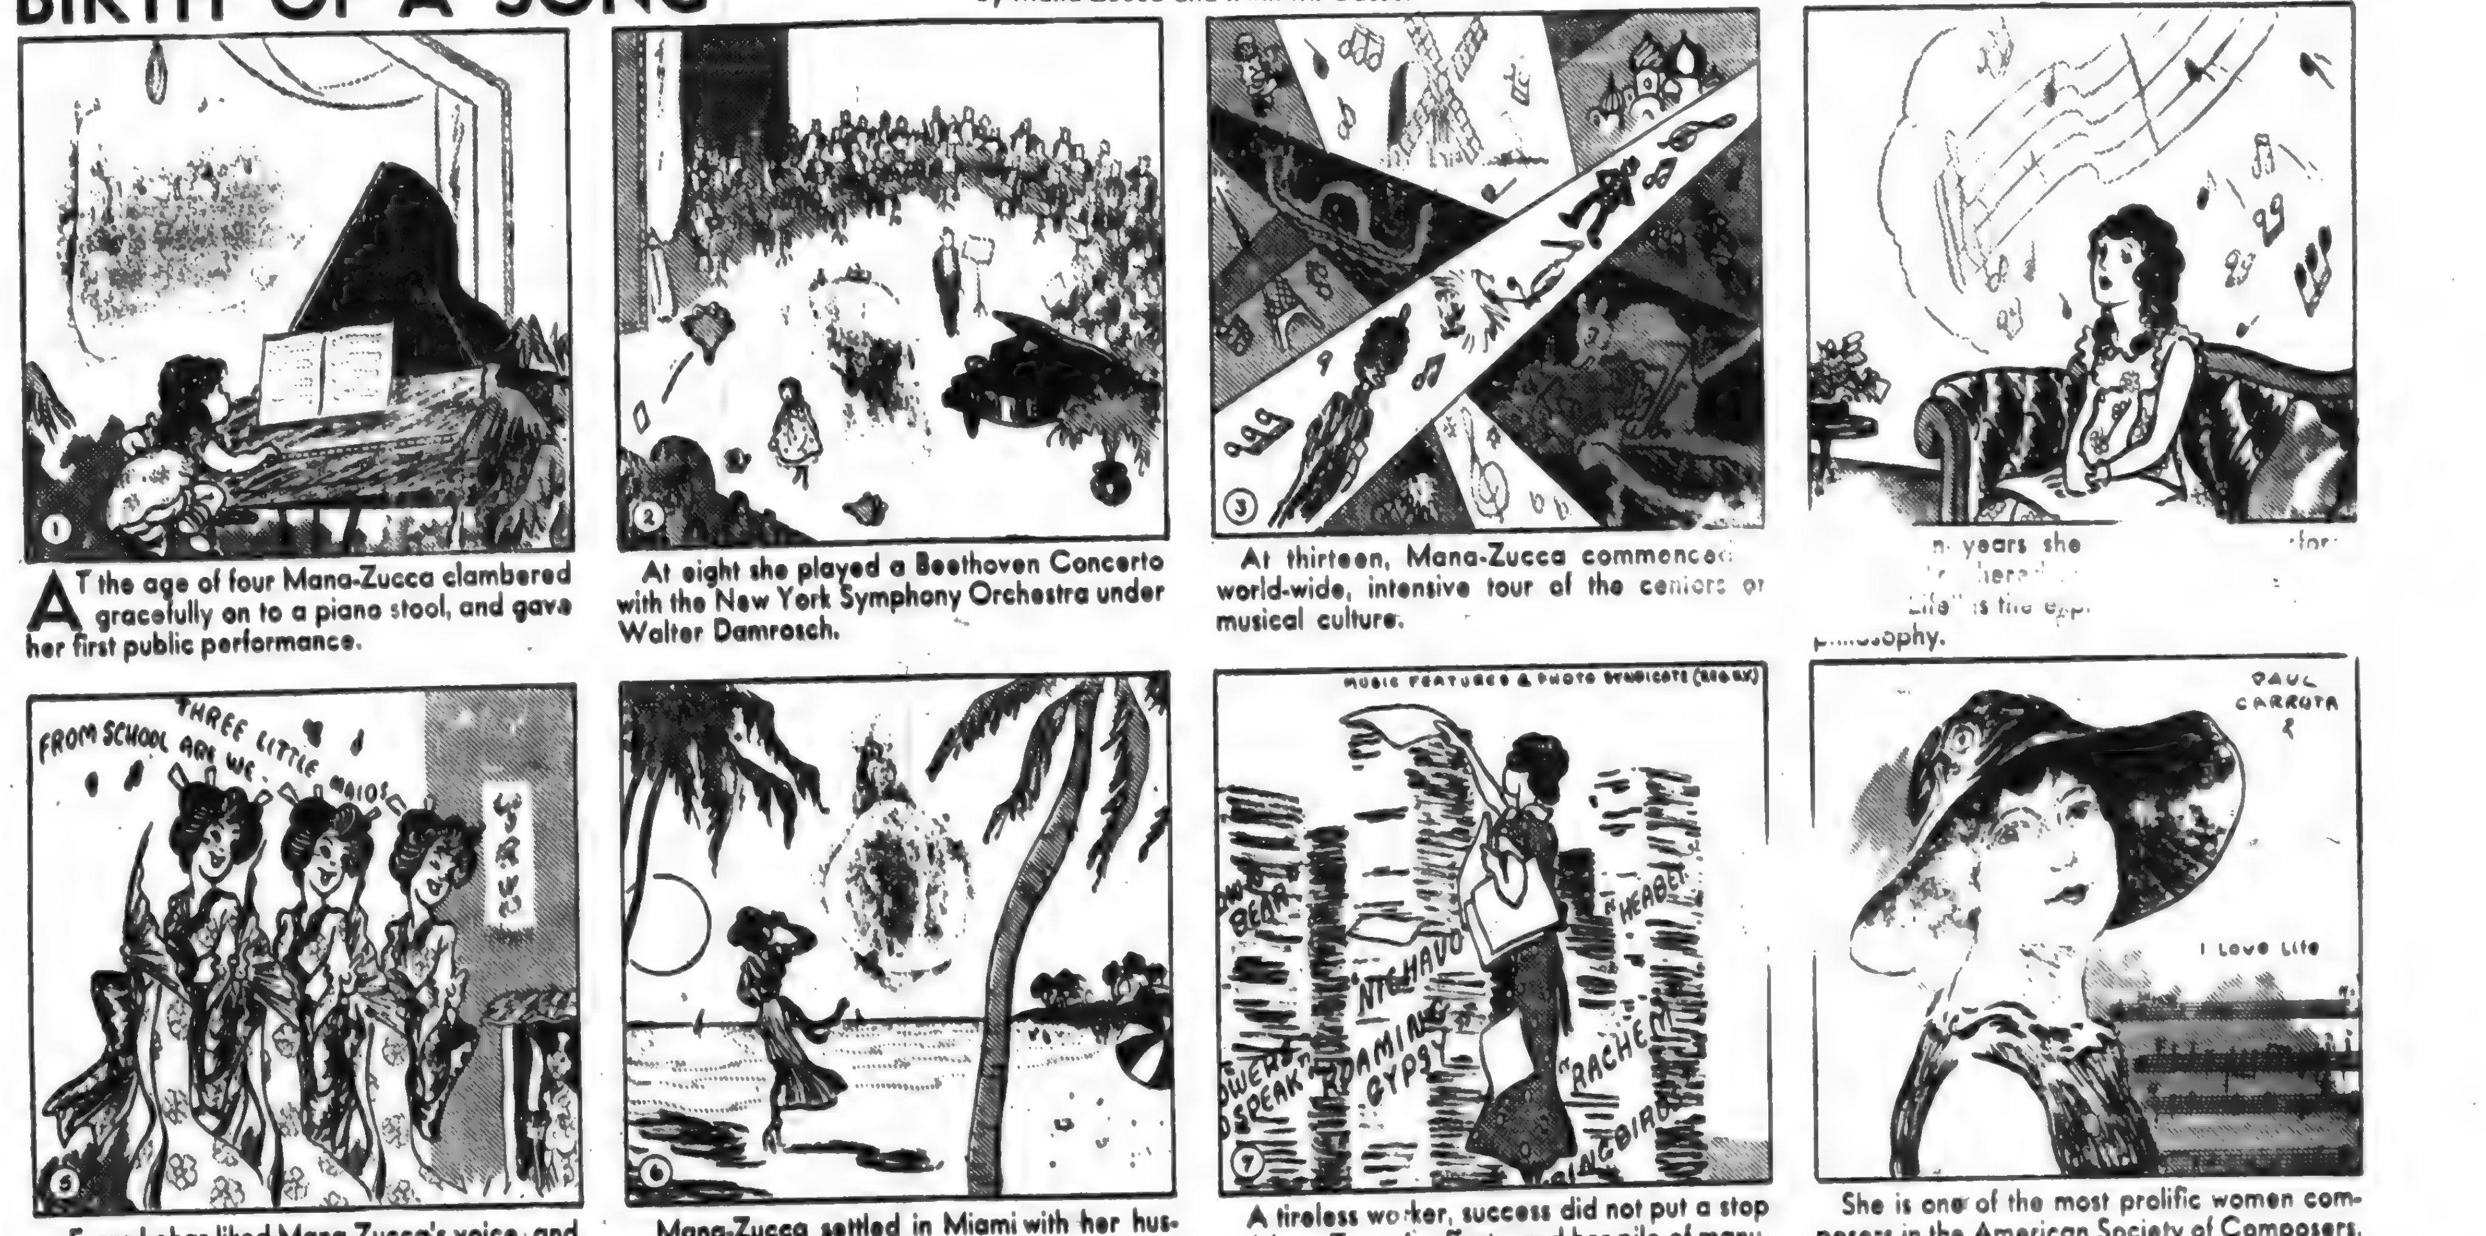
BIRTH OF A SONG

"I LOVE LIFE"
By Mana-Zucca and Irwin M. Cassel

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



At the age of four Mana-Zucca clambered gracefully on to a piano stool, and gave her first public performance.

At eight she played a Beethoven Concerto with the New York Symphony Orchestra under Walter Damrosch.

At thirteen, Mana-Zucca commenced world-wide, intensive tour of the centers of musical culture.

n years she [illegible] Life" is the [illegible] philosophy.

Franz Lehar liked Mana-Zucca's voice, and persuaded her to try operetta. But after a successful trial, she found it was not "serious" enough.

Mana-Zucca settled in Miami with her husband, Irwin M. Cassel, and their young son, Marwin Shepard.

A tireless worker, success did not put a stop to Mana-Zucca's efforts, and her pile of manuscripts kept growing.

She is one of the most prolific women composers in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, with over five hundred compositions to her credit.

AUTO THIEF, DISGUISED AS GIRL, CAPTURED IN INDIANA

Lebanon, Ind., April 21.—Clothes might make the man but lipstick, rouge and a woman's dress won't make him a woman—not enough to deceive a person, anyway.

An automobile slipped into the gas station nine miles north of here last night. The driver, clad in a woman's finery and all the trimmings, asked, in a tremulous falsetto, to "fill it up."

It might have fooled a man but not Mrs. J. E. Duhammell, partowner of the station, who was working the pump. She signalled to her husband to be ready for an emergency. The driver appeared nervous.

As the the last drop splashed in, the motor roared and the driver fled toward Lafayette without paying. Duhammell pursued and after a four-mile chase, over-hauled the thief when the car plunged into a ditch.

While pulling "it" from the wreckage Duhammell discovered he had a 16-year-old boy on his hands. He was Robert France of Indianapolis. He said he had taken his neighbor's car, "swiped" some of his sister's clothes, and was intending to run away from home disguised as a female.

State police returned him to Indianapolis.

Jefferson's Birthday

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"The immortality of Thomas Jefferson does not lie in any one of his achievements, but in his attitude toward mankind."

Again, as we observe the anniversary of his birth, Americans recall that tribute to the author of our Declaration of Independence.

What was his attitude? What would it be toward the problems of today? Jefferson's own recorded words answer such questions.

He believed whole-heartedly in the voice of the average citizen in government.

"That government," he said, "is the strongest of which every one feels himself a part.

"I consider the people who constitute a nation as the source of all authority in that nation."

He believed in the constant vigilance of the people over their government.

"Every government," he wrote, "degenerates when trusted to the rulers of the people alone. The people themselves, therefore, are its only safe depositories.

"Whenever the people are well-informed and things get so far wrong as to attract their notice, they may be relied upon to set them to rights.

"It behooves our citizens to be on their guard, to be firm in their principles, and full of confidence in themselves."

He believed in the American idea of balanced powers in government.

"The principle of the Constitution," he declared, "is that of a separation of Legislative, Executive and Judiciary functions, except in cases specified.

"If the three powers maintain their mutual independence . . . our government may last long, but not so if either can assume the authorities of the other.

"It is not by the consolidation or concentration of powers, but by their distribution that good government is effected."

He believed in the power of Congress as a direct representative of the will of the people.

"The authority of Congress," said Jefferson, "can never be wounded without injury to the present Union."

The American people remember those admonitions. They have demonstrated this by protests, both recently and in the past, against usurpations of power, or the surrender of their own or their representatives' voice in government.

And that is as eloquent a tribute to Jefferson as any uttered by great orators.

FAKE SURGEON OUSTED FROM CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CAMP

St. Paul, Minn., April 21.—Lieut. Hugh D. Halsted, 29, assistant CCC district surgeon, was discharged today from the military service after pleading guilty to misrepresenting both his rank and his qualifications as a doctor. Halsted was an assistant to the Minnesota CCC's surgeon with the rank of lieutenant. When he appeared with a captain's bar on his shoulder-straps, investigation revealed that he also was not a doctor.

HUSBAND LOVES TWO OTHERS, WIFE CHARGES IN COURT

Chicago, April 21.—"I leaned over to kiss him good night and—he acted strangely—he told me he loved another. He said he wanted a divorce."

This was a portion of the testimony given Wednesday by Mrs. Margaret Ehman Williams when she appeared before Circuit Judge John Prystalski seeking separate maintenance from her husband, Chester S. Williams, scion of a wealthy Chicago real estate family.

Williams has a cross bill against her asking for a divorce on grounds of desertion. They were married in 1919 and have a son, Lucien, 17.

Mrs. Williams said her first trouble with the other woman was in 1925 when he went to Texas on business and sent back word that he had fallen in love with a girl.

"I went down there and talked to both of them," Mrs. Williams said. "I talked them out of it. Chester decided to return to his family."

The next trouble was in 1934. She and her husband were in California, she said, and her husband, again called by business, returned to Chicago. Again she got a message about another girl. Again she hurried across country and again tried to talk them out of it—this time in vain.

"He described this new girl to me in every particular," Mrs. Williams said, "and he told me he and the girl had passed a night together in our apartment."

The State Alcoholic Beverage commission Thursday fined several liquor and beer dealers for violations of the state liquor laws. In addition to the fines, the license of William W. Turner of Ashboro, a Clay county beer dealer, was revoked. The commission decided after a hearing that he had sold spirituous beverages and had untaxed alcohol in his possession without a license. Among those fined was John H. Breining of Michigan City, $100 for possessing spirituous beverages for purposes of sale. He is a beer and wine retailer.

A case wherein a husband and wife sued each other for divorce practically simultaneously, with attorneys involved running a rather close race, was reported at the office of Mrs. Alma App Reed, Allen county clerk in Fort Wayne Wednesday. Attorney T. Harold Moylan was said to have been first under the wire with his suit wherein Daniel Niebel of Fort Wayne, sought a divorce from Mrs. Dorothy Niebel on the allegation that she was incompatible. Not long afterward Attorney Thomas G. Moorhead came in with his complaint wherein Mrs. Niebel demanded that she be given a divorce from her husband. She alleged in part that she had been obliged not only to support and maintain herself, but also to contribute at intervals to the support of her spouse.

Altogether I Need Lamps

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

DEKALB COUNTY IS INCLUDED IN LIST OF PWA PROJECTS

Washington, April 20.—The Public Works administration today made public a list of 2,785 approved projects whose estimated total cost is $1,016,686,130 and which are ready for an immediate start if congress appropriates new PWA funds.

All projects were approved on the basis of 45 per cent grants under the old PWA program.

It was emphasized that the list did not mean projects necessarily would be started, but that revival of the program rested with states and municipalities should congress supply funds as recommended by President Roosevelt.

The 88 Indiana projects included the following:

DeKalb county: Garrett, power improvement grant, $17,550, total cost, $39,000; St. Joe, waterworks, grant $18,630, total cost $41,400.

WILL PLAN INDIANA EXHIBIT FOR NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

Indianapolis, April 20.—Indiana's exhibit at the 1939 World fair at New York will be planned by a committee of 150, meeting April 26 at the Indiana National bank.

Arthur V. Brown, chairman of the state's advisory committee for the fair, called the meeting. The group will select a subcommittee to interview business concerns in the state interested in joining the exhibit.

Mr. Brown said he felt that "it would be a serious matter if we were to ignore the opportunity which is open to us" in advertising the state at the fair.

He said Governor M. Clifford Townsend is in accord with plans and will attend the committee meeting.

RAILROAD CARS PLUNGE OFF VIADUCT TO HIGHWAY BELOW

Chicago, April 21.—A vagrant was killed and four others were injured early today when four cars of a Rock Island freight train plunged off a viaduct and dropped 20 feet to a highway. The men were riding in an empty car.

Another man was reported to be buried beneath the wreckage.

The dead man was identified as Henry Franks, Kansas City.

Twelve cars of the train were derailed. Company officials said a broken axle caused the wreck.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1938 NUMBER 17

NEW OFFICERS FOR COUNTY FEDERATION

Mrs. John Leighty of St. Joe Named President of Club Women at Annual Convention Held in Auburn Last Week

Mrs. John Leighty, of St. Joe, was named president of the DeKalb County Federation of Clubs at the fourteenth annual convention held Wednesday morning and afternoon at the Eckhart public library in Auburn. Mrs. Herman L. Brown was elected vice president and Mrs. Frank Curie, of St. Joe, the secretary-treasurer.

At the afternoon session the convention endorsed the candidacy of Mrs. Walter Allen, president of the Fort Wayne Women's Clubs, for state treasurer.

At 3:00 o'clock eighty-five had registered. Clubs in the county represented were the Twentieth Century, Delphian, Athene and Psychology clubs of Garrett; Progressive Literary and Minerva clubs of Waterloo; Ladies Literary club of St. Joe and the Auburn Culture, Entre Nous, Junior Entre Nous, Kenwig and Ladies Literary clubs of Auburn.

Luncheon was served at 11:45 o'clock at the Christian Church and was followed by a program. A group from Auburn high school girls' glee club, directed by Miss Mary Brandon sang, a reading was given by Donna Jeanne Rose of Garrett, and Mrs. W. A. Clefford of Garrett, offered a vocal number.

The morning session was devoted to registration, business and a program and in the afternoon the meeting continued with the presentation of piano solos, skits, playlets and vocal numbers.

Mrs. E. L. Bower of Auburn, the retiring president, persided during the convention. Mrs. Allen Haller of St. Joe, is the retiring vice president and Mrs. J. A. Sanders of Auburn, the retiring secretary and treasurer.

Convention Notes

The program of the DeKalb County Convention of Federated Clubs was confined entirely to talent within the club membership.

The contribution of the L. L. C. of St. Joe was a piano solo by Mrs. Harry Bollinger. Mrs. Bollinger is an accomplished musician and her number was excellent.

An interesting feature of the opening exercises in the morning was the presentation of the State and American flags to the stage by two dainty little Misses who stood at attention after placing the flags in the standards while the audience sang one verse of The Star Spangled Banner.

An essay on "The Need for Revision of the Indiana Marriage Laws" by Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Junior L. L. C. is a contestant for honors in a district essay competition. It has our vote to win.

Miss Jeanne Buss, of Auburn, sang with distinction a group of songs. She is a singer of great promise, an unusual charm and is well on her way to fame.

Mrs. Edna Brown, of Auburn, led the audience in singing The Star Spangled Banner and did we sing with such a leader. Later on the program she sang two solos which gave her a high niche in versatility.

A playlet by the Progressive Literary Club of Waterloo, was a clever presentation of what women might do before the microphone. It had been their understanding that it was a practice program but when told that they were really on the air their greatest concern was because they were not "dressed up."

A popular Interest Test by the Psychology Club of Garrett gave each one a chance to check their own popular interest. This was presented by Mrs. O. B. Rose of Garrett, in-coming District President succeeding Mrs. Earl Peters of Fort Wayne.

A clever skit entitled "Meeting the Better City Campaign" by the Culture Club of Auburn, told the world what was wrong with it, and why clothes of the gay nineties added much to their future mood.

Space does not permit a complete account of the many interesting features of the day.

Mrs. Earl Peters, retiring District President, told of work completed and new enterprises to pass on to her successor.

Mrs. Allen, state chairman for motion pictures, told what club women had done for better films and to check a more careful selection for presentation.

We can only touch upon some of the special studies sponsored by the Federation: American Citizenship, American Home, Fine Arts, International Relations, Public Welfare, Community Service, Co-operation for the Blind, Rural Co-operation, Motion Pictures, Religious Education, Student Loan.

These subjects cover a wide divergence of accomplishment by clubs, other than their literary study. Work designed to aid those less fortunate or to stimulate the early beginnings of undeveloped talent.

We hope for the new year that no woman will miss having a part in this the most co-operative of all movements, the Federation of Women's Clubs.

FOR MEN ONLY! What to expect during spring housecleaning . . .

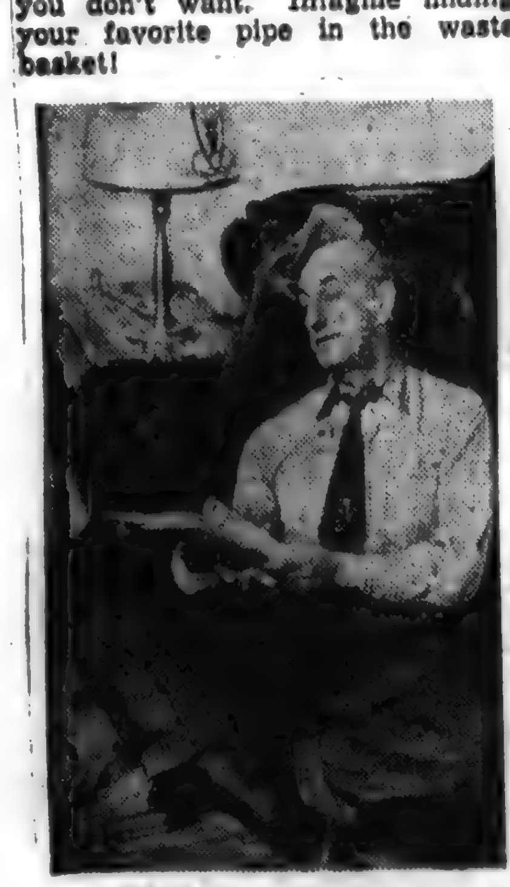
Arthur Van Harvey, star of the NBC coast-to-coast "Vic and Sade" program, demonstrates what American husbands can expect during spring housecleaning season, this year or any year. Above: Coming home to eat beans for dinner—and out of the can at that!

The little woman has thrown away everything you want and kept what you don't want. Imagine finding your favorite pipe in the waste basket!



All settled down for the evening with a magazine—on the floor. During spring housecleaning you're lucky to get in the house at all.

Next morning you discover with a shriek that the junkman has appropriated the trousers for your new suit. That's life—and spring housecleaning!

HOLC FORCED TO TAKE OVER 2,109 HOUSES IN INDIANA

The policy of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation with regard to management and sale of its acquired policies has been announced by Robert M. Collier, state manager.

As of Jan. 1, 1938, after four and one-half years of operation, the corporation had acquired 76,583 properties throughout the nation, which represents 7.5 per cent of the total loans closed in the United States. The corporation closed 49,761 loans in Indiana for which bonds and cash in the amount of $112,196,089.66 was exchanged. As of April 16, 1938, the HOLC has acquired title to 2,109 properties in Indiana.

"With respect to the policy to be followed in the management and resale of acquired properties, the corporation has announced that it does not propose to dump on the market the homes which it is obligated to take over," Mr. Collier said. "It would be shortsighted policy to stimulate a new depression of real estate values by indulging in forced sale of properties. Properties are not offered for sale at less than fair value."

TO SHOW FREE MOTION PICTURES MAY FIFTH

Mr. Ira P. Nelson will be sent to St. Joe on Thursday evening, May 5, representing the Conservation Department, and will show free motion pictures.

The club will be pleased to have the entire community see these pictures. Watch for announcement next week.

The June second meeting will also have a free showing of pictures being a pageant of Inland Transportation. This film will be produced under the auspices of the Public Relations Department of the B. & O. Railroad Co., in the person of Mr. G. W. Becker, of Baltimore. Plans are now being completed by the club officers for the above meetings.

FARMER DIES OF SUDDEN HEART ATTACK

Without warning of any kind, Ross H. Abel, died at his farm home south of Spencerville, Monday evening, while he and his wife were trying to corral some hogs that had broken through the fence. He had been in his usual good health.

For many years he had taught school in this section of DeKalb County. He was born January 29, 1880, and departed this life April 25, 1938, at the age of 58 years, 2 months and 26 days. He was the only son of Walter M. and Anna Abel. He is survived by the wife, Zona, and one sister, Mrs. Phillip Carper, of near Auburn.

The funeral will be held from the D. K. Horn Homestead Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, with burial in White City Cemetery at Spencerville. Roscoe Walter in charge.

WHAT A CATCH!

Believe it or not—Ed Storer reports having caught 8 rock bass, 4 large suckers and 1 channel cat, a 2 pounder on Tuesday afternoon in the river. He has his money's worth already in pleasure, and he had just bought his license at News office only a few minutes before making the catch.

B. E. Widney is at Indianapolis visiting Miss Elizabeth Jones and mother. He will remain for several days.

By IROQUOIS DAHL

A FISHERMAN named Howard Anders, from Jacksonville, Ill., went out one day to catch himself a few fish. Anders had caught a lot of fish in his lifetime, but what was his amazement on this particular occasion when he landed a fish wearing spectacles! It's only reasonable to assume that someone had dropped the glasses overboard and that they had subsequently become caught in the fish's gills. But then, again, perhaps the fish just wanted to get a better look at what was on the other end of the line. Who can tell?

PUBLIC STATEMENT TO REPUBLICAN VOTERS

I wish to say through the columns of our county papers that I have enjoyed meeting old friends in my campaign for the Republican nomination for Sheriff, and have also made many new friends.

In talking to different people getting their viewpoint on life and business, I have found in all cases that they wish to have freedom of speech, be free to run their business as they see fit, be free to vote for the person they think is qualified to manage what ever office or position is to be filled, and to operate their particular business so that they can pass it on down the line in such a way that the ones who follow after will have respect and honor for the way the work was done.

In conclusion I wish to say that I have been repaid many times over for the time I have spent among you, and that I would like very much to meet and talk with each and every resident of this fine old County of DeKalb, and if nominated, it will be a pleasure and an honor to carry on and work for a successful election in November.

CARL D. CARPENTER,
Republican Candidate for Sheriff.

RESIGNS AS S. & E. LEADER

A reception in honor of Mrs. Grace Dilley of St. Joe will be given by the DeKalb County Farm Bureau at the Chamber of Commerce dining room on Friday, April 29, at 7:30 o'clock P. M. It is expected that four hundred will attend. Mrs. Dilley, who has been the county social and educational leader of the Women's Home Bureau for seven years, has asked to be relieved of her duties and the reception will be a testimonial for her faithful services. All who have in any way been connected with the Farm and Home Bureaus are invited to attend the reception.

LEST WE FORGET

Nearly twenty years have passed since peace spread her pitying veil over No Man's Land in war-torn France. Those who lived that barrowing chapter of world history have not forgotten, and we who know the sacred meaning of the blood-red Poppy must bear its message to the millions who may all too easily forget the sacrifice of those to whom was written
"In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Bewteen the crosses row on row...."

They live on in patient resignation, these heroes of the war, blind, maimed, nerve-racked and body-racked by poison gas and shell shock. Their feeble hands, in the last, fading heartbeats of struggle to serve, have shaped the poppy symbols of our soldier dead in Flanders' fields; their hopes go out on Poppy Day that the millions will not forget—and may our resolution be that no generation living today shall not pause and remember on Poppy Day the gifts of life and health that have enriched our civilization, and on the foundation of which we stand more securely to face a future of more freedom, more liberty, a broader realization of our own hopes because they gave unstintedly the last measure of their earthly hopes.

It is not in a spirit of charity that we are pledged to meet increasing demands in the rehabilitation of World War veterans. We are obligated. They owe us nothing and all that money can buy is so little with which to pay the debt of blood and devotion that we shall owe them in this life and beyond this life. And not only the veteran in his aging years looks to us on Poppy Day for the wages of his labors past and present, but the families, the wives and children of veterans. They, too, have indirectly given in many instances their hope of happiness in life security. Their's are broken homes, to them as tragic and irremediable as the darkness of the blind and the crutches of the invalid.

BASS SEASON CLOSES; TROUT SEASON OPENS FOR STATE ANGLERS

At midnight Saturday, April 30, the open season for taking trout begins in Indiana but at the same time the closed season for taking bass, bluegills and other game will start, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, warned Hoosier anglers today.

Trout may be taken in Indiana from May 1 to August 31, both dates inclusive, with a daily limit of 15 trout of all species and a minimum length of seven inches. This sport has been developed in Indiana largely within the last few years and is growing in popularity. The best trout fishing is found in Northern Indiana streams which have been stocked regularly.

During the past ten days Indiana fisherman have reported some record catches of bass and other game fish in both streams and lakes, the best stream fishing following the high water period and higher temperatures. Many of the fish taken during the past week have been filled with matured eggs, indicating that the spawning season has started.

The closed season on taking game fish, protects bluegills, red eared sunfish, crappies, rock bass, silver bass, smallmouth and largemouth black bass, Kentucky bass, white or striped bass, wall-eye or pike-perch, yellow perch, and pike or pickerel. Taking or possession of any fish of these species is a violation of the laws. The closed season for taking bass and other species of game fish, except trout, continues until Thursday, June 16.

Special attention is called to a law enacted by the General Assembly in 1937, establishing a closed season on the taking of frogs between April 30 and June 16. This statute provides that, "It shall be unlawful for any person to take, catch, or kill in any manner, in this state, any frog from the first day of May to the fifteenth day of June of any year, both dates inclusive.

Rickenbacker Maintains Auto Racing At Indianapolis is 'Cleanest Sport'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Auto racing is still "aces high" with America's ace of aces of the World War.

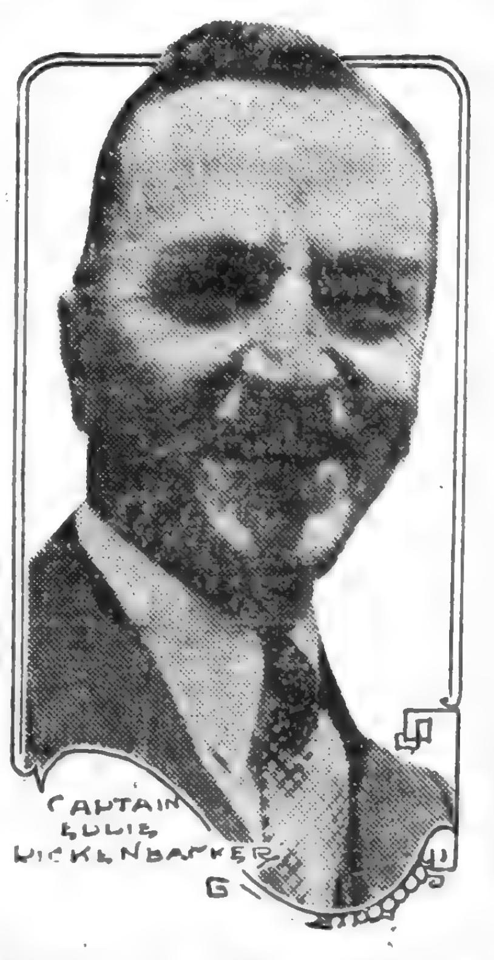
Captain Eddie Rickenbacker—he still forgets he has a colonelcy—is celebrating his tenth anniversary of being associated with the management of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

As president of the organization which sponsors the 500-mile race each year, Captain Rickenbacker has had one paramount purpose—"To maintain automobile racing on a plane of clean sport and fair competition."

"We have always given the huge crowd at Indianapolis a good show for its money," he says. "We have turned every effort toward maintaining the high level of sportsmanship on the part of drivers. And we have adopted every means of assuring them the utmost safety in this laboratory of speed from which have evolved so many improvements that have benefitted the motoring public of America."

Twenty years ago, the President of the speedway was risking his life in the battle to save democracy. He shot down 26 enemy planes, escaped with his life when his plane cracked up at a height of 5,000 feet, and emerged from the World War acclaimed as America's premier aviator.

Since then he has worked unceasingly to make commercial aviation the safe mode of transportation it has become. As general manager and dynamic force of Eastern Air-lines, he has helped aviation become one of the country's most progressive industries.



It was he, as chairman of the Contest Board of the AAA, who was instrumental in adopting international rules for the 500-mile race May 30th, and increasing the prize money for the contestants.

"I want this to be the greatest of all 500-mile contests," he said, "it will have closer competition, certainly, and I see a vast improvement for American motors resulting from the new rules."

Altogether I Need Lamps

We'll Help You, Madam, to Brighten Up!

Believe it or not, our business is—partly—to spread sunshine and light. We do it by brightening up countless homes with genuine Edison MAZDA Lamps—known everywhere as "The Sun's Only Rival." These fine electric lamps have never been surpassed in giving the most light for the current used.

Look about your home. Count the empty sockets—count the blackened, wasteful lamps. Jot down your figures right on this advertisement; then clip the ad and slip it into your purse.

15c

Let it remind you, on your next shopping trip, that you can afford to burn Edison MAZDA Lamps freely. Let it remind you to come to us, without delay, for a good supply. Singly or in handy cartons of six.

"ONE MORNING IN MAY"
"LAZY BONES" "WASHBOARD BLUES" "GEORGIA ON MY MIND" "RIVER BOAT SHUFFLE" "SNOWBALL" "THANKSGIVIN" "LITTLE OLD LADY" "LAZY RIVER"

IN Bloomington, Indiana, where he was born, Hoagy Carmichael picked up piano from his rag-time playing mother. His father was a one step clog dancer and electrician.

Hoagy led the Indiana University band between studying law and writing songs. Paul Whiteman liked his "Washboard Blues" and recorded it.

Music publishers called Carmichael, but he turned to banking, then to his chosen profession, law.

His chosen, but unprofitable profession gave him lots of time to tinker with tunes, and Hoagy's brief case was full of music when he left Florida.

The Hoosier schoolboy returned to Indianapolis to continue his career, but if law was on his brain, swing was in his heart.

Hoagy wrote "Star Dust" and other songs during this period. He tried to crash Hollywood with no success, came east and settled down in the music world.

Two years later, and "Star Dust" cometed into first place as the hit torch song of this generation. Now Hollywood DEMANDED him.

Hoagy's many fine songs have [illegible] him high rank in the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, which licenses the performing rights of his music.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Spring house cleaning time is here. What kind of equipment do you use when you wash windows in your home? Thoughtless housewives too often climb up on rickety ladders and dangerous stools and even teeter on rocking chairs in order to reach high places.

The only wise practice is to use a good, sturdy step ladder which provides a place for the water container.

Falls cost 26,000 lives in 1937!

And a word about home dry cleaning. Despite countless warnings of danger, people persist in using naptha, gasoline, and other cleaning fluids indoors in inadequately ventilated rooms. Explosions and fires caused by faulty handling of these cleaning fluids have caused severe injuries and have cost many persons their lives.

Do all your home dry cleaning out of doors.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

WOODEN SHIPS AND IRON MEN

After twenty-two minutes of fighting the British ship Penguin had fallen a prey to the marksmanship of the sailors and marines on the American warship Hornet, during one of the final sea actions of the War of 1812.

The two ships met in March, 1815, and the indomitable spirit of the Americans again carried them through to victory, while the proud Penguin was forced to lower her colors.

During the action Private Michael Smith, of the U. S. Marines, a veteran of many other sea battles, had fought bravely. When the victory was almost won he was shot through the upper part of the thigh, fracturing the bone. Almost at the same moment a shattered boom from the Hornet struck him in the wounded leg and broke the same bone—this time immediately above the knee.

In great pain from his wounds and unable to rise from the deck, the brave sea soldier had no intention of quitting the fight. His enemies in the fighting top of the Penguin were still visible, and Smith tried desperately to raise himself to a position from which he would be able to discharge his musket at them.

In vain he tried to muster enough strength to raise himself into a firing position. His shattered leg and hip would not allow him to carry on the fight. Finally, his comrades were compelled to carry him below decks.

Few men have exhibited a more tenacious courage. Yet the story of his valor has faded into the twilight of forgotten incidents which happened during the days of wooden ships and iron men.

IRA P. NELSON
Conservation Department

The June second meeting will also have a free showing of pictures being a pageant of Inland Transportation. This film will be produced under the auspices of the Public Relations Department of the B. & O. Railroad Co., in the person of Mr. G. W. Becker, of Baltimore. Plans are now being completed by the club officers for the above meetings.

LEGS BROKEN MONDAY BY ROLLING LOGS

Loren O'Connell, 23, of Columbia City, was seriously hurt in a woods accident Monday afternoon, on the W. L. Hamilton farm, just east of St. Joe. O'Connell, with other men, were loading logs onto a truck. Two logs were on the bunks, when the chain broke, allowing them to roll down the skids. O'Connell proceeded to duck underneath the truck, when he was caught and severely crushed and both legs were broken. His right leg was broken below the knee and above the ankle, the left leg being broken just below the hip.

Dr. F. F. DeMuth was hurriedly called to the woods where he prepared him for being rushed to the Methodist Hospital in Fort Wayne in the Kinsey ambulance.

O'Connell was an employee of the Morsches & Nowels Lumber Co., of Columbia City, and the trucks have been busy all week transporting huge loads of choice logs from the Hamilton wodds.

X-Ray pictures were to be taken Tuesday to determine the extent of the hip injuries.

LOCAL LADY ELECTED PRESIDENT AT CONFERENCE

St. Mark's Lutheran Church was represented at the Northern Conference of Women's Missionary Society of Indiana Synod which was held at LaGrange on Wednesday, April 27.

The morning session of the conference was devoted to business and election of officers. Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of St. Joe, was named president; Mrs. John Smith, Auburn, vice president; Mrs. Loye Bayless, of Uniondale, secretary, and Mrs. A. H. Keck, of Gary, treasurer.

Mrs. A. K. Trout, of Indianapolis, addressed the morning session on "Missionary Advance."

At the afternoon session Miss Edith Eykamp, Lutheran missionary on furlough from India, addressed the women of the convention on "The Cause of Christ in India," bringing a personal message form her thirteen years on the field.

The next convention will be held at St. Luke's, Ft. Wayne, in the spring of 1939.

HOME BUREAU

The Ladies of the Concord Township Home Bureau and a number of guests enjoyed a trip to the News-Sentinel Kitchen Institute in Fort Wayne, Monday. Places were laid for thirty-two at the tables and at 1:00 o'clock that number were seated for the luncheon. Mrs. Gladys Rohrbach proved to be a very charming hostess and the luncheon which was served was a most enjoyable repast. After lunch Mrs. Rohrbach gave a short talk as also did Mrs. Curtis, Home Ec. instructor for the Kitchen Institute.

Mrs. Borthwick, Home Bureau president, then presided during a short business session of the club. In the absence of the secretary Mrs. Beulah Coburn called roll which was responded to with jokes. A poem was read by Mrs. Laura Washler and a short talk given by Mrs. Bird Nicholls.

Members present were: Gertrude Borthwick, Harriett Draggoo, Beulah Coburn, Clara Foltz, Anna Hursey, Maude Jenkins, Arline Koch, Mary Krise, Bird Nichols, Myrtle Pugsley, Clara Sible, Katie Storer, Minnie Ulm, Mable Weikle, Helen U. Wade, Ethel Wineland, Nevada Wyatt, Iva Yeiser and Laura Washler. Guests were: Mrs. Charley Krise, president of Wilmington Twp. Home Bureau, Mrs. Will Hamilton, former Concord Twp. Home Bureau president, Mrs. Sam Armstrong, Mrs. Reigh Schondelmayer, Mrs. George Wade, Mrs. Beatrice Laub, Mrs. Fern Draggoo, Mrs. Ruth Coburn, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, Mrs. Cora Price, Mrs. Ida Woodcox, and the Misses Garnet Washler and Kathrine Young. All pronounced it a most enjoyable day and occasion for which the News-Sentinel Kitchen Institute has the thanks of the entire group of ladies.

Teh regular meeting of the Home Bureau will be May 20th at the home of Mrs. Harriett Johnson.

COUNTRY LADY FALLS AND BREAKS HIP

Mrs. J. N. Scholes is a patient in the Lutheran Hospital in Ft. Wayne, as result of a broken hip bone, caused by a fall in her home Saturday.

Mr. Scholes had gone to Auburn for a while and she thought she would rather take a rest than to accompany him, so she lay on the couch instead of the bed where she was accustomed to resting.

She heard someone on the porch and thinking the butter woman was coming she attempted to get up suddenly and go to the door. She staggered and fell to the floor, with the hip fracture as a result. Just at this time Mr. Scholes walked in finding her on the floor. It was he she had heard returning from Auburn.

He worked for some time before he could get her up from the floor. Monday morning she was taken to the hospital in the Kinsey ambulance, where she was immediately placed in a cast.

Mrs. Scholes was in the hospital for many weeks following a serious operation and had quite fully recovered and was again able to be about.

This injury is quite a serious one.

MAKE PURCHASE OF MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

The merchants of St. Joe with the cooperation of the citizens have purchased a Holmes Moving Picture Machine and Sound Equipment.

After careful investigation this machine was decided as best for our needs. It is a 16 mm. machine which uses fireproof films. As this equipment is classed as non-theatrical it means greatly improved service and pictures for the community.

This equipment is easily taken care of because of its sturdy construction and 100 per cent gear driven parts. It has no belts, the working parts are driven from gears on two shafts all sealed in oil.

It means that a much higher type of free picture shows will be presented to you, by the merchants of St. Joe, each Saturday night.

You are cordially invited to share in the pleasure and education of such pictures as: Girl of the Limberlost; Keeper of the Bees; The Healer; Lost Jungle; The Nut House; Happy Landing; Wild Horse; Via Pony Express.

Actors like: Noah Beery, Hoot Gibson, Clyde Beatty, Mickey Rooney, Jack Hope, Stepin Fetchit.

Short Subjects: Aesops Sound Fables; Will Rogers travel talks; Grantland Rice Sports.

LITTLE MEN (8 reels)

Next Saturday Night at St. Joe
Running Time: 80 Minutes
Author: Louisa M. Alcott
Cast: Ralph Morgan, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Junior Durkin, Frankie Darro, Dickie Moore, Buster Phelps, Tommy Bupp and others.
Director: Phil Rosen

This story has all the appeal of a grand story of child life, the home and all those things that grownups cherish in their memories of their own childhood. Ralph Morgan does grandly by the role of Professor Baer, the kindly but stern master whose wife insists on loading up her home with the orphan waifs.

Erin O'Brien-Moore is perfect in the part of Aunt Jo, the wife who mothers the motherless children. Most of the well known juveniles of the screen are in the cast, which consists practically of the kid characters in Louisa M. Alcott's famous novel of child life. Junior Durkin has the leading role of Franz and Frankie Darro does a grand characterization of Dan, the homeless waif brought into the home by his pal. The film sticks closely to the action of the novel, and all identified with the production deserves high praise for the way in which this classic of our childhood has been brough to life with a very clever cast of youngsters all doing fine work.

BAND MOTHERS ORGANIZE

TESTIMONIAL FOR MRS. GRACE DILLEY

S. & E. Director of County Home Bureau for Past Seven Years Honored at Reception in Auburn Friday Night

A great testimonial was given Mrs. Grace Dilley, of St. Joe, retiring social and educational director of the DeKalb County Home Bureau, at the Auburn Chamber of Commerce on Friday night. Mrs. Dilley had been head of the group for seven years. Nearly four hundred attended. State and district leaders in Farm Bureau activities, former and present township leaders, pioneers in the work when the membership in DeKalb County numbered only thirty-two and a group of boys and girls in 4-H clubs were in attendance.

The program started at 8:00 o'clock. Mrs. Stella Goldsmith, first county president, headed the ararngements committee. Back of the speakers' table was a white trellis covered with pink rose buds. Rose buds were also used for the individual favors. Pink and white lilacs were the table decorations.

Mrs. Frank Baltz played a march. Distinguished guests and the social and educational directors of the several townships marched to the table reserved for the speakers. Mrs. Rosemary Farmer, of Butler Township, sang "The One Rose" by Del Lyon and Lani McIntire.

Mrs. Lester Boger, of Union Township, read the story of the rose, telling the different virtues it represented and each township director placed a red rosebud in a silver container. Those taking part in this ceremony were Mrs. Fred Hart, of Spencer Township, who takes the place of Mrs. Dilley as county director; Mrs. Rosemary Farmer, of Butler Township, Mrs. Adrian Washler of Concord Township, Mrs. Lehr Wilder, of Spencer Township, Mrs. John Washler, Newville Township, Mrs. Audria Brown of Farnklin Township, Mrs. Ethel McCleery of Wilmington Township, Mrs. Ed Rickard of Stafford Township, Mrs. Alice Schweitzer, of Fairfield Township, Mrs. Harold Wise, Keyser Township, Mrs. Earl Farrington, Richland Township, Mrs. Virgil Korff, Grant Township, Mrs. Donna Mitchener of Jackson Township and Mrs. Helen Ellert of Smithfield Towship.

Mrs. Morris Hanson, of near Fremont, director of District No. 2, expressed the appreciation of the organization for the work Mrs. Dilley had done and Mrs. Lillie Scott, of Clayton, state director, paid an eloquent tribute to Mrs. Dilley. The candles were lighted. Mrs. Dilley gave a short talk in appreciation for the words spoken and the cooperation of all groups during her seven years as county leader.

A picture was taken of the group and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. After the serving there was an informal interval during which pep songs were sung, led by Mrs. Farmer and Albert Yoder, president of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau. Larry M. Brandon of Union Township, state senator, spoke and Mr. Yoder presented J. H. St. Clair and George King, two of the oldest members, and the ones who pioneered the way for the organization in its formative period.

Still another trouble with the average man who rides a hobby is that he wants to take up the whole road with it.

It's an easy matter to drum up a crowd for a public auction sale or a base ball game but it's a job getting the same fellows to the polls.

The motorist who used to sprain his arm cranking a flivver now throws it out of joint trying to fold up a road map.

It may not interest you, but a lot of people wonder why the fellow who has but very little hair left doesn't comb it over the bald spot.

As a general thing, those who know how to properly pronounce the names of French dishes haven't money enough to pay for them.

The easiest way on earth for a woman to make her husband mad is to start in repeating a few of the promises he made while he was courting her.

Mules and men are two things that never make any headway while they are kicking.

Some men are so contrary that they prefer buttermilk because it tastes worse than coffee.

After a citizen has been on this earth about fifty years he reaches the conclusion that the real trouble with this world is that there are too many things to buy and too little money to do it with.

Why is it that some women never know what they want until they find out they can't get it?

Another thing needed in this country is a way to satisfy a chicken appetite with an oatmeal salary.

THE STORY OF THE POPPY

Every year on the Saturday before Memorial Day millions of Americans wear little red poppies on their coats. Of course you know that the poppies are worn in memory of the men who lost their lives in the World War, but I wonder if you know how the poppy came to be the nation's memorial flower.

As the American soldiers struggled forward through the shattered villages, across the shell-torn fields and over the blasted hillsides, they saw only one touch of life and beauty in all that region where death and destruction reigned. This was the little wild poppies. Along the very edges of the trenches, about the ragged shell holes and in the fields raked by machine gun fire, the brave little poppies grew and bloomed. When comrades were left beneath the bare dirt of hastily dug battle graves, the poppies sprang up and clothed the graves with flowers. It seemed as if the gallant spirit of the dead had passed into the blood-red blossoms and that through the little flowers they were sending a message of courage and hope to those who still lived.

The poppy has become the symbol of the dead—their memorial flower. The poppy covers the soil of France beneath which they lie, and on Poppy Day we place the flower over our hearts, where the memory of the great sacrifice they made for our country is forever enshrined.
